Dear Fellow Missourian:

The Official Manual or the "Blue Book" is one of the most recognized and widely used publications of Missouri state government. This edition, the first of my term and the 63rd in the history of the manual, contains useful information about your government-federal, state and local.

I am pleased to dedicate this edition to Missouri's timeless heroes-our veterans. Without their sacrifices and commitment to our state and nation, Missourians would neither enjoy the freedoms nor the privileges that we do today. Another special feature of this edition is the photo contest honoring Missouri's patriotism. Photographers from across our state submitted entries depicting the rich heritage and pride that unite us as Missourians and Americans.

Former Missouri State Archivist Gary Kremer has written a poignant feature article on Jefferson City's 175th anniversary as the state capitol of Missouri. Missourians have come to expect the Blue Book to be a window to our past in addition to serving as a resource for current information. Professor Kremer's essay continues this proud tradition.

In preparing the manual, my staff and I utilized emerging technologies to improve the efficiency of publication and to hold down expenditures. It is an honor to serve the people of Missouri and I hope you will find this edition of the Official Manual to be helpful and informative.

Missouri Veterans Defending Our Freedom

A beautiful spring day brought difficult problems to the attention of a famous Missourian. An Army veteran who had served America in wartime, he set to work with characteristic determination.

Through the day on May 23, 1946, Harry Truman worked to avert a nationwide railroad strike. An hour before the deadline, Missouri's President left the White House and went to the South Lawn, where he hosted a reception for nearly 900 soldiers, sailors, and airmen who had been wounded in World War II. One of his early decisions as President had been to revive the tradition of honoring hospitalized veterans at the White House.

Our greatest leaders are those who set an example. For me, one of the finest demonstrations of Harry Truman's character was his concern for men and women who have served our nation in times of crisis.

Missouri's distinguished heritage of patriotism and valor dates from the first days of our history. The earliest settlers of American territory west of the Mississippi River included veterans of the American Revolution, the War of 1812, and state military units. Time and time again, Missouri has been made proud by the selfless patriotism of people like Pershing and Bradley and Truman, and by others who have served in peace and war, and who serve today on active duty around the world as well as those in the Missouri National Guard and in the Reserve.

It is not possible for us to ever fulfill the debt we owe to our veterans. The loss of friends and loved ones ... the scars of battle ... the willingness to place oneself in harm's way, in service to others ... these are gifts to Missouri and the nation that cannot be repaid.

As a state and nation, we have sought to honor and assist veterans of military service. Acting through their state government, Missourians have provided services to veterans since 1931. In 1989, the former Division of Veterans' Affairs was rechartered by the legislature as the Missouri Veterans' Commission. With the support and help of our veterans organizations, the Commission counsels and assists Missouri veterans who are filing for benefits from the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs; maintains and operates long-term skilled care facilities for veterans; is developing a system of five state cemeteries for veterans; accepts and administers donations to benefit veterans; and makes grants to restore, renovate, and maintain memorials to veterans.

It is with a sense of profound gratitude to all those who have served in the armed forces of the United States that I dedicate the 2001–2002 Official Manual of the State of Missouri to the veterans of our state.

As Americans, we owe our freedom and way of life to soldiers, sailors, marines, and airmen of the past and present. When they endured the terrible hardship of the winter at Valley Forge, they acted from a deep and abiding faith in the future of freedom. When Missourians offered all they had in the World Wars, Korea, Vietnam, and in other conflicts, they acted out of love for this great nation and a willingness to serve their fellow citizens.

It is the prayer of every American that our nation will continue to live in peace and that the United States will remain forever a beacon of freedom to people around the world. We must never forget the dear price of American liberty, peace and freedom and those whose continued vigilance keeps us free.

The first name "Matt" is written in a larger, more prominent script, and "Blunt" follows in a similar but slightly smaller script. There is a small dash or mark at the end of the signature.

The Official Manual of the State of Missouri is published biennially under the direction of the Secretary of State by authority of the Missouri General Assembly.

I would like to thank information professionals throughout state government and several private organizations. Their assistance in researching and compiling the information contained in the Official Manual is immeasurable.

My deepest gratitude goes to the Publications staff: Julie Stegeman, Bernie Otke, Charlotte Meek, Mary Stone, Michael Douglas-Llyr and J. Tyler Murphy. They worked tirelessly with great teamwork and dedication. Without their efforts, production of the 2001–2002 Official Manual would not have been possible.

Additionally, I would like to recognize other staff throughout the Office of the Secretary of State: Ken Winn, Laura Jolley, Terry Davis, Chuck Meek, Shelly Croteau, Rebecca Howard, Sandy Sanders, Kimberly Skaggs, Dirk Cable, Margaret Campbell, Margaret Freeman, Kim Mosley, Julie Talken and Amanda Bates for providing assistance in the production of this edition.

On behalf of Secretary of State Matt Blunt and myself, please accept our deepest appreciation.

Authority for publication: Compilation and distribution of the Missouri Manual is under the direction of the secretary of state authorized in the following manner: Revised Statutes of Missouri, 2000, Section 11.020.

11.020. State Manual—number of copies—contents—distribution.—The secretary of state shall biennially, as soon as practicable after the organization of each general assembly, prepare and publish forty thousand copies of the Missouri manual, to contain historical, official, political, statistical and other information in regard to the national and state governments, such as is found in the manuals of 1907 and 1908. The manuals shall be distributed by the secretary of state, to the members of the general assembly, the state, judicial and county officers, each high school and each elementary school within the state and to the newspapers of the state and the surplus volumes shall be distributed throughout the state upon proper applications made therefor. Each member of the senate shall receive two hundred volumes and each member of the house of representatives shall receive one hundred volumes of the manual.

The City of Jefferson: The Permanent Seat of Government, 1826–2001

The City of Jefferson—1826

“The appearance of the place [is] somewhat fatiguing”

Ambivalence, uncertainty, and discomfort hung like clouds of gloom over the Missouri General Assembly members who gathered in the City of Jefferson (more commonly known in later years as “Jefferson City”) for their first official meeting on the third Monday in November 1826. They had become accustomed to the relative comfort provided by the much larger settlement of St. Charles, site of the temporary capital since Missouri’s admission to the Union in 1821.

Indeed, calling the place named for the third president of the United States a “city” in 1826 reflected a quite liberal use of the term. Jefferson City had thirty-one families in 1826 and no more than a handful of businesses, including one hotel (the Rising Sun), a general store, a gristmill, a distillery, several tan yards, and multiple dram shops and taverns, most of them hastily opened to accommodate the newly arriving lawmakers. So ill prepared was the city to host the first meeting of lawmakers in the new state capital that a number of legislators were forced to stay in tents. More fortunate members, such as Dr. William Carr Lane, who was also mayor of St. Louis, found housing with city residents. In a letter written in 1826, Lane noted that he roomed with “Major Ramsay” and that he paid “$4.50 per week besides something for washing.” Lane’s pay for his legislative work was $2.25 per day. He noted that “We lodge in a cabin containing 3 beds, such as they are.” He concluded: “I will not detain you with details, but sum up all in this—the business of Legislating does not please over much.”

One of the first institutions established in the City of Jefferson as a consequence of its status as state capital was a newspaper and printing office owned by Calvin Gunn, who hoped to make money by serving the new government’s printing needs. Gunn called his newspaper the Jeffersonian Republican, a title used to describe the members of the political party that arose in opposition to the Federalists during the last decade of the 18th century.

In the first issue of his newspaper (June 24, 1826), Gunn wrote “a brief sketch of the City of Jefferson” for “our distant subscribers.” Much of Gunn’s description represented commentary on the physical characteristics of the place, including “a series of promontories,” where the Capitol, Governor’s Mansion, and prison would set subsequently, and the “intervening dells” between them that “render the appearance of the place somewhat fatiguing [sic].” Although the town was still aborning, Gunn assured his readers that “improvements is [sic] the order of the day.”

The First State House

“‘Tis a rough looking city indeed”

The first state building erected in the new capital city was a combination governor’s house and legislative hall, erected near the site where the Governor’s Mansion now stands. In a November 18, 1826, article, Gunn described the building as a ten-room structure, sixty by forty feet, “fronting the Missouri [River], on an eminence of two hundred feet above the level of its waters.” It was in this building fourteen months later that Missourians came together for the first statewide political convention held in the new capital city. In January 1828 a number of the state’s residents gathered to endorse the selection of Tennessean Andrew Jackson as president of the United States. In addition to choosing Jackson as its candidate, the convention, chaired by future governor Thomas Reynolds, also nominated Daniel Dunklin to serve as Missouri’s chief executive. Although Jackson was elected in 1828, Dunklin had to wait until the 1832 election to be chosen as governor of the state.

Old Hickory was honored, also, in an annual celebration held on January 8 of each year outside the new state house. This gathering commemorated General Jackson’s decisive victory at the Battle of New Orleans in 1815. One such celebration nearly ended in disaster when celebrants exploded five pounds of gunpowder in front of the Capitol. As the local newspaper exclaimed: “Such a report was never heard before or since in the City of the Hills. It was distinctly heard at Fulton . . . the Legislature did no business for a week, for there was not glass enough in the city to refill the windows of the capitol and wagons had to be sent to neighboring towns to make out a supply.”

Despite the assurances of Calvin Gunn in 1826 that “improvements” were the order of the day in the City of Jefferson, many people thought that converting this wilderness outpost into a functioning, urban, governmental center was nothing more than a pipe dream. No one captured this sentiment better than John Shriver, a civil engineer from Baltimore, hired in the late 1820s to survey a national highway from Wheeling, Virginia, westward to Missouri’s new capital. In a letter dated August 9, 1829, Shriver wrote to his brother of his impression of the City of Jefferson: “‘Tis a rough looking city indeed, and one which does not bid fair to become of much importance.” Two years later, James S. Rollins visited the City of Jefferson. Some years afterward, he recalled that the city “was at that time a small and insignificant village.”

Choosing a Capital Site

How had it happened that this seemingly forsaken place had been chosen to serve as the capital of the state of Missouri? The first Missouri legislature, elected in August 1820, in anticipation of the state's admission to the Union, convened in St. Louis in September 1820. Fourteen state senators and forty-three representatives chose St. Charles as the state's temporary capital and appointed a five-member commission to choose a permanent seat of government. Eager to ensure input from all Missourians, legislators specified that commissioners must be chosen, "one from each part of the state, and one from the center."

The five commissioners, James Logan of Wayne County, John Thornton of Howard, Robert G. Watson of New Madrid, John B. White of Pike, and James B. Boone of Montgomery, met at Cote sans Dessein, in southern Callaway County, on the first Monday in May 1821. Commissioners had been directed by the state constitution to choose a site on the Missouri River, within forty miles of the mouth of the Osage River. Framers of the constitution hoped that by placing these geographic requirements on the site, they would ensure the capital's central location and its accessibility to all Missourians. Ironically, the Missouri River, which in the 1820s was a major artery for travel into the interior of the state, would become in less than a century an obstacle to gaining easy access to the capital. Indeed, making the capital city accessible to all Missourians would be a major concern of state legislators for the next 175 years.

In addition to the requirement that the new permanent seat of government be on the Missouri River and near the mouth of the Osage River, legislators decreed that the capital site should contain at least four sections (2,560 acres) of unclaimed public land, not yet distributed by the government of the United States. This last provision excluded a site that many Missourians thought might be chosen: the town of Cote sans Dessein, where the commissioners met. Founded in 1808 by old stock migrants to the region, Cote sans Dessein was in southern Callaway County, on the north shore of the Missouri River, and was in the midst of highly desirable agricultural land.

The site ultimately chosen to be Missouri's capital city was available largely because it was deemed by many to be undesirable land: it was rocky and hilly, thought by many to be unfit for major agricultural production. The commissioners themselves had referred to this site as "too poor to support any considerable population or extensive settlement." Thus, almost no one had settled there, making it one of the few places along the Missouri River and near the mouth of the Osage that could provide the required amount of unclaimed land.

Despite the criticism of Jefferson City as the site for Missouri's permanent seat of government, many people held out the hope that the new capital city would prosper. Among the supporters of Jefferson City as a capital site was Gov. John Miller, a native of Virginia who was elected as Missouri's chief executive in 1826. Gov. Miller believed that constructing public buildings in Jefferson City would increase the city's chances of remaining the capital.

A New Residence for the Governor and a New Capitol Building

"A new impulse to business of every description"

In 1831, Gov. Miller proposed that the state build a penitentiary in Jefferson City. Opponents of the plan, many of whom preferred that the penitentiary be built in or near St. Louis, from where, it was assumed, a majority of the inmates would come, delayed passage of a bill authorizing the Jefferson City site until 1833.

Meanwhile, Gov. Miller, who was a bachelor and could live comfortably in two rooms of the state house, was replaced by Gov. Daniel Dunklin of Potosi. The new governor was a married man with six children. Soon after his election in August 1832, he began a campaign to persuade legislators to appropriate money for a new governor's residence. The legislature provided $5,000 and a new house was built just to the south of the existing combination Capitol and governor's home. Gov. Dunklin and his family occupied the building in 1834.

Three years later (1837), fire destroyed the state house that had been built in 1826. State government moved temporarily into the Cole County Courthouse while a new Capitol was being built on a high bluff west of the site of the original structure. The Jeffersonian Republican noted in 1838 that "an appropriation for a State House has given entirely a new impulse to business of every description" in the capital. The paper added, "for every thousand dollars appropriated for the improvement of the seat of government, the State is benefited four thousand, by the increase in value of unsold lots, of which the state is yet a large holder."

Controversies Surrounding the Penitentiary

"Where are the many industrious mechanics that formerly gave our town life and prosperity"

Meanwhile, also, the Missouri State Penitentiary was ready finally to receive its first inmates in 1836. The placement of the penitentiary in Jefferson City had a dramatic effect upon the development of the capital city. Missouri legislators, committed to the Jeffersonian notion of the need for minimal government ("That government is best which governs least") and a low rate of taxation, tried to figure out a way to operate the prison at the least possible cost to the state.

In 1839, legislators placed the penitentiary under a "lease system" that allowed private entrepreneurs to pay the state for the right to manage the prison, in exchange for which they could hire out the prisoners for their own private gain. By 1841, an advertisement in the local Jeffersonian Republican advertised the following convict-made goods at the prison: plows, wagons, carts, drays, trace chains, harness, single-trees, chairs, bureaus, bedsteads, tables and other furniture, boots and shoes, bricks, cigars, bacon and lard. In addition, the lessees advertised prison labor for landscaping and grounds keeping, blacksmithing, house and sign painting, and for "Building of any kind, at a moment's notice." Even the City of Jefferson used convict labor. The 1842 minutes of the city's Board of Aldermen reveal numerous expenditures for convict labor on street repair, building construction and furniture. Women sentenced to the Missouri State Penitentiary during the early 1840s were sometimes hired out to work as domestic servants for local businessmen.

Working inmates in this way had two unanticipated consequences. The first, and most obvious, was that convicts working outside the prison walls were more likely to escape. A "Report of the Inspectors of the Penitentiary," issued in 1845, indicated that 50 inmates (28% of the total number incarcerated) had escaped over the previous 20 months. Often townsfolk joined prison guards in chasing and trying to recapture convicts. If the legislature happened to be in session when an escape occurred, lawmakers often adjourned, picked up weapons at the state armory on the Capitol grounds, and joined the chase!

The fact of frequent escapes unsettled legislators and local residents alike. Even more unsettling, especially for its long-term implications, was the challenge convict labor posed for the free labor system upon which capitalism was based. The editor of the Jeffersonian Republican posed the question this way in 1842: "Where are the many industrious mechanics that formerly gave our town life and prosperity?" He answered, of course, that they had been "driven away, for want of employment," because of convict labor. The prison, its inmates, and the use of their labor, would remain sources of controversy in the capital city into the twenty-first century.

Antebellum Growth of the Capital City

"Good living, clever fellows, and the most lovely women in the world"

Despite the charge that "industrious mechanics" were bypassing the capital city, Jefferson City's population grew steadily during the first several decades of its existence, reaching a total of 1,174 by 1840. A glimpse of what one visitor to the city thought of the capital and its residents can be gleaned from a letter written in 1840 to the editor of the Jefferson City Inquirer. The visitor, who signed his letter "A Traveller," noted that he remained a guest at the City Hotel for more days than he had anticipated because of the hotel's "well filled cellars and larder and most bountiful table." He praised the state house as a "magnificent and stupendous pile of free stone," and commented on the beauty of the courthouse, the prison, and a number of private dwellings. He commended the capital city to "traveling bachelors," in particular, because it featured "good living, clever fellows and the most lovely women in the world." Highlights of "A Traveller's" stay in Jefferson City included viewing a dramatic performance of William Tell and "dancing parties" at the courthouse.

Legislators tried to facilitate access to and communication with Jefferson City in a variety of ways, none of which was more important than the promotion of the building of a cross-state railroad. While other communities vied in a variety of ways for railroad service to their towns, sometimes offering large grants of land and money, Jefferson City earned access to the Pacific Railroad by virtue of its status as the capital city of Missouri. The law that authorized the expenditure of public funds to build a railroad across the state, passed in 1849, stipulated that the new form of transportation must pass through the capital city. Two years later, in anticipation of the completion of the railroad to Jefferson City, the state capital was connected to St. Louis by telegraph service. Thus, Missourians between St. Louis and Jefferson City, at least, could know what was going on in the capital.

Political Division in the Capital City

"Blood up to the armpits"

Political division became apparent in the City of Jefferson during the 1830s and 1840s, although the anti-Jackson party known as the Whigs, formed during the mid-1830s, was a decidedly minority party in the capital city. In a late life reminiscence written in 1901, local physician Dr. Robert E. Young recalled an occasion during the 1840 campaign when Democrats drinking at a local saloon decided to confront Whigs drinking at another saloon. According to Young, a fight that threatened to leave combatants standing in “blood up to the armpits” was narrowly averted. Tension between the two groups had been exacerbated by a steamboat captain who displayed on his craft a log cabin, the symbol of the presidential campaign of Whig candidate William Henry Harrison.

Politics became increasingly divided in Missouri and the capital city during the decade and a half leading up to the Civil War, especially after the debate over the expansion of slavery crystallized in the wake of the Mexican War (1846). The issue of whether or not slavery should be allowed in the territory acquired from Mexico divided Missourians. Those persons who traced their ancestry to the South generally supported the expansion of slavery. Those whose ancestors came from the North tended to oppose it. Recent European immigrants, likewise, often opposed the expansion of slavery into new territories.

The Fight Over Slavery

“Free Soilers” v. “The Courthouse Clique”

The friction intensified when Missouri’s senior United States Senator, Thomas Hart Benton, defied a directive from the Missouri General Assembly and took a stand against the expansion of slavery. Benton’s actions divided Missourians, including residents of the capital city, into pro- and anti-Benton factions and resulted in Benton’s defeat in the 1850 Senate race.

The fight over the expansion of slavery prompted a group of capital city residents to try to create a new city adjacent to the City of Jefferson during the 1850s. Led by German immigrant and physician, Dr. Bernard Bruns, and prominent local resident Thomas L. Price, the anti-expansionist group created the Jefferson City Land Company and began to buy property just west of Jefferson City, from roughly modern-day Bolivar Street to Gray’s Creek.

The Jefferson City Land Company subsequently launched a campaign to attract “Free Soilers” to the region, hoping thereby to undermine the power of the pro-expansionist “courthouse clique” which they claimed had a stranglehold on local government. The Jefferson City Land Company hoped to attract “especially mechanics and manufacturers with machinery.”

A key element of their community was to be “a first-class University,” where the Free Soil philosophy could be promulgated. Controversy over the idea of a Free Soil community adjacent to the state capital prompted a heated debate in the hall of the House of Representatives, with Claiborne Fox Jackson, slave owner, Southern sympathizer, and future governor, leading the fight against such a development. Although the Land Company purchased a considerable amount of property west of the Capitol, the idea of building a new city never came to fruition.

The Civil War

“We are living in very stirring times”

The Civil War brought interest in and action to the City of Jefferson. Union and Confederate sympathizers alike hoped to persuade the state of Missouri to join their side. On the evening of January 3, 1861, newly elected Gov. Claiborne Fox Jackson minced no words in letting Missourians know how he felt on the issue. In his inaugural address, he proclaimed his belief that “The destiny of the slaveholding States of this Union is one and the same. So long as a state continues to maintain slavery within her limits, it is impossible to separate her fate from that of her sister States who have the same social organization.” Gov. Jackson made it clear that he thought it was in Missouri’s best interest “to stand by her sister States, in whose wrongs she participates, and with whose institutions and people she sympathizes.”

Gov. Jackson called for a state convention to be held in which delegates could debate and decide whether or not Missouri should join the abhorning Confederacy. The General Assembly set February 18, 1861, as the date for electing delegates to such a convention. By the time that date arrived, seven states had seceded from the Union.

The state convention met in Jefferson City on February 28, 1861, but voted almost immediately to re-convene in St. Louis, where the atmosphere was more favorable to the state of Missouri remaining in the Union. After debate on the issue, delegates to the convention voted overwhelmingly not to secede. Perturbed but not persuaded by the vote, Gov. Jackson acted to move Missouri into the Confederate camp anyway. Included in his machinations was the establishment of a pro-Southern military encampment in St. Louis that bore his name: Camp Jackson. German immigrants living in Jefferson City during the early months of the war, widely known for their loyalty to the Republican Party and to the Union cause, feared reprisal by the governor. Henrietta Bruns, who lived a block south of the Capitol, where the governor flew “a tremendously large secessionist flag," watched state militiamen drill on the Capitol grounds and wrote warily to her brother back in Germany, "We are living in very stirring times."

By June of 1861, federal General Nathaniel Lyon, Commander of the West, had tired of what he regarded as Jackson's treasonous activities. He led a force of two thousand soldiers to Jefferson City to remove the governor from office and arrest him. Alerted to Lyon's plan, Gov. Jackson escaped the capital city just ahead of the Union troops, taking with him the state seal, which he intended to use to certify as "official" documents created by his rump government. Among the state officials accompanying Jackson on his hasty retreat out of town were B.F. Massey, secretary of state; Alfred W. Morrison, state treasurer; William S. Moseley, state auditor; and, John F. Huston, register of lands. In addition, at least seven pro-Southern legislators fled with the governor.

Jackson and his cabinet were replaced by a provisional government, headed by Gov. Hamilton R. Gamble. Federal troops occupied the capital city for the remainder of the war. In 1862 residents of the City of Jefferson chose the German immigrant and Radical Republican Bernard Bruns, one of the founders of the Jefferson City Land Company, as their mayor. Bruns's victory over Democrat C. Clay Ewing was made possible because of the disfranchisement of a large number of Democrats who refused to take a loyalty oath to the Union as provided for by the state provisional government.

Only once during the war was Jefferson City seriously threatened by Confederate forces, and that was in October 1864, when General Sterling Price, former governor of the state, approached the city from the south, only days after his fight at the Battle of Pilot Knob, in Iron County. General Price spent the night on the outskirts of the capital city, presumably planning his attack. But the attack on the capital never came. The general and his soldiers bypassed Jefferson City, leaving the capital unscathed, and local citizens wondering why he had not attacked. Some speculated it was because he did not want to endanger the many friends he had made while he lived in the city as governor, from 1853–1857.

One consequence of the war for Jefferson City was that its population grew significantly as a consequence of an in-migration of people who sought to escape Union and Confederate soldiers and their sympathizers who roamed the countryside, pillaging and harassing the citizenry. African Americans, in particular, sought safety in Jefferson City, in large part, it seems, because of the presence there of so many Union soldiers and because the so-called "Radical Republicans" controlled state government. Radical Gov.

Thomas Fletcher, elected in 1864, supported the Radical position on a number of issues, including the abolition of slavery, access to public education for freedmen, and the right to vote for African American males. By January 1865, the black population of Jefferson City had grown to 565 persons, an increase of 70% over the number present just five years earlier.

Establishing Lincoln Institute

The city's African American population grew even more over the next decade because of the establishment of Lincoln Institute there in the Fall of 1866. In September 1866, Richard B. Foster, a white minister from New England who had served as an officer in the 62nd United States Colored Infantry, a unit composed of Missouri freedmen, arrived in Jefferson City with money pledged by the men of his unit to open a school for blacks. Foster had gone first to St. Louis, but had run into intense hostility there. He came to Jefferson City because he believed that the presence in power of Radical Republicans would guarantee a warmer reception.

Although Foster encountered opposition among some townsfolk to the idea of establishing a school for blacks in their city, he was able to open the school as a private facility soon after arriving in the capital. Over the next several years, State Superintendent of Schools Thomas A. Parker, also a Radical Republican, tried to establish public schools for blacks throughout the state. It soon became apparent that a shortage of black teachers was a major obstacle. Black parents did not want their children to be taught by whites.

A solution to this problem, proposed by African American political leader James Milton Turner, was to make Lincoln Institute a state supported facility for the training of black teachers. Lincoln received its first state appropriation ($5,000) in 1870 and the use of twenty-five Missouri State Penitentiary inmates to build the first building on what is now the Lincoln University campus. The school was taken over entirely by the state in 1879 and continued to be the only state supported institution of higher education for African Americans in Missouri until integration occurred in the wake of the U.S. Supreme Court's famous Brown v. Board of Education decision in 1954.

The tenure in office of the Radical Republicans was short-lived. Democrats complained that Republicans had run up the state debt to $36 million during the war and that they had used the power of the central government to encroach on local rights and privileges. A Democratic governor was elected in 1872 with a promise of restoring fiscal conservatism to state government and returning much power back to local communities.

The 1875 Constitution

Creation of a Prison Factory System

Fiscal conservatism and local rule were key concepts enshrined in a new constitution adopted by Missouri citizens in 1875. One consequence of the effort to cut down on the amount of money needed to run state government was a renewed effort to force convicts to finance their own incarceration. Prison and governmental officials decided to have the state construct factories inside the prison walls, and then negotiate multi-year contracts with private entrepreneurs for the use of convict labor. Gov. John S. Phelps summarized the plan in his 1879 message to the General Assembly: "[I]t would seem reasonable to expect the prisoners would not only be able, by their labor, to earn an amount sufficient to support themselves, but also to pay the salaries and wages of the officers and guards."

This new prison factory system brought to Jefferson City a number of entrepreneurs who would not, under other circumstances, have chosen the city as a place to set up business. One of the first of these was August Priesmeyer, president and founder of A. Priesmeyer Shoe Co., who moved to Jefferson City in 1874 to open a factory inside the prison walls. Priesmeyer managed the business largely with the help of his nephew, Henry F. Priesmeyer, and a Scottish immigrant named John Tweedie Sr. Tweedie took over the business during the early twentieth century, and he and successive generations of his family became pillars of the commercial and civic communities of the capital city.

Another immigrant to the Jefferson City community because of the prison factory system was Lester Shepherd Parker, who came to Jefferson City in 1895 as superintendent and general manager of the Jefferson Shoe Company, a Chicago-based business that had been incorporated in Illinois in 1885 and that operated a factory inside the Missouri prison. Parker established his own prison factory in 1896 and subsequently built one of Jefferson City's finest homes, a striking Neo-Classical Revival house across the street from the drab and sometimes dangerous prison. Parker became a civic booster and city promoter, who as an avocational painter and poet, did much to promote the cultural and artistic health of the community.

Yet another businessman who moved to Missouri to operate a prison factory was James A. Houchin, who came to Jefferson City from Illinois in 1890 to take a job as a bookkeeper and stenographer with the Charles R. Lewis Clothing Manufacturing Company, also a prison factory. In the mid-1890s, Houchin launched his own effort at establishing a prison industry. His Star Clothing Manufacturing Company became one of the leading prison factories during the early twentieth century. The Houchins, with the help of convict labor, erected a magnificent home in the 600-block of E. Main St. (later called Capitol Avenue). The Houchins' home became an important social gathering place for politicians. Presumably because his business was so closely tied to state government, James Houchin became a political activist, deeply involved in Democratic Party politics throughout the first three decades of the twentieth century. He served as the statewide coordinator of Joseph W. Folk's successful gubernatorial campaign in 1904. In 1912, Houchin sought the Democratic nomination for governor in his own right, but lost to Elliott Major, who went on to be chosen governor in the general election. Houchin tried again in 1916, this time losing to Frederick Gardner.

The Houchins entertained frequently. Soon after their house was built, they began holding receptions for members of the legislature and their families during each session. According to a 1944 newspaper article about the Houchin house, written on the occasion of its sale, "three or four hundred people usually attended these receptions which were elaborate and characteristic of a lavish bygone day." The usual menu was "chicken salad, oyster patties, olives, beaten biscuits, ices, cakes, bonbons, and coffee, with punch served in the sun room by young ladies." On one occasion, the Houchins' daughter Myrene recalled in 1944, her parents entertained two nights in succession, first for legislators and then for their Jefferson City friends. A total of seven hundred people attended these two events. Mr. and Mrs. Houchin, their daughter Myrene, and her husband, Jack Hobbs, continued to be leading Jefferson City socialites and civic boosters of the capital city throughout the first half of the 20th century.

A New Governor's Mansion Creates a New Social Atmosphere in the Capital City

In September 1867, a correspondent for the St. Louis Republican wrote an extensive piece for readers back home on "First Impressions of the Capital." Although he acknowledged that many people came to Jefferson City because "here are gathered and disbursed the public revenues [and] here are held the reins of public authority," he asserted, also, that "The first impressions that the city of Jefferson make upon a stranger are generally unfavorable."

Why the negative feelings? Because, the Republic correspondent asserted, "The town is generally full, more or less, of strangers, attracted here by the pressure of urgent business with the departments and that over, they have no desire to remain." The fact that so many transients visited the city led local residents to treat them inhospitably, unless the stranger arrived "recommended or known," in which case local citizens were capable of exhibiting "generous feeling . . . toward a guest." Notwithstanding its deficiencies, the correspondent claimed, "Society here is refined and cultivated, a large mixture of which consists of the families of retired officers of State, who have remained here attached to the place by its advantages of health, culture and economy."

Many people thought that the capital city became a more hospitable place after Gov. B. Gratz Brown and his family moved into a new Governor's Mansion on January 20, 1872. The new Mansion, designed by St. Louis architect George Ingham Barnett in the fashionable Renaissance Revival style, replaced the older structure just to the south, whose dilapidated condition had become an embarrassment to legislators.

Governor's Mansion

Missouri State Archives

The new three-story Governor's Mansion, with its Great Hall, Double Parlor, and thirteen bedrooms, was built to entertain and to impress. Among the first guests to visit the spacious new structure was the Grand Duke Alexis, the twenty-two-year old son of the Russian Czar. The Grand Duke, who was returning by train to the East coast after a buffalo hunting trip in the West, was accompanied by General George Armstrong Custer. Grand Duke Alexis spoke briefly to the Missouri General Assembly and then he and General Custer joined Gov. Brown and others for an "unostentatious . . . but brilliant" lunch at the Mansion. Later, the Grand Duke provided many residents of the capital city with a rare opportunity to see a royal personage when he received local well-wishers and curiosity seekers at the Madison Hotel, across the street from the Mansion.

The day after the Grand Duke's visit, Governor and Mrs. Brown held a grand ball at the Mansion to celebrate its official opening. Estimates of the number of guests in attendance ranged as high as two thousand, no doubt the largest crowd to gather in the capital city for a social event to that date. Although one journalist praised the gathering as "one of the most magnificent entertainments which ever occurred west of St. Louis," others present complained of the gawking, pushing masses who, among other things, "jammed . . . into Mrs. Brown's beautiful rooms . . . particularly the supper room, and rifled things like a flock of locust."

The opening ball at the Governor's Mansion established the use of the great house as a place of hospitality and entertainment in the capital city. Party conventions, inaugural balls and other celebrations were held there. For many years during the late nineteenth-century the grandest gathering in the capital city, at least during the winter months, was a New Year's Day Ball, supervised by the state's adjutant general.

A less joyous occasion came in 1887, when Gov. John Sappington Marmaduke died in the Governor's Mansion on December 18 of that year after a bout with pneumonia. A former general in the Confederate Army, and the son of an antebellum Missouri governor (Meredith Miles Marmaduke), the younger Marmaduke was a popular chief executive. His funeral was the most elaborate and well attended state funeral witnessed in Jefferson City prior to the funeral of Gov. Mel Carnahan in October 2000. Gov. Marmaduke lay in state in the main hall of the Governor's Mansion from 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. on the day of his funeral. The funeral was conducted in the Mansion by Bishop Daniel S. Tuttle of the Episcopal Diocese of Missouri and the Rev. John Gierlow of Grace Episcopal Church in Jefferson City. Newspaper accounts of the funeral reported that a procession extended more than a mile, from the Governor's Mansion on Madison Street to the State Cemetery on East McCarty Street, where Marmaduke was buried.

Other Late Nineteenth-Century Visitors to the Capital City

Two years after Marmaduke's death, the noted suffragist Susan B. Anthony visited the capital city and delivered a lecture in the Hall of the House of Representatives to Missouri legislators and an overflow crowd of curiosity seekers and supporters on "the question of the enfranchisement of women." Miss Anthony was accompanied by Mrs. Virginia L. Minor of St. Louis, one of the earliest supporters of the franchise for women during the post-Civil War generation, and a long-time president of the Missouri chapter of the National Woman Suffrage Association. In announcing Miss Anthony's presence in the state capital, the editor of the local State Tribune commented that "She will not likely make many converts, but nevertheless the venerable lecturer is entitled to a respectful hearing."

Six years later, perhaps influenced by Anthony's pleas for equality, capital city women formed what, arguably, became the most prestigious women's club of the twentieth century: the so-called Tuesday Club. The Tuesday Club's first meeting was held in the home of the Rev. and Mrs. J.T.M. Johnston. Rev. Johnston was the pastor of the local Baptist church. An election was held at the first meeting, with Mrs. George B. Macfarlane, wife of a Missouri Supreme Court judge, chosen as president. Mrs. Mourtou Jourdan, whose husband worked in the state attorney general's office, was elected vice president. Early club by-laws indicate that the organization existed primarily "for literary purposes," although the club history suggests that the organization's members quickly learned that they could serve the common good by applying the power of their individual and collective intellects to a search for solutions to the social problems of their day. Denied access to the "normal" avenues of power available to their spouses (voting and office-holding), club women wielded power informally, by influencing their husbands, who were prominent leaders of the business and governmental communities, to take action on the issues that concerned them. As the club's history indicates, "Women did not have the right to vote then but they became expert in getting results another way." Among the club's early projects was an effort to help establish a local public library. Apparently from the beginning, the Tuesday Club invited First Ladies of Missouri to join their exclusive organization as honorary members.

Arguably, the most popular national political leader to visit the capital city during the 1890s was the three-time Democratic presidential candidate, William Jennings Bryan. The "Great Commoner," as he was known, made multiple trips to Jefferson City as both a Chautauqua speaker and as a political campaigner during the 1890s. In 1899, for example, he delivered an oration on the virtues of "Free Silver" to a crowd of five thousand people from the steps of the Capitol. According to a local newspaper account of the event, Bryan, whose speech had taken two hours, "apologized somewhat for trespassing upon the time of the audience." Rather than being offended or bored, the crowd responded with "many calls for him to proceed further."

The Fight Over Removal of the Capital Bridging the Missouri River

Bridging the Missouri River

The presence and popularity of the Governor's Mansion in Jefferson City and the increase in social activities accompanying the "Gay Nineties" notwithstanding, some Missouri residents continued to question the wisdom of retaining the permanent seat of government in Jefferson City. One thing that especially bothered many of the state's citizens was the absence of a bridge across the Missouri River into the capital city. The "Big Muddy," which an earlier generation had seen as a highway for travel to the capital city, had become, in the age of the railroad, an obstacle to access.

Fearful of losing the designation as the capital city, a number of businessmen, including the recently arrived entrepreneurs associated with prison industries, launched an effort to build a bridge across the river. Calling themselves the "Commercial Club" (later the name was changed to "Chamber of Commerce") these men spearheaded an effort to erect a $225,000 toll bridge across the river. The completion of the bridge in February 1896 diminished, if it did not end altogether, the criticism of Jefferson City's status as the capital city.

The favorable climate for business created by the Commercial Club, and the continuing opportunities for doing business with state government, made Jefferson City a community of great hope as the twentieth century dawned. On May 12, 1900, the Jefferson City Daily Press carried an article written by a local reporter who offered an assessment of the capital city's economic viability as it moved into the new century. For much of its existence, the reporter charged, Jefferson City had the reputation of being "an old foggy" town run by "old fossils who had held the town down." But then, the reporter concluded, "the Jefferson City people got a move on themselves and galvanized a little life into the old fossils."

In truth, the "life" came more from the outsiders (such as Priesmeyer, Parker and Houchins) who moved to the capital city because it was the seat of government, rather than from the "old fossils" who had been around a generation or more. Among the most progressive of Jefferson City's early twentieth century business and community leaders was Hugh Stephens, who moved from Columbia to Jefferson City at the turn of the century to manage a print shop purchased by his father, Edwin W. Stephens, a Boone County printer and publisher. The Jefferson City print shop, known as the Tribune Printing Company, and later the Hugh Stephens Printing Company, existed primarily to serve the printing needs of state government.

With his place of business only two blocks east of the Capitol, and engaged in a business that took him to the Capitol often, Stephens quickly became a key figure in state and local affairs. Ultimately, Stephens was elected to the presidency of the Commercial Club and served for an unprecedented eight terms. Among his many contributions to his adopted city, and to his state, was his effort to promote the accessibility of the state capital to all Missourians by means of better highways. He was a leading proponent of building U. S. Highways 54, 63, and 50 through Missouri, for example, and making sure that these important cross-state highways intersected in Jefferson City.

The Capitol Fire and its Consequences

Tragedy befell Jefferson City and the state of Missouri on the night of February 5, 1911, when a lightning bolt struck the dome of the Capitol. The ensuing fire could not be contained with fire fighting equipment available. Firefighters and citizens alike watched helplessly while the fire raged out of control. When the heavily timbered dome collapsed into the interior of the Capitol, all present knew that the structure was doomed.

A valiant, and largely successful, effort was made to retrieve historical documents from the burning building. Among the people pressed into service for this dangerous mission was a group of Missouri State Penitentiary inmates. Gov. Herbert S. Hadley commuted the sentences of several of these inmates out of gratitude for their efforts.

One consequence of the Capitol fire was a re-emergence of the debate over whether or not Jefferson City should remain the state's permanent seat of government. Opponents of the idea mounted an effort to oppose the passage of a bond issue aimed at financing the rebuilding of the Capitol. Supporters of retaining the city as the site of the capital, led by the city's Commercial Club, countered with a campaign of self-promotion. The day after the fire, local banker Sam B. Cook took a train to St. Louis to enlist the assistance of key legislative leaders in the quest to retain Jefferson City as the permanent seat of government. Cook, another "outsider" who had a dramatic impact on the capital city, had moved from Mexico, Missouri, to Jefferson City in 1900, after being elected as secretary of state. Although defeated for re-election in 1904, Cook opted to remain in the capital city, where, in 1905, he assumed the presidency of the Central Missouri Trust Company, a bank whose first president was a former Democratic governor of the state, Lon V. Stephens. Asked by a newspaper reporter why he had chosen to make Jefferson City his home, Cook replied, "I have for some time been very favorably impressed with the State capital, both in a business and a social way. It is one of the most solid towns in the State, and in my judgment there is no city of like population that has so bright and substantial a future."

Formation of the Jefferson City Country Club

Sam B. Cook and others apparently used the Jefferson City Country Club to lobby "leaders of public opinion across the state" to support the effort against moving the capital. Organized at a meeting chaired by Gov. Herbert S. Hadley on September 7, 1909, at the Monroe House (dubbed by some contemporaries as "the Republican hotel"), the country club opened on May 8, 1911, with a charter membership of one hundred men. Penitentiary Warden Henry Andrae, one of the charter members, had "arranged a detail of inmates to help clear and construct the golf course." Gov. Hadley was elected as the club's first president. Other charter members, in addition to Hadley and Andrae, included Attorney General Elliott W. Major,

Adjutant General F.M. Rumboldt, and a number of prominent businessmen who operated factories inside the prison. According to a local Jefferson City newspaper of the time, it was common during the summer of 1911 "to see crowded excursion trains switched from the Missouri Pacific mainline tracks to the Bagnell Branch and proceed gingerly over the uncertain roadbed to the Country Club, where barbecues had been prepared."

Among the visitors to the Jefferson City Country Club in 1911 was the Republican president of the United States, William Howard Taft, who had traveled to Missouri to attend the State Fair. The president and his military aide, Major Archibald Butt, joined Gov. Hadley and the Rev. Paul Talbot, rector of Grace Episcopal Church in Jefferson City, in a round of golf.

Ultimately, the proponents of keeping the capital in Jefferson City succeeded. Their victory was solidified on August 1, 1911, when Missourians voted by a three-to-one majority to authorize issuing $3.5 million in bonds to build a new Capitol in Jefferson City. Late that night, when victory appeared certain, a crowd of Jefferson City revelers went to Sam Cook's home, a half block south of the Capitol, aroused him from his sleep, and persuaded him to march at the head of an impromptu parade, celebrating the event. Newspaper accounts of the incident indicate that Cook was clad only in his pajamas, a lounging robe, and slippers, but that his head was adorned with a silk hat and he carried a cane.

The New Capitol

The decision to build a new Capitol building in Jefferson City had at least one negative effect on Sam Cook's personal life. The Capitol grounds were expanded greatly, resulting in the destruction of the home he shared with his wife and three children in the 200-block of Washington Street. It would be only one of many displacements caused by the building of a new Capitol over the next century. Groundbreaking ceremonies for the new structure occurred on May 6, 1913. Labor problems plagued work on the Capitol. Nonetheless, on June 24, 1914, the building's cornerstone was laid before a crowd of approximately 12,000 people and on August 12, 1914, a flag raising ceremony celebrated the completion of the building's steel frame.

Era of World War I

Work on the new state Capitol neared completion in the summer of 1917, just as the United States entered World War I. The decoration and formal dedication of the new structure was delayed as Missourians joined other American citizens in gearing up for the war effort.

Emblematic of the city's contribution to the war effort was a Fourth of July picnic held at McClung Park in 1917. McClung Park, also known as State Park Number One, was a state-owned facility named for prison warden D.C. McClung who used idle convicts to clean up the fifteen-acre piece of state property and turn it into a state park, complete with park benches, pavilions, and a dance floor where prison bands played for dancing capital citizens on weekends in the summer. According to the Daily Capital News, special trains and caravans of automobiles brought central Missourians from outlying communities to the capital city for the July 4, 1917, picnic. The gathering was designed as a fundraiser sponsored by the newly established local Red Cross chapter to help in the relief effort. It attracted a crowd of approximately ten thousand people.

Support for the war effort was modeled by Gov. Frederick Gardner and Mrs. Gardner, who planted and worked in their "Victory Garden" on the grounds of the Governor's Mansion. Likewise, Mrs. Gardner joined with other ladies who belonged to the city's prestigious Tuesday Club in sewing pajamas and other clothing, as well as preparing bandages, for American soldiers in France.

World War I and its aftermath brought national, and no doubt unwanted, attention to Jefferson City in 1918, when the first of two of the most radical women in the country arrived in the capital city to serve a prison term for violating the federal Sedition Act. This law prohibited speaking out against America's involvement in World War I. There was no federal prison for women in the country at the time, so the U.S. Department of Justice sought a place of confinement among the country's state prisons. Missouri's low bid netted it the dubious distinction of housing in the capital city the notorious anarchist and Russian immigrant Emma Goldman, and Socialist Kate Richards O'Hare.

Goldman and O'Hare were confined in the state's women's prison, a building that fronted on Lafayette Street, inside the walls of the men's penitentiary. From the perspective of state prison officials, these women were anything but model prisoners. They complained widely and often, largely through the medium of letters to newspapers and magazines throughout the country, of the prison's shortcomings: its unsanitary living conditions, which included the lack of adequate bathing facilities, rancid food, and the presence of rats; the drudgery and difficulty of work assignments in stifling heat and bone chilling cold; and, the general dehumanizing treatment they received at the hands of poorly-trained guards who owed their positions to political connections.

Goldman and O'Hare's time in prison was helped only slightly by the fact that O'Hare had known and worked with Warden William R. Painter when he had been Missouri's lieutenant-governor. She had met Painter and his wife while she was living in St. Louis and working on behalf of state minimum wage legislation. O'Hare used her acquaintance with Painter to gain access to Gov. Frederick Gardner. Her pleadings to the two men, as well as her complaints to U.S. Department of Justice officials, and her constant letter-writing, led to slight improvements in conditions in the women's prison. One of the bright spots for O'Hare and her fellow female convicts came in the summer, when they were allowed to walk to McClung Park for Saturday afternoon outings. In the winter, inmates were sometimes shown silent movies on the weekends. No doubt the warden and the governor were greatly relieved when the troublesome prisoners O'Hare and Goldman were finally released from custody, Goldman in 1919 and O'Hare in 1920.

The Roaring Twenties

The Jefferson City Country Club continued to be an important place of recreation and relaxation for Missouri politicians during the era of World War I and beyond. Like his predecessors Hadley and Major, Gov. Frederick Gardner joined the country club and was selected its president in 1920. Mrs. Gardner later recalled how much the governor enjoyed the club: "Mr. Gardner found the Country Club a haven of refuge and nothing pleased us more than to go there for a bright soiree with our friends." The former first lady of Missouri added, "Surely nothing was impossible to the folks who gathered there—gay and impudent, brave and reckless, impulsive and generous."

Prohibition dominated the decade of the twenties, although the Volstead Act was often ignored in the capital city. Newspapers from the era are filled with accounts of raids upon illegal distilleries in and around Jefferson City. Illicit alcohol was available even in the Capitol. One former legislator recalled in a 1996 memoir that when he arrived in the capital city in 1935, there was still talk about "a custom during the dry years of prohibition [that] members [of the legislature] would bring [to the Capitol] a little home brew, white lightning, and sometimes a little chicken hooch, often called that because it was so strong that if you took a good swallow it would make you lay."

The decade of the 1920s had a dark side as well. For many, the decade was a time of fear, as nativism, racism and religious bigotry permeated the land. One of the most controversial and disturbing gatherings in Jefferson City during the 1920s occurred in the Missouri State Capitol in February 1924 when a Ku Klux Klan meeting was held in the Hall of Representatives.

The Klan was a powerful force in American politics during the decade, when it promoted itself as a patriotic organization committed to "100% Americanism." Unlike its counterpart of the post-Civil War period, the 1920s Klan was not only anti-African American, but also opposed to immigrants, Jews, and Catholics.

According to a statement by Heber Nations, editor of the Jefferson City Daily Post, he was contacted by Klan members who asked for his help in gaining permission to use the Capitol for a Klan meeting. Local newspaper stories of the time claim that the capital city had a Klan membership of more than eleven hundred, with one Klan gathering at the Merchants Bank Hall attracting a gathering of 850 Klansmen.

Nations took the Klan's request to Harry Woodruff, Commissioner of the Permanent Seat of Government, who, in turn, granted the request. Later asked to explain his actions, Nations said, "I thought local people would be interested in the attitude of the Klan as expressed by an official representative." Nations added "that surmise proved correct when the largest audience ever assembled in the legislative hall greeted the [Klan] speaker Sunday afternoon."

Both Nations and Woodruff defended the decision to allow the Klan to meet in the Capitol, with Nations calling the gathering "entirely patriotic and scholarly." The unrepentant Nations stated that if given the opportunity, he would do the same thing over again, adding that "If the great membership of the Klan throughout the country is composed of citizens of the same high grade who shape its policies here, it is the greatest patriotic organization in the world."

Not all agreed with Nations, of course. In fact, many people of both major political parties complained bitterly of the decision to allow the Klan to meet in the Capitol. Indeed, the Klan became an important issue in the 1924 gubernatorial election, with the Republicans and their gubernatorial candidate, Sam A. Baker, being widely regarded as more anti-Klan than the Democrats. Baker was elected governor. In Jefferson City, anti-Klan forces united to re-elect Mayor Cecil W. Thomas, who established himself as an opponent of the Klan during his first term in office.

The New Capitol Dedication

"It was a real big doins"

The formal, belated, dedication of the new Capitol came on October 6, 1924, in what one contemporary newspaper referred to as "unquestionably the greatest celebration ever held in the Capital City." People from all over the state began arriving in Jefferson City days in advance of the celebration. The Missouri Pacific Railroad ran special trains at reduced rates to accommodate travelers and a housing committee of local women coordinated an effort to find rooms for them. Existing hotels could not begin to provide enough rooms for all of the visitors. Churches and civic organizations organized to serve meals, with former prison warden, D.C. McClung, heading a committee to regulate food prices "to guard against profiteering." Two days before the event, a local newspaper sent out "An urgent appeal to all housewives of Jefferson City to order enough groceries today [Saturday] to last over Sunday and Monday." All owners of cars were urged to leave their vehicles at home.

The dedication ceremony began on the morning of October 6 as so many gatherings in the capital city have always begun: with a parade. A crowd estimated as high as 25,000 watched as Grand Marshall Colonel Paul Hunt of Jefferson City, a World War I veteran, led a two-mile-long parade from the Capitol, east on Capitol Avenue to Cherry Street, south to High, and then west, back to the Capitol. The parade included fifty floats, bands from all over the state, airplanes and a U. S. Army dirigible, along with 114 county queens, one from each county in the state. Ku Klux Klan members were among the groups serving lunch along the parade route. Their lunch stand was on Capitol Avenue, in front of a sign that read "KKK, 100 percent."

At 2:00 p.m. the throng of people assembled on the south lawn of the Capitol for several hours of speeches by dignitaries, including Gov. Arthur M. Hyde and four past governors: Alexander Dockery, Herbert Hadley, Elliott Major, and Frederick Gardner. David M. Francis was the only living ex-governor unable to attend the ceremony. Among the speakers, also, was octogenarian Mrs. Theodosia Thornton Lawson, a daughter of Colonel John Thornton of Clay County who more than a century before had chaired the commission to select a site for a permanent seat of government.

At 7:00 p.m. an elaborate historical pageant, written and directed by Mrs. Frank Leach of Sedalia, was presented on the south steps of the Capitol. The pageant required 2,325 characters to depict the history of the state, back to the days of French and Spanish colonial rule. Unfortunately, the pageant was cut short near its end by a thunderstorm, which also caused the planned fireworks display to be cancelled. The rain notwithstanding, the day's activities were quite memorable. One newspaper summed up the event with this headline: "It Was a Real Big Doins."

Expansion of State Government and Its Impact on the Capital City

The splendor and beauty of the new Capitol made many Missourians want to show off the building. For years, for example, the Missouri Pacific Railroad ran special excursion trains at reduced rates to Jefferson City so that residents of the state could view the Capitol. That desire to put the Capitol on display, combined with the dramatic growth of state government during the 1920s and 1930s, had consequences that would reverberate throughout the capital city into the twenty-first century.

A hint of what was to come was contained in the capital architects' expression of regret that because of the city's topography and built environment, the Capitol would be barely visible from southern and eastern approaches to the city. The architects' suggestion was that a number of buildings on West High Street, south of the Capitol, be torn down and that the street be lowered by several feet. This would, of course, have necessitated the destruction of a number of homes and businesses belonging to capital city residents, as well as the United States Post Office and the state Supreme Court building, the latter of which was erected in 1906.

While the idea of lowering West High Street was not implemented, a great many homes and businesses were destroyed by the rapidly expanding state government during the 1920s and 1930s. The expansion of the Capitol grounds, as noted earlier, led to the destruction of a number of private residences south of the Capitol. In addition, in the late 1920s, the State of Missouri acquired land east of the Capitol to accommodate the building of a structure that housed one of the state's fastest growing bureaucracies: the Missouri Highway Department. This, too, resulted in the destruction of a number of private residences. According to Missouri State Archivist Kenneth H. Winn, the number of state employees grew by more than 180% during the decade of the 1920s.

In 1929, after several years of discussion by civic and political leaders, the City of Jefferson hired the distinguished St. Louis planning firm of Harland Bartholomew to assist in its effort to confront what, arguably, has been the city's major problem since solidifying its status as the seat of government during the early twentieth century: how to accommodate the expanding needs of an ever-growing government without unduly infringing on the lives and property of local residents.

Asserting that "The Beautiful Capitol will form the nucleus of future public building development," the planners proposed that the state acquire all of the land east of the Capitol to the Governor's Mansion, including the land occupied by Tweedie Footwear Corporation, a shoe factory that was the largest non-governmental employer in the city, and the Ott Lumber Yard, owned by prominent Jefferson City businessman Louis Ott. In addition, the planners proposed that the state should acquire also land to the west of the Capitol, at least as far west as Walnut Street, an area that planners also thought to be blighted by commercial and industrial development. Acquisition of these properties would allow the razing of a number of buildings, thereby "eliminat[ing] a large amount of the undesirable development which now seriously detracts from the site and would also provide a large amount of open space . . ."

South of the Capitol, planners proposed the creation of a memorial mall and boulevard approach to the state house, which, again, would require the destruction of a number of buildings, including the red brick Missouri Supreme Court building, then only about twenty-five years old. The planners resurrected the Capitol architects' proposal that "The grade on High Street between Jefferson and Broadway should be reduced . . . so as not to interfere with the view toward the Capitol." Indeed, the planners went so far as to assert that "It would be desirable if eventually both the Highway and [St. Peter Catholic] church buildings could be removed." The Highway Department building at this time was less than a decade old and St. Peter Church was the spiritual home of literally thousands of capital city Catholics. City and state governmental officials would revisit this early plan time and again over the decades to come as they wrestled with the problem of regulating and shaping the growth of the capital city.

Missouri state government expanded at only a slightly slower rate during the Depression years of the 1930s than it had during the previous decade. Among the large, new state bureaucracies created during the 1930s was the State Social Security Commission and the Unemployment Compensation Commission, both created in 1937. Even entry-level state government jobs, some with a six day work week, were thought to be highly desirable during the difficult Depression years. In a 1998 interview, Bernard Poiry recalled that sixty years earlier, he considered himself to be extremely fortunate when his father's political connections landed him a job as a prison guard. He gladly moved from his Newton County farm to Jefferson City, where he earned $135 per month at the prison.

In the mid-1930s, with the number of state employees continuing to grow, and most of the state's business still being conducted out of the Capitol, the state house's resources were over-taxed. Bill Barton, who came to Jefferson City in 1935 as a Republican legislator, recalled that the Capitol building was so crowded with government workers that many state employees moved to temporary office space in the basement so that legislators could occupy their offices.

A new government office building, known initially as the "State Office Building" (later named the Broadway State Office Building) was erected during the late 1930s with the help of the federal government under the auspices of the Works Progress Administration. Groundbreaking for the 96,000 square foot building occurred on March 1, 1938, and the first department was moved into it on November 18, 1938. Many of the state offices housed in the Capitol, including the Missouri State Highway Patrol, created in 1931, moved across West High Street to the new State Office Building.

The capital city's population grew by 67% between 1920 and 1940, from 14,490 to 24,268, more than it has grown in any other twenty-year period in its history since 1850. With a great many of the immigrants to the city coming to take jobs in state government, a need arose for affordable housing within walking distance of the government buildings. Among the buildings erected in the downtown area was the Bella Vista Apartment building just four blocks east of the Capitol. Another popular apartment building of the era erected to accommodate the large influx of state workers was the Wymore Apartment complex in the 300-block of Washington Street, just two blocks from the Capitol and one block from the State Office Building, and the Tergin Apartment Building in the 300-block of West McCarty Street.

Background and Building of the Hotel Governor

Housing of legislators and the people who came to Jefferson City to do business with governmental officials became a serious concern of the city's Chamber of Commerce during the 1920s. One suspects, in fact, that the need for such facilities was driven home by the presence of such a large group of people at the 1924 Capital dedication.

The dominant hotel in the city that catered to politicians during the early 1920s was the Madison Hotel, located on the southwest corner of the intersection of Capitol Avenue and Madison Street, just across from the Governor's Mansion. Among other uses, this hotel frequently served as a state convention site for both of the state's major political parties. Unfortunately, this hotel was severely damaged by fire in February 1931, the consequence of a traveling salesman, J.M. Schlitz, smoking in bed. Schlitz died in the blaze. More fortunate was Missouri state representative William Hicks, who occupied a room adjacent to that of Schlitz. Newspaper accounts of the fire indicate that the state representative "barely escaped with his life." Hicks was rescued by firemen who raised a ladder to the window of his room.

According to local news reports, "Most of the guests of the hotel were members of the legislature." In addition, a number of lobbyists were registered at the hotel, including Michael Mulvoy, a St. Louis fireman, who was in Jefferson City with Captain Egan of Kansas City, promoting the interests of "the firemen's pension bill." Mulvoy directed the activities of the Jefferson City fire department in its efforts to save the building. Approximately $50,000 worth of damage was done to the structure. Unfortunately, another fire eight years later (on May 3, 1939) totally destroyed the Madison Hotel.

A push for a new hotel to replace the Madison, even in the face of the Great Depression economy, was led by Chamber of Commerce president Hugh Stephens. Stephens, who was also Chairman of the Board of the Exchange National Bank, had as one of his strongest supporters Howard Cook, president of the rival Central Trust Bank. Stephens, Cook, and their allies, understood that many Missourians representing a variety of special interests wanted to gather in the capital city because it was the seat of governmental power.

On November 9, 1940, Cook wrote to a potential developer of his belief that "because of state conventions and for dozens of other excellent reasons Jefferson City hotel facilities are not nearly ample at the present time." Cook believed that "many other gatherings, large and small, would naturally come here if comfortable hotel accommodations could be obtained."

Ten days later, the developer, Bill Berberich, wrote to Hugh Stephens, offering to "build and operate a hotel of not less than 145 rooms" whose minimum rates would be $2.00 a night. Berberich also promised a "banquet room seating at tables not less than 400 persons."

The deal was predicated upon the ability of a committee headed by Stephens to acquire the proposed site "free and clear of all encumbrances." Berberich wanted the group to donate the land to him and to contribute a large amount of cash ($90,000) toward the building project. Stephens organized the campaign to raise the money, but he cautioned Berberich that it was probably best not to let people know that the total project might cost as much as $500,000. Thus, Stephens revealed his awareness of the fact that many Jefferson Citizens saw the hotel as a benefit more to state government than to the average City of Jefferson resident. Even many local merchants and retail salesmen doubted Stephens' claims about the positive effect the hotel would have upon their businesses.

Eventually, the money was raised and the hotel was built. Among its most popular features was a basement bar known as the "Rathskeller." Legislators and lobbyists flocked to the Rathskeller, dubbed by many as the "Third Chamber" (in addition to the House and Senate). Much legislative business was transacted at the Rathskeller and even in the lobby of the Hotel Governor.

Indeed, long-time hotel employee Bill Kromer recalled in a 2000 interview that “many pieces of legislation were written and passed right there in the lobby.” Live music and dancing opportunities attracted many area women to the Rathskeller. As a consequence, the Rathskeller also became a favorite place for romantic rendezvous, earning it a second nickname—the “Passion Pit.”

One group that was not welcome at the newly built Hotel Governor, or any other place of public accommodation in the capital city, was the state’s African American population, including blacks who happened to be state legislators. The first African American General Assembly member was Walthall Moore, elected as a Republican from St. Louis City in 1920. From the time that Moore began his term of office in 1921, until the City of Jefferson passed a public accommodations law in the late 1960s, African American legislators were forced to stay either in private homes or in a dormitory on the Lincoln University campus. Long-time Lincoln University employees remembered that legislators would stay in a men’s dorm (Allen Hall) and would take their meals with the school’s faculty in the lower level of Schweich Hall. Dr. Thomas D. Pawley III, Emeritus Professor at the university, recalled in 2001 that in the 1940s, Representative James McKinley Neal, a Democrat from Kansas City, roomed with Professor James Freeman in the latter’s home on Lafayette Street. Pawley remembered, also, that Neal would join the faculty in Schweich Hall at lunchtime because he could not obtain lunch in or near the Capitol building because of his race.

World War II

World War II witnessed action in the capital city on behalf of the war effort, led by Mrs. Phil Donnelly, wife of Missouri’s governor. Mrs. Donnelly launched a chapter of the Red Cross “Gray Ladies” who organized a “Motor Corps” that traveled to Fort Leonard Wood once a week. While at the fort, the Gray Ladies helped soldiers with letter writing, provided them with cookies and other treats, and simply visited them. A number of the Gray Ladies were spouses of state officials and government employees. In addition, by 1943, nearly 700 Cole County women were regularly providing services to the local Red Cross in the form of production of surgical dressings.

GI’s at the recently completed Ft. Leonard Wood, in return, often traveled to Jefferson City to dance and drink at the Rathskeller, or at Veit’s Restaurant and Motel on the western edge of the capital city. Soldiers came by the busload on a Friday night, after being paid, and stayed throughout the weekend. Two soldiers could share a motel room at Veit’s for six dollars a night and a chicken dinner cost sixty-five cents. Beer flowed freely in the bar and lots of local girls showed up to dance with the G.I.’s to music from the jukebox in the barroom corner.

Veit’s Restaurant, established as a roadhouse along U. S. Highway 50 in 1941, was discovered by politicians soon after it opened. For years, legislators gathered to eat and drink at Veit’s and hammer out the details of legislation. In a 2001 interview, Bernadine Veit, who lived in an apartment above the restaurant for more than 60 years, recalled that often during the restaurant’s early years, waitresses who were serving lawmakers would come into the kitchen where she was preparing food and announce, “Well, I know what bills are going to be passed tomorrow.” More often than not, they were right. Legislators were not the only politicians who found Veit’s to their liking: governors also dined there frequently, especially Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, who served as governor of the state from 1965–1973.

The Post-World War II Years

State government continued to grow during the post-World War II years. In March of 1952, the City of Jefferson entered into an agreement with Harland Bartholomew and Associates to revise and update the City Plan of 1930. Although the city grew modestly (an increase of only 1,278 persons) between 1940 and 1950, government continued to grow greatly. According to the report, 27.7% of the city's labor force worked for state government.

According to the Harland Bartholomew report, a 1950 survey showed state government occupying 453,000 square feet of office floor space, 117,000 of which was in rented quarters and 33,000 of which was "in corridors and converted quarters and other space not adapted for office use." According to the survey, 694,000 square feet of office space was needed, more than twice the space owned by the state in Jefferson City.

One attempt to respond to the need for new office space was the erection of a 14-story building east of the Capitol and southwest of the Governor's Mansion. A contract for construction of the building was let on August 28, 1950. When completed in December 1952, this building (the Jefferson State Office Building) added 160,000 feet of floor space available to state office workers. The building cost $5,500,000.

A smaller, less expensive structure was built at about the same time to house the Missouri Division of Employment Security. Located a number of blocks southeast of the Capitol complex, the Employment Security building, which cost $500,000, was the first state office building erected in the City of Jefferson away from the downtown/Capitol area. Indeed, in its 1954 report to the city, Harland Bartholomew cited the building of the Employment Security Building away from the downtown area as a model for future development: "Future state office buildings should be located beyond the central area on sites such as that chosen for the new Employment Security Building." Harland Bartholomew, in fact, called for a 10 % reduction in the number of state employees in the downtown area over the next two decades in an effort to reduce the parking problem and the general overcrowding in the vicinity of the Capitol.

Emergence of the Capital City's Favorite Son

The 1950s also witnessed the rise to the pinnacle of state political power of a man whose entire life had been shaped by happenings in the capital city. James T. Blair Jr., was elected governor of the state of Missouri in 1956. Although born in Maysville, Missouri, in 1902, Blair moved to Jefferson City as a child, after his father, a former legislator, was chosen to serve on the Missouri Supreme Court.

Blair attended the public schools of Jefferson City, lived in the shadow of the State Capitol, and played in the Governor's Mansion with the sons of Gov. Herbert Hadley. Apparently his desire to become Missouri's governor emerged while he was still a child and was nurtured by his politician/jurist father.

After earning a law degree from Tennessee's Cumberland University in 1924, Blair returned to Jefferson City to practice law. He entered politics in 1925 as a Democratic candidate for city attorney. His victory in that contest laid the groundwork for his election to the Missouri House of Representatives in 1928 and 1930. In 1931, Blair was chosen as majority floor leader.

Blair returned to his law practice in 1932, although he remained active in politics at the local, state, and even national levels. Blair was elected mayor of Jefferson City in 1947, resigning the next year to run for the office of lieutenant governor of Missouri. He served in that position for eight years prior to his election as Missouri's forty-fourth governor.

As governor, James T. Blair championed a number of causes, including extending government aid to disabled persons, improving the efficiency of the state's welfare system, and championing the needs of the elderly. Arguably, the crowning achievement of his years as governor was the creation of the Missouri Commission on Human Rights, an organization whose aim was to end racial discrimination and segregation in the state. In lobbying for the creation of the commission before the General Assembly, Blair proclaimed that he would “Always and everywhere” identify himself “with any victim of oppression or discrimination.” For a time, it appeared to many that Blair might rise to national political office during the 1960 election. Instead, Blair retired to his home in the capital city. Sadly, Blair and his wife died of carbon monoxide poisoning in their home in July 1962. Among the Missourians who attended Blair’s funeral was former President Harry S Truman, Gov. John M. Dalton, and U.S. Senator Stuart Symington.

Urban Renewal

The 1960s witnessed an intense battle between residents of the capital city who wanted to save the city’s historic structures and state governmental officials who wanted to raze buildings to provide more parking spaces for state government workers. Harland Bartholomew had concluded in the early 1950s that there were less than three hundred parking spaces in the Capitol area and that all of those were needed for legislators and visitors. The planning firm concluded then that an additional eleven hundred parking spaces were needed for government workers in the downtown area. State planners, drawing upon the vision of long-range planners from the early 1930s, moved to acquire land and buildings owned by the Tweedie Footwear Corporation, raze the buildings, and replace them with parking lots.

Three of the buildings, however, were early-to-mid-nineteenth century structures that dated back to the days of the capital city’s importance as a steamboat port. Led by Mrs. Elizabeth Rozier, a Jefferson City preservationist, the daughter of a former state senator, and the wife of a former state legislator, a group of Jefferson Citians began to protest the planned destruction of the buildings at what came to be called the Lohman Landing Site.

The fight was long and oftentimes acrimonious. Sen. John E. Downs, D-St. Louis, called Lohman’s Landing “a stupid old unimportant piece of masonry,” and Sen. A. Clifford Jones, R-Ladue, argued that the site “has no historical significance.” Jones added that there were only two historical sites worth saving in Jefferson City: the Capitol and the Governor’s Mansion. Eventually, however, the preservationists won, with the fight in the Senate championed by Sen. Omer Avery, D-Troy, and the fight in the House by Rep. Thomas D. Graham, D-Jefferson City. Instead of being replaced by parking lots, the three buildings were saved and restored in time for the Bicentennial Celebration of the Declaration of Independence in July 1976.

Preservationists were less successful in their efforts to save historically significant buildings west of the Capitol, in an area that had long been known as “The Millbottom” because of the presence there of multiple gristmills. To be sure, the area, which had once been a respectable working-class German immigrant neighborhood, had become blighted by the mid-1960s.

Many state and city officials were eager to clean up the area because of the negative image they thought it projected to Capitol visitors. Their effort, they claimed, was aimed at retaining Jefferson City as “the showcase of a proud Missouri.” The Urban Renewal movement of the 1960s promised a solution to the problem. By the early 1970s, federal, state, and city officials combined to formulate a plan aimed at relocating two hundred residents and some sixty businesses in a roughly one hundred acre area of the Millbottom. All of the buildings would be razed and replaced with a “Capitol West” development that would include a vibrant mix of state office buildings, high-rise luxury apartments, new privately operated businesses, and a convention center. Ultimately, it became clear that the planners’ vision exceeded their resources and their capacity to execute their plan. Two new state office buildings and one hotel were built in the area, dramatically increasing the demand for parking. The vast majority of the acreage cleared by the Capitol West Urban Renewal Project was paved over for parking for state employees.

The Capital City in the Twenty-First Century

To many residents of the capital city, the Capitol West development seemed a fitting reminder that their city was, in fact, both a beneficiary and a victim of its destiny: a community that existed as a consequence of its status as the state capital, but a community whose growth and development were dictated by forces over which it had little or no control.

In a very real sense, residents of the City of Jefferson had spent the bulk of the nineteenth century trying to make certain that their town would remain the capital city. They spent much of the twentieth century trying to reconcile themselves to the results of their victory.

As the twenty-first century dawned, new opportunities appeared. The Missouri General Assembly authorized the movement of the century-and-a-half old penitentiary from the heart of the city to an area just east of the city limits. This action created the exciting possibility of state, county, and city officials working with private business interests to redevelop the old prison site, a riverfront tract of more than one hundred acres.

A second opportunity centered on the outcome of a fifty-year-old debate about whether a convention center should be built in the capital city and, if so, where it should be built and who should pay for its erection. But with both of these possibilities, a nagging question remained: how many of the capital city's historic nineteenth and early twentieth-century structures would have to be sacrificed to achieve the dreams of the twenty-first century visionaries? The challenge for the present and future remained, then, much as it had been for the past: how to accommodate and nurture the growth of state government while honoring the rich traditions, culture, and integrity of the capital city and its residents.

That challenge notwithstanding, the capital city remained in the twenty-first century what it had always been: a place where Missourians came to transact business and to celebrate the virtues and values of their state and nation. By the year 2001, gatherings such as the annual 4th of July celebration on the Capitol grounds routinely attracted a crowd in excess of the city's entire population and Missourians who visited the capital city boasted of the beauty of their state house. The old image of the City of Jefferson as a "somewhat fatiguing" place that would likely not amount to much was gone, replaced by a collective memory of 175 years of pride in growth and achievement.

For Further Reading

This essay draws heavily upon my reading of newspapers that are housed at The State Historical Society of Missouri, especially those papers that were published in the City of Jefferson during the nineteenth century and the first half of the twentieth century. In addition, I have made use extensively of government records compiled by the State of Missouri and the City of Jefferson, housed at the Missouri State Archives. I have used, also, the interviews with former legislators that are a part of the "Politics in Missouri" project housed in The State Historical Society of Missouri's Western Historical Manuscript Collection.

Missouri's Patriotism: Then & Now

Dear Fellow Missourians:

It is with great pride and enthusiasm that we present this special section for the 2001–2002 edition of the Official State Manual. The theme of the first Blue Book photo contest of the new millennium is “Missouri’s Patriotism: Then and Now”. Every Missourian has had the privilege of witnessing and participating in patriotic events in our great state. The patriotic spirit is still an important part of life in Missouri.

Pride in community, state and nation are thriving in the Show-Me State. In honor of this rich tradition, I wanted to set aside space in the official manual for photographs depicting the special ways that Missourians have paid tribute to our veterans and to the American way of life over the years. Interest in this contest was high, and selecting the photos contained in this book was a time consuming process. I am very grateful to all of the photographers, amateur and professional, from across the state who submitted entries.

It is my sincere hope that these photographs will serve as a reminder of how truly blessed we are to live in a country as inspiring as America and in a state as wonderful as Missouri.

Sincerely,

The Great Seal of the State of Missouri

The Great Seal was designed by Judge Robert William Wells and adopted by the Missouri General Assembly on January 11, 1822. The center of the state seal is composed of two parts. On the right is the United States coat-of-arms containing the bald eagle. In its claws are arrows and olive branches, signifying that the power of war and peace lies with the U.S. federal government. On the left side of the shield, the state side, are a grizzly bear and a silver crescent moon. The crescent symbolizes Missouri at the time of the state seal's creation, a state of small population and wealth which would increase like the new or crescent moon; it also symbolizes the "second son," meaning Missouri was the second state formed out of the Louisiana Territory.

This shield is encircled by a belt inscribed with the motto, "United we stand, divided we fall," which indicates Missouri's advantage as a member of the United States. The two grizzlies on either side of the shield symbolize the state's strength and its citizens' bravery. The bears stand atop a scroll bearing the state motto, "Salus Populi Suprema Lex Esto," which means, "Let the welfare of the people be the supreme law." Below this scroll are the Roman numerals for 1820, the year Missouri began its functions as a state.

The helmet above the shield represents state sovereignty, and the large star atop the helmet surrounded by 23 smaller stars signifies Missouri's status as the 24th state. The cloud around the large star indicates the problems Missouri had in becoming a state. The whole state seal is enclosed by a scroll bearing the words, "The Great Seal of the State of Missouri." (RSMo 10.060)

The State Flag

Nearly 100 years after achieving statehood, Missouri adopted an official flag on March 22, 1913. The flag was designed by the late Mrs. Marie Elizabeth Watkins Oliver, wife of former State Senator R.B. Oliver. The flag consists of three horizontal stripes of red, white and blue. These represent valor, purity, vigilance and justice.

In the center white stripe is the Missouri coat-of-arms, circled by a blue band containing 24 stars, denoting that Missouri was the 24th state. (RSMo 10.020)

The State Floral Emblem

On March 16, 1923, Governor Arthur M. Hyde signed a bill naming the white hawthorn blossom the official state floral emblem of Missouri. Known as the “red haw” or “white haw,” the hawthorn (Crataegus) is a member of the great rose family, which resembles the apple group. The hawthorn blossoms have greenish-yellow centers and form in white clusters. More than 75 species of the hawthorn grow in Missouri, particularly in the Ozarks. (RSMo 10.030)

The State Bird

On March 30, 1927, the native bluebird (Sialia Sialis) became the official state bird of Missouri. The bluebird, considered a symbol of happiness, is usually 6½ to 7 inches long. While its upper parts are covered with light blue plumage, its breast is cinnamon red, turning rust-colored in the fall. The bluebird is common in Missouri from early spring until late November. (RSMo 10.010)

The State Song

The “Missouri Waltz” became the state song under an act adopted by the General Assembly on June 30, 1949. The song came from a melody by John V. Eppel and was arranged by Frederic Knight Logan, using lyrics written by J.R. Shannon. First published in 1914, the song did not sell well and was considered a failure. By 1939, the song had gained popularity and six million copies had been sold. Sales increased substantially after Missourian Harry S Truman became president, and it was reported that the “Missouri Waltz” was his favorite song. (RSMo 10.050)

The State Tree

On June 20, 1955, the flowering dogwood (Cornus Florida L.) became Missouri’s official tree. The tree is small in size, rarely growing over 40 feet in height or 18 inches in diameter. The dogwood sprouts tiny greenish-yellow flowers in clusters, with each flower surrounded by four white petals. The paried, oval leaves are olive green above and covered with silvery hairs underneath. In the fall, the upper part of the leaves turns scarlet or orange and bright red fruits grow on the tree. (RSMo 10.040)

The State Mineral

On July 21, 1967, the mineral galena was adopted as the official mineral of Missouri. Galena is the major source of lead ore, and the recognition of this mineral by the state legislature was to emphasize Missouri’s status as the nation’s top producer of lead. Galena is dark gray in color and breaks into small cubes. Mining of galena has flourished in the Joplin-Granby area of southwest Missouri, and rich deposits have been located in such places as Crawford, Washington, Iron and Reynolds counties. (RSMo 10.047)

The State Rock

Mozarkite was adopted as the official state rock on July 21, 1967, by the 74th General Assembly. An attractive rock, mozarkite appears in a variety of colors, most predominantly green, red or purple. The rock's beauty is enhanced by cutting and polishing into ornamental shapes for jewelry. Mozarkite is most commonly found in Benton County. (RSMo 10.045)

The State Insect

On July 3, 1985, Governor John Ashcroft signed a bill designating the honeybee as Missouri's state insect. The honeybee, (Apis Mellifera) yellow or orange and black in color, is a social insect which collects nectar and pollen from flower blossoms in order to produce honey. The honeybee is common to Missouri and is cultivated by beekeepers for honey production. (RSMo 10.070)

The State Musical Instrument

The fiddle became the state's official musical instrument on July 17, 1987. Brought to Missouri in the late 1700s by fur traders and settlers, the fiddle quickly became popular. The instrument was adaptable to many forms of music, could be played without extensive formal training and was light and easy to carry. For generations, the local fiddle player was the sole source of entertainment in many communities and held a position of great respect in the region. (RSMo 10.080)

The State Fossil

The crinoid became the state's official fossil on June 13, 1989, after a group of Lee's Summit school students worked through the legislative process to promote it as a state symbol. The crinoid (Delocrinus Missouriensis) is a mineralization of an animal which, because of its plant-like appearance, was called the "sea lily."

Related to the starfish, the crinoid which covered Missouri lived in the ocean more than 250 million years ago. (RSMo 10.090)

The State Tree Nut

The nut produced by the black walnut tree (Juglans Nigra), known as the eastern black walnut, became the state tree nut on July 9, 1990. The nut has a variety of uses. The meat is used in ice cream, baked goods and candies. The shell provides the soft grit abrasive used in metal cleaning and polishing and oil well drilling, and is also used in paint products and as a filler in dynamite. (RSMo 10.100)

The State Animal

On May 31, 1995, Governor Mel Carnahan signed a bill designating the Missouri mule as the official state animal. The mule is a hybrid, the offspring of a mare (female horse) and a jack (male donkey). After its introduction to the state in the 1820s, the mule quickly became popular with farmers and settlers because of its hardy nature. Missouri mules pulled pioneer wagons to the Wild West during the 19th century and played a crucial role in moving troops and supplies in World Wars I and II. For decades, the Show Me State was the nation's premier mule producer. (RSMo 10.110)

The State American Folk Dance

The square dance was adopted as Missouri's official American folk dance on May 31, 1995. Square dances are derived from folk and courtship dances brought to the United States by European immigrants. Lively music and callers are hallmarks of square dancing. The caller directs the dancers by singing the names of figures and steps to be performed. (RSMo 10.120)

The State Aquatic Animal

The paddlefish (Polyodon Spathula) became Missouri's official aquatic animal on May 23, 1997. Only three rivers in Missouri support substantial populations of the paddlefish: the Mississippi, Missouri and the Osage. They are also present in some of the state's larger lakes. The paddlefish is primitive, with a cartilage skeleton, rather than bone. They commonly exceed five feet in length and weights of 60 pounds; 20-year olds are common, and some live 30 years or more. (RSMo 10.130)

The State Fish

On May 23, 1997, Governor Mel Carnahan signed a bill designating the channel catfish as the official fish of Missouri. The channel catfish (Ictalurus Punctatus) is slender, with a deeply forked tail. Young have spots that disappear with age. The catfish does not rely on sight to find its food; instead, it uses cat-like whiskers to assist in the hunt. The channel cat is the most abundant large catfish in Missouri streams. Its diet includes animal and plant material. Adults are normally 12 to 32 inches long and weigh from a half-pound to 15 pounds. (RSMo 10.135)

Missouri Day

On March 22, 1915, the 48th General Assembly set aside the first Monday in October each year as “Missouri Day,” due to the efforts of Mrs. Anna Brosius Korn, a native Missourian. In 1969, the 75th General Assembly changed the date to the third Wednesday in October. Missouri Day is a time for schools to honor the state and for the people of the state to celebrate the achievements of all Missourians. (RSMo 9.040)

Bob Holden

Governor

Elected November 7, 2000
Term expires January 2005

Missouri Governor Bob Holden's life is an affirmation of the American Dream. He rose from a childhood that began on a small farm with a primary education in a one-room schoolhouse to become Missouri's 53rd Governor on January 8, 2001. As the first Missouri Governor of this new century, Holden urged Missourians in his inaugural address to put aside their differences and unite to make the 21st century Missouri's century. "The goal of my administration is to unite all Missourians in forging a bright future that holds maximum opportunities for each of us," he said.

Governor Holden believes his One Missouri—One Bright Future can be achieved if we are committed to improving our schools, caring for our seniors, strengthening our families, and utilizing our greatest asset, our state's diversity, to its full potential, as we seek to build Missouri's prosperity for the 21st century. As a result of his strong leadership in his first legislative session, many of Governor Holden's priorities to help Missourians lead better lives became law, including greatly expanded access to women's health care services, lowering of the legal blood alcohol limit for drivers to .08, individual school report cards, a comprehensive statewide anti-smoking program, increased early childhood services, the establishment of school character education programs and a major commitment to life sciences research.

Before he was elected to the Governor's Office in 2000, Holden served two four-year terms as State Treasurer. During these years in the Treasurer's Office, Holden's major responsibility was to manage the state's $17 billion in annual revenues. As State Treasurer, Holden accomplished what no other chief financial officer of the state has ever done—earn Missouri $1 billion in interest from investments. Other major achievements include establishment of Dollar$ and Sense, Missouri's first statewide partnership between banks and schools to teach children wise money management practices and MOST, a state and federal tax incentive program to help parents save for their child's post-high school education which was selected as one of the five best savings programs in the nation.

Holden began his career in public service in 1976 as an assistant to State Treasurer James I. Spainhower. In 1983, he defeated an incumbent and was elected to the Missouri House of Representatives from the 136th District (Springfield). He served three terms, from 1983 to 1989. During his tenure in the Missouri House, Holden served as chairman of the House General Administration Budget Committee, served on the House Budget Committee and championed campaign finance reform. He co-sponsored the Excellence in Education Act and was House co-sponsor of a bill that reorganized the Missouri Department of Economic Development. From 1989 to 1991, Holden served as administrative assistant in the St. Louis office of Missouri Congressman Richard Gephardt.

Born in Kansas City on August 24, 1949, Bob Holden grew up on a farm near Birch Tree in south central Missouri. In 1973, he graduated from Southwest Missouri State University with a degree in political science. He was one of the first Fleming Fellows and attended the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University. He received an honorary doctorate from Lincoln University.

Holden and his wife Lori Hauser Holden from Aurora met as he began his first campaign for the state legislature in 1982. They were married the following year in December, 1983. They have two sons, 11-year-old Robert Lee III, born in St. Louis, and 6-year-old John D., born in Columbia and named for one of the Governor's favorite teachers and the First Lady's maternal grandmother. The Holdens are members of the Community Christian Church in Jefferson City.

Holden is dean of the American Legion Missouri Boys State Legislative School and serves as an Honorary Board Member for the Boys and Girls Town of Missouri. He is a national board member of the Parents as Teachers organization, a national program begun in Missouri to provide training and support for parents to become their child's first teacher, and Lori and he were active participants in the program with their two sons. Holden has been a supporter of the Save The Children Program, an international initiative to offer relief, recovery and assistance to impoverished and neglected children for twenty-four years. Governor Holden also served in the Missouri National Guard.

Bob's parents, Lee and Wanda Holden, still work the Birch Tree family farm where Bob spent his boyhood.

Qualifications

The chief executive officer of the State of Missouri must be at least 30 years old, a U.S. citizen for at least 15 years and a resident of Missouri for at least 10 years before being elected governor.

The governor is elected to a four-year term during the same year as a presidential election and may seek re-election to a second four-year term. No person may hold the office for more than two terms.

Responsibilities

The governor appoints the members of all boards and commissions, the heads of all departments in state government and fills all vacancies in public offices unless otherwise provided by law. The board members of Missouri's state universities and colleges are appointed by the governor. The governor also selects the members of the Supreme and Appellate Courts of Missouri from names submitted by the State Judicial Commission. He appoints members to the state's six urban election boards, two police boards and the Board of Probation and Parole. Most appointments require the advice and consent of the Senate.

The governor addresses the General Assembly on the state of government and recommends changes or other actions to be taken. A budget is submitted by the governor to the General Assembly within 30 days after the assembly convenes. The budget contains the governor's estimates of available state revenues and an itemized plan for proposed expenditures.

The governor may object to one or more items or portions of items of appropriations of money in any bill presented to him while approving other portions of the bill. On signing the bill, he appends to it a statement of the items or portions of items to which he objects and such items or portions will not take effect. The governor may control the rate of expenditure in other areas whenever the actual revenues are less than the revenue estimates upon which the appropriations were based.

All bills and joint resolutions passed by both houses of the legislature are submitted to the governor for his consideration. The governor must return the legislation to the house of its inception within 15 days after receiving it. The governor may either approve a bill, making it law, or return it to the legislature with his objections. When the legislature is adjourned, the governor has 45 days in which to consider a bill.

Additional duties and powers

The governor performs many other duties assigned by constitution, statute or custom. For example, he issues writs of election to fill vacancies in either house of the General Assembly. The governor also has the power to grant reprieves, commutations and pardons, but this does not include the power to parole.

In addition to his other duties, the governor is a member of a number of boards and commissions, such as the Board of Public Buildings and the State Board of Fund Commissioners.

Moreover, the governor is the conservator of peace throughout Missouri and is commander-in-chief of the state's militia. He may call out the militia to execute laws, suppress threats of danger to the state, and prevent and repel invasion.

The governor has the authority to remit fines and forfeitures when he believes an injustice is done or great hardship suffered by the defendant.

Executive department

The executive department consists of all state elective and appointive employees, except those of the legislative and judicial departments.

In addition to the many duties which specifically are assigned to the governor in the Missouri Constitution, he has many other duties which are assigned to him by statute and by custom.

Missouri Governor's Mansion

Governor Bob Holden, First Lady Lori Hauser Holden, Robert Lee III and John D. are very proud to be living in "the people's house."—the Missouri Governor's Mansion.

First occupied by Governor B. Gratz Brown and his family in 1872, this stately three-story brick building is one of the oldest and most beautifully restored governors' homes in the United States. The Mansion is perched on a bluff near the State Capitol Building and provides a scenic glimpse of the Missouri River. Built in the Renaissance Revival style, the residence entry consists of an imposing portico with four dignified pink granite columns. A Victorian atmosphere greets visitors as they enter the Great Hall with its dramatic 17-foot ceilings, a rare free-flowing staircase of solid walnut, and one of the best collections of period furnishings in the country.

Portraits of 28 Missouri First Ladies are featured throughout the Mansion along with loaned works of art created by world famous Missouri artists George Caleb Bingham, who also served as Missouri State Treasurer from 1862–1865; Thomas Hart Benton and the Harry S Truman family portrait by Greta Kempton. Designed by George Ingham Barnett of St. Louis, the Mansion has been listed on the National Register of Historic Places since May 21, 1969.

Because the Holdens are an energetic family with two young sons, the Mansion and surrounding grounds are always a whirlwind of activity. Passers-by are often treated to basketball games, baseball practice, skateboarding, or bicycle rides around the Mansion drive. The Holdens' two dogs, Nike and Silver, may also be frequently viewed romping across the Mansion lawn.

Family comes first for First Lady Lori Hauser Holden, although public service and dedication to the Missouri communities she dearly loves comes naturally. Bob and Lori met because of Bob's first campaign for the state legislature in 1982, and they were married in 1983. Lori Hauser Holden has already established herself as a pro-active First Lady, speaking across the state on behalf of better schools, improved health care, stronger neighborhoods, and fostering of the fine arts. She chaired the Missouri Commemorative Quarter Design Committee, which selected 12 finalists from the nearly 3,300 design concepts from state citizens of all ages and administered a statewide contest of over 179,000 votes cast to select the final five design concepts to be submitted to the U.S. Mint. The Missouri quarter will be the 24th quarter to be issued in the ten year initiative because of Missouri being the 24th state to enter the Union. The Missouri quarter will be issued in 2003.

¹At the time of the elections of McNair, Bates and Williams, and of the first election of Miller in 1825, there were no organized political parties in Missouri. Individual popularity prevailed. All called themselves Republicans—that is, Jeffersonian Republicans, or what now are called Democrats.

²Gamble was elected provisional governor by the Missouri State Convention on July 31, 1861. The office had been declared vacated after Governor Claiborne Fox Jackson joined the Confederacy.

³Unionist. ⁴Radical. ⁵Liberal.

⁶Wilson became Missouri's 52nd governor on October 17, 2000 finishing the remaining months of Mel Carnahan's term. Carnahan died tragically on October 16, 2000 in a plane crash.

Joe Maxwell

Lieutenant Governor

Term expires January 2005

Joe Maxwell (Democrat) was elected Missouri's 45th lieutenant governor on November 7, 2000. After the tragic death of Governor Mel Carnahan on October 16, 2000, Lt. Governor Roger Wilson assumed the duties of governor. Wilson appointed Maxwell lieutenant governor on November 15, 2000.

Joe grew up on the family farm outside the small community of Rush Hill. From a large family, Joe Maxwell understood at an early age the importance of responsibility and obligation to one's family.

Service is the foundation of Joe Maxwell's philosophy. He served his country in the Missouri National Guard for twenty years and was called to state active duty during the great flood of 1993. Today he serves as chair of the Missouri Community Service Commission.

Elected as a state representative in 1990, Joe earned the reputation for working long hours and taking on tough issues, like welfare reform and health care. He never forgot Missouri's family farms, and his personal experience during the farm crisis. He has worked to help establish value-added agriculture, encouraging several farm cooperatives, like the ethanol plant in Macon.

In 1995, Maxwell was elected 18th District State Senator. Joe represented an area that stretches across a dozen Missouri counties in the northeast region of the state.

As state senator, Maxwell sponsored the Patients Bill of Rights in Missouri; Joe was instrumental in passing legislation focusing on early childhood. During his last legislative session, Joe worked on HMO reform and small business health care, and he successfully passed the Financial Exploitation Act to safeguard senior citizens' financial savings. He fought for tougher child protection laws, to help assure safety for Missouri's most vulnerable citizens. Maxwell saw his Child Protection Act become law in July, 2000.

As acting governor, Maxwell signed new legislation to protect Missouri's environment, and help Missouri veterans and senior citizens.

Maxwell's awards include: Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. St. Louis Support Group Certificate of Appreciation; Missouri Farmers Union Family Farm Leadership Award; Missouri Funeral Directors Association Legislator of the Year;

Missouri VFW Service Award; Missouri Alliance of Area Agencies on Aging Outstanding Leadership Award; Missouri Association of Registered Land Surveyors Appreciation Award; Welfare Reform Coordinating Committee Recognition; Truman State University Presidential Award; Paraquad of Missouri Gin Laurie Award; Missouri County Clerks Association Recognition of Legislative Efforts; National Farmers Organization Appreciation Award; Citizens for Missouri's Children Hero for Kids; National Guard Association of Missouri's Charles Dick Medal for Merit; Fraternal Order of Police Award of Appreciation; Missouri Nurses Association Excellence in Health Care Legislative Award; AARP Award of Appreciation; Missouri Farm Bureau Medal of Endorsement; Missouri State Medical Association Award of Appreciation; Missouri League of Women Voters Award of Appreciation; Missouri Soybean Association Honorary Membership; MNEA A+ Legislator Award; NAMI Distinguished Legislator Award; MONENA Appreciation Award; Macon AVTS Appreciation Award; Jefferson City School District Resolution of Appreciation; Missouri Telephone Association Recognition; Mexico Jaycees Distinguished Service Award; MSTA Northeast District Outstanding Legislative Service to Education; Washington Association of Military Attaches Recognition for Outstanding Support; Planned Parenthood of Central Missouri Commendation; Missouri Elk Farmers Association Recognition; Missouri Association of Counties Recognition; Northeast District MSTA Outstanding Legislative Leadership; MSTA Recognition of Outstanding Service to Missouri Education; SIL Board of Directors and Staff Recognition; Missouri Bar Association Appreciation Award; George B. Freeman Award; Honor Graduate ANCOG; Army Achievement Medal Second Award; Outstanding Young Men in America; Missouri Army National Guard Commendation Ribbon; Boy Scouts of America Certificate of Appreciation; 1979 Army Reserve Component Medal First Award; Jaycees Presidential Award of Honor; St. Louis Globe-Democrat Outstanding Achievement Award.

Like most Missouri families, Sarah and Joe Maxwell work hard to provide for their children. Their two daughters, Megan and Shannen, serve as constant reminders that Sarah and Joe must strive every day to make this world a better place.

Office of Lieutenant Governor

121 State Capitol, Jefferson City 65102
Telephone: (573) 751-4727
FAX: (573) 751-9422

Qualifications

Missouri's lieutenant governor must be at least 30 years old, a U.S. citizen for at least 15 years and a resident of Missouri for at least 10 years before being elected to the office.

The lieutenant governor is elected for a four-year term and is subject to re-election.

Duties

Under the constitution, the lieutenant governor is ex officio president of the Missouri Senate. Upon the governor's death, conviction, impeachment, resignation, absence from the state or other disabilities, the lieutenant governor shall act as governor. By law, the lieutenant governor is a member of the Board of Public Buildings; the Board of Fund Commissioners; the Missouri Finance Development Board; the Missouri Housing Development Commission; the Missouri Rural Economic Development Council; and the Tourism Commission. The lieutenant governor is an advisor to the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education on early childhood education and Parents-as-Teachers program, and the state's official advocate for Missouri's elderly. The lieutenant governor also refers citizen questions and concerns to appropriate state agencies.

An Office Built on Service

Since William Henry Ashley took the oath of office as the first lieutenant governor in 1820, historic Missouri names like Marmaduke and Price, Dunklin and Reynolds, have served Missourians as lieutenant governor. Modern times have seen the office help develop two quality service organizations: Missouri Volunteer and the Missouri Community Service Commission.

As chair of the Missouri Community Service Commission, it is an honor to continue the legacy of service to citizens throughout Missouri.

The boards and commissions on which the lieutenant governor serves provide many more opportunities to help Missouri citizens.

By statute, the lieutenant governor is the official advocate for senior citizens. As such this office investigates complaints on behalf of senior citizens. Our office works very closely with the Division of Aging to ensure the safety and well-being of senior citizens in Missouri.

The lieutenant governor also serves on the Missouri Housing Development Commission. As such, the lieutenant governor has the opportunity to help ensure quality affordable housing for Missourians, regardless of income.

As a board member of the Missouri Rural Economic Development Council and the Rural Economic Assistance Program (REAP), the lieutenant governor works to help foster sustainable community and economic development programs in rural areas.

As the state's official advocate for the elderly, the lieutenant governor is a member of the Commission on Special Health, Psychological and Social Needs of Older Minority Individuals. Too often, minority populations suffer disparities in their health status—such as inadequate access to medical facilities, nutritional education, and medical insurance. A recent Kansas City Health Department study found that African Americans in Jackson County can expect to live 11 years less than the general population. The commission makes the health status of minority seniors a priority.

As a Missouri Tourism Commissioner, the lieutenant governor helps market Missouri to the rest of the world. New visitors bring new revenues to Missouri businesses, and new tax dollars to Missouri. We have two unique opportunities to showcase our beautiful, historic state to the world: First, the world's tour and travel planners are coming to Missouri in 2003 for the Travel International Association's Pow Wow. A year later, the world will focus on Missouri's twin summer celebrations: the 200th anniversary of the Lewis and Clark expedition, and the 100th anniversary of the 1904 Louisiana Exposition, the St. Louis World's Fair.

This partial list of lieutenant governor's duties shows how the office can help Missourians. Just as important are the many Missourians from every walk of life who give their time and talents to serve on these boards and commissions.

MISSOURI'S STATE CAPITOL

State government in Missouri focuses on the state's beautiful, domed Capitol, dominating the bluffs of the Missouri River in Jefferson City.

The dome, rising 238 feet above ground level and topped by a bronze statue of Ceres, goddess of agriculture, is the first view of Jefferson City for travelers arriving from the north. The structure is Jefferson City's leading tourist attraction and is a mecca for school groups who arrive by busloads, particularly during General Assembly sessions when they fill the galleries to watch the Senate and House of Representatives in action.

In addition to housing the two legislative bodies, the Capitol provides office space for the governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, treasurer, state auditor and some administrative agencies. The structure is also notable for its architectural features, including its six 48-foot columns on the south portico and eight 48-foot columns on the north side; its 30-foot-wide grand stairway and its bronze front doors, each 13 by 18 feet—largest cast since the Roman era.

The Capitol's first floor features the State Museum. Outstanding paintings, pediments and friezes decorate the Capitol interior. A prime attraction is a series of Thomas Hart Benton murals in the House Lounge.

Statuary is a prominent feature of the Capitol grounds. Heroic bronze figures depicting Missouri's two great rivers, the Mississippi and Missouri, and a 13-foot statue of Thomas Jefferson dominate the south entrance. A bronze relief depicting the signing of the Louisiana Purchase by Livingston, Monroe and Marbois and the Fountain of the Centaurs are the most outstanding features on the north grounds.

The present Capitol, completed in 1917 and occupied the following year, is the third Capitol in Jefferson City and the sixth in Missouri history. The first seat of state government was housed in the Mansion House, Third and Vine Streets, St. Louis; the second was in the Missouri Hotel, Maine and Morgan Streets, also in St. Louis. St. Charles was designated as temporary capital of the state in 1821 and remained the seat of government until 1826 when Jefferson City became the permanent capital city. The first Capitol in Jefferson City burned in 1837 and a second structure completed in 1840 burned when the dome was struck by lightning on February 5, 1911.

The present Capitol was constructed for $4,215,000, including site and furnishings. It is five stories high, 437 feet long, 300 feet wide in the center and 200 feet wide in the wings. The dome is 238 feet high and the height of the wings is 88 feet. It includes 500,000 square feet of floor space.

Matt Blunt

Secretary of State

Term expires January 2005

MATT BLUNT (Republican) was elected Missouri's 37th Secretary of State on November 7, 2000, carrying 86 of Missouri's 114 counties. Prior to his election, Secretary of State Blunt represented the 139th Legislative District in the Missouri House of Representatives.

After graduating with a Bachelor of Science in History from the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland, he went on to serve as an engineering officer aboard the USS JACK WILLIAMS (FFG-24). He later served as the Navigator and Administrative Officer on the USS PETERSON (DD-969). In addition to his other duties, while on the JACK WILLIAMS then Lieutenant Blunt served as the Voting Officer assisting members of the crew with casting ballots while deployed.

While in the Navy, Secretary Blunt participated in Operation Support Democracy, which involved the United Nations blockade of Haiti. Blunt was also involved in the interdiction of Cuban migrants in 1994, as well as drug interdiction missions off the coast of South America.

During his naval career, Secretary Blunt received numerous commendations including three Navy and Marine Corps Achievement Medals and a Humanitarian Service Medal. He continues to serve as a Lieutenant in the United States Naval Reserve.

Secretary Blunt, a sixth generation Missourian, was born in Strafford, Missouri on November 20, 1970. His parents Roy and Roseann Blunt still reside in Strafford. His father represents Missouri's Seventh District, which encompasses several counties in southwest Missouri in the United States Congress. Congressman Blunt previously served as Missouri's Secretary of State. Secretary Blunt's grandfather, Leroy, served in the Missouri House of Representatives from 1979-87.

Matt and his wife Melanie, of Middleburg, Virginia, were married in March, 1997. Secretary Blunt is a member of the State Historical Society of Missouri, American Legion and Missouri Farm Bureau. He and Melanie attend a Baptist Church near their home.

Secretary Blunt's primary goal is to make the Secretary of State's office more "efficient and accessible to all Missourians". To meet that goal, the Secretary has made several changes to make the office more fair and open. One of the first decisions made was to replace the position of Deputy Secretary of State for Elections with two Elections Directors, one from each of the two major political parties. This was accomplished within existing resources requiring no additional taxpayers dollars.

This belief that the Elections process must be above politics was reaffirmed when on his first full day in office, Secretary Blunt met with a bipartisan commission that he appointed to review all of Missouri's election statutes. This commission held field hearings across the state to determine what changes and improvements should be made to give Missourians confidence in the elections process.

Secretary Blunt is committed to utilizing technology to enhance the many business services that the Secretary of State's office provides and to making as many of the documents available over the Internet. This will save Missouri businesses time and resources in meeting their regulatory responsibilities.

An avid historian, Secretary Blunt is committed to the preservation and accessibility of Missouri's important historical documents. He has directed the State Archives to make some of the most requested documents available over the Internet.

Secretary Blunt believes that education is essential to a vibrant democracy. Because of this he has pledged to implement the "Responsible Citizens' Initiative." This program, aimed at young Missourians, will stress the importance of history and the future responsibilities Missourians' children will have as citizens.

The Secretary of State is charged with protecting Missouri investors and for enforcing compliance with state securities laws. Secretary Blunt has implemented new practices making the Securities Division more efficient and customer friendly-reducing the delays associated with Agent and Broker Dealer Applications, Investment Applications and Registration filings.

The Missouri State Library and the Wolfner Library for the blind and physically impaired provide important informational resources to thousands of Missourians. Secretary Blunt is working to ensure that the Wolfner Library offers cutting-edge services by utilizing technologies that make accessing information more convenient for its patrons. Today, libraries connect us to each other and to the world. Secretary Blunt has put an emphasis on placing technology in libraries as a means of strengthening the bonds between the citizens of Missouri and increasing the educational opportunities our libraries provide. Secretary Blunt will continue to support improved services from our libraries as their scope and importance in our daily lives continues to grow.

The Secretary of State's office is one of the more diverse in state government housing regulatory, Missouri heritage and literacy programs and services. Secretary Blunt is committed to providing efficient and responsive service to the various entities and individuals who utilize the office's resources in Missouri and throughout the world.

The Office of the Secretary of State is the "information place" of Missouri government; its many diverse responsibilities all linked by the common theme of providing information. The office is responsible for compiling, storing and publishing a variety of state documents, guides, legislative rosters, and educational materials for all ages. As keeper of the Great Seal of the State of Missouri, the Secretary of State authenticates official acts of the Governor. In addition, the Secretary of State is Missouri's chief elections official.

Functions of the office are divided into six areas: Elections, Securities, Business Services, Archives and Records Services, State Library, and Administrative Services. The Executive Deputy Secretary of State is charged by law with implementing the policies and procedures of the office and supervising day-to-day operations of some phases of the office.

The office has approximately 290 employees.

The Office of the Secretary of State administers all statewide elections for both candidates and issues. Candidates for the six constitutional state offices, U.S. Congress, the General Assembly, and circuit judges not covered by the non-partisan court plan, file for election with the Secretary of State. Statewide ballots for primary, general and certain special elections are also prepared by the Secretary of State, and certified copies of those ballots are sent to local election officials. The Secretary of State also certifies statewide ballot measures that are proposed by the General Assembly or through the initiative petition process. The full texts of ballot issues are published in newspapers around the state and printed for display at polling places. It is also the responsibility of the office to canvass, certify, and publish election results.

Initiative petitions are also handled by the office, including the oversight of signature verification. Before an initiative petition can be circulated, groups must first have the form of the petition and a summary statement approved by the Secretary of State and Attorney General. A fiscal impact statement is added by the State Auditor. For an initiative changing state law to be placed on the ballot, signatures must be obtained from registered voters equal to five percent of the total votes cast in the last gubernatorial election in six of Missouri's nine congressional districts. For an initiative changing the state constitution to be placed on the ballot, signatures are needed from registered voters equal to eight percent of the votes cast in the last gubernatorial election in six of the state's nine congressional districts. In 2000, 12 initiative petitions were approved for circulation and four were returned with signatures for approval. Two were ultimately certified for the November 2000 ballot. The elections division also oversees the collection of signatures for new political parties and the nomination of independent candidates for offices that file with the Secretary of State.

Missouri has over 3.8 million registered voters, which is an all time high. In the 2000 November general election, 2.3 million voters went to the polls. In addition to the statewide primary and general elections held in 2000, the first presidential preference primary since 1988 was held in March. Election officials also conducted nine special elections to fill vacancies in the General Assembly during 2000 and 2001.

Besides assisting the 116 local election authorities interpret and administer state election laws; the Secretary of State promulgates rules governing elections and electronic voting systems. The Secretary of State is required to publish the Missouri election laws for use by county clerks and election boards. Additionally, the office produces various election materials including instructions for poll workers, calendars of annual election deadlines, a web site, training videos, and a manual for election authorities. The office cooperates with other officials, schools, and civic organizations to provide materials to support voter registration, responsibility and education. A high priority of the Secretary of State is to work with local election officials, the media and other groups to increase voter participation.

The Secretary of State is responsible for maintaining a centralized voter registration database, for use by the local election authorities in

Investor Hotline: (800) 721-7996*

The Secretary of State is responsible for ensuring compliance with state securities laws through the Securities Division. This responsibility includes enforcement of the law when violations occur, and the regulation of investment sales through registration of securities, broker-dealers, agents, investment advisers and investment adviser representatives. State securities laws are often referred to as the "Blue Sky Law" and are intended to protect investors from fraudulent investment schemes.

The enforcement section receives and investigates complaints from Missouri investors. A toll-free Investor Hotline (800-721-7996) is maintained so investors can report complaints or make inquiries about members of the securities business. Each year the office initiates around 200 investigations, many of which result in cease and desist orders, licensing revocations or criminal prosecutions. Criminal securities violations are referred to the Attorney General or local prosecutors. Assistance is also provided to federal prosecutors.

Through regulation of investments the securities division collected $12.15 million in revenues for the State of Missouri in 2001.

The licensing section regulates the registration of individuals and businesses engaged in the securities business. As of July 18, 2001 there were 98,830 agents, 1,704 broker-dealers, 1,078 investment advisers, and 3,881 investment adviser representatives registered in Missouri. Prior to granting each registration an application review process is conducted to determine if applicants are sufficiently qualified to participate in the securities business.

The audit section performs random examinations of the offices of broker-dealers and investment advisers to ensure compliance with the Missouri securities laws.

The registration section reviews proposed securities offerings to ensure that Missouri approved offerings are "fair, just and equitable." The staff also reviews requests for exemption from the registration provisions, provides interpretative opinions of the securities laws and assists Missouri issuers seeking small offerings with securities law compliance. In the year 2000 members of the registration staff reviewed filings of 2,105 securities offerings.

The Office of the Secretary of State has an investor education program designed to assist both investors and future investors. The office is involved in educational programs with elementary, middle and high school students, and for seniors within the state. Free educational material is available to help investors protect themselves and members of their families.

Business Services Division

The Business Services Division has three sections: Commissions, Corporations and Uniform Commercial Code. The Corporations section has branch offices for corporate filings in St. Louis, Kansas City and Springfield. These offices are in contact with more than 300,000 customers each year and handle more than 700,000 transactions.

Commissions

600 W. Main, PO Box 784, Jefferson City 65102
Telephone (573) 751-4756 / FAX: (573) 751-8199*

The Secretary of State appoints and commissions notaries public. The section maintains the oath of office, official signature of each notary and the official bond. Missouri currently has over 70,000 notaries. The unit certifies over 6,000 notaries each year for foreign documents. They also certify elected officials and the State Registrar of Vital Statistics on over 1,000 documents. Many of these documents are for foreign adoptions.

One major responsibility of the Commissions section involves authenticating official acts of the Governor. Each year the section affixes the Great Seal of the State of Missouri to approximately 35,000 documents, which include: all commissions of state and county elected officials; appointments made by the Governor to fill vacancies in elected offices; boards and commissions; proclamations and executive orders issued by the Governor, extraditions, commutations of sentence and restoration of citizenship. Bonds and oaths of office for state officials are maintained by the Commissions section.

The section also registers trademarks and service marks and keeps a registry of all marks. There are currently over 10,000 trademarks and service marks registered.

The section is also responsible for facsimile signature filings, resident agent filings, and service of process.

Corporations

*Kirkpatrick State Information Center

The Secretary of State is responsible for the registration of all Missouri and out-of-state business entities doing business in Missouri. These business entities include for profit and nonprofit corporations, specialized business entities, such as professional corporations, close corporations, agricultural cooperatives, mutual associations as well as limited liability companies, limited partnerships and many others. Missouri corporations must file articles of incorporation, while out-of-state corporations must obtain a certificate of authority. In addition, all corporations must file various documents required by law, such as amendments, mergers, consolidations and articles of dissolution, terminations and withdrawals.

To remain in good standing with the Secretary of State, each corporation must annually register with the Corporations section the names of its officers and directors.

There are approximately 192,000 active corporations now doing business in Missouri and 400,000 inactive corporations on file. Annually more than 17,000 new corporations, 200 new limited partnerships, 12,000 new limited liability companies, and 175 limited liability partnerships are filed with the Corporations section. The section also handles more than 17,250 new fictitious name registrations, 3,500 amendments, 1,400 voluntary dissolutions, 2,500 mergers and processes more than 165,000 annual reports. These documents are sometimes used for real estate closings, opening bank accounts and court cases.

The Corporations section has been imaging the annual registration reports since January 1999. The Secretary of State's website can be used to obtain forms for filing a new business entity, in addition to accessing the business entity database and links to the Revised Statutes of Missouri.

The Uniform Commercial Code section has a new uniform model law; this new law went into effect July 1, 2001 and was adopted in all 50 states. The new UCC law created a centralized office, which is the Secretary of State, for the perfecting of personal liens and all business and professional loans. These loans are perfected by filing a financial statement on the accepted national form indicating the debtor name and address and the secured party name and address along with a description of the collateral. These financing statements are effective for five years and may be continued for an additional five-year term by filing a continuation statement within six months prior to expiration on the appropriate accepted national form. The section also processes information and copy requests on UCC filings.

The UCC section will be implementing a new computer system that will allow electronic filings and electronic searching on UCC information which will be available on the Secretary of State's website. Available on the website is the accepted forms and fee schedule for UCC filings.

With the implementation of this new law, the section expects to receive more than 200,000 filings. Since July of 1965 the UCC division has processed more than three million documents.

Record Services Division

The Records Services Division is responsible for managing both current and historical records of the state to ensure those records are accessible to Missouri citizens. It is also responsible for assisting local governments in records preservation and management.

Missouri State Archives

The Missouri State Archives is the repository for state records of permanent value and serves as a central facility for historical research. Its holdings date from 1770 and include: executive, legislative, and judicial records; records of state departments and agencies; land records; military records; state publications; Supreme Court case files; and manuscript, photograph and reference collections. Among its holdings are documents relating to French and Spanish colonial rule, the

New Madrid Earthquakes, slavery, the Civil War, women, and political reform.

The Archives identifies, collects, and preserves those records and makes them available to government officials, scholars, students, family historians and the general public. Archives' holdings currently total more than 135 million pages of paper; 215,000 photographs; 14,225 books; 53,535 rolls of microfilm; and 185,000 microfiche. In FY2000, the Archives' staff responded to 53,321 patron requests for information.

Volunteers are an important resource of the Missouri State Archives. They provide invaluable assistance to the staff, helping with reference services, acting as docents, and helping to process county records and special collections.

The Judicial Records Program is in its 16th year. A cooperative effort of the Missouri State Archives and the Office of the State Courts Administrator, the program preserves on microfilm probate and circuit court records of the county courts. These records are processed by volunteers in the county and are brought to the Archives for preservation microfilming. The program has freed much needed space for the counties participating in the project, and makes the records more accessible to researchers, in the counties and at the Archives. St. Louis Circuit Court records have proven to be an unusually rich source of information that document westward expansion during the territorial and early statehood period. In July 2000, St. Louis' early Circuit Court records (1796–1830) were named one of "America's Treasures," which designation carried with it a $175,000 grant from the federal Save America's Treasures Program to be used for the preservation of these valuable historical records.

The Archives has a dynamic outreach program, devoted to educating the public about the resources available at the Archives and about Missouri's historical heritage in general. Recent Archives activities have included: collaboration with the Lewis and Clark Bicentennial Commission; a national competitive internship and fellowship program in partnership with the Supreme Court of Missouri Historical Society; intern and practicum programs with local colleges and universities; educational exhibits for the public, including the mounting of the exhibit "Quest for a Cure: Care & Treatment in Missouri's First Mental Hospital;" public speakers series, sponsorship of regional National History Day activities, Archives' tours, and talks for school and civic organizations.

The "Friends of the Missouri State Archives," formed in 1989, is a group dedicated to promoting and supporting the Archives. The group sponsors fundraising activities, hosts receptions for Archives events, produces a newsletter, and presents a Friends' prize at the state history day contest.

Access to the Archives is provided through the research room. The reference staff answers written requests. Hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday and 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Thursday. Saturday hours are from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Missouri Historical Records Advisory Board

The Missouri Historical Records Advisory Board was created by statute in 1989 and assigned to the Office of the Secretary of State. The board is the central advisory body for historical records planning within the state. In addition, the board serves as the state affiliate of the National Historical Publications and Records Commission, and is responsible for reviewing grant proposals to that program from Missouri applicants, as well as applications to the Missouri Historical Records Grant Program and the Local Records Preservation Grant Program.

The mission of the Records Management section is to promote the efficiency and continuity of government, document the rights of Missouri citizens, hold state officials accountable for their actions, and preserve Missouri's heritage by providing state agencies with the necessary instruments to develop effective and efficient information control. To achieve this mission, the section is divided into three units: Records Management Services, State Records Center, and Imaging Services.

Records analysts and electronic records archivists provide state agencies with professional consulting services and technical expertise in all areas of records and information management. The proliferation of information technologies has made records creation, maintenance, and storage issues more complex and costly than ever before. Primary issues include questions such as how to control growth and ensure preservation of all forms of records. Records Management Services provides state agencies with professional consulting services to meet these challenges.

The State Records Center provides state agencies with a storage solution for inactive records. Inactive records are those with a reference rate that does not warrant retention in expensive agency office or storage space. This practice has saved Missouri taxpayers more than $30 million. All records remain in the legal custody of the transferring agency and access to stored documents is restricted to the agency's authorized personnel. The transferring of inactive files to the Records Center allows agencies to free up office space and equipment. Records Center services include pick-up, delivery, and destruction of agency records. There is no cost to state agencies for these services. Currently, 226,000 cubic feet of records are stored in the State Records Center's three facilities.

Imaging Services provides micrographics services to state agencies and local governments. Agencies can reduce the volume of, improve access to, and ensure archival preservation for their records by utilizing these services. Micrographics services include microfilming, processing, quality control, and silver and diazo microfilm duplication. The unit provides secure protection for silver original microfilm within a climate-controlled vault.

RSMo 109.250 established the State Records Commission. The Commission's task is to guide the records management program in the determination of retention periods for all records in the executive branch of state government. Currently, more than 900 state agencies, commissions, bureaus and boards operate under approved record retention schedules. Additionally, the Commission reviews, approves, and recommends guidelines for the management of electronic records generated by the State of Missouri.

Missouri's Local Records Preservation Program is an effort to improve long-term local public record management by advising, educating, and encouraging the custodians of those records in the use of sound records management and archival practices. Archivists provide their expertise to local government officials on the retention of records. A part time local records and analyst program began in 1986. In 1989 legislation converted this to a full time program. Through the local records program documents of great historical value have been identified and preserved and the State Archives reference collections have been dramatically enhanced. All records are more accessible to the public because they are properly organized and in many places space in public buildings is freed up for other purposes.

More than 3,500 governmental entities can receive assistance managing records. There are 11 field archivists located around Missouri. Local officials in every county of the state have been assisted.

The Missouri Local Records Grant program began in 1991 and is funded through a fee placed on documents filed with county recorders. In FY2000, the Secretary of State, with the advice of the Missouri Historical Records Advisory Board, awarded $400,000 in grant funds to 73 local projects. For FY2001, nearly $460,000 was awarded to 73 projects. Approximately 70 percent of the funds will be used for microfilming local permanent records to ensure their preservation. The grants require local matches.

Records conservation staff provides an advisory service to local government offices on all aspects of record care and preservation, as well as advice on disaster recovery.

A Local Records Board reviews and makes decisions on retention schedules for records of local governments.

In 1907, the General Assembly created the Missouri State Library Commission, which promoted the development of libraries across the state. Under Missouri's new constitution in 1945, the Commission went out of existence and the Missouri State Library was put under the Department of Higher Education. Legislation passed in 1991 moved the State Library from the Department of Higher Education to the Office of the Secretary of State, effective July 1, 1993.

Responsibilities of the Missouri State Library are to: provide library and reference services to Missouri state government; provide library services to the blind and physically handicapped; and promote the development and improvement of library services throughout the state.

Reference Services

The Reference Services section delivers library services to meet the informational and research needs of state government. This objective is achieved through current awareness, library materials collections in multiple formats, monthly publications and online databases provided at the state employee's desktop.

Keeping Up, a daily newspaper clipping summary of news about the activities and operation of state government, is distributed electronically to the legislature and state agencies. Table of Contents service allows state employees to receive the table of contents and full text articles from periodicals that assist in the performance of their duties. It is distributed electronically as the current periodicals become available on the statewide periodicals database. Info-to-Go, a subject bibliography of periodical articles, and Missouri State Government Publications, a bibliography of state publications, are published monthly on the Secretary of State's website.

To support the research work done for state government, the State Library maintains a materials collection of 50,000 books, 436 magazine subscriptions, 24 newspaper subscriptions and 451,000 microfilm holdings of government documents, journals and newspapers. In addition, Reference Services subscribes to a number of online databases geared to the needs of state government. Some of these databases are provided to state employees at their desktop.

The State Library is a congressionally designated library depository for the U.S. government publications. As a selective depository, over 100,000 documents are housed. The library is also the official depository for all state government publications and coordinates a network of Missouri libraries that serve the entire state as depositories for state government publications.

While the State Library is open for use by the general public, its research services and service-initiatives are directed to the members of the legislature and employees of the agencies of state government.

Library Development

The Library Development section supports libraries through consulting, administration of grant programs, continuing education and statewide programs. The consultant staff works with librarians and library governing boards to improve the quality of library service for all Missouri's citizens. Through research, publications and personal contacts consultants provide assistance on general library issues and needs, promote the organization and development of library services, manage statewide projects, and maintain statistics on library services in the state.

The State Library administers several programs to provide funds and services for libraries.

State-funded programs include state aid for public libraries and a grant program for public library automation. The State Library also coordinates the funding for the REAL (Remote Electronic Access to Libraries) Project, which provides Internet access for public libraries through MOREnet. The federal Library Services and Technology Act provides funding for grants to libraries and statewide projects, including continuing education and training, interlibrary loan support and development of library service for seniors.

Ongoing projects include coordination of the Missouri Summer Reading Program; development of library literacy programs in libraries and coordination of literacy efforts with other state agencies and the statewide literacy center; workshops and training sessions; promotion of library services to seniors; publication of newsletter, Missouri Census Update, Wolfner News, Missouri Library directory, statistical reports and all State Library publications. It works intensively with local libraries on development and support of the use of technology to improve library services for Missourians.

As one of 29 state affiliates with the National Center for the Book in the Library of Congress, the Missouri Center for the Book promotes the state's book culture and library heritage.

The State Library also serves as the lead agency for the State Census Data Center program, a cooperative venture with the U.S. Census Bureau.

Wolfner serves as the public library for Missourians unable to use standard print because of a visual or physical disability. The library loans a half million books and magazines in Braille, recorded cassette, and large print, from its collection of more than 300,000 volumes. Playback machines are also loaned to users of the recorded materials.

More than 12,000 individuals and 983 institutions, i.e., nursing homes, schools, hospitals, hospices, etc., use the library. In addition to the circulation of books and magazines, Wolfner provides reference and information services, children's programming, interlibrary loan, a newsletter, catalogs and bibliographies, descriptive videos and access to the collection via an online public access catalog (OPAC).

Wolfner services are available to qualified Missourians at no charge. Applications for service are available directly from the library, a local Missouri public library, or on the secretary of state web site. Wolfner is Missouri's regional library in the national network of libraries serving individuals who are blind and disabled, in cooperation with the National Library Service of the Library of Congress.

The Wolfner Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped has a rich history of library service, predating the Missouri State Library and the Library of Congress network. Loaning Braille books to a multi-state region in 1924, Wolfner became one of the first 13 regional libraries for the blind designated by the Library of Congress. Named in memory of noted ophthalmologist Henry L. Wolfner and originally administered by the St. Louis Public Library, Wolfner became part of the Missouri State Library in 1977, and physically moved to Jefferson City in 1985.

Administrative Services Division

The Administrative Services Division functions to meet several statutory and public service requirements of the Secretary of State's office. It has four sections: Administrative Rules, Publications, Information Technology, and Fiscal/Human Resources.

Administrative Rules

Kirkpatrick State Information Center
600 W. Main, PO Box 1767, Jefferson City 65102
Telephone: (573) 751-4015 / FAX: (573) 751-3032

The Administrative Rules section has published administrative rules or law since 1976. As the legislature enacts laws, 186 Missouri agencies promulgate, or write, rules to implement those laws. The Office of the Secretary of State publishes the Missouri Register twice a month to keep Missourians informed of those laws and any changes to existing laws; and publishes the Code of State Regulations once monthly to complete these rules for codification.

The Missouri Register contains emergency, proposed, and final orders of rulemaking. The emergency rules are effective for a limited period of time. Proposed rules cannot go into effect until citizens have had an opportunity to attend a public hearing and/or submit written comments to proposed rules or rule changes. All state agencies must summarize public comments and the agency's changes, if any, to the proposed rule in subsequent editions of the Register, which are then published. After the rules have been adopted, they are codified and printed in the Code of State Regulations.

The Code is a 14-volume loose-leaf set containing approximately 10,000 pages of published administrative law/rules, and is updated monthly. A cross-index to the Revised Statutes of Missouri and the corresponding rule number is part of the Code, as is a subject index. The Code and Register are available on the Secretary of State's website. Plans are currently underway to make the Code and Register searchable for specific subject matter, rule number or specific law or rule.

Additionally, the staff of the Administrative Rules section is charged by the Revised Statutes of Missouri to set uniform standards, procedures and guidelines for the preparation and publishing of rules in the Missouri Register and the Code of State Regulations. Therefore, the section also publishes Rulemaking 1-2-3, Missouri Style, which is a user's guide for rule preparation.

Publications

Kirkpatrick State Information Center
600 W. Main, PO Box 1767, Jefferson City 65102
Telephone: (573) 751-4218 / FAX: (573) 526-2970

The Publications section handles a variety of printing and graphic arts responsibilities for the Office of the Secretary of State.

By law, the Secretary of State is authorized to publish the Official Manual of the State of Missouri. Chapter 11 of the Missouri Revised Statutes governs the production, content and distribution of the Official Manual; the Publications section carries out these requirements. The section compiles information and photographs from every area of state government, edits the material and compiles it in finished form. The Official Manual is produced biennially in odd-numbered years.

Publications staff prepare other publications, including the Missouri Roster, General Assembly Roster, Missouri Constitution, Missouri Election Laws Handbook, Missouri Notary Public Handbook, newswire and other various newsletters and forms.

Information Technology

This section coordinates the development and implementation of a comprehensive information strategy plan to ensure the efficient and effective use of technology throughout the office. This unit is also responsible for developing the Secretary of State's website to make sure as much information as possible is available through the Internet.

Fiscal/Human Resources

The Fiscal/Human Resources section was established to ensure efficient and effective internal financial and personnel operations. The unit supports the Office of the Secretary of State in matters involving budgets and funding, personnel recruitment, benefits, training, and performance evaluation. The section also provides mail-room shipping and receiving support.

Claire McCaskill

State Auditor

Elected November 3, 1998

Term expires January 2003

Claire McCaskill (Democrat), began her four year term as Missouri's 34th State Auditor in 1999, wanting to make important information available to the public, state lawmakers, and government officials about critical problems facing the state. She called for her 180-person staff, which is responsible for the audits of all state-funded institutions, state agencies and most Missouri counties, to produce audits that are easily understood and better able to be acted upon by all concerned.

In March 2000, State Auditor McCaskill conducted an audit of the Division of Aging which found more than a thousand employees caring for Missouri nursing home residents who were forbidden to work with children and the mentally handicapped. State lawmakers passed legislation prohibiting the dangerous double standard, and McCaskill was called to testify on her audit's findings before the United States Senate Special Committee on Aging.

In addition, McCaskill authorized audits of domestic violence shelters and the state's child abuse hotline. The domestic violence report cited more than 5,000 victims turned away from shelters throughout Missouri even though more than a million dollars was available to help. Conversely, the child abuse audit found it sometimes difficult for the state to remove children from dangerous settings and financial support lacking.

McCaskill was the first Auditor to aggressively enforce provisions of the Hancock Amendment that afford protection to Missourians from being overcharged on their property taxes. After taking office she came down hard on local governments that set tax rates above legal limits, a practice many had engaged in for more than a decade. Her efforts helped convince lawmakers to allow the state to take legal action on behalf of taxpayers.

The Missouri Press Association's Sunshine Award was presented to Auditor McCaskill for her establishment of audits, at all levels of government, questioning information access costs and compliance to Missouri's Sunshine Law. McCaskill was also awarded the State Employment Advocate Award for her commitment to hiring and retaining minorities.

Noticing most public bonds were privately placed, McCaskill commissioned an audit of general obligation bonds registered with her office. The audit concluded public school districts, and other taxing authorities, paid more than $83 million in excess interest costs over a three year period by not conducting open competitive bond sales.

With the advancement of technology, and at McCaskill's direction, her office is implementing electronic work papers and has expanded its website at <http://www.auditor.state.mo.us>

A native Missourian, Claire was first raised in Houston and Lebanon before moving to Columbia, where she later graduated from Hickman High School. During that time her father, William, served as Insurance Commissioner for the state, and her mother Betty was the first woman elected to the Columbia City Council.

Claire attended the University of Missouri-Columbia graduating in 1975 with a B.S. in Political Science. She is also a graduate of the University of Missouri Law School.

A clerk for the Missouri Court of Appeals in Kansas City, Claire later joined the Jackson County Prosecutor's Office as an assistant prosecutor specializing in arson.

In 1982, she was elected to the Missouri House of Representatives where she chaired the House Civil and Criminal Justice Committee, along with serving on the Budget Committee and Judiciary Committee. Claire was also the first woman to give birth as a state lawmaker.

While serving as a county lawmaker, in 1992 Claire was the first woman to be elected Jackson County Prosecutor, the largest prosecutor's office in the state. She was re-elected Prosecutor in 1996.

As a result of her work Claire has held a variety of national and state leadership positions including Founding Member and Chairman of the National Association of Drug Court Professionals, Vice President of the National District Attorney's Association, President of Missouri's Association of Prosecuting Attorneys, and Member of the White House Commission for Drug Free Communities.

In 1998 Claire was elected Missouri State Auditor.

Claire is a single mom of three, Austin, 14, Maddie, 12, and Lily, 10. In addition to time spent with her kids, she enjoys cooking, needlepoint and reading.

Claire and her children are members of St. Joseph Catholic Church, in Jefferson City.

The state auditor's office is Missouri's independent watchdog agency, charged with auditing all state agencies, boards and commissions; the state court system; and the 90 counties in Missouri that do not have a county auditor. The state auditor may also be called on to audit local units of government by citizen petition.

The office is recognized by the Missouri State Board of Accountancy as a certified public accounting firm and the time auditors spend working for the office counts toward the two years mandatory experience required for CPA licensure in Missouri.

Audits are performed to determine if tax dollars are being spent efficiently, economically and legally and to determine how well governmental units and agencies protect against fraud and abuse of the public funds under their control. Approximately 200 state agencies and programs, the state's 45 judicial circuits (including approximately 400 municipal divisions) and 90 counties must be regularly audited by the state auditor. Approximately 20 audits of local government entities, petitioned by local voters, are performed each year.

In addition to fulfilling the primary auditing duties of the office, the state auditor designs accounting systems for state and local governments, approves depositories selected by the state treasurer and serves as a member of the Board of Fund Commissioners and the State Records Commission. The state auditor also examines and registers general obligation bonds issued by political subdivisions of the state to ensure that each one complies with state law and reviews all property tax rates set by local political subdivisions.

The powers of the state auditor are constitutional, derived from Article IV, Section 13 of the Missouri Constitution. Legal duties are detailed in Chapter 29 of the Revised Statutes of Missouri.

Organization

The deputy state auditor works with the state auditor in developing office policies, supervising special projects and consulting with directors concerning the day-to-day operations of the office. The assistant to the deputy state auditor reviews all audit reports and consults with the audit directors on all fraud-related audits. Four directors aid the state auditor. The director of administration works with areas such as personnel recruiting, budget preparation and staff assignment. Three audit directors supervise the work of audit managers in charge of auditing various aspects of government operations or government agencies and units. The managers review audit reports before the audits are delivered to the state auditor for final review and approval.

In addition to coordinating audits, audit managers also track changes in policies and laws affecting the agencies or areas of government for which they are responsible, so the state auditor's office can revise audit plans or priorities as needed to review compliance.

Individual audits are supervised by an auditor-in-charge, who normally is a senior auditor. Audit fieldwork is performed by senior auditors, semi-senior auditors and audit assistants.

Approximately 165 persons are employed by the state auditor's office. The audit staff is composed of nearly 135 employees, about 65 percent of whom are CPAs. That figure represents a marked increase from earlier years; in 1974 only about 10 percent of the staff were CPAs.

The office hires only degreed auditors, recruiting on the campuses of Missouri colleges and universities. Most recruits are native Missourians. Audit staff members are hired on the basis of professional and academic qualifications.

Types of audits

The state auditor's office performs financial and compliance audits, which also include reviews of management practices. Financial records of auditees are examined to determine how the funds under the auditee's control were actually recorded and spent. The systems and controls the auditee uses to protect funds and property against fraud, waste and abuse are checked. The auditee's compliance with constitutional provisions, laws, legislative appropriation levels and administrative rules is also reviewed. Management practices are reviewed for efficiency and accountability.

Audits are conducted in accordance with generally accepted government auditing standards. Completed financial audits contain a formal opinion from the state auditor regarding the fair presentation of financial statements. A management advisory report listing any management weaknesses disclosed during the audit is also included. Findings and recommendations in the management advisory report are reviewed with the auditee at an exit conference prior to the release of the audit so the responses from the auditee to the recommendations may be printed in the final report.

The state auditor performs special reviews and audits of selected programs or agencies when needed.

The state auditor works closely with other audit agencies and offices at the local, state and national level. This is done to avoid duplication of effort in the audits of programs that may receive funding from several sources.

Citizen awareness

Information from citizens, legislators and government employees aid the state auditor when performing special reviews and audits.

Citizens are urged to contact the state auditor if they have information they feel would be useful to auditors performing the audits. All sources of information are kept confidential. Citizens can contact the state auditor's office by calling the toll-free Government Waste Hotline at (800) 347-8597.

Public information

All audit reports produced by the state auditor's office are public documents after they have been signed by the state auditor. Reports dealing with state agencies are provided to the press corps covering the state Capitol and to any regional or local newspaper, radio or television station requesting a copy. Audits dealing with county or local government are delivered to the media in that area. Reports are also delivered to the Missouri State Library and are available through the state's library system. Citizens may request copies of any audit report by writing PO Box 869, Jefferson City 65102, or calling (573) 751-4213.

Nancy Farmer

State Treasurer

Term expires January 2005

Nancy Farmer became Missouri's 43rd State Treasurer when she took the oath of office on the steps of the state Capitol January 8, 2001. She is the first woman to serve as Missouri's chief financial officer in the state's 180-year history.

As Missouri State Treasurer, Farmer is responsible for managing the state's $17 billion in annual revenues; overseeing the state's banking services; managing Missouri's $2.5 billion investment portfolio; serving as trustee for more than $190 million in unclaimed property; and administering the state's $350 million MISSOURI FIRST Linked Deposit Program.

Treasurer Farmer brought prior experience to the office, having served as assistant state treasurer before becoming a candidate for State Treasurer. She is committed to making the Missouri State Treasurer's Office one of the most innovative and dynamic treasury offices in the nation. She is pledged to sound investment policies that maximize the state's return on investments without compromising the safety of the public's funds.

State Treasurer Farmer serves as chair of the Missouri Saving for Tuition or MOST program, which she helped develop while serving as assistant state treasurer. MOST encourages Missouri families to save for higher education while taking advantage of significant federal and state tax benefits.

Treasurer Farmer also oversees the Dollar$ & Sense bank-at-school program, a program that partners local banks and elementary schools to help teach students about the importance of setting goals and saving for the future. In addition, she serves on the management boards of the Missouri Housing Development Commission, the Missouri State Employees' Retirement System and the Board of Fund Commissioners, which oversees state debt issuance.

Treasurer Farmer has a long history of public service with an emphasis on public finance issues. Her involvement in St. Louis civic issues led her to becoming executive director of a non-profit neighborhood housing and development cooperative. She later served as director of inter-governmental affairs for the City of St. Louis.

She was elected state representative in 1992 from the 64th District in the City of St. Louis, and was re-elected twice. During her tenure in the legislature, Farmer chaired the powerful Ways and Means Committee and served on both the Budget and the Operations and Finance committees.

As chair of Ways and Means, Rep. Farmer led the effort to eliminate the state sales tax on groceries, one of the largest and most equitable permanent tax cuts in Missouri's history. She also worked to enact the Historic Preservation Tax Credit Program, which has spurred billions of dollars in investment and redevelopment across the state.

Born in 1956, Nancy Farmer was raised in Jacksonville, Illinois, and graduated from Illinois College in 1979. She also studied at Harvard University's Kennedy School of Government in 1998. She is married to Darrell Hartke, an industrial-organizational psychologist. They make their home in the City of St. Louis.

Duties

The State Treasurer is Missouri state government's chief financial officer. The treasurer's office manages Missouri's $19 billion in annual state revenues; directs the state's banking services; and manages Missouri's $2.5 billion investment portfolio. The treasurer also uses a portion of the state's investable funds to help Missouri businesses, farms and communities grow and prosper. The office safeguards more than $200 million in unclaimed assets that have been turned over to the state by banks, businesses, insurance companies and government agencies, and tries to locate the rightful owners. The state treasurer also serves on the management boards of three public entities: the Missouri Housing Development Commission, the Missouri State Employees' Retirement System and the Board of Fund Commissioners.

The state treasurer is one of six statewide elected officials, and serves a term of four years. A person may only serve as state treasurer for two terms.

Banking Services

The state treasurer serves as Missouri government's banking director. While not a bank itself, the treasurer's office must authorize payments and balance accounts. The office contracts with Missouri banks to: process the state's receipts and disbursements; handle money and security transfers; provide cash forecasting services; report on the state's accounts, balances and payment activities; and provide related banking services such as data processing. Bidding for the state banking services contract is open to all Missouri banks.

Investments

The state treasurer determines the amount of state funds not needed for current operating expenses and invests those funds in interest-bearing time deposits in Missouri banks, U.S. treasury and federal agency securities, repu-

chase agreements, banker's acceptances and top-rated commercial paper. Missouri is one of only nine states to have a AAA credit rating. Safety is the treasurer's number one priority in the investment of the public's funds. Staff investment specialists monitor major investment markets and work to maximize the state's return on investments without compromising safety. The office has an average of $2.5 billion invested daily, earning the state millions of dollars in interest income each year.

Missouri First Linked Deposit Program

A portion of the state's investable funds is used by the Treasurer to help Missouri industries create jobs, to help small businesses grow, to help farmers prosper, and to bring affordable housing within reach of more Missouri families.

Under the MISSOURI FIRST program, the treasurer's office deposits state funds in Missouri financial institutions and accepts a lower rate of return. The institutions pass on the savings in the form of low-interest loans to eligible borrowers.

The office currently operates one of the most utilized linked deposit programs in the nation expressly for the purpose of building Missouri's economy. Currently, $350 million is authorized for the MISSOURI FIRST Linked-Deposit program, with $165 million allocated for farm loans, $110 million for job creation, $55 million for small business loans, $10 million for drought relief, and $10 million for affordable multi-family housing. Any unused allocation up to $10 million may be used for student loans.

More than 300 of Missouri's 500 banks participate in the program.

Unclaimed Property

The treasurer's office is responsible for Missouri's largest "lost and found," the state's Unclaimed Property program. State law requires financial institutions, insurance companies, public agencies and other business entities to turn over assets that belong to a customer, client, employee or other rightful owner if there has been no documented transactions or contact with the owner for five or more years. The treasurer's office operates an aggressive program to return unclaimed assets to the original owners or their legal heirs.

Most unclaimed property consists of cash from bank accounts, stocks, bonds, and contents of safe deposit boxes that have been abandoned. It also can include uncollected insurance policy proceeds, government refunds, utility deposits and wages from past jobs. The Unclaimed Property section does not handle real property such as land, houses, cars and boats.

The office currently is holding more than $200 million in unclaimed property and funds in more than one million owner accounts. All unclaimed property is held in trust by the state forever and can be claimed at any time. To recover unclaimed property, claimants must be either the original owner of the property or a legal heir. All services of the Unclaimed Property program are free of charge.

People can check to see if the Treasurer's Office is holding unclaimed property that may belong to them using its searchable database at www.showmemoney.com.

Dollar$ & Sense

Dollar$ & Sense, created in 1995, is a statewide bank-at-school program available to Missouri elementary schools to teach children to make informed decisions as savers, spenders, borrowers and money managers. It is a partnership program of the State Treasurer's Office, local Missouri financial institutions, the Missouri Council on Economic Education, the Missouri Bankers Association and the Consumer Credit Counseling Service of the Mississippi River Valley.

Participating schools are provided with program curricula and partnered with a local bank. The bankers arrange in-school banking hours to accept deposits into student accounts. They work with teachers to provide opportunities for students to learn and practice money management skills.

Missouri Saving for Tuition (MOST)

The state treasurer chairs the Missouri Saving for Tuition or MOST board. Developed by the State Treasurer's Office in 1999, the MOST program encourages Missouri families to save for higher education while taking advantage of significant federal and state tax benefits. Accounts can be opened with as little as $25 or $15 through payroll deduction. Contributions of up to $8,000 a year to MO$T accounts and all earnings are free of state taxes. Funds from MO$T accounts can be used to pay for all eligible educational expenses at virtually any two- or four-year college or university, vocational, technical or professional school anywhere in the country.

MO$T accounts are managed by TIAA-CREF, one of the world's largest and most respected financial management firms. For more information about MO$T, call toll free: 1-888-414-MOST, or visit the web site at www.missourimost.org.

Boards and Commissions

The state treasurer serves on the governing boards of three public entities: the Missouri Housing Development Commission, which assists in the creation of affordable housing for low- and moderate-income Missourians; Missouri State Employees' Retirement System, which manages retirement funds for more than 56,000 state employees and retirees; and Board of Fund Commissioners, which issues, redeems and cancels state general obligation bonds and other debt.

Jeremiah W. Nixon

Attorney General

Term expires January 2005

JAY NIXON (Democrat) is serving his third term as Attorney General of Missouri. Nixon was first elected Attorney General on Nov. 3, 1992, on a platform of fighting crime, cleaning up government corruption, and protecting consumers and the environment. Nixon is Missouri's 40th Attorney General.

As Attorney General, Nixon serves as the state's chief legal officer, working with law enforcement daily to fight crime and prosecute criminals. He has been a leader nationally in changing laws to reduce the number of repetitive appeals in capital cases.

During his first term in office, Nixon successfully cleaned up the state's Second Injury Fund, saving the state more than $13 million in legal fees and eliminating the Second Injury Fund tax for several years, saving taxpayers an additional $100 million. Nixon introduced new aggressive defenses to frivolous inmate lawsuits and has reduced the lawsuits by almost 90 percent at a savings to the state of $19 million in legal fees.

As Attorney General, Nixon created the Environmental Protection Division to enforce Missouri's environmental laws. Successful litigation by the division has resulted in the cleanup of polluted sites and millions of dollars awarded to the state. Nixon serves as the co-chairman of the National Association of Attorneys General Environment Committee.

Nixon's landmark victory in the United States Supreme Court in Nixon v. Shrink reinstated Missouri's campaign contribution limits and cleared the way nationally for campaign finance reform. In another case of significance, Nixon's work on the settlement with Blue Cross and Blue Shield resulted in the formation of the Missouri Foundation for Health, the state's largest health care foundation, to help provide health care services to underserved areas of the state. In addition, Nixon sued tobacco companies for illegally marketing cigarettes to young people. The litigation resulted in the largest settlement in the history of the state.

Nixon has been a national leader in fighting crime on the Internet. He obtained the first criminal conviction in the country of an Internet gaming Web site operator and has obtained guilty pleas from those who have defrauded Missourians through Internet scams. Nixon has worked with other Attorneys General and local law enforcement to stop child porn trafficking and other crimes on the Internet.

As Attorney General, Nixon obtained $17 million for Missourians in 1998-2000 from companies and individuals accused of fraudulent activities, including $7.2 million returned to consumers by the Consumer Protection Division through out-of-court mediation. Nixon's actions to protect the elderly have put telemarketers in prison and sweepstakes companies out of business.

Nixon's aggressive actions in the Attorney General's Office have earned him national recognition. Barrister magazine named him one of the 20 outstanding young lawyers in the nation, and the Missouri Jaycees selected him one of Ten Outstanding Young Missourians.

Prior to becoming Attorney General, Nixon served as a state senator for six years where he was recognized by the Conservation Federation of Missouri for his environmental work.

Attorney General Nixon is a native of Jefferson County, Missouri. He earned his political science and law degrees from the University of Missouri-Columbia in 1978 and 1981, respectively. He was in private practice when he was elected to the Senate in 1986. He is married to Georganne Wheeler Nixon; they have two children, Jeremiah and Will.

The attorney general is the attorney for the state. He represents the legal interests of Missouri and its state agencies but does not represent individual citizens in private legal actions.

As the state's chief legal officer, the attorney general must prosecute or defend all appeals to which the state is a party, including every felony criminal case appealed to the Missouri Supreme Court and courts of appeal. The attorney general also is required to institute, in the name and on behalf of the state, all civil suits and other proceedings that are necessary to protect the state's rights, interests or claims. The attorney general may appear, interplead, answer or defend any proceedings that involve the state's interests, or appear on behalf of the state in declaratory judgment proceedings when the constitutionality of a statute is challenged.

The attorney general also renders official opinions to the executive and legislative branch and the county prosecuting attorneys on questions of law relating to their duties.

The attorney general may institute quo warranto proceedings to oust any corporation doing business in Missouri if it has abused its franchise or has violated state laws. The attorney general may institute quo warranto proceedings against anyone unlawfully holding office or move to oust any public official for malfeasance in office.

The attorney general's office was created in 1806 when Missouri was part of the Louisiana Territory. Missouri's first Constitution in 1820 provided for an appointed attorney general, but since the 1865 Constitution, the attorney general has been elected.

By law, the attorney general is a member of the Board of Fund Commissioners, the Board of Public Buildings, the Governor's Committee on Interstate Cooperation, the Missouri Highway Reciprocity Commission and the Missouri Housing Development Commission.

To fulfill these and other responsibilities, the attorney general's office is organized into seven divisions.

Consumer Protection Division

The attorney general has the responsibility of protecting the public's interests in an open and honest marketplace. The Consumer Protection Division enforces Missouri's Consumer Protection Act and antitrust laws, and has the responsibility of representing the commissioner of securities of the secretary of state's office.

Missouri's consumer protection statutes prohibit deception, fraud, unfair practices and misrepresentation or concealment of material facts in the sale or advertisement of goods or services. These laws authorize the attorney general to stop the promotion of pyramid sales schemes, prevent the altering of vehicle odometers and ensure that consumers' rights are protected under laws dealing with home solicitations. The division also has an active consumer education program.

Consumers who wish to file complaints or obtain information may call the attorney general's Consumer Hotline at (800) 392-8222. Missourians who are hearing- or speech-impaired and have the proper equipment may call (800) 729-8668. The division receives more than 30,000 consumer complaints a year. Under the Missouri Antitrust Law, the attorney general has the authority to represent the state or any of its political subdivisions, public agencies, school districts or municipalities in actions to prohibit monopolies and trade restraints. The attorney general also may act under federal antitrust statutes to bring civil actions in the name of the state and on behalf of Missouri residents to recover damages for injuries caused by certain antitrust violations.

The attorney general is the state's chief prosecutor for securities fraud, and may initiate legal actions for civil injunctive relief, penalties and restitution under the Missouri Merchandising Practices Law.

Criminal Division

The attorney general has overall responsibility for criminal prosecution, including the appeal of every federal criminal case in state and federal courts. Each year, attorneys in the Criminal Division brief and argue more than 800 cases in the Missouri Court of Appeals, the Supreme Court of Missouri and litigate some 500 federal habeas corpus actions in the federal district courts, the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals, and the U.S. Supreme Court.

JOSEPH BINDBEUTEL
Chief Counsel, Environmental

Chief Counsel, Consumer
Protection Division

Public Safety Division

The Public Safety Division is involved in a wide range of criminal prosecutions at the trial level. The division's special prosecution unit prosecutes cases throughout Missouri, many of them homicide cases, either alone or in conjunction with a local prosecutor. The meth prosecution unit specializes in handling criminal cases involving the manufacture, sale or possession of methamphetamine.

The workers' compensation fraud unit prosecutes fraud or misconduct involving workers' compensation, and the Medicaid fraud control unit prosecutes cases involving fraud of the state Medicaid program by health professionals, or abuse or neglect of Medicaid recipients by caregivers.

The division's high technology and computer crime unit assists local law enforcement with investigations and prosecutions of computer and Internet crime cases.

The sexually violent predator unit seeks the civil commitment of sexual predators who suffer from a mental abnormality making them more likely than not to commit additional predatory acts of sexual violence.

Attorneys in the division also serve as legal counsel for the Department of Public Safety, Highway Patrol, Water Patrol and other state law enforcement agencies, and represent those agencies in all civil litigation in which they are a party.

Environmental Protection Division

The Environmental Protection Division represents the Department of Natural Resources and its constituent boards and commissions that regulate the use of the state's air, land and waters.

The division is responsible for hundreds of active enforcement cases, including administrative appeals before the DNR's commissions. Enforcement litigation is filed primarily in state courts to seek preliminary and permanent injunctions to assure compliance with Missouri's environmental laws. The division also obtains civil penalties and recovers costs and damages for the DNR.

The division has civil as well as criminal attorneys who participate in the Environmental Crimes Task Force with the U.S. attorney's office. In 1993, the division obtained Missouri's first criminal conviction under the state's hazardous waste laws.

Governmental Affairs Division

The Governmental Affairs Division provides legal advice and services to a wide variety of state officials and offices, including the governor, the secretary of state and other statewide elected officials.

The division also represents many of the state's regulatory and licensing agencies, including the Board of Registration for Healing Arts, the Missouri Gaming Commission and the Lottery Commission. Attorneys in the division represent the public in the administration of charitable trusts and in matters concerning utilities regulation before the Public Service Commission.

Labor Division

The Labor Division provides general counsel and litigation services for the Missouri Department of Labor and Industrial Relations and its officers and agencies. The division also represents the state in prevailing wage disputes, crime victims' claims and workers' compensation cases of state employees, including claims involving the Second Injury Fund. Labor Division attorneys represent individuals before the Missouri Human Rights Commission when they have discrimination claims involving employment, housing or public accommodations.

Litigation Division

Litigation Division attorneys handle major and complex litigation for Missouri, providing legal defense to state agencies and their employees. Cases in the division include damage claims, contract actions, class-action lawsuits, employment issues, constitutional challenges and other types of civil litigation. The division defends the state in hundreds of lawsuits brought each year by inmates of Missouri's correctional facilities.

United States Government

Executive branch

*The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Ave., N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20500
Telephone: (202) 456-1414*

The president and the vice president of the United States are elected every four years by a majority of votes cast in the electoral college. These votes are cast by delegates from each state who vote in accordance, traditionally, with the majority of the state's voters. States have as many electoral college votes as they have congressional delegates. Missouri has 11 electoral college votes—one for each of the nine U.S. Congress districts and two for the state's two seats in the U.S. Senate.

The president is the chief executive of the United States, with powers to command the armed forces, control foreign policy, grant reprieves and pardons, make certain appointments, execute all laws passed by Congress and present the administration's budget. The president earns $400,000 annually, with an allowance for expenses.

The vice president is selected by members of each national political committee and runs on the same ticket for the same term as the president. The vice president assumes the presidency if the president dies or resigns the office, is incapacitated to the extent that he or she cannot exercise presidential duties for an extended period, or is impeached. The vice president presides over the functions of the U.S. Senate and acts as emissary of the president. The vice president earns $186,300 annually, plus an allowance for expenses.

Although not mentioned in the Constitution, the president's cabinet is the advisory arm of the office. It is made up of 14 cabinet members (or secretaries) who have the responsibility to operate each department. Secretaries are appointed by the president and serve at his pleasure. Cabinet secretaries earn $161,200 annually.

Members, President Bush's cabinet

Colin Powell, Secretary of State;
Paul O'Neill, Secretary of the Treasury;
Donald Rumsfeld, Secretary of Defense;
John Ashcroft, Attorney General;

Gale Norton, Secretary of the Interior;
Ann M. Veneman, Secretary of Agriculture;
Don Evans, Secretary of Commerce;
Elaine Chao, Secretary of Labor;
Tommy Thompson, Secretary of Health and Human Services;
Mel Martinez, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development;
Norman Mineta, Secretary of Transportation;
Spencer Abraham, Secretary of Energy;
Rod Paige, Secretary of Education;
Anthony Principi, Secretary of Veterans' Affairs.

In addition to secretaries of the cabinet, the president maintains a White House staff of advisers who serve at his pleasure.

President Bush's executive officers with cabinet rank

Richard B. Cheney, Vice President
Christie Todd Whitman, Environmental Protection Agency;
Mitchell E. Daniels Jr., Office of Management and Budget;
Robert B. Zoellick, U.S. trade representative;
John Walters, Office of National Drug Control Policy;
Andrew H. Card Jr., Chief of Staff.

Legislative branch

The U.S. Constitution provides for two houses, known as the Congress. The Senate is composed of 100 members; two senators are elected from each state. The House of Representatives is composed of 435 members; representatives are determined based on the population of each state. Missouri is allotted nine U.S. Representative seats.

Senators must be at least 30 years of age and be residents of the United States for at least nine years. They also must reside in the state they are elected to represent. Senators serve terms of six years, with one-third of the Senate membership elected every two years. Senators also earn $145,100 annually, plus expenses.

Representatives must be at least 25 years of age and must have been residents of the United States for at least seven years. They also must reside in the state they represent. Representatives serve two-year terms and earn $145,100 annually, plus expenses.

Congress is in session for two years, beginning on January 3 of each year unless another date is specified. The presiding officer of the Senate is the vice president of the United States. The Senate also elects a president pro tem of the Senate to serve in the absence of the vice president. The president pro tem also represents the party in power and earns $161,200. The presiding officer of the House is called the speaker. The speaker traditionally represents the party in majority and earns $186,300.

Judicial branch

The U.S. Supreme Court heads the nation's judicial branch of government. The Supreme Court is composed of nine justices, appointed for life. Supreme Court judges may only be removed by impeachment and trial by Congress. Justices receive $178,300 annually while the chief justice, who leads the court, earns $186,300.

The Supreme Court concerns itself with national issues or matters concerning the constitutionality of certain laws or findings. Decisions of the court are binding and overrule any other court decision.

Members, United States Supreme Court

Telephone: (202) 479-3000

William H. Rehnquist, chief justice;
John Paul Stevens, associate justice;
Sandra Day O'Connor, associate justice;
Antonin Scalia, associate justice;
Anthony M. Kennedy, associate justice;

David Hackett Souter, associate justice;
Clarence Thomas, associate justice;
Ruth Bader Ginsburg, associate justice;
Steven G. Breyer, associate justice.

Other federal courts

Immediately below the Supreme Court are the U.S. Courts of Appeals and the U.S. District Courts. The Courts of Appeals operate in 11 regions and the District of Columbia. Missouri is served by the Eighth Circuit. Appeals Court judges earn $153,900 annually.

There are 94 U.S. District Court districts with federal jurisdiction. Two of these are located in Missouri: the Eastern Missouri District and the Western Missouri District. Eastern District courts are located in St. Louis, Hannibal and Cape Girardeau while Western District courts are in Kansas City, St. Joseph, Springfield, Jefferson City and Joplin. Federal charges stemming from both civil and criminal suits generally begin in U.S. District Court. Judges in these courts earn $145,000 annually.

George W. Bush

United States President

GEORGE W. BUSH (Republican) is the 43rd President of the United States. Formerly the 46th Governor of the State of Texas, Bush has earned a reputation as a compassionate conservative who shapes policy based on the principles of limited government, personal responsibility, strong families, and local control.

George W. Bush was born July 6, 1946, and grew up in Midland and Houston, Texas. He received a bachelor's degree from Yale University and a Master of Business Administration from Harvard Business School. He served as an F-102 pilot for the Texas Air National Guard before beginning his career in the oil and gas business in Midland in 1975, working in the energy industry until 1986. After working on his father's successful 1988 presidential campaign, he assembled the group of partners that purchased the Texas Rangers baseball franchise in 1989.

He served as managing general partner of the Texas Rangers until he was elected Governor on November 8, 1994, with 53.5 percent of the vote. In an historic re-election victory, he became the first Texas Governor to be elected to consecutive four-year terms on November 3, 1998, winning 68.6 percent of the vote.

As President, Bush will pursue the same common-sense approach and bipartisan spirit as he had in Texas. He has proposed bold initiatives to ensure that America's prosperity has a purpose. He has also addressed improving our nation's public schools by strengthening local control and insisting on accountability; reducing taxes on all taxpayers, especially for those Americans on the fringes of poverty; strengthening the military with better pay, better planning, and better equipment; saving and strengthening Social Security and Medicare by providing seniors with more options; and ushering in the responsibility era in America.

President Bush is married to Laura Welch Bush, a former teacher and librarian, and they have 19-year-old twin daughters, Barbara and Jenna. The Bush family also includes their two dogs, Spot and Barney, and a cat, India.

Richard B. Cheney

United States Vice President

RICHARD B. CHENEY (Republican) has had a distinguished career as a businessman and public servant, serving three Presidents and as an elected official. Throughout his service, Cheney served with duty, honor, and unwavering leadership, gaining him the respect of the American people during trying military times.

Cheney was born in Lincoln, Nebraska, on January 30, 1941 and grew up in Casper, Wyoming. He earned his bachelor's and master's of arts degrees from the University of Wyoming. His career in public service began in 1969 when he joined the Nixon Administration, serving in a number of positions at the Cost of Living Council, at the Office of Economic Opportunity, and within the White House.

When Gerald Ford assumed the Presidency in August 1974, Cheney served on the transition team and later as Deputy Assistant to the President. In November 1975, he was named Assistant to the President and White House Chief of Staff, a position he held throughout the remainder of the Ford Administration.

After he returned to his home state of Wyoming in 1977, Cheney was elected to serve as the state's sole Congressman in the U.S.

House of Representatives. He was re-elected five times and elected by his colleagues to serve as Chairman of the Republican Policy Committee from 1981 to 1987. He was elected Chairman of the House Republican Conference in 1987 and elected House Minority Whip in 1988. During his tenure in the House, Secretary Cheney earned a reputation as a man of knowledge, character, and accessibility.

Cheney also served a crucial role when America needed him most. As Secretary of Defense from March 1989 to January 1993, Cheney directed two of the largest military campaigns in recent history—Operation Just Cause in Panama and Operation Desert Storm in the Middle East. He was responsible for shaping the future of the U.S. military in an age of profound and rapid change as the Cold War ended. For his leadership in the Gulf War, Secretary Cheney was awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom by President George Bush on July 3, 1991.

Cheney married his high school sweetheart, Lynne Ann Vincent, in 1964, and they have grown daughters, Elizabeth and Mary, and three granddaughters.

CHRISTOPHER SAMUEL (Kit) BOND was re-elected to a third term in the United States Senate in 1998—a year when the Republican Party lost incumbent Senators nationwide—based on his strong record of fighting for Missourians in Washington. In 1992, Bond was the only Republican candidate to win in Missouri, and in 1986, he was the only Republican to capture a seat previously held by a Democrat.

Serving on the Appropriations Budget Committees Bond played a key role in passing the first balanced budget in a generation in 1997, and holding the line on spending in subsequent years. He also fought for the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997 which resulted in a new $500 per child tax credit for families, and allowed small business owners to deduct more of their health insurance premiums and pass their businesses on to family members without confiscatory taxes.

Bond won legislation making his Parents As Teachers (PAT) program available in other states. PAT assists parents in creating a healthy learning environment for their children in the early years, improving school readiness. Bond also helped pass the Family and Medical Leave Act, which ensures that workers will not have to choose between attending to family responsibilities and their jobs.

In 1996, as Chair of the Committee on Small Business, Bond crafted and passed the Red Tape Reduction Act, which reduces red tape for small business owners and gives them greater say over government regulations. In 1998, Bond pushed for legislation to keep violent students out of the classroom, winning $7 million to help Missouri law enforcement officers track juvenile offenders.

Bond has worked to link all regions of the state into a modern transportation network. He has increased Missouri's share of highway dollars by hundreds of millions, and continues to fight for finances to improve and expand Missouri highways.

Bond's top priorities for 2001 are: improving education by returning education decision-making and money to the local schools; providing tax relief for working families and small businesses; helping children in the earliest years of life; pushing for common-sense environmental progress; and protecting our elderly by strengthening vital services like home-health care and Social Security.

Bond was elected Governor of Missouri in 1972 and 1980. He was elected State Auditor in 1970, after serving a year as Assistant Attorney General.

Born March 6, 1939, Bond is a sixth generation Missourian. He graduated with a law degree from the Univ. of Virginia in 1963, first in his class. He received his bachelor's degree from Princeton Univ. in 1960, graduating cum laude from the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs.

JEAN CARNAHAN (Democrat) Before taking Harry Truman's seat in the Senate, Jean Carnahan devoted her two terms as First Lady to improving the lives of Missouri's children and to bringing a new warmth and hospitality to the Governor's Mansion.

She has been a wife, mother, grandmother, author, children's advocate, and public speaker. When her husband, Governor Mel Carnahan, ran for the U.S. Senate she was actively involved in his campaign, just as she had been in the previous 19 campaigns he had waged during his lifetime of public service.

However, on October 16, 2000, her life moved dramatically to the forefront. Just three weeks before the November 2000 election, Mel Carnahan was killed in a tragic plane crash along with their oldest son, Randy, and long-time advisor Chris Sifford.

With her husband's name still on the ballot, she agreed to serve in his place should he be elected.

Jean Carnahan took the oath of office on January 3, 2001, after having been appointed by Governor Roger Wilson.

Even before her appointment, Mrs. Carnahan had already shown how strongly she felt about Missouri's families and their impact on the future of the state and nation. As First Lady, she advocated for childhood immunization and created an annual arts festival for children. She was the co-founder of Children in the Workplace, a project to develop employer-supported, on-site day care centers for working families.

She frequently spoke on behalf of victims of domestic violence and for those who struggle with cancer, osteoporosis, mental health, and drug problems. She raised funds for the Rape and Abuse Crisis Center and helped build homes for Habitat for Humanity. Each Thanksgiving, the Carnahans served meals to the needy at the Salvation Army kitchen, a tradition she and her family continued just weeks after her husband's death.

In 1998, after five years of research and writing, Mrs. Carnahan completed her first book, If Walls Could Talk, a 440-page history of Missouri's first families and the challenges they face in public service. The following year, she published Christmas at the Mansion: Its Memories and Menus.

In July 1999, her speech on women of achievement was selected for national publication in Vital Speeches of the Day. The following year, a collection of her speeches was published in paperback form under the title Will You Say a Few Words.

In recognition of her work, Mrs. Carnahan has received the Robert C. Goshorn Award for public service and the state's Martin Luther King Jr. special achievement award. In 1995, she received the Child Advocate of the Year Award from Boys' and Girls' Town of Missouri. She was named 1997 Citizen of the Year by the March of Dimes, and the 1999 Woman of the Year by the St. Louis Zonta Clubs International.

She served on the board of William Woods University and helped create the Missouri Center for the Book to recognize authors from around the state.

Jean Carnahan graduated from George Washington University with a degree in Business and Public Administration. She has three surviving children and two grandsons. Her son Russ is an attorney and Missouri legislator; Robin and Tom are also attorneys.

In her new role as U.S. Senator, Carnahan views herself as a centrist, seeking common sense solutions and as an advocate for Missouri jobs, schools, and families.

The special election, in which Jo Ann Emerson ran as a Republican, was held at the same time as the November 1996 general election, in which Jo Ann Emerson ran as an independent (due to candidate filing laws), winning the seat.

²⁰E. Thomas Coleman was elected November 2, 1976, to complete the unexpired term of the late Congressman Jerry Litton, who died in a plane crash; he also was elected to a full term beginning January 3, 1977.

²¹Thomas P. Akers was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of John G. Miller.

Historical Note: The election of early Missouri delegates was by general statewide ticket. In 1847, the state was divided into five congressional districts, from which representatives were elected. In 1863, the districts were expanded to number nine and ten years later in 1873, Missouri was redistricted to allow for thirteen congressional districts. By acts approved in 1882 and 1885, Missouri was allowed one additional district and in 1893, the congressional districts numbered fifteen. Missouri was allowed sixteen districts in 1901; these were in place until 1933. In that year, the state was allotted thirteen representatives, while the legislature redistricted the state. Those thirteen representatives were elected at large (indicated by an asterisk (*) in the listing). The state has been redistricted at various times over the last forty years, moving from eleven districts in the 1950s, to ten districts in the 1960s, to the current number of nine congressional districts in the 1980s. Because of the redistricting, it may be necessary to check the Revised Statutes of Missouri to determine which Missouri counties were represented by a district during a particular year. Redistricting changes generally occur in the years following the taking of the federal census.

Legislative Branch

Missouri Supreme Court Chief Justice William Billings delivers the state of the judiciary address to a joint session of the Missouri General Assembly, 1989.
(Missouri State Archives, Associated Press Collection)

The Missouri General Assembly

Legislative power in Missouri is vested by Section 1, Article III of the 1945 Constitution in the General Assembly, composed of the Senate and the House of Representatives.

The Senate consists of 34 members, elected for four-year terms. Senators from odd-numbered districts are elected in presidential election years. Senators from even-numbered districts are chosen in the "off year" elections. Each senator must be at least 30 years of age, a qualified voter of the state for three years and of the district he or she represents for one year. The lieutenant governor is president and presiding officer of the Senate. In the absence of the lieutenant governor, the president pro tem, elected by the Senate members, presides.

The House of Representatives consists of 163 members, elected at each general election for a two-year term. A representative must be at least 24 years of age, a qualified voter of the state for two years and of the district he or she represents for one year. The House of Representatives is presided over by the speaker, chosen by the members, and in the absence of the speaker by the speaker pro tem.

Reapportionment of both houses of the Missouri General Assembly following each decennial U.S. census is provided for by the Missouri Constitution.

Senators and representatives receive a salary of $31,246 per year, a weekly allowance for miles traveled going to and returning from their place of meeting and expenses for each day the General Assembly is in session.

Time of meeting

The General Assembly convenes annually on the first Wednesday after the first Monday of January. Adjournment is midnight on May 30, with no consideration of bills after 6 p.m. on the first Friday after the second Monday in May. If the governor returns a bill with his objections on or after the fifth day before the last day upon which a session of the General Assembly may consider bills, the General Assembly is automatically reconvened on the first Wednesday following the second Monday in September for a period not to exceed 10 calendar days to consider vetoed bills.

A special session of the General Assembly may be called by petition of the General Assembly. If three-fourths of the members of the Senate and three-fourths of the members of the House of Representatives sign the petition calling for a special session, the president pro tem of the Senate and the speaker of the House shall, by joint proclamation, convene the General Assembly in special session.

The petition and proclamation must specifically state the subjects to be considered during the special session, and the signed petition must be filed with the secretary of state.

The General Assembly shall automatically stand adjourned sine die at 6 p.m. on the 30th calendar day after the convening of the special session unless it has adjourned sine die before the 30th day.

No appropriation bill shall be considered in the special session if, in that year, the General Assembly has not passed the operating budget in compliance with Article III, Section 25 of the Missouri Constitution.

The governor may convene the General Assembly in special session for a maximum of 60 calendar days at any time. Only subjects recommended by the governor in his call or a special message may be considered.

Organization of the General Assembly

Following the general election in November of even-numbered years, the majority and minority members of each house caucus, separately, nominate candidates for the offices to be elected by each body and organize their parties for the coming session. Nominees of the majority party are, in effect, elected. Each party names its floor leader, assistant floor leader, caucus chair and secretary.

Both houses of the General Assembly convene at noon on the opening day of the session. The Senate is called to order by the lieutenant governor. Temporary officers are named and the roll of new and carryover senators is read. Newly elected senators are then sworn in, usually by a judge of the Supreme Court. The president pro tem and other permanent officers are then elected and take an oath of office administered by the president of the Senate.

The House of Representatives is called to order by the secretary of state, and the oath is administered to all members. After the swearing-in ceremony, a roll call is taken and a temporary speaker is named. He or she presides for nomination and election of permanent officers. Temporary rules, usually the rules in force for the preceding session, are adopted.

After each house notifies the other that it is duly organized, a House Resolution is adopted inviting the Senate to a joint meeting to receive the governor's message. Under the Constitution, the governor, at the beginning of each session, delivers a message concerning state government with any recommendations he wishes to make for the enactment of legislation.

Each house determines its own rules, and procedures and rules may not be dispensed with except by unanimous consent or concurrence by a constitutional majority. Both the Senate and House of Representatives are required to keep a daily journal (or record) of their proceedings. At the end of the session, the journals are bound by the House and Senate. The secretary of state's office provides microform copies of the journals.

How bills become laws

General provisions

No law is passed except by bill. Bills may originate in either house and are designated as Senate Bills or House Bills, depending on the house in which they originate. No bill (except general appropriations bills) may contain more than one subject, which is to be expressed clearly in its title. No bill can be amended in its passage through either house so as to change its original purpose. No bill can be introduced in either house after the 60th legislative day of a session unless consented to by a majority of the elected members of each house. The governor may request consideration of proposed legislation by a special message. No appropriation bill shall be taken up for consideration after 6 p.m. on the first Friday following the first Monday in May of each year.

Introduction of a bill

Legislation approved by the 1971 General Assembly (H.B. 156) provides for preintroduction of bills beginning December 1 preceding the opening of the assembly session and continuing up to, but not including, the first day of the session. Bills filed during the preintroduction period are automatically introduced and read the first time on the opening day of the session.

Bills may also be introduced by any senator or representative during the session. Bills may be written by the legislator or drafted by the staff of the Committee on Legislative Research at the request of a senator or representative. When introduced, a bill is assigned a number and read for the first time by its title by the Senate or House reading clerk. It then goes on the calendar for second reading and assignment to committee by the speaker of the House or the president pro tem of the Senate.

A public hearing before the committee to which a bill is assigned is the next step in the legislative process. Except in the case of some unusually controversial, complex or lengthy bills, the bill is presented by its sponsor, and both proponents and opponents are heard in a single hearing. When hearings are concluded, the committee meets to vote and makes its recommendations. The committee may (1) report the bill with the recommendation that it "do pass"; (2) recommend passage with committee amendments, which are attached to the bill; (3) return the bill without recommendation; (4) substitute in lieu of the original bill a new bill to be known as a committee substitute; (5) report the bill with a recommendation that it "do not pass"; or (6) make no report at all.

Perfection of a bill

If a bill is reported favorably out of committee or a substitute is recommended, it is placed on the "perfection calendar"; and when its turn comes up for consideration; it is debated on the floor of the originating house. If a substitute is recommended by the committee or if committee amendments are attached to the bill, they are first presented, debated and voted upon. Further amendments can then be proposed by other members with their changes designated as House or Senate amendments to differentiate from the committee amendments; a House or Senate substitute bill can also be offered at this time. When all amendments and substitutes have been considered, a motion is made to declare the bill perfected. Perfection is usually voted on by a voice vote; but on the request of five members, a roll call shall be taken. If a majority of members vote to perfect, the bill is reprinted in its original or amended form.

Final passage of a bill

After perfection and reprinting, the bill goes on the calendar for third reading and final passage. When the bill is reached in the order of business, any member may speak for or against its passage but no further amendments of a substantive nature can be offered. At the conclusion of debate, a recorded vote is taken. Approval of a constitutional majority of the elected members (18 in the Senate and 82 in the House) is required for final passage.

Passage of the bill is then reported to the other house where it is read a second time, referred to committee for hearing, reported by committee, read a third time and offered for final approval. If further amendments or substitutes are approved, these are reported to the originating house with a request that the changes be approved. If the originating house does not approve, a conference may be requested; and members from each house are designated as a conference committee. Upon agreement by the conference committee (usually a compromise of differences), each reports to its own house on the committee's recommendation. The originating house acts first on the conference committee version of the bill. If it is approved it goes to the other house; and upon approval there, the bill is declared “truly agreed to and finally passed.” If either house rejects the conference committee report, it may be returned to the same or a newly appointed committee for further conferences.

Upon final passage, a bill is ordered enrolled. It is typed in its finally approved form and printed, and the bills are closely compared and proofed for errors.

Signing of the bill

Bills truly agreed to and finally passed in their typed form are then signed in open session by the House speaker and Senate president or president pro tem. At the time of signing, any member may file written objections which are sent with the bill to the governor.

Governor’s part in lawmaking

The governor has 15 days to act on a bill if it is sent to him during the legislative session; and 45 days if the Legislature has adjourned or has recessed for a 30-day period.

If he signs a bill, it is returned to its house of origin with his message of approval then delivered to the Office of Secretary of State. If the Legislature is not in session, the bill is delivered directly to the Office of Secretary of State.

If the governor vetoes a bill, it is returned to the house of origin with his objections. A two-thirds vote by members of both houses is required to override a governor’s veto.

If any bill shall not be returned by the governor within the time limits prescribed by Article III, Section 31 of the Missouri Constitution, it shall become law in the same manner as if the governor had signed it.

Effective date of laws

The 1945 Constitution provides that no law passed by the General Assembly shall take effect until 90 days after the end of the session in which it was enacted, except an appropriation act or in case of an emergency, which must be expressed in the preamble or in the body of the act. Some bills specify the exact date when they are to take effect.

Duties of the secretary of state

The secretary of state preserves the finally typed and signed copy of the law. All the laws are bound together in one volume at the close of each session and are maintained in the State Archives should some question arise. The laws are published annually by the Committee on Legislative Research, in a volume titled Laws of Missouri, which is distributed to members of the General Assembly, state officials and other interested persons.

The general statute laws are revised by the revisor of statutes in the Office of the Committee on Legislative Research, digested and promulgated. These are known as the Revised Statutes of Missouri. Under legislation, the Committee on Legislative Research also publishes annual supplements to the statutes to include changes in laws since the last revision.

Joint Legislative Committees

Committee on Legislative Research

Oversight Division

132 State Capitol, Jefferson City 65101

Telephone: (573) 751-4143

The Committee on Legislative Research is a permanent standing committee as provided by Section 35 of Article III of the Missouri Constitution.

The committee is composed of 20 members of the General Assembly, with 10 members appointed by the leaders of each house. No major party may have more than six members appointed as members from either house.

Committee members are: Senator Larry Rohrbach, chair; Representative Robert M. Clayton III, vice chair; Senators Roseann Bentley; Harold Caskey; Ronnie DePasco; Michael Gibbons; Bill Kenney; John T. Russell; Marvin Singleton; Stephen Stoll; Harry Wiggins and Representatives Jason Crowell; D.J. Davis; Timothy Green; Catherine Hanaway; Ken Legan; Randall Relford; O.L. Shelton; Bill Skaggs and Merrill Townley.

The committee is directed by statute to provide a variety of services for the General Assembly and its members. The committee's offices and staff are divided into two divisions, a Research Division and an Oversight Division. The committee itself is not a policy making group and formulates no legislative program. Its staff renders only such technical and professional assistance as may be requested by the General Assembly or any of its members, or as required by statute.

The Research Division provides bill drafting assistance, prepares concurrent and courtesy resolutions, operates a legislative reference library and publishes the Revised Statutes of Missouri and subsequent supplements, and Session Laws of Missouri.

One of the legislative aids furnished by the committee is its bill drafting service.

Bills are drawn at the request of any member of the General Assembly but the fact that a bill has been drafted by a member of the staff does not carry with it the endorsement of the Committee on Legislative Research. All bill requests are treated confidentially by the bill drafter and without comment or criticism of the subject matter.

The committee does not act as a censorship committee and the fact that a staff member may have assisted in drafting a bill does not affect the standing or reception of a bill so far as the committee is concerned. Assembly members may or may not choose to have bills drafted by the service and there is no requirement that a bill be submitted to the bill drafting service before being introduced.

One need of state government is a modern legislative reference library. The library maintained by the Committee on Legislative Research continuously acquires books, pamphlets, periodicals and reports and the staff works closely with the staff of the Missouri State Library and the Supreme Court Library.

Through its acquisitions, exchanges and loans with other libraries, the legislative library provides much of the material requested by members of the General Assembly for the analysis of public questions and provides a research tool for bill drafting and research services.

Courtesy resolutions continue to be of great importance to members of the General Assembly. More than 300 per month are prepared by the resolution-writers for a variety of observances.

The Oversight Division is supervised by a subcommittee of the Committee on Legislative Research. Members of the Oversight Subcommittee are: Senators Rohrbach, chair; Russell and Wiggins; and Representatives Clayton, vice chair; Green and Legan.

The Oversight Division is responsible for preparing fiscal notes on all bills pending before the General Assembly with the exception of appropriation bills. Fiscal notes must state the cost of the proposed legislation to the state for the next two fiscal years; whether the proposal would establish a program or agency which would duplicate an existing program or agency; whether the provisions of the proposal were federally mandated; whether the proposal would have significant direct fiscal impact upon any political subdivision of the state; whether any new physical facilities would be required; and whether an impact to small businesses would be expected. The division prepares approximately 3,000 fiscal notes during a regular legislative session.

The Oversight Division is authorized to perform management and program evaluations of state agencies and is assigned work pursuant to a duly adopted concurrent resolution of the General Assembly or a resolution adopted by the Committee on Legislative Research. The division conducts the evaluations in accordance with government auditing standards set forth by the U.S. General Accounting Office. The management and program evaluations of the division provides the General Assembly with important information regarding the status of programs they have created and the expenditure of funds they have authorized.

Joint Committee on Administrative Rules

Room B-8, State Capitol, Jefferson City 65101
Telephone: (573) 751-2443

The Committee on Administrative Rules is a permanent joint committee of the General Assembly comprised of five members of the Senate and five members of the House. In order to provide continuity in the operation of the committee, the statute authorizing the committee provides the appointment of each member shall continue during his or her term of office as a member of the General Assembly.

The Senate members are appointed by the president pro tem of the Senate, while the representatives are appointed by the House speaker. No more than three members from each chamber may be of the same political party.

Under state law, the Committee on Administrative Rules is to continuously monitor and review both proposed and existing rules proposed by the various executive branch departments and divisions of state government. Citizens or interested organizations who have complaints or concerns about proposed or existing rules issued by state agencies can take their concerns to their elected representatives in the General Assembly. When questions are raised the committee is authorized to hold public hearings and review the rules in question.

Under a new law enacted in 1993, the procedures allowing the committee to rescind or modify a proposed or existing state agency rule were changed. This action was taken in order to resolve constitutional concerns about the separation of powers between the Legislative Branch and the Executive Branch. Under the new law, actions taken by the committee on proposed rules and regulations of state agencies must be ratified by the full General Assembly. In the case of existing rules and regulations any actions by the committee must be ratified by the General Assembly through a concurrent resolution, which then must be signed by the governor. If the governor does not sign the resolution, the committee's action would not become effective.

The goal of the Committee on Administrative Rules is to make sure state agencies do not exceed their statutory authority and that the agencies effectively accomplish their missions as mandated by the statutes.

The members of the committee are: Senator Joe Maxwell, chair; Representative Deleta Williams, vice chair; Senators Ehlmann; Howard; Klarich and Schneider; Representatives Campbell; Clayton; Griesheimer and Ridgeway.

Joint Committee on Public Employee Retirement

Room B-42, State Capitol, Jefferson City 65101
www.jcper.org

The Joint Committee on Public Employee Retirement (JCPER) was created in 1983 and is a permanent standing committee as provided in Chapter 21, Revised Statutes of Missouri.

The committee is composed of 12 members of the General Assembly; six appointed from the House of Representatives by the speaker and six appointed from the Senate by the president pro tem. No political party may be represented on the committee by more than three members from the Senate nor by more than three members from the House of Representatives.

Representative D.J. Davis, chair; Senator Larry Rohrbach, vice chair; Representatives Dempsey; Hagan-Harrell; Murphy; O'Toole; Reid and Senators DePasco; Johnson; Russell; Scott and Westfall.

The Joint Committee on Public Employee Retirement is directed by statute to:

- 1) make a continuing study and analysis of all state and local government retirement systems;
- 2) devise a standard reporting system to obtain data on each public employee retirement system that will provide information on each system's financial and actuarial status at least biennially;
- 3) determine from its study and analysis the need for changes in statutory law; and
- 4) make any other recommendations to the General Assembly necessary to provide adequate retirement benefits to state and local government employees within the ability of taxpayers to support their future costs.

The committee is required to meet at least quarterly and may subpoena witnesses or records and may take testimony under oath in matters pertaining to public employee retirement.

Joint Committee on Corrections

The Joint Committee on Corrections is a permanent, statutory committee of the General Assembly. It is composed of six members of the House of Representatives, appointed by the speaker, and six members of the Senate, appointed by the president pro tem. The duties of the committee are set forth in Section 21.455, RSMo.

Members are: Senator Larry Rohrbach, chair; Representative Mark Hampton, vice chair; Senators DePasco; Klindt; Quick; Staples; Westfall and Representatives Black; Burcham; Kelly; Koller and Moore.

Joint Committee on Capital Improvements and Leases Oversight

The Joint Committee on Capital Improvements and Leases Oversight is a statutory committee. The duties of the committee are set forth in Section 21.530, RSMo.

CHERI JETT-COATS
Executive Secretary
Joint Committee on Gaming and Wagering

The committee is composed of ten members of the General Assembly; five members from the Senate Appropriations Committee and five members from the House of Representatives Budget Committee.

The committee reviews all information concerning capital improvements budgets and appropriations to determine if the projects are in compliance with the intent of the General Assembly.

Members are: Senator John Russell, chair; Representative Louis Ford, co-chair; Senators Childers; Goode; Rohrbach; Wiggins and Representatives Hegeman; Ransdall; Shields; Y. Wilson.

Joint Committee on Gaming and Wagering

The Committee on Gaming and Wagering is a permanent joint committee of the general assembly as provided in section 313.001, RSMo.

Members are: Representative Chris Liese, chair; Representatives Foley; Shelton; Griesheimer and Senators Kenney; Klarich; Loudon; DePasco; Jacob.

The committee is responsible for, but not limited to, legislative review of all state authorized gaming and wagering activities including proposed constitutional and statutory changes or other pertinent information that may affect the integrity of these activities.

CHAPTER 5

Judicial Branch

Knox County Judges, 1882.

Missouri's Judicial System

From its inception in 1820, Missouri state government has been constitutionally divided into three separate branches—the legislative, executive and judicial departments. The judicial department's function is not to make the laws of the state or to administer them, but to adjudicate the controversies that arise between persons and parties, to determine fairly and justly the guilt or innocence of persons charged with criminal offenses, and to interpret the laws of the state as enacted by the legislature and carried out by the executive.

The roots of Missouri's judicial branch reach back to the days when Missouri was a part of the Missouri Territory controlled by the French and Spanish. When Missouri was officially organized as a territory in 1812, the judicial power was vested in a superior court, inferior courts and justices of the peace. The Constitution of 1820, the state's first constitution, placed the judicial power in a Supreme Court, chancery courts (later abolished by the General Assembly), and circuit and other courts to be established by the legislature.

Today, Missouri has a three-tier court system. Article V of the Constitution, as amended by Missouri voters in 1976, vests the judicial power in a Supreme Court, the state's highest court, with statewide jurisdiction; in a court of appeals consisting of districts established by the General Assembly; and in a system of circuit courts that have original jurisdiction over all cases and matters, civil and criminal.

Effective January 2, 1979, the circuit court system absorbed all former courts of limited jurisdiction and became the state's single trial court. Cases once heard in magistrate and probate courts, in the St. Louis Court of Criminal Corrections, in the Hannibal and Cape Girardeau Courts of Common Pleas, and in municipal and other local courts now are heard in appropriate divisions of the circuit courts.

All the judges of these former courts have become either circuit, associate circuit or municipal judges. They may hear and determine different classes of cases within their respective circuits. A presiding judge, elected for a two-year term, has general administrative authority over all judicial personnel in the circuit. He or she may assign other judges throughout the circuit to relieve case load and administrative backlogs. The Supreme Court and court of appeals have general superintending control over all courts and tribunals within their jurisdictions. Original remedial writs may be issued and determined at each level of the court system. Decisions of the Supreme Court are controlling in all other courts.

Selection of judges

In the first 30 years of Missouri's statehood, the judges of the supreme, circuit and chancery courts were appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. After much public discussion, the Constitution was amended in 1849 to provide for the popular election of judges, and this system remains in effect for most Missouri courts even today. In most circuits, the judges are elected by the voters in partisan elections.

However, in 1940 Missouri voters amended the Constitution by adopting the "Nonpartisan Selection of Judges Court Plan," which was placed on the ballot by initiative petition and which provides for the nonpartisan (non-political) appointment of certain judges, rather than having them popularly elected.

The Constitution, as amended further in 1976, provides that the Nonpartisan Court Plan is to be in effect for the Supreme Court, the court of appeals, and the circuit courts within the City of St. Louis and Jackson County. In addition, voters in St. Louis, Clay and Platte counties have elected to institute the plan, and the Kansas City Charter extends a nonpartisan selection plan to Kansas City municipal court judges. While all other judges are popularly elected, other judicial circuits may adopt the plan upon approval by a majority of the voters in the circuit.

Under the Missouri Court Plan, as it is often called, a vacancy on a court to which the plan applies is filled in the following way. A nonpartisan judicial commission of lay persons, lawyers and judges selects three persons from those who apply based on merit. The governor appoints one of the three. A judge appointed in this way must stand for retention in office at the first general election occurring after the judge has been in office for 12 months; the judge's name is placed on a separate judicial ballot, without political party designation, and the voters must vote either for or against retention in office. The judge's name is again placed on the ballot for retention vote at certain intervals. The Missouri Court Plan has served as a national model for the selection of judges and has been adopted by a number of other states.

Every supreme, appellate, circuit and associate circuit court judge must be licensed to practice law in Missouri. By constitutional amendment and statute, all judges must retire by age 70.

History and organization

The Supreme Court has been the state's highest court since 1820, when the first Missouri Constitution was adopted. The earliest court, consisting of only three members, was required to hold sessions in four different judicial circuits in the state. At various times, the court sat in St. Louis, Jackson, Cape Girardeau, St. Charles, Boonville, Fayette, Hannibal, Lexington and other cities.

The size of the Supreme Court was increased to five judges in 1872 and to its present size—seven judges—in 1890. Because of the Court's increasing caseload, commissioners were appointed for a brief period in the 1880s. In 1911, the legislature authorized the court to appoint four commissioners, and in 1927, the number was changed to six. The commissioners were required to possess the same qualifications as judges of the Supreme Court. They received the same compensation and were appointed for four year terms. The commissioners in the past have heard cases along with the judges and their written opinions, if approved by the court, were promulgated as opinions of the Court.

Under terms of the 1970 constitutional amendment of Article V, the offices of the commissioners ceased to exist when the individuals holding the offices retired, resigned, died or were removed from office.

In 1890, the Supreme Court was divided into two divisions to permit it to handle and decide more cases in a shorter time. Under the present Constitution, the Court may sit en banc (all seven judges together) or in as many divisions as the court determines are needed. Today, all cases are assigned to and decided by the Court en banc.

Supreme Court jurisdiction

Originally, the Supreme Court had only the traditional powers to decide cases on appeal from the lower courts (either the circuit courts or the court of appeals) and to issue and determine original remedial writs, such as habeas corpus, mandamus and prohibition. The Constitution of 1945 also authorized the court to establish rules for practice and procedure in the courts and to make temporary transfers of judicial personnel. Maintaining and updating the rules is a continuous process requiring substantial time. Each year, the Supreme Court, through the state courts administrator, transfers several hundred court personnel on a temporary basis to assist other courts. This usually is done when a judge has been disqualified by the parties in a case or when a judge's docket has become overly crowded and the judge cannot handle all the cases expeditiously.

THOMAS F. SIMON
Clerk, Missouri Supreme Court

The constitutional amendments of 1976 and 1982 defined the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court more narrowly than in the past, resulting in its receiving fewer cases on appeal and directing more appeals to the court of appeals. Under the amendment, the Supreme Court has exclusive appellate jurisdiction in all cases involving: the validity of a treaty or statute of the United States or of a statute or provision of the Missouri Constitution; the construction of the state's revenue laws; the title to any state office; and in all cases where the punishment imposed is death.

Cases do not have to fall within this area of exclusive jurisdiction to reach the Supreme Court, however. The Court may order cases transferred to it from the court of appeals if the cases involve questions of general interest or importance, if the court thinks the existing law should be reexamined, or for other reasons provided by rule of the court. The court of appeals also may order a case transferred to the Supreme Court either by order of the court of appeals itself or by the dissent of a court of appeals judge, if that judge certifies the court of appeals opinion is contrary to previous decisions of the Supreme Court or of other districts of the court of appeals.

In addition to its decision-making powers, the Supreme Court supervises all lower courts in the state. It is assisted in this task by the Office of State Courts Administrator, established in 1970. The Supreme Court also licenses all lawyers practicing in Missouri and disciplines those found guilty of violating the legal Rules of Professional Conduct.

Qualifications and terms

Supreme Court judges must be at least 30 years of age, U.S. citizens for 15 years and qualified Missouri voters for nine years. Supreme Court judges are retained for 12-year terms.

Chief justice

The seven judges of the Supreme Court select one of their number to be chief justice and preside over the court. The chief justice also handles many of the administrative details for the court. The present practice of the court is to rotate the position of chief justice every two years.

The court hears oral arguments each month from September through May. Court sessions are open to the public.

Supreme Court Building

The Supreme Court Building, a three-story, red brick structure of French Renaissance architecture, was built in 1907 and stands opposite the Capitol. It houses the attorney general's offices as well as those of the Supreme Court. The building's main features are a massive marble staircase in the lobby and the two-story high library. The building has been extensively refurbished and modernized with the use of moneys appropriated by the General Assembly.

Clerk's office

The clerk of the Supreme Court is responsible for a wide range of duties, including the supervision of the internal administrative function of the Court itself as well as the planning and administrative direction of the Missouri Judicial Conference, the organization comprising all of the judges in the state.

Supreme Court function

The day-to-day administrative duties, as they relate to the court, include handling all inquiries and procedural requests from attorneys throughout the state, arranging the docketing of cases, maintaining files in each case before the Court, receiving and disposing of fees related to those cases, and printing and distributing opinions of the Court. In all of these matters, the clerk reports directly to the chief justice.

Missouri Bar responsibilities

The clerk of the Supreme Court has a number of additional duties relating to The Missouri Bar and the supervision of the admission of new attorneys.

Among the records required to be maintained by the clerk are the official and permanent roll of attorneys for the State of Missouri. The clerk's office also prepares on request certificates evidencing admission to The Missouri Bar. By Supreme Court rule, the clerk is treasurer of the state board of law examiners, which conducts bar examinations twice yearly. The clerk also supervises the semi-annual enrollment ceremonies and prepares all attorney licenses.

By Supreme Court rule, the clerk is ex officio treasurer of The Missouri Bar and the advisory committee and is responsible for collecting the annual attorney enrollment fee and distributing Missouri Bar membership cards to all attorneys licensed to practice in Missouri. He is responsible for maintaining the official records of The Missouri Bar and the bar fund and for preparing annual financial reports for publication in the Journal of The Missouri Bar. The clerk also is responsible for conducting annual elections for The Missouri Bar board of governors.

Security administration

Additionally, the Supreme Court's security administrator is under the clerk's supervision. He is responsible for building security and the transportation of prisoners. The security administrator also acts as bailiff when the Court is in session.

Supreme Court Library

The Supreme Court Library, which is on the second floor of the Supreme Court Building, contains more than 110,000 volumes. These include the decisions of state and federal courts and federal administrative agencies, statutes of all states, 150 legal periodicals, legal textbooks, and many English decisions and statutes. In addition, the library contains computer research services for the use of court personnel.

The library's main responsibility is to meet the research needs of the Supreme Court, the attorney general's office, the General Assembly and the state's executive department agencies, but it also provides resources to members of the bench and bar and the general public. It maintains daily hours throughout the year.

Supreme Court publications

There are three monthly publications available to the public on a subscription basis. Tomorrow's Opinion Monitor (T.O.M.) allows electronic exploration of all cases in the appellate system with condensed legal arguments of pending cases, summaries of opinions and official citations. Infinite possibilities for searching include subject, statute, rule, keyword, attorney, and judge name. The Opinion Summary provides subscribers with a brief digest of decisions from the Supreme Court and Court of Appeals. The Pending Issues Digest provides a summary of the issues raised in legal briefs filed in the courts.

The Missouri Approved Instructions—Criminal and Missouri Approved Charges—Criminal also are published by the publications department.

He has also accomplished the post-graduate Appellate Judges Course at the Institute of Judicial Administration, New York University. He holds a Master of Laws degree from the University of Virginia and honorary Doctor of Laws degrees from Central Missouri State University and Westminster College.

From 1975 to 1979 Judge Benton served with the U.S. Navy as a judge advocate. While in the Navy, he attended Memphis State University and earned a master's degree in business administration and accountancy. Benton became a certified public accountant in Missouri in 1983 and is the only Certified Public Accountant serving on any supreme court in America. Judge Benton is a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants; and the Missouri Society of Certified Public Accountants.

Before joining the Supreme Court, Benton practiced law as a private attorney in Jefferson City for six years. He is admitted to practice before the United States Supreme Court, United States Tax Court, United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces and all Missouri Courts. From 1980 through 1982 Benton served as chief of staff to then-Congressman Wendell Bailey in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Judge Benton served as director of the Missouri Department of Revenue from 1989 to 1991. He also served on the Multistate Tax Commission, with tax administrators from 32 other states, who elected him chair, and as president of the Midwestern States Association of Tax Administrators.

Judge Benton, a Vietnam veteran, still participates in the U.S. Naval Reserve, holding the rank of captain. He belongs to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion, the Navy League, the Vietnam Veterans of America, the Military Order of the World Wars and served on the Missouri Military Advisory Commission.

From 1987 through 1989 Judge Benton was a member of the board of regents for Central Missouri State University in Warrensburg. He has also served as chair of the board of trustees for the Missouri State Employees' Retirement System, the Missouri Commission on Intergovernmental Cooperation, the Council for Drug-Free Youth and as a director of the Jefferson City United Way.

Judge Benton is an adjunct professor at both Westminster College and the University of Missouri-Columbia, School of Law.

A deacon and trustee of the First Baptist Church in Jefferson City, he is former counsel to the Missouri Baptist Convention.

Duane and his spouse, Sandra, a registered nurse, have two children: Megan and Grant.

Judge Benton was appointed to the Missouri Supreme Court on August 16, 1991, and retained at the November 1992 election. His term expires December 31, 2004. Judge Benton served as Chief Justice of the Missouri Supreme Court from July 1, 1997 through June 30, 1999.

Laura Denvir Stith

Judge of the Supreme Court

LAURA DENVIR STITH was born in St. Louis, on October 30, 1953. She was raised in St. Louis and graduated with honors from the John Burroughs School, 1971. She received a National Merit Scholarship to attend Tufts University in Boston, MA. While a student at Tufts, Judge Stith was an Iglauer Fellowship Intern in the Washington, DC office of Senator Thomas Eagleton, summer of 1973. She spent the second semester of her junior year studying at the University of Madrid through a program administered by the Institute of European Studies. In 1975, she graduated magna cum laude from Tufts, receiving her Bachelor of Arts in political science and social psychology. She then attended the Georgetown Univ. Law Center, distinguishing herself as an editor of the Law and Policy in International Business Journal. Judge Stith graduated magna cum laude from Georgetown in 1978.

Following her graduation from law school, she served one year as a judicial law clerk to the Honorable Robert E. Seiler of the Supreme Court of Missouri. In 1979, she moved to Kansas City and began practicing with the law firm of Shook, Hardy & Bacon, becoming a partner of the firm in 1984, and later co-founded the firm's appellate practice group.

In 1994, Governor Mel Carnahan appointed Judge Stith to the Missouri Court of Appeals, Western District. She was retained at the November 1996 general election for a full term. During her six and one-half years on the court of appeals, Judge Stith authored over 400 opinions in cases involving nearly every area of state law.

Throughout her legal career she has been involved in many organizations in the legal community. She served as Chair of the Gender and Justice Joint Committee of the Missouri Bar and the Missouri Supreme Court. She was a founding director of Lawyers Encouraging Academic Performance, an inter-bar lawyer's public service organization. She served as president of the board of directors of the Assn. for Women Lawyers of Greater Kansas City; chair and vice chair of the Missouri Bar Civil Practice and Procedure Committee; chair of the Appellate Practice Committee and vice chair of the Tort Law Committee of the Kansas City Metropolitan Bar Assn.; and member of the American Bar Association.

Judge Stith served as a speaker on appellate practice at the annual conventions of the ABA, the Missouri Bar, the Missouri Assn. of Trial Attorneys, and the Missouri Organization of Defense Lawyers. She also served as a speaker or moderator on civil procedure and evidence at Missouri Bar, KC MBA, AWA, and University of Missouri-Kansas City Continuing Legal Education programs; and on gender bias at the Missouri New Judges School.

Judge Stith is married to fellow attorney Donald G. Scott, who also served as a law clerk for the Supreme Court of Missouri before beginning practice in Kansas City. He is a partner at McDowell, Rice, Smith & Gaar, P.C. in Kansas City. They have three daughters.

Governor Bob Holden appointed Judge Stith to the Supreme Court March 7, 2001.

John C. Holstein

Judge of the Supreme Court

JOHN C. HOLSTEIN was born January 10, 1945, in Springfield. He attended Springfield public schools and graduated from Parkview High School in 1963. Office of State Courts Administrator

2112 Industrial Drive, Jefferson City 65110
Telephone: (573) 751-3585 / FAX: (573) 751-5540

Acting under the direction of the Missouri Supreme Court, the Office of State Courts Administrator (OSCA) is responsible for providing administrative and technical support to the courts of Missouri as they vigorously pursue a judicial system that is accessible, equitable, and swift. The duties and responsibilities assigned to the state courts administrator are broad in scope and relate to all levels of the state court system.

Since the appointment of the first state courts administrator in 1970, the office has been responsible for providing technical assistance, management services, education and training programs, data processing and systems analysis, administrative procedure evaluation, compilation of statistics, and case processing support to the courts. The Office also assists courts in developing and implementing court improvement projects in such areas as child abuse and neglect, juvenile services, family preservation, criminal history reporting, crime victims' rights, mediation services, alcohol and drug abuse treatment and prevention, and the implementation of time standards for case disposition. Since the passage of SB 420 in 1994, the office has worked with the Missouri Court Automation Committee on a project with enormous potential for the people of Missouri. The Statewide Court Automation program is a ten-year project to automate all the courts in the state and through the use of advanced technologies provide Missouri citizens with the most timely and responsive judicial system possible. The office is organized into five divisions: Administration and Budget, Court Services, Information Technology, Juvenile and Adult Court Programs, and Judicial Department Education.

Administration and Budget

Administration and Budget staff provides administrative services essential to office management and maintains programs developed to assist the judiciary in a variety of areas. The budget section compiles and organizes the judicial branch's annual state appropriation request. It prepares fiscal notes for proposed legislation that affects the judicial system, and provides support to the Supreme Court's Circuit and Appellate Court Budget committees.

The personnel section maintains the statewide Circuit Court Personnel System as well as the Circuit Court Personnel Handbook. It has primary responsibility for recruitment and personnel management for OSCA.

The fiscal section processes and accounts for all funds appropriated to the Supreme Court for judicial branch operations paid by the state. Staff also process the payroll for more than 3,500 court employees and provide monthly financial status reports to local appointing authorities. Staff handles payments to judges and court reporters for travel expenses and payments to court reporters for preparation of transcripts for indigents. The section also maintains the Payroll Handbook for the payroll designees in each county, and provides training as needed.

Finally, Administration and Budget staff also coordinate judge transfers and assignments, provide a legislative summary for court personnel, and perform office management functions for OSCA.

Court Services

The Court Services Division acts as a service bureau for all personnel statewide. The division provides direct assistance to trial courts in a number of areas including: developing procedures related to case processing and financial management; preparing transcripts from sound recorded tapes submitted by the courts; developing and updating procedural handbooks on case processing for court clerks; providing on-site case processing reviews, examining administrative and financial procedures to make recommendations for improved efficiency; and collecting criminal history dispositions data for the criminal records repository maintained by the Missouri Highway Patrol.

The advent of Statewide Court Automation project has created a major new responsibility within the division. Court Services staff worked closely with the software provider and court staff from around the state to "customize" the software and continually monitor changing practices and legal requirements over time so that the software is revised as necessary.

Court Services staff works with the courts prior to implementing automation by assisting the courts with preparation for computerized case management and financial accounting.

OSCA staff provides on-site assistance several weeks after the court implements the automated system. After the court is automated, both financial specialists and court specialists provide help desk support and follow-up site visits.

In 2000, a statewide jury management automated system was purchased. Court Services coordinates the court training, assists the courts with forms design and procedural changes and provides telephone and on-site support to the courts.

The Statistics Section is responsible for compiling statistical and workload information that is used in all aspects of office planning and analysis and is compiled in numerous reports, including the annual Missouri Judicial Report and Case Processing Time Standards Reports. The section also calculates the clerical weighted workload for the Circuit Court Personnel System.

Recent additions to the services are: providing technical assistance in courthouse design related to security and Americans with Disabilities Act Access; certifying Spanish speaking interpreters for the courts; assisting in disaster preparedness; and locating and providing services for non-English speaking parties and those parties and customers covered by the Americans with Disabilities Act.

Information Technology

The Information Technology (OSCA-IT) division provides data processing along with information technology management support and direction for the courts. OSCA-IT also provides application, technical, and operational support to the Court Services division of OSCA. The division works closely with its internal and external customers to establish priorities and provides appropriate systems to minimize manual efforts and support decision making. OSCA-IT collects and analyzes caseload data from the courts, develops case management systems for use on local and wide area networks, develops and operates appellate record keeping and circuit court statistical systems and develops and operates administrative systems for the courts.

The division develops, implements, operates and maintains a variety of the courts data processing systems and databases. The division coordinates data processing policies and provides end user computing support. The division is also responsible for technical analysis, design, development and implementation of systems; provides quality assurance, program maintenance and technical support for a variety of operational systems.

In 1985 the Supreme Court's Administrative Rule 1 authorized the development of a Statewide Judicial Information System to provide statistical and management information to the state's courts. From this beginning, Information Technology has grown until it now provides automated systems support to all levels of the state court system, as well as to OSCA. This role expanded greatly in 1994, with the enactment of Missouri Revised Statutes section 476.055, establishing a statewide court automation project to be funded with a $7 per-case court fee and overseen by a Missouri Court Automation Committee. OSCA-IT has been actively involved with the Court Automation Committee in this enormous and exciting project, whose funding was authorized for a period of 10 years.

The Missouri Court Automation Program, generally referred to as Statewide Court Automation, includes the following objectives:

- a sophisticated and integrated justice system with great potential for improvement in the provision of services;
- an integrated court system that renders geography largely irrelevant and presents a modern justice system with reduced costs to the litigant and taxpayer, with greater efficiency, wider access and enhanced accountability;
- a system that takes advantage of new technologies to improve the day-to-day operations of the courts;
- timeliness in processing of cases without sacrificing the quality of justice;
- economies of scale and efficiencies within the judiciary by utilizing similar facilities statewide based on standards for hardware, software and common data definitions;
- facility selections which will be viable solutions for long-term implementation and low lifecycle cost; and
- compatibility, or ability to interface electronically with other state and local systems and networks.

Building on the foundation of the 1985-established Statewide Judicial Information System, staff have developed the Associate Case Management System, the Missouri Court Information System-Criminal Module, the Judgment Index and Jury Selection Systems, the Appellate Court Information System, the Missouri Financial Accounting and Personnel System, an Inventory Tracking System, the Attorney Identification and Billing System, and most recently has been implementing Banner Courts, a commercial court case management system. All of these systems require active management and hands-on work with the courts and related personnel.

As a result of the uniformity of application being developed under Statewide Court Automation, OSCA-IT has developed Internet-based applications to permit the online access to public court case information in those locations in which Banner has been installed. OSCA-IT has also developed a prototype web-based adult abuse filing system that permits the filing for ex parte orders of protection to be completed and received without leaving the protection of a shelter facility.

Information Technology also provides additional administrative support for OSCA in the areas of judicial transfer, fiscal notes and inventory control. The staff develops special reports to assist in workload analysis, judicial research and special legislative requests. For the past several years, Information Technology has been involved with MACSS with circuit clerks, prosecuting attorneys and the Division of Child Support Enforcement.

Juvenile and Adult Court Programs

In 1997, the 89th General Assembly approved the creation of the Division of Juvenile and Adult Court Programs within OSCA. It is within this division that administrative efforts are launched to comply with statutory mandates that apply to juvenile and adult court services.

Early division efforts centered on providing continued education and training standards for juvenile court personnel, developing and standardized assessment and classification system that recommends graduated sanctions and services aimed at reducing juvenile offender recidivism, and evaluating the effects of tighter protective custody timelines in child abuse and neglect cases.

Division projects now include expanding communication networks, better assessment of juvenile offenders, and better evaluation of offender data through automated systems. Communication is being enhanced with better hardware, software, specialized juvenile offender databases, and establishment of cooperative information-sharing agreements with other youth service agencies. Conversion of the hand-scored standardized offender assessment and classification system to a software program will allow for easier collection, storage, and evaluation of juvenile offender data. A single source for juvenile related information will be available and incorporated into the larger court automation software system being established for the state.

In addition, the division is also working to establish alternative treatment programs, and work on child abuse and neglect cases, foster care and adoption, parent education programs and mediation to improve court services to the public. The success of adult drug courts as an alternative treatment to substance abuse problems has led to the development of juvenile and family drug courts. Under early development are other specialized courts such as mental health courts and a Unified Family Court. Federally funded pilot projects to establish permanency planning for abused and neglected children placed in foster care are in progress as well.

The Juvenile and Adult Court Programs Division, in conjunction with the juvenile and family courts, is committed to building the foundation for a new standard of justice in Missouri. The impact of strong court programs and advanced technology will be far-reaching for the citizens of Missouri.

Judicial Department Education

The Division of Judicial Department Education is responsible for coordinating education services for almost 4,000 state court personnel. These services are designed to ensure the courts have access to a highly skilled, professional workforce that is technologically literate, conversant with practices that aid in the internal management of the courts, oriented towards a high level of customer service, and forward thinking in improving that level of service in a rapidly changing environment.

The Coordinating Commission for Judicial Department Education provides strategic direction for comprehensive statewide education programs. Commission members are appointed by the Supreme Court and represent various levels of courts and regions of the state to ensure that the educational needs of all court personnel are fairly represented. The Commission values the development of all Missouri court personnel and has built a comprehensive education program that affords opportunities to acquire and enhance technical knowledge and skills, and supervisory and leadership skills and abilities. The Commission relies on six education committees (Appellate Court Education Committee, Trial Judge Education Committee, Juvenile Division Education Committee, Municipal Division Education Committee, Court Clerk Education Committee, and the Court Reporter Education Committee) for program development. Each committee develops and implements a skill-based core curriculum within its assigned subject area designed to improve the knowledge base and skills of Judicial Department personnel. Each committee is charged by the Coordinating Commission with establishing uniform, coordinated programs that emphasize access to the courts and delivery of court services to the public.

The Division is responsible for implementing the policies and programs established by the Coordinating Commission and its six education committees. The Education Division consists of three service delivery areas: Continuing Education, Automation Training, and Education Technology. The Continuing Education Section offers a broad range of education courses and certificate programs for court personnel. Education specialists, working in cooperation with committee members and court personnel design and coordinate the delivery of courses tailored to meet the unique needs of appellate, trial and municipal court personnel, including judges, clerks, juvenile officers, and court reporters. All courses are designed to provide court personnel with the knowledge and skills essential to discharging their judicial and administrative responsibilities.

Other educational resources, in addition to live classes conducted at sites throughout the state and via videoconferencing, satellite, or the Internet, include a Judicial Lending Library, certificated management and leadership programs, a scholarship program and a tuition reimbursement program.

The Automation Training Section, working in conjunction with the Missouri Court Automation program, designs, coordinates and delivers a comprehensive court automation-training program. This program provides court personnel the skills necessary to effectively use the computer infrastructure and electronic case management systems that are the cornerstone of Missouri court automation. Automation training classes are offered in five regions of the state: Cape Girardeau, Jefferson City, Liberty, St. Charles and Springfield.

The Education Technology Section is responsible for developing, implementing and evaluating alternative delivery methods of educational programming through the use of technology. Education Technology supports the work of the Automation Training Section and the Continuing Education Section through education services including web-based learning, computer-based learning, videoconferencing, and satellite broadcasts.

The work of the Automation Training Section, Continuing Education Section and Education Technology Section provides the multiple avenues for court employees to access continuous professional development opportunities in a blended environment, maximizing effectiveness and convenience, while at the same time minimizing time away from work, and reducing training expenses.

Missouri Court of Appeals

The first general intermediate courts in Missouri were provided for in the 1865 Constitution and were known as district courts. There were district courts in Jefferson City, Springfield, Cape Girardeau, Macon, St. Joseph and St. Charles. Each district was composed of three circuits. Appeals were taken from the circuit court to the district court, and then to the Supreme Court. However, the district courts were abolished in 1870 by a constitutional amendment.

Alarmed at the congested docket of the Supreme Court, the St. Louis Bar Association urged the 1875 Constitutional Convention to provide for another appellate court. Thus was created the St. Louis Court of Appeals consisting of three judges who heard appeals from St. Louis, St. Charles, Lincoln and Warren counties. Its territorial jurisdiction was expanded to include several more counties in 1884.

Another constitutional amendment in 1884 established the Kansas City Court of Appeals and authorized creation of another appellate court, when necessary, by the General Assembly.

The Springfield Court of Appeals was organized in 1909. Missouri's current appellate structure—a single Court of Appeals consisting of three districts—was established by a 1970 constitutional amendment.

The Eastern District of the Court of Appeals sits in St. Louis and consists of 14 judges. Eleven judges preside over the Western District in Kansas City, and seven judges sit on the Southern District bench meeting either in Springfield or Poplar Bluff. Trained law clerks, who are licensed attorneys, assist each appellate judge with legal research.

The Court of Appeals may issue and determine original remedial writs and has general appellate jurisdiction in all cases not within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Supreme Court. However, as previously mentioned, cases not within the Supreme Court's exclusive jurisdiction may be transferred from the Court of Appeals to the Supreme Court when it is determined that a case involves an important issue that should be decided by the state's highest court.

A chief judge is elected for the Eastern and Southern districts of the Court of Appeals by the judges in the districts, and serves for such time as the districts determine. In the Western District, the chief judge serves a two-year term by rotation according to seniority.

The courts are authorized to sit in divisions if they choose, which the St. Louis and Kansas City districts have elected to do.

Courts of Appeals judges must be at least 30 years old, residents of their district, U.S. citizens for at least 15 years and Missouri voters for nine years before their selection. Appeals judges serve 12-year terms.

Missouri Circuit Courts

Missouri's first two circuit courts were established in 1815. The 1820 Constitution provided for the creation of four circuits, each containing from four to eight counties. The number of circuits has increased over the years; today 45 circuits operate in Missouri.

The first circuit judges were appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate. However, the life term of the judges and their method of appointment proved unpopular; in 1849, the Constitution was amended to provide for popular election. Most circuit judges are elected today, although judges in some circuits are selected under provisions of the Nonpartisan Court Plan.

Constitutional amendments approved by Missouri voters in 1976 provide that the circuit courts shall be courts of original civil and criminal jurisdiction. All trials start at this level. Former courts of limited jurisdiction became divisions of the circuit court on January 2, 1979.

Within the divisions of the Circuit Court there are three levels of jurisdiction: circuit, associate and municipal. Circuit judges may act within all circuit jurisdictions.

The number of circuit judges is determined by the General Assembly. The Constitution requires at least one circuit judge in each of Missouri's 45 judicial circuits.

Associate circuit judges may hear matters pending in the Circuit Court or assigned by the Supreme Court. Associate circuit judges hear all cases pursuant to Chapter 517, RSMo, and have concurrent jurisdiction over all cases pending in the Circuit Court.

The Constitution requires at least one resident associate circuit judge in each county. The statutes authorize additional associate circuit judges depending on county populations. Presently, 186 associate circuit judges are required by statute.

Municipalities with 400,000 or more people must establish a municipal division over which a municipal judge presides. Communities of less than 400,000 may establish municipal divisions to hear ordinance violations, or the municipality may request that these matters be heard in the associate division of the Circuit Court. Municipal judges are paid locally.

By statute each circuit judge appoints a court reporter and the court in each circuit appoints a juvenile officer. A circuit clerk in each county is selected according to law and salaries are set by statute.

Circuit court judges must be at least 30 years old, residents of their circuit, U.S. citizens for 10 years and Missouri voters for three years. Circuit judges serve six-year terms. Associate judges must be at least 25 years old, Missouri voters and residents of the counties they serve. Associate judges serve four-year terms.

Circuit court judges each earn $108,000 annually; associate circuit court judges earn $96,000. Compensation is determined by statute (RSMo 476.405).

The Fine Collection Center

The Missouri Supreme Court established the Fine Collection Center (FCC) pursuant to Section 476.385, RSMo. The FCC is a central bureau authorized by statute to process certain traffic, water craft, and conservation violations for the courts of counties that voluntarily join the FCC's program. The FCC began collection of traffic fines for Boone and Callaway Counties on July 1, 1999. The FCC has steadily grown since then and 51 counties have joined the program as of July 1, 2001. Offenders who receive citations in participating counties will have the option of paying their fine and cost directly to the FCC or plead not guilty to the FCC and having their tickets sent to the county prosecutor for processing in the court system.

The Supreme Court appoints a Fine Collection Center advisory committee of at least seven associate judges. This committee establishes and maintains a uniform fine schedule to be used by the FCC. Counties that voluntarily join the program agree to use the uniform fine schedule. The schedule contains all traffic offenses that the FCC is authorized to process. Although the FCC is also authorized to process watercraft and conservation violations, it only processed state traffic offenses during its early operation. The FCC hopes to add watercraft and conservation offenses to its coverage by the end of 2001.

The FCC fine schedule sets uniform fines for the same offenses in all counties participating in the FCC, resulting in a fairer system for offenders (currently, fines vary widely based on where the violation occurs). Benefits of participating in the FCC include better accountability, improved collection rates, and reduction in clerical workload associated with processing traffic tickets (such reduction should allow staff to redirect their efforts to other areas). The FCC will also provide user friendly customer service at a toll free number that offenders can call from anywhere within the United States. The FCC accepts payment by check, money order, or credit cards, making payment more convenient for offenders. Many courts will not accept personal checks and very few courts currently accept credit card payments for traffic offenses.

Additionally, the FCC is developing a new automated system that will allow offenders to obtain ticket information 24 hours per day, 7 days per week. This system will allow payment by credit card through either an interactive voice response phone system or over the Internet at the FCC Web page. When an offender pays a ticket to the FCC, the Center is legally authorized to issue a record of conviction. These records of conviction are prepared the next business day following the receipt of the offender's guilty plea and payment of the fine and court costs. The FCC sends these records of conviction to the Missouri Highway Patrol and to the Missouri Department of Revenue for entry on the offender's driving record.

The FCC sends payment of fines and court costs to member county treasurers twice per month. The FCC keeps no part of the fine or costs. The county where the offense occurred receives all the fine money and all the county's share of court costs on each case. The FCC sends courts and fees designated for state agencies directly to those agencies.

The Fine Collection Center is staffed by a manager who is an attorney, a CPA, an accountant, accounting supervisors, customer service representatives, and account clerks. The FCC uses ACS Courts Software (commonly known as Banner) to process cases. This is the software that is being installed in courts throughout the state as part of the Missouri Court Automation Program. When tickets are transferred back to a county because of either a not guilty plea or failure to respond, the FCC can electronically transfer the ticket data to any court using the ACS Courts Software. This saves court personnel the time consuming work of re-entering ticket information in their database.

Judicial Organizations

Commission on Retirement, Removal and Discipline of Judges

2190 S. Mason Rd., Ste. 201, St. Louis 63131

FAX: (314) 966-0076

The Commission on Retirement, Removal and Discipline of Judges was created by a constitutional amendment in 1970. It began operating on January 1, 1972, and is governed by Supreme Court Rule 12.

The commission is responsible for receiving and investigating all requests and suggestions for the retirement of judges because of disability and all complaints concerning the alleged misconduct of judges and members of judicial commissions. It is composed of six members who serve six-year terms. Two non-lawyers are appointed by the governor, two lawyers are appointed by the Missouri Bar's governing body, one Court of Appeals judge is selected by Court of Appeals judges and one circuit judge is selected by the state's circuit judges.

The members as of July 1, 2001, were: John R. O'Malley, circuit judge, Jackson County, chair; Vivian L. Eveloff, St. Louis, secretary; Richard P. Bruening, attorney, Kansas City; Jan M. Marcason, Kansas City; Thomas J. Plunkert, attorney, St. Louis; James K. Prewitt, appellate judge, Eastern District, Court of Appeals.

Upon receiving a proper complaint against a judge or other judicial officer, the commission conducts an informal investigation. If at least four members of the commission find there is probable cause to believe the person may be guilty of misconduct, incompetency or other action constituting grounds for discipline as listed in Rule 12.08, a formal investigation is conducted. If at least four members find the person investigated should be disciplined, a report containing findings of fact and conclusions of law is made to the Supreme Court, with recommendations for discipline (removal from office, suspension or other discipline). The court then makes a final ruling based on the commission's record and transcript.

A similar procedure is followed in cases involving retirements because of disability.

The Chief Disciplinary Counsel and the Advisory Committee

Office of Chief Disciplinary Counsel

3335 American Ave., Jefferson City 65109

Telephone: (573) 635-7400

In order to protect the public from persons unqualified or unauthorized to practice law, the Missouri Supreme Court has established an attorney disciplinary system. A chief disciplinary counsel is appointed by the Supreme Court to investigate allegations of professional misconduct, incompetence and incapacity of lawyers. Regional disciplinary committees throughout the state, composed of at least four lawyers and two lay persons, may investigate complaints referred to them by the chief disciplinary counsel or the advisory committee. The chief disciplinary counsel and the regional disciplinary committees are empowered to institute formal proceedings against lawyers accused of misconduct.

If the chief disciplinary counsel or a majority of a regional disciplinary committee finds that there is probable cause to believe that a lawyer is guilty of professional misconduct, they prepare information making specific allegations of violations of the Rules of Professional Conduct. The lawyer may request a hearing to be held before a disciplinary hearing panel selected by the advisory committee from a panel of disciplinary hearing officers appointed by the Supreme Court. The panel is made up of two lawyers and one lay person. If the disciplinary hearing panel finds, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the lawyer is guilty of misconduct, it makes findings of fact, conclusions of law and recommendations for discipline, which are then filed in the Supreme Court. It is the responsibility of the Supreme Court to impose any discipline found to be warranted.

The chief disciplinary counsel is also charged with the duty of investigating the unauthorized practice of law and instituting suits and other actions to stop such practices. The chief disciplinary counsel makes investigations of applications made by lawyers seeking reinstatement after they have been suspended or disbarred. The chief disciplinary counsel assists the Board of Law Examiners in investigating applications of bar examinees as requested by the board.

The advisory committee may give formal opinions and the chief disciplinary counsel may give informal advisory opinions interpreting Supreme Court Rules 4, 5 and 6.

Members of the advisory committee, appointed by the Supreme Court, are: John C. Dods, chair, Kansas City; Janet Blauvelt, Kansas City; Al Brooks, Kansas City; Christina R. Neff, Jefferson City; John Padgett, St. Louis; Luther J. Rollins Jr., St. Louis; James E. Spain, Poplar Bluff, and Sherry A. Rozell, Springfield.

The chief disciplinary counsel is Maridee Farnquist Edwards.

Standards for admission to the bar, set out in Supreme Court Rule 8, are administered by the State Board of Law Examiners. Its six lawyer members are appointed by the Supreme Court for one six-year term. It conducts bar examinations for new lawyers each year on subject matters of the law of general application. The two-day exam is given in February and July in Jefferson City. One day of the examination consists of essay questions and the second day is devoted to the multistate bar examination, a multiple choice test that is administered in 48 other states.

Admission information and application forms are available from the Supreme Court clerk's office or on the web at www.mble.org.

by rule of the Supreme Court of Missouri in 1944, it is the successor of the original Missouri Bar Association, a voluntary organization of lawyers founded in 1880.

Membership in The Missouri Bar is required of every lawyer who practices in Missouri and of every judge of a state court. To qualify for membership, a person must have completed at least six years of study in college and an approved law school leading to a bachelor of law or a Juris Doctor degree. Those seeking membership in The Missouri Bar must also pass a comprehensive bar examination and character fitness investigation and make application for admission to the bar with the Supreme Court of Missouri.

Committees

There are numerous standing committees of The Missouri Bar plus a number of special project committees. Committees of The Missouri Bar meet at least twice each year to discuss particular areas of the law and, in some cases, draft potential legislation in those areas. Committee members, as well as officers and other members of The Missouri Bar, are available to testify before the General Assembly in support of these bills. In addition, the bar's board of governors often votes to support or oppose other bills pending before the legislature and the bar's legislative services are directed accordingly. Because of this status as a mandatory organization for those practicing law in Missouri, the bar's legislative efforts are confined to bills affecting the administration of justice.

Education

The Missouri Bar's Department of Continuing Legal Education (CLE) has taken the lead in keeping bar members informed of the latest developments in law. Each year, the CLE Department organizes and presents a number of programs across the state designed to keep lawyers abreast of changes in state and federal law. These sessions are regularly accompanied by detailed course materials designed to supplement the programs themselves. In addition, the department's renowned "black book" series provides attorneys with valuable reference materials they can make use of in their own law libraries.

Publications

The Journal of The Missouri Bar, offering valuable perspectives on the law from its lawyer-authors, is published six times per year as the official publication of the legal profession in Missouri. Also available to members are the Legislative Digest, published twice during sessions of the General Assembly; The Missouri Bar Bulletin, a newsletter for bar members; the Courts Bulletin, a monthly update on recent court decisions in pertinent areas of the law; and The Citizenship Educator, a publication designed to promote the growth of law-related education in Missouri.

Since 1956, The Missouri Bar has carried on a broad program of public information and education. Thousands of informative pamphlets and other educational materials on the law are distributed annually, including materials from an extensive law-related audio-visual lending library. Copies of the bar's brochures are also available on the Internet at www.mobar.org. The growth of the bar's public information program has been aided by cooperative ventures with the Extension Division of the University of Missouri, the State Department of Elementary and Secondary Education, the Missouri Press Association, the Missouri Broadcasters Association, various state colleges and other groups and associations.

Through the years, The Missouri Bar has gained much recognition on the national and international level. It has been cited many times by the American Bar Association as the outstanding bar association in the nation. Its programs have won Freedom Foundation awards, the American Bar Award of Merit and the American Judicature Society's Justice Award. Staff members and officers serve on many important national committees and work with various national groups on problems of national scope.

Officers, The Missouri Bar, 2001–2002

Theresa L.F. Levings, Kansas City, president;
Richard B. Teitelman, St. Louis, president elect;
Keith A. Birkes, Jefferson City, executive director.

Judicial Conference of Missouri

Supreme Court Bldg., PO Box 150
Jefferson City 65102
Telephone: (573) 751-4144

In 1943, the General Assembly established the Judicial Conference of Missouri, which is composed of all state judges. The conference is charged by statute (Section 476.350) with studying the organization and administration of the state's judicial system, compiling data on the work of various courts and making biennial reports to the General Assembly, including any recommendations the conference may have for improving the laws. Since 1974, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, who is the conference's presiding officer, has presented an annual State of the Judiciary address to a joint session of the General Assembly, reviewing the problems, needs and goals of the judicial department.

The statute also requires the conference to hold an annual meeting to be attended by all judges. At this meeting, the judges discuss the problems of court administration and invite experts in various fields to speak on matters of particular concern.

The clerk of the Supreme Court provides administrative and staff assistance and also serves as secretary to the executive council and the conference.

Nonpartisan Judicial Nominating Commissions

Under provisions of the Missouri Constitution, Article V, any vacancy occurring in the office of judge of the Supreme Court, the court of appeals or the circuit courts within St. Louis City or Jackson County is filled by the governor, who appoints one of three qualified persons nominated by a nonpartisan judicial commission. This method of selecting circuit judges was adopted by the voters of the 21st Judicial Circuit, St. Louis County, at the general election in 1970, and by the voters of the Sixth Judicial Circuit, Platte County and the Seventh Judicial Circuit, Clay County, in 1972. This method of selecting judges was extended to associate circuit judges in these jurisdictions in 1979.

Appellate Judicial Commission

Nominations for judges of the Supreme Court and the court of appeals are made by a seven-member Appellate Judicial Commission. It consists of a judge of the Supreme Court selected by the members of the Court and two resident citizens from each of the three court of appeals districts. One lawyer is elected from each district by members of The Missouri Bar residing in that district, and one non-lawyer is appointed from each district by the governor.

Members: Stephen N. Limbaugh Jr., Chief Justice, Supreme Court, chair.

From Eastern District, Missouri Court of Appeals: Gerald T. Carmody, lawyer member, term expires December 31, 2005; Mildred Cohn, lay member, term expires December 31, 2006.

From Western District, Missouri Court of Appeals: Fred Wilkins, lawyer member, term expires December 31, 2003; Reverend Earl Abel, lay member, term expires December 31, 2004.

From Southern District, Missouri Court of Appeals: David Ansley, lawyer member, term expires December 31, 2001; Dr. Peggy Tuter Pearl, lay member, term expires December 31, 2002.

Circuit Judicial Commissions

Nominations for judges of circuit courts are made by a five-member Circuit Judicial Commission consisting of the chief judge of the district of the Court of Appeals within which the circuit or the major portion of its population lies, two lawyers elected from their number by the members of The Missouri Bar residing in the judicial circuit and two non-lawyer residents of the circuit appointed by the governor.

Sixth Circuit (Platte County) Judicial Commission: Chair: Paul M. Spinden, chief judge, Missouri Court of appeals, Western District. Members: Gary W. Collins, Kansas City, lawyer member; James D. Boggs, Kansas City, lawyer member; Barbara J. Buckner, Kansas City, lay member; Jerry M. Hagg, Dearborn, lay member.

Seventh Circuit (Clay County) Judicial Commission: Chair: Paul Spinden, chief judge, Missouri Court of Appeals, Western District. Members: Douglass F. Noland, Liberty, lawyer member; Jon Michael Krebs, Liberty, lawyer member; Raymond R. Brock Jr., Liberty, lay member; Joyce I. Macdender, Gladstone, lay member.

Sixteenth Circuit (Jackson County) Judicial Commission: Chair: Paul Spinden, chief judge, Missouri Court of Appeals, Western District. Members: Walter R. Simpson, Kansas City, lawyer member; John Kurtz, Kansas City, lawyer member; Ruthanne Phillips, Kansas City, lay member; Gayle P. Holliday, Kansas City, lay member.

Twenty-first Circuit (St. Louis County) Judicial Commission: Chair: Mary K. Hoff, chief judge, Missouri Court of Appeals, Eastern District. Members: Thomas Lang, Clayton, lawyer member; Richard C. State law (Chapter 600, RSMo) provides for a seven-member Public Defender Commission to oversee the state public defender system. This system provides constitutionally and statutorily required legal defense services to all jurisdictions within the state by means of a centrally administered Office of the State Public Defender. The members of the commission are appointed by the governor with consent of the Senate and serve without compensation for six-year terms. Four members must be lawyers, and no more than four members may be of the same political party.

The commission appoints the state public defender director to head the Office of the State Public Defender, which is an independent department of the judicial branch. The office is responsible for establishing local district public defender offices throughout the state. In 1989, the State Public Defender System was reorganized to ensure that defender services were provided to each area of the state through district trial offices. In counties where public defender offices are located, the county is required to provide office space and utilities. All other expenses, including salaries, are paid by the state.

When a person accused of a crime asks for assistance of counsel, the court requests that the public defender determine the person's eligibility for representation. The public defender considers all the circumstances of the case including

The Missouri Supreme Court Building, located across the street from the Capitol, was built with $400,000 in funds appropriated following the 1904 World's Fair in St. Louis. Construction began in 1905 and was completed two years later.

The three story, red brick building is of French Renaissance architecture with white stone pillars at each wing of the front facade, white stone trim, and a sloping slate roof. The main feature of the building's large lobby is a massive marble staircase.

There are two courtrooms on the second floor of the building, and both have extensive mahogany furnishings purchased when the structure was built.

Office space is provided for the seven judges. Originally, the offices also served as apartments for the judges, who lived in their hometowns and came to Jefferson City part of the year to hear cases. Now, most of the rooms have been converted into small offices for law clerks.

On the first floor, office space is provided for the Attorney General and the clerk of the Supreme Court. A two-story library runs the entire length of the building and contains more than 110,000 volumes.

When the Capitol burned in 1911, the governor's office was moved temporarily to the building, and one of the courtrooms served as the Senate chamber.

Executive Departments

Government exists to serve, and a broad network of government organizations has been created to accomplish the purpose. Because of the many different names used by these groups—departments, divisions, agencies, boards, commissions, bureaus, units, sections, programs and others—it can be difficult to determine which area of government is responsible for certain services, or to sort out responsibilities or relationships within the governmental framework.

The Missouri Constitution (Article II, Section 1) states: “The powers of government shall be divided into three distinct departments—the legislative, executive and judicial.” This section also prohibits persons within each branch from exercising powers of the other branches.

From these three branches spring the variety of organizations which deliver services of state government. Generally speaking, the legislative and judicial branches rely on committees or other small, appointed groups to perform research, develop policy, provide advocacy services or handle administrative duties. In these two branches, most services are delivered through the offices of the elected officials themselves and not by related agencies.

It is through the executive branch that the greatest proportion of state services are delivered. The Constitution (Article IV, Section 12) and the Reorganization Act of 1974 have established a number of “executive departments” to deal with specific areas of interest. A chart showing the present state departments is shown on the following page.

The Missouri Constitution, provides for 16 specific departments: the Office of Administration and the departments of Agriculture, Conservation, Corrections, Economic Development, Elementary and Secondary Education, Health and Senior Services, Higher Education, Insurance, Labor and Industrial Relations, Mental Health, Natural Resources, Public Safety, Revenue, Social Services and Transportation.

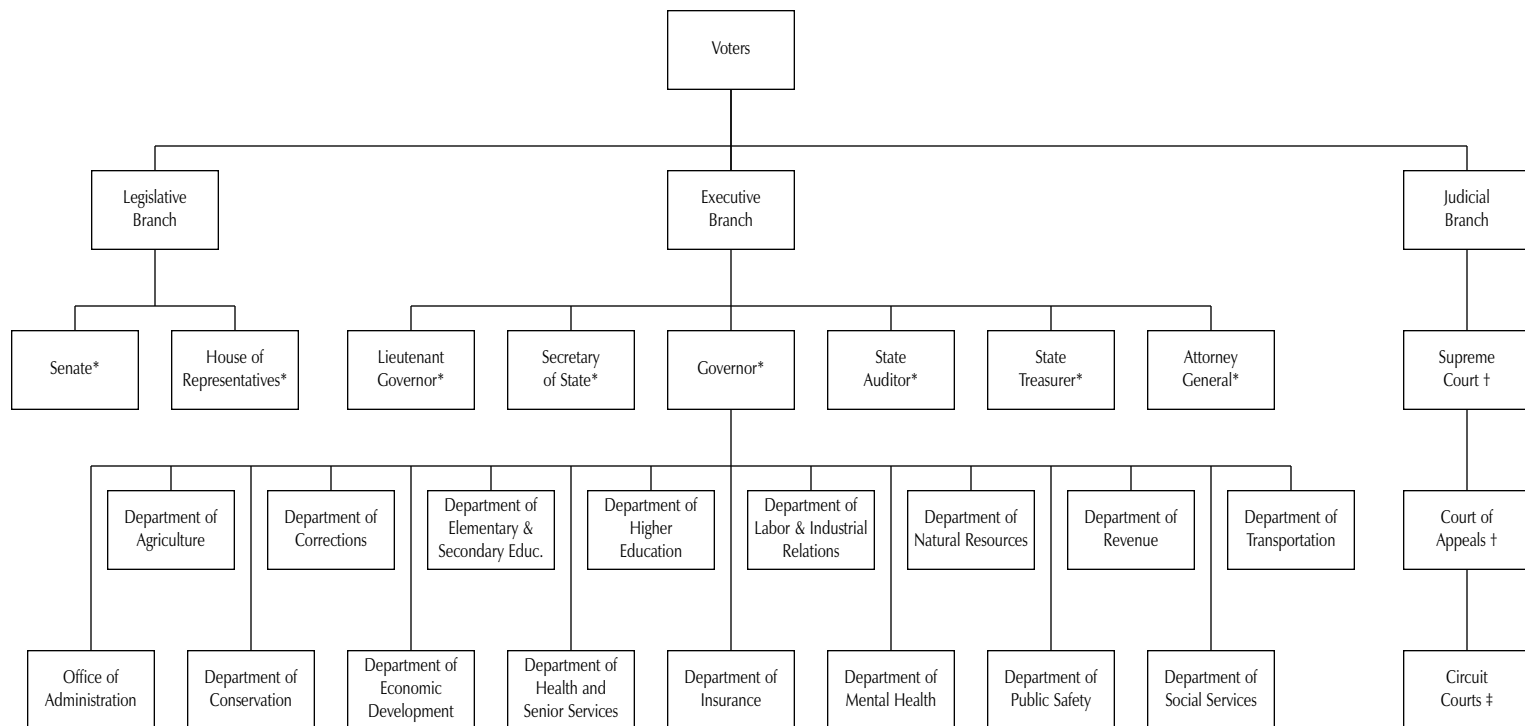

Within each executive department exists a variety of offices of varying size and scope which deal with specific services. Traditionally, “divisions” are the next-largest organizations within departments and function to bring together smaller-sized groups, such as “bureaus,” “sections” or “units.” Divisions may be governed by a “board” or “commission” composed of members who are either appointed by the governor, made members by law or appointed by a department official. State agencies may administer certain sections of state law, as defined by the Revised Statutes of Missouri, may develop their own rules and regulations as promulgated in the Missouri Register and Code of State Regulations or may institute programs and policies which address the needs of their areas of service.

The Missouri Constitution

Since achieving statehood in 1821, Missouri has had only four Constitutions. The first was adopted in 1820 and was presented to Congress before Missouri was allowed to enter the union of states. The state’s second Constitution was drafted and adopted in 1865. It was replaced by a third Constitution only ten years later. The current Constitution was adopted in 1945 and has been amended a number of times in order to meet the changing needs of our state and its people.

The Constitution of the State of Missouri is published by the Office of Secretary of State pursuant to the Revised Statutes of Missouri (RSMo 2.110). Copies of the Missouri Constitution, which also includes the text of the U.S. Constitution, are available without charge by writing to: Secretary of State Matt Blunt, Publications Division, PO Box 1767, Jefferson City, MO 65102.

State Capitol, Room 125
PO Box 809, Jefferson City 65102
Telephone: (573) 751-3311 / FAX: (573) 751-1212

The Office of Administration is the state's service and administrative control agency. Created by the General Assembly on January 15, 1973, it combines and coordinates the central management functions of state government. Its responsibilities were clarified and amended by the Omnibus State Reorganization Act of 1974.

The chief administrative officer is the commissioner of administration who is appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. The commissioner appoints the deputy commissioners and the directors of the divisions who are responsible to him through the deputy commissioner. The divisions are Accounting, Budget and Planning, Design and Construction, Facilities Management, General Services, Information Services, Personnel and Purchasing and Materials Management.

The Office of Equal Opportunity assists and monitors state agencies in promoting and ensuring equal opportunity within state government through employment, provision of services and operation of facilities.

The Missouri Commission on Intergovernmental Relations provides a forum for state and local governments to deal with mutual problems. The commission serves as a clearinghouse for information relevant to intergovernmental issues.

The Division of Budget and Planning assists the commissioner of administration and the governor in management of the executive branch. The division analyzes budget, legislative and policy issues and provides information to the commissioner, the governor's office, the General Assembly, Missouri's congressional delegation, and state, local and federal agencies.

The staff reviews state agency fiscal operations, prepares the budget manual and annual instructions, analyzes budget requests, prepares the annual executive budget and appropriation bills and oversees agency spending plans. Division personnel analyze the state economy and tax issues, estimate revenue collections, review legislation with budget implications, draft fiscal notes, and coordinate planning efforts. The division oversees the Missouri Washington, D.C., office that reviews federal issues and their impact on Missouri. The division also is the designated state demographic agency and has statutory duties for technical aid to the decennial reapportionment of election districts.

Division of Design and Construction

Truman State Office Bldg., Rooms 730 and 780
Telephone: (573) 751-3339 / FAX: (573) 751-7277

The Division of Design and Construction is responsible for construction projects at state facilities other than institutions of higher education, state roads and highways and conservation facilities. The division develops and reviews plans and specifications for state construction; selects consulting architects and engineers; conducts in-house design; bids and contracts for construction work; manages construction projects; oversees the expenditures of capital improvement appropriations; and provides guidelines, information and recommendations for capital improvements.

Division of Facilities Management

Truman State Office Bldg., Room 590
Telephone: (573) 751-1034 / FAX: (573) 751-1466

The Division of Facilities Management operates, maintains and manages state-owned office buildings and various other structures at the seat of government and other locations within the state.

Facilities Management provides a clean, safe and efficient work environment for state agencies assigned as tenants in each facility. Within Jefferson City, 21 separate structures containing approximately 1,700,000 square feet of usable space, including the State Capitol and the Executive Mansion, are cared for by Facilities Management. In addition, office buildings outside of Jefferson City are located in St. Joseph, Kansas City, Springfield and St. Louis. These facilities contain approximately 700,000 square feet of usable office space.

Facilities Management is also responsible for acquiring and managing leased space, using competitive public bids to acquire leased space. The lease program consists of approximately 550 separate contracts containing about 3,000,000 square feet of space providing work space for approximately 19,000 personnel.

Division of General Services

Truman State Office Bldg., Room 760
Telephone: (573) 751-0929 / FAX: (573) 751-7819

The Division of General Services, organized into several sections, provides essential management services to the state departments and to the Office of Administration.

The Risk Management section administers the state's legal expense fund and workers' compensation programs, purchases insurance where required and monitors policies and claims. This section also coordinates the state's occupational safety and health program and advises state agencies on the risk management aspects of insurance, loss prevention and control, security, and all other exposures to loss.

The Missouri Public Entity Risk Management (MOPERM) board operates a shared-risk program offering tort liability and other coverages deemed appropriate for participating political subdivisions of the state, their officers and employees.

The Vehicle Maintenance unit operates a central maintenance facility to provide mechanical repairs for state vehicles in the Jefferson City area.

The State Printing Center provides agencies with low-cost and quick copy printing services while maintaining a high level of quality.

The Forms Management unit analyzes and designs standardized forms used in the conduct of state business.

The Flight Operations unit provides air transportation services to officials and employees of all state agencies to facilitate state business.

The Head Injury Program plans and directs a statewide service delivery system of prevention, cognitive retraining, therapies, vocational rehabilitation and transitional living facilities for individuals receiving head injuries.

The Governor's Council on Physical Fitness and Health promotes wellness to all Missourians through such programs as the Show-Me State Games and the Governor's Fitness and Health Leadership Award.

The Division of General Services also provides interagency mail services within Jefferson City and mail services for the Office of Administration.

Division of Information Services

Truman State Office Bldg., Room 280

Telephone: (573) 751-3290 / FAX: (573) 751-3299

The Division of Information Services is the central point for providing data-processing services for the executive branch. The division promotes the economic and efficient use of data processing and telecommunications to transact state business.

The division operates a centralized computer facility for state agencies and elected officials, a data processing education center for state employees, systems development services, the state telephone switchboard and associated telecommunications network and data entry services to the Office of Administration and elected officials.

Division of Personnel

Truman State Office Bldg., Room 430

Telephone: (573) 751-4162 / FAX: (573) 751-8641

TT: (573) 526-4488

<http://www.oa.state.mo.us/pers/pers.htm>

The Division of Personnel operates the Missouri Merit System, administers the Uniform Classification and Pay System and provides other personnel management assistance and services to state agencies and employees as provided in the State Personnel Law (Chapter 36 RSMo).

The Missouri Merit System covers approximately 36,000 employees in six state departments (Office of Administration, Corrections, Health, Mental Health, Natural Resources, Social

Acting Director, Division of Information Services

Services) and parts of three others (Economic Development, Labor and Industrial Relations, Public Safety). This system of personnel management is based on the principles of merit and fitness including competitive examinations for employment, objective and consistent personnel policies and appeals from disciplinary actions.

The Uniform Classification and Pay (UCP) System promotes pay equity among state employees in most executive branch agencies and provides for a coordinated compensation policy. The system covers employees of merit system agencies and those of the departments of Agriculture, Economic Development, Higher Education (exclusive of colleges and universities), Insurance, Labor and Industrial Relations, Public Safety and Revenue. When fully implemented UCP will have a total coverage of approximately 40,000 employees.

The division also has employee relations and development responsibilities extending to all executive branch agencies (exclusive of the institutions of higher education) covering about 61,000 state employees. These programs include labor relations, management training, performance management, leave benefit administration and personnel management consultation.

Division of Purchasing and Materials Management

Truman State Office Bldg., Room 630

Telephone: (573) 751-2387 / FAX: (573) 751-7276

The Division of Purchasing and Materials Management is responsible for the procurement of all state-required supplies, materials, equipment and professional or general services except for those agencies exempted by law. The division transacts monetary commitments and contracts or authorizes such transactions by state agencies, executes procurement functions in accordance with applicable statutes and maximizes competitive procurement and awards on all contracts, implements programs to expand business with minority and women owned business enterprises, provides for statewide cooperative procurement by local government and maintains responsibility for the statewide in-house recycling program. The Materials Management section is responsible for transfers and disposal of state surplus property and acquires donable property declared excess by federal government agencies to distribute such property to public-sponsored entities.

Office of Information Technology

Truman State Office Bldg., Room 560

Telephone: (573) 526-7741 / FAX: (573) 526-7747

The Office of Information Technology's primary responsibility is to promote the effective use of information technology (IT) as a key business enabler through the development and execution of a statewide Information Systems Strategic Plan. The office promotes the practice of enterprise-wide information technology adaptation and strives to facilitate agency collaboration and cooperation in the application of information technology within their departments. Current statewide initiatives include IT architecture standards, risk assessment and project management, digital delivery of government services (e-government), a total cost of ownership/return on investment program for IT projects, and integrating the state telecommunication networks to improve management and operation.

The state's Chief Information Officer directs the Office of Information Technology, established in 1995. Assisting the Chief Information Officer and his staff is the Information Technology Advisory Board (ITAB). The ITAB, comprised of the IT directors representing agencies within all branches of Missouri State Government, sets technical standards, selects and sponsors new technology research and development projects and conducts operational and tactical planning.

The statewide Information Systems Strategic Plan drives the mission and goals identified in four key areas: access, optimization, architecture and innovation. The availability of resources and the effective delivery of services are critical to the mission of the state. In order to maximize accessibility, the Plan's goal is to create an operational environment that provides access to appropriate information enabling the delivery of services to Missouri citizens. An important part of this direction is the current e-government initiative that will provide online services to the state's citizens and businesses.

A criterion for optimization is the effective and efficient utilization of state resources necessary to create and support an operational environment where costs are managed, resources are shared and used to their maximum potential, and services are continually improved. Establishment of an enterprise-wide adaptive architecture is important to serve as a planning vehicle and communications medium for technology infrastructure, principles and practices. Innovation through the effective application of information technology is vital to the state and our goal is to encourage recognition of the value of information technology and the benefits it provides to the citizens of Missouri. To achieve all of these goals, the office must recruit, develop and retain a skilled information technology workforce within Missouri State Government.

GERRY WETHINGTON
Chief Information Officer

Board of Fund Commissioners

Telephone: (573) 751-2835

The Board of Fund Commissioners issues, redeems and cancels state general obligations bonds and performs other administrative activities related to state general obligation debt as assigned by law. The board also administers the Escheats Fund.

The board is composed of the governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, state auditor, state treasurer and commissioner of administration. The governor is president of the board, and the state treasurer is secretary. The board employs an executive secretary and a stenographer to help carry out its duties.

Board of Public Buildings

The Board of Public Buildings is composed of the governor, lieutenant governor and attorney general. The governor serves as the chair, and the lieutenant governor is the secretary.

Missouri law provides that the board has general supervision and charge of state facilities at the seat of government. The board also has the authority to issue revenue bonds for the construction of state office buildings and certain other facilities.

The board works with the Division of Design and Construction and the Division of Facilities Management in carrying out its responsibilities.

Administrative Hearing Commission

Truman State Office Bldg., Room 640

PO Box 1557

Telephone: (573) 751-2422 / FAX: (573) 751-5018

The Administrative Hearing Commission is a neutral, independent administrative tribunal that decides disputes involving state agencies and another party, usually a private person or corporation. The Commission typically decides the cases after a trial-type hearing. It hears evidence and arguments from the state agency and from the other party. Any party, including the state agency, may seek review of the Administrative Hearing Commission's decision from the judicial branch.

The statutes authorize jurisdiction for the Administrative Hearing Commission to resolve disputes over decisions of more than 100 state agencies. Chief among them are the Director of Revenue's tax decisions, professional licensing decisions of many boards of the Department of Economic Development and other departments, the Department of Social Services' decisions on payments to Medicaid service providers and the Missouri Health Facilities Committee's decisions on certificates of need. The statutes commit other specific matters to the Administrative Hearing Commission also. Several thousand cases per year are filed with the Administrative Hearing Commission.

The Commission consists of not more than three members, appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate, who serve six-year terms.

The Missouri Public Entity Risk Management (MOPERM) was established by the 83rd General Assembly and signed into law by the governor in 1986.

The MOPERM board of trustees operates a shared-risk program offering tort liability and other coverages deemed appropriate for participating political subdivisions of the state, their officers and employees.

Membership of the board consists of the attorney general, the commissioner of administration and four members appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate, who are officers or employees of those public entities participating in the fund. No more than two members appointed by the governor shall be of the same political affiliation. Members appointed by the governor serve four-year terms. Members of the board serve without compensation.

The 87th Missouri General Assembly enacted legislation (Section 105.1000, RSMo) to create the Voluntary Life Insurance Commission. The commission administers a voluntary life insurance plan for state employees. The plan allows state employees to authorize voluntary payroll deductions for the purchase of life insurance products that have been procured through competitive bids. The Office of Administration provides staff support to the commission for administration of the program.

The five-member commission includes one member of the House, one member of the Senate and three members appointed by the governor with the consent of the Senate. Members serve three-year terms.

221 Metro Dr., PO Box 1254
Jefferson City 65102
Telephone: (573) 751-2020 / FAX: (573) 526-4506

The Missouri Ethics Commission was created by the Missouri Ethics Law of 1991 (Section 105.955, RSMo). The commission is charged with enforcement of conflict of interest and lobbying laws (Section 105.450-498, RSMo) and campaign finance disclosure laws (Chapter 130, RSMo).

The commission is composed of six members, not more than three of whom may be the same political party. These members must be from different congressional districts, and no more than three can be from an odd- or even-numbered congressional district. The governor appoints the members of the commission with the advice and consent of the Senate. The commission elects a biennial chair and is assigned to the Office of Administration for budgeting purposes only.

The commission receives and reviews complaints alleging violations of the conflict of interest and lobbying statutes and the campaign finance disclosure statute. After investigation of these complaints, the commission refers the complaints to the appropriate prosecuting authority or disciplinary authority along with

The Missouri General Assembly enacted legislation in 1974 (Section 105.900, RSMo) that created a deferred compensation plan for state employees. Employees are encouraged to contribute part of their compensation to the plan to be withdrawn upon retirement.

Under the act, the program is administered by a five-member commission, which includes one member of the House, one member of the Senate and three members appointed by the governor, with the consent of the Senate. The governor's appointees serve three-year terms.

The commission also administers a plan for contributions by the state, subject to annual appropriation, to qualified participants in the deferred compensation plan.

Missouri Commission on Intergovernmental Cooperation

Truman State Office Bldg., Room 840
Telephone: (573) 751-4834 / FAX: (573) 522-4395

Established in 1985 by executive order, the Missouri Commission on Intergovernmental Cooperation seeks to develop closer partnerships between state and local governments. The commission serves as a vehicle of communication through which state and local governments can meet to discuss and resolve shared existing and potential problems such as regional justice centers, community information networks, solid waste and greater self-determination for cities and counties.

The commission functions as a clearinghouse of information relevant to intergovernmental issues and develops publications and reports on state-local issues.

The commission consists of 28 members. The governor appoints five members from the private sector and six from state government, the speaker of the House appoints two state representatives, the Senate president pro tem appoints two senators and various local government associations appoint the remaining 13 members.

The bipartisan Authority consists of five commissioners who are qualified voters of the State of Missouri and residents of Jackson County. The Jackson County Legislature submits a list of candidates to the governor to replace members of the Authority whose terms have expired. The governor then appoints the succeeding members from that list of candidates. The Commissioners serve staggered terms of five years and hold office until a successor has been appointed and qualified. No more than three members may be of the same political party. The authority is empowered to issue bonds.

The Jackson County Sports Complex Authority is authorized under the constitution and laws of the State of Missouri to plan, construct, operate and maintain a sports stadium fieldhouse, indoor and outdoor recreational facilities center, playing fields, parking facilities and other concessions within Jackson County; to negotiate and perform its obligations as landlord under lease agreements with the Kansas City Royals Baseball Corporation and the Kansas City Chiefs Football Club, Inc.; to oversee the maintenance and operation of the Harry S Truman Sports Complex in a fiscally responsible manner which will allow it to maintain its stature as a premier sports facility in the nation; to administer funds received from the State of Missouri, Jackson County, and the City of Kansas City, Missouri, or any other sources which are to be used for furtherance of its statutory duties; to develop a land use plan for potential development of the Sports Complex and to recommend to the county appropriate long-term leasing arrangements for the Sports Complex facilities; and to work with other political subdivisions, agencies and commissions for the furtherance of all types of sports, either professional or amateur, commercial or private, within Jackson County.

In 1994 Missouri voters approved the creation of the "Missouri Citizens' Commission on Compensation for Elected Officials." This commission was established to ensure that the power to control the rate of compensation of elected officials of this state is retained and exercised by tax paying citizens of the state.

Beginning in 1996 and every two years thereafter the commission will review the relationship of compensation to the duties of all elected state officials. The commission's recommentation of a salary schedule shall become effective unless disapproved by the General Assembly. The 22-member commission serves four-year terms.

Missouri Head Injury Advisory Council

Truman State Office Bldg., Room 760
 Telephone: (573) 751-9003 / FAX: (573) 522-4395

The Missouri Head Injury Advisory Council was established in 1985 by executive order; in 1986, the Missouri General Assembly gave the council statutory authority (Section 192.745, RSMo).

The council consists of 25 members, including four from the General Assembly and 21 appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate.

- The council promotes discussion of reducing the debilitating effects of head injuries and disseminates information on the prevention and rehabilitation of persons affected by head injuries.

- It studies current prevention, treatment and rehabilitation technologies and recommends appropriate preparation and distribution of resources to provide services to persons with head injury through private and public residential facilities, day programs and other specialized services.

- The council recommends methods to improve the state's service delivery system and develops standards for funding or licensing of facilities, day programs and other specialized services. An annual report sent to the commissioner of administration, the governor and the General Assembly communicates activities of the council.

government and one is a non-management state employee. The seventh member is the person designated as the state equal opportunity officer.

The board has oversight responsibility for the Missouri Merit System and the Uniform Classification and Pay System and has broad policy making authority in various areas of human resources administration. The board conducts hearings for appeals of dismissals and other disciplinary actions. Responsibilities also include meeting with appointing authorities regarding personnel management needs and making recommendations to the governor and the General Assembly regarding state compensation policy.

Mission Statement:

"To serve, promote, and protect the agricultural producers, processors and consumers of Missouri's food, fuel and fiber products."

Like Missouri agriculture, the duties of the Missouri Department of Agriculture are diverse. Created by the General Assembly in 1933, the department enforces those state laws that regulate and market Missouri's agricultural industry. The agency administers programs that protect the state's producers, processors, distributors and consumers of food, fuel and fiber, while marketing Missouri agricultural products at home and abroad.

Office of Director

The Department of Agriculture is managed by a director who is appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate. The director determines department policy, oversees the department's five divisions and serves as a liaison to the governor, the state legislature, the agriculture community and the public.

The director's office serves a variety of constituencies and provides a representative voice on a broad range of public issues affecting Missouri farmers, ranchers, agribusinesses and agriculture policy makers. The director is responsible for enforcing state agricultural statutes and monitoring the success of the department's regulatory and promotional programs.

Housed in the director's office are the department's administrative and support functions: fiscal, personnel, public affairs, information technology, budget and policy and planning.

The director is a standing member of the State Milk Board, the State Fair Commission, the Missouri Soil and Water Districts Commission, the Missouri Development Finance Board, the Missouri Petroleum Storage Tank Insurance Fund, and the Missouri Agricultural and Small Business Development Authority.

Missouri Agricultural and Small Business Development Authority

Through its Beginning Farmer Loan Program, the Missouri Agricultural and Small Business Development Authority issues tax-free bonds to lenders who make low-interest loans to farmers and small businesses. Up to $250,000 may be loaned to first-time farmers to purchase land or make improvements.

Through the Animal Waste Treatment System Loan program, the authority makes loans for animal waste treatment systems for up to 10 years at terms below conventional interest rates. Loans can be used to buy land for lagoons, build animal waste facilities or purchase waste-handling equipment—all of which work to prevent potential surface and ground water contamination.

The authority also administers the Single-Purpose Animal Facilities Loan Guarantee program, which provides banks with a 25 percent first-loss guarantee on loans up to $250,000 for as long as 10 years. Independent livestock producers may use the loans to finance breeding or feeder livestock, land, buildings, facilities, equipment, machinery and animal waste systems for producing poultry, swine, beef or dairy cattle.

The Missouri Value-Added Grant program provides grants of up to $200,000 to projects that add value to agricultural products and aid the economy of a rural community. Grants are for activities prior to start-up or expansion, such as feasibility studies, marketing studies or business plans.

The Missouri Value-Added Loan Guarantee program provides lenders with a 25 percent first loss guarantee on loans up to $250,000 for projects that add value to agricultural products. Loans that finance land, improvements and equipment associated with a value-added enterprise may be guaranteed, as well as loans for the purchase of stock in a start-up cooperative that processes an agricultural product. Loans for plant stock for grapes that will be processed into wine are also eligible for loan guarantee.

The New Generation Cooperative Incentive Tax Credit Program provides tax credits to induce farmer-investment in new generation cooperatives that process Missouri agricultural products into value-added goods, provide substantial benefits to Missouri's agricultural producers and create jobs for Missourians.

The Agricultural Products Utilization Contributor Tax Credit Program allows the authority to grant tax credits in an amount of up to 100 percent of a contribution made by an individual, partnership, corporation, trust, limited liability company or other donor. The contribution must be made to the authority to be used for financial or technical assistance for rural agricultural business concepts.

The authority is administered by a seven-member commission, which is appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate. The director of agriculture serves as an ex-officio member.

The Agriculture Innovation Center

The Agriculture Innovation Center (AIC) provides information, resources and assistance for Missouri's agricultural producers. The center's primary objective is to enhance farm profitability in Missouri through innovations in technology, marketing and economic organization. In addition to providing one-on-one assistance to producers interested in producing, marketing, or processing their commodities in new ways, the AIC works with a wide variety of professionals involved in value-added agriculture. The AIC's technical assistance complements the financial assistance programs offered through the Missouri Agricultural and Small Business Development Authority and the department's Market Development Division.

Missouri Agricultural Statistics Service

The Missouri Agricultural Statistics Service is a federal-state cooperative agency. The service compiles and disseminates information about the state's agricultural industry and conducts Missouri's portion of the National Census of Agriculture every five years.

Each year, the service publishes Missouri Farm Facts, a statistical summary of Missouri agriculture. The booklet contains data on crops, livestock, farm receipts, land and buildings.

The service also publishes county agricultural profiles and weekly Crop and Weather and Crop and Livestock reports.

The Missouri Agricultural Statistics Service is jointly supported by the Missouri Department of Agriculture and the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA).

Missouri State Fair

The Missouri State Fair is one of the state's largest agricultural events, with exhibits showcasing livestock, row crops, horticulture and floriculture. It also features agribusiness exhibits and displays of Missouri-produced commodities.

Established in 1899, the Missouri State Fair is one of the oldest in the nation. The fairgrounds, which cover 396 acres in Sedalia (Pettis County), are open all year, providing facilities for horse and livestock shows, art and craft festivals, camping, rallies and other events.

During the annual August fair, visitors enjoy educational and recreational activities, a carnival midway and musical entertainment.

The Missouri State Fair plays an important role in shaping Missouri agriculture, contributing to the state's economy and educating the public about the importance and necessity of agriculture.

A State Fair Commission, whose members are appointed by the governor, oversees the fair's operations.

State Milk Board

911-D Leslie Blvd., Jefferson City 65101
Telephone: (573) 751-3830

The State Milk Board consists of 12 members, 10 of whom are nominated by the director of agriculture, appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate. The two remaining members of the board are from the state Departments of Health and Agriculture. Four of the appointed members of the board must be Grade A dairy farmers representing recognized producer organizations. Four additional appointees are active members of local health departments in the state. The two remaining appointees represent processor and consumer interests. No more than six of the 12 board members can be from the same political party.

Board personnel conduct the state's Grade A and manufacturing grade milk sanitation programs. The board administers milk inspection relating to Grade A milk and milk supplies to assure uniformity of procedures and interpretation of milk inspection regulations. The Grade A or fluid milk activities of the state are supported by revenue from inspection fees.

The manufacturing grade dairy program enforces sanitation and quality standards for manufactured dairy products and provides market testing of all milk at the first point of sale. Milk procurers, manufacturing plants, field superintendents, testers, graders, samplers, bulk milk truck operators and market testing laboratories are licensed by the State Milk Board.

Animal Health Division

The Division of Animal Health, under the direction of the state veterinarian, promotes and protects Missouri's diverse and dynamic livestock industry. The assistance and oversight provided by the division's programs ensure greater market access for Missouri's livestock and companion animal industries.

TERRY LONG
State Milk Board

Animal agriculture accounts for about half of Missouri's annual agriculture cash receipts. The division administers laws and programs designed to control and eradicate livestock disease and to maintain and enhance the integrity of the state's animal industries. This includes both mandatory and voluntary regulatory programs for beef and dairy cattle, horses, swine, poultry, sheep, goats, exotic and companion animals.

The state's progress in national disease control and eradication programs is due to the cooperative efforts of livestock producers, markets, practicing veterinarians, other agencies and animal health staff. Through these cooperative efforts, Missouri has achieved bovine Tuberculosis Free status, swine Pseudorabies stage V status and avian Pullorum-Typhoid Clean status.

The division also offers informative programs and publications on livestock quality assurance, food safety, environmental issues and disease control programs. In addition, the division operates three state-of-the-art diagnostic laboratories in Jefferson City, Cameron and Springfield.

The Animal Health Division also works to:

- identify and add value to Missouri livestock through an electronic animal identification system;
- inform cattle producers about quality assurance, targeted breeding and cow herd management;
- increase awareness and understanding of environmental issues that affect production agriculture;
- present informative programs on marketing and food safety to small poultry producers; and
- inspect Missouri meat processors to supplement existing USDA inspections.

Grain Inspection and Warehousing Division

The Grain Inspection and Warehousing Division is comprised of two programs that administer the Missouri Grain Warehouse Law, the Missouri Grain Dealer's Law, and the United States Grain Standards Act. These laws promote and protect commerce in the interest of grain producers, merchandisers, warehousemen, processors and consumers. They also promote a uniform official inspection system for the orderly marketing of grain.

This division also collects and disburses funds for nine commodity merchandising programs.

Grain inspection services program

The grain inspection services program is designated under the United States Grain Standards Act to officially inspect, grade and weigh all grains that have established standards.

The program provides four primary services: (1) official sampling is used to take a representative sample of grain from a particular lot; (2) official inspection is used to determine and certify the type, class, quality or condition of grain; (3) weighing certification is used to supervise the loading, unloading and weighing containers of grain; and (4) chemical analysis is used to determine the protein or oil content of grain and to determine the existence of mycotoxins in grain. Services are provided at inspection offices in Kansas City, Laddonia, Marshall, New Madrid and St. Joseph.

The program is self-supporting and operates entirely on fees charged for inspection services performed.

Grain regulatory services program

The grain regulatory services program protects the public interest by auditing grain warehouses and grain dealers to determine grain obligations and financial solvency.

The program enforces Missouri's Grain Warehouse and Grain Dealer laws so producers are assured of storing or merchandising their grain with licensed, bonded, reputable and financially stable grain businesses. The program annually licenses approximately 230 warehouses and 500 grain dealers and conducts more than 1,000 audits and investigations.

Market Development Division

The Market Development Division is comprised of three programs that act as catalysts in expanding the diversity, production and profitability of Missouri's agricultural economy by cultivating young agriculturalists, providing financial assistance and guiding producers and processors in identifying new products, uses, markets and sales opportunities, both domestically and internationally.

Domestic marketing program

The domestic marketing program supports four sections: market news, market development and promotion, the AgriMissouri promotional program and the Agriculture Development Fund.

The market news section compiles daily market information on the price, quantity and quality of livestock and grain being sold. Market reporters apply USDA grading standards to encourage the production of uniform, high-quality animals. This information is made available to the public through various media and the Internet. The market news staff also publishes the Weekly Market Summary, available on a subscription basis.

The market development and promotion section is comprised of specialists who work with beef, horticulture, specialty crop, commodity, aquaculture, livestock and forage producers. Each specialist works with specific industry representatives or groups to establish marketing opportunities and promote commodities. The division also assists producers and groups in developing and organizing marketing cooperatives.

The AgriMissouri promotional program works to increase awareness of value-added Missouri agricultural products. The program is effective in identifying Missouri-made or processed foods and beverages. Many Missouri producers and processors incorporate the program's "AgriMissouri" logo on the labels of their products.

Agriculture development fund

The agriculture development fund provides loans and grants to rural Missouri residents.

The following guarantees, loans and grants are available from the Missouri Department of Agriculture:

Crop and Livestock Loan Guarantee Program, which provides financial benefits to Missouri youth who undertake crop or livestock production projects.

Farm Mechanics Loan Program, which is available to Missouri youth who complete farm mechanic projects.

Building Our American Communities (BOAC) Grant Program, which gives $36,000 annually to Missouri 4-H clubs and FFA chapters for aid in developing and advancing Missouri's rural communities.

Agriculture Scholarship Program, which is offered through a competitive application process to high school seniors who plan to attend Missouri universities and colleges.

Fourteen individuals are selected to receive agriculture scholarships that entitle them to receive $500 to attend a Missouri university or college. Eight individuals are selected to receive $250 to attend a junior or community college.

Missouri Agribusiness Academy, which gives 30 selected high school sophomores a chance to explore the state's vast agribusiness resources by viewing various facets of agriculture; visiting agribusinesses; and meeting leaders in agriculture, government and education.

Academy students are selected through a competitive written application and oral interview process.

Missouri Alternative Loan Program, which is available for use by Missouri farmers and youth to finance the production, processing and marketing needs of an alternative enterprise.

International marketing program

The international marketing program is a valuable link between Missouri producers, agribusinesses, forest products industry and foreign agricultural buyers. Specialists work to facilitate contacts between buyers and sellers and assist Missouri suppliers in responding to international marketing opportunities.

The program provides potential exporters with services to:

- analyze specific market opportunities;
- establish contacts with foreign buyers;
- provide data on tariffs, health regulations, labeling requirements, export documentation, transportation, international financing and payment terms, insurance, etc.;
- plan, arrange and participate in outgoing sales and incoming buying missions;
- assist and participate in domestic and international trade shows and other exhibitions.

The international marketing program works with the USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service to provide export sales leads, international advertising and export assistance from agricultural attaches.

The program manages agricultural trade offices in Taipei, Taiwan and Guadalajara, Mexico. The program is also supported by state offices and representatives in San Paulo, Brazil; London, England; Accra, Ghana; Tokyo, Japan; Seoul, South Korea; Singapore and Bangkok, Thailand; Dusseldorf, Germany and Johannesburg, South Africa.

Grape and wine program

The grape and wine program is responsible for researching, developing and promoting Missouri grapes, juices and wine. The program is funded by a tax on all wine sold in Missouri.

These funds support the program's three sections: enology and viticulture advisory services, research, promotion and marketing.

Program expenditures provide:

- professional advice to Missouri grape growers and wine makers;
- applied research for developing grape varieties and cold hardiness studies.
- consumer education to increase awareness of Missouri grapes and wines;
- information about the Missouri grape and wine industry.

The program also administers the Missouri wine and juice competition and awards ceremony and hosts the Midwest Regional Grape and Wine Conference.

The Missouri grape and wine program works closely with and supports the State Fruit Experiment Station in Mountain Grove. The program also receives counsel from the Missouri Wine and Grape Advisory Board.

Plant Industries Division

The Plant Industries Division is comprised of three bureaus and two programs, which together administer 13 separate state laws and cooperate in the administration of three federal laws. These laws facilitate agricultural production and marketing and provide consumer and environmental protection for Missouri citizens by regulating animal feeds and seeds, providing necessary certifications for interstate and international shipment of agricultural and forest products, ensuring plant pest protection for crops and forests, establishing grades and standards for fresh fruits and vegetables and regulating the use of pesticides.

Bureau of feed and seed

The bureau administers the Missouri Commercial Feed Law and the Missouri Seed Law.

The feed law regulates the manufacture, distribution and labeling of commercial feed products in the state. Random inspections, sampling analysis and label review of feed products and feed ingredients ensure that livestock producers and pet owners receive the feed product guaranteed on the label.

The bureau, in partnership with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, provides the inspection reports and regulation involved with preventing Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy (BSE), commonly called mad cow disease, in Missouri. The bureau also provides labeling assistance and investigates complaints related to animal feed.

The bureau also regulates seed products offered for sale in the state. Seed is inspected, sampled, tested and labels are reviewed to ensure the product meets the labeled guarantees as to test date, origin, purity, germination and other claims that are made. The bureau cooperates with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's seed regulatory and testing branch in regulating the interstate movement of seed.

Bureau of pesticide control

The bureau administers laws for registration, distribution and use of pesticides. All pesticides sold and used in Missouri are regulated by the Missouri Pesticide Registration Act.

Bureau personnel inspect pesticides for proper labeling and registration and investigate misuse.

The Missouri Pesticide Use Act allows the bureau to certify commercial, noncommercial and private applicators and public operators. The act also provides for licensing pesticide dealers.

Bureau of plant pest control

The bureau administers laws to control insects, plant pests and plant diseases.

The bureau administers the Missouri Plant Law, which mandates controlling harmful insects, plant pests and plant diseases through surveys, quarantines, nursery and greenhouse inspections and certification. The law also enables interstate and international shipments of Missouri plants and plant products.

In 2000, Missouri cotton growers voted to join the national effort to eradicate the boll weevil, a damaging cotton pest. The Missouri Cotton Growers Organization is working with the Southwest Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation to implement eradication efforts in Missouri with oversight from the Missouri Department of Agriculture. This is a grower-funded program paid through assessments on cotton production.

The Integrated Pest Management (IPM) program is designed to help farmers in an integrated approach to pest control. IPM encompasses all techniques available to reduce reliance on non-renewable resources, including pesticides.

Begun in 1995, the Sustainable Agriculture Demonstration Award Program provides grants to Missouri farmers to help them test, evaluate and adopt sustainable agriculture practices on their farms. Projects must be designed to reduce dependency on non-renewable resources, such as minerals and petroleum, and protect and conserve natural resources, such as soil, air and water. A main objective of the program is to provide the opportunity for Missouri growers to demonstrate innovative techniques in sustainable agriculture.

As a service to Missouri beekeepers, the bureau works under the Missouri Apiculture Law to inspect and certify honey-bee colonies. These procedures are required for interstate shipment of honey-bees.

Fresh fruit and vegetable inspection service

The inspection service consists of two programs: (1) shipping-point inspections assure producers of fruits and vegetables that their products meet quality grades, and (2) terminal market inspections assist wholesalers in gaining restitution for products that fail to meet purchase agreement quality standards.

Forest resources and weed control program

The Missouri Treated Timber Law requires licensure of all companies that produce or sell treated timber products in Missouri. Routine inspections and sample analyses help to ensure that state requirements are met.

To eradicate Johnson grass, a costly pest of row crops, a county option law allows for cooperation between participating counties and the director of agriculture to control the weed's spread.

Laboratory support

Laboratories are maintained for analytical support to the seed, treated timber and commercial feed programs and other programs.

Weights and Measures Division

The Weights and Measures Division maintains surveillance of commercial weighing and measuring devices. The programs administered by the division protect buyers and sellers when goods and services are exchanged.

The division's programs are operated in accordance with the National Institute of Standards and Technology. The division also is a member of the National Conference on Weights and Measures.

Device and commodity inspection program

The program's field personnel inspect, as required by Missouri statutes, large and small scales, grain hopper scales, taxicab meters, odometers, timing devices, fabric measuring devices, milk for quantity determination, prepackaged merchandise and method of sale of commodities.

The program enforces the Missouri Egg Law and the Missouri Unfair Milk Sales Practices Law.

Petroleum/propane/anhydrous ammonia program

The program combines a variety of services. Under the program, petroleum dispensers, petroleum terminal meters and metered fuel delivery trucks are tested for accuracy; service station pumps are inspected for accuracy and safety; LPG installations in public institutions and bulk and manufacturing plants are inspected; LPG carburetion in passenger vehicles, school buses and trucks is inspected; metered LPG delivery

Acting Director
Weights and Measures

trucks are checked; and storage and handling of anhydrous ammonia are monitored.

Metrology program

The metrology program conducts tests and calibrates and certifies field standards for state agencies and private institutions. The state metrologist is the official keeper of Missouri's primary standards of mass, volume and length.

Laboratory support

Petroleum samples are collected by field personnel and submitted for testing. The petroleum laboratory analyzes gasoline, kerosene, heating oils and diesel fuel to make certain they meet state quality and safety standards.

The Moisture Meter Laboratory ensures the accuracy of grain moisture measuring devices and other equipment.

Brought into being by public demand for better management of the state's wildlife and forest resources, the Department of Conservation was created in 1937 by an amendment to the Missouri Constitution. It is headed by the Conservation Commission, whose four members, no more than two of whom may belong to the same political party, are appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. They serve without compensation for staggered six-year terms. The Commission appoints the department director, who in turn appoints the staff. The staff is selected on the basis of training, experience, ability and character. No employee may engage in partisan political activity.

A deputy director assists with the programs and activities carried out by the divisions of fisheries, wildlife, forestry, protection, design and development, private land services, outreach and education, administrative services, natural history, and human resources. An assistant director provides leadership for special projects and initiatives assigned by the director; notably legislative liaison and partnerships with other entities, etc.

The Department's principal sources of revenue are receipts from sale of hunting and fishing permits, and the one-eighth cent conservation sales tax. Funds are also received on a matching basis from federal aid to forestry, wildlife, fisheries, under provisions of the Endangered Species Act and from one-time grants and contracts.

Department funding was increased in 1977 when voters approved a constitutional amendment for an addition to the state sales tax, earmarked for conservation use. Since then the department has acquired approximately 462,000 acres of public land for wildlife, fisheries and forestry conservation and public recreation and has expanded many programs—notably conservation education, law enforcement, forestry, fisheries, wildlife and private land services, and activities dealing with endangered species, non-game wildlife and natural areas.

The Department's goals and objectives are communicated to the public in its mission statement: "The mission of the Department of Con-

Administrative Services Division

The administrative services division is made up of four sections responsible for information management and technology, policy coordination, fiscal services and general services. In addition, the division administers clerical and maintenance personnel serving many department field offices.

The information management and technology section provides strategic direction for the department's information technology assets. It is responsible for managing those assets; defining technology solutions to meet business needs; and supporting use of those assets, which include all computer hardware and software systems, telephone systems, two-way radio and other telecommunications systems, and the coordination of those systems with other state agencies.

The policy coordination section investigates issues and recommends actions in support of the department's mission to manage the state's fish, forests and wildlife resources for all Missourians. It is responsible for guiding strategic and operational objectives; promoting and advocating interests and partnerships with federal, state and local agencies and elected officials whose mandates, policies and actions may affect fish, forests and wildlife resources; coordinating real property negotiations in support of conservation and advising on land acquisitions, trades and easements; compiling, interpreting and applying geographic and ecological information to help implement policies; and involving the public in policy development and implementation by compiling, interpreting and applying economics, demographics, opinion and survey information.

The fiscal services section is responsible for the business administration activities of the department. It maintains liaison with the State Treasurer, State Auditor, Office of Administration and Department of Revenue in the performance of these activities. It is responsible for revenue collection, accounts payable, accounting, purchasing, budget, payroll, data processing, inventory control and reimbursement documentation for federal aid programs. It is also responsible for distribution of hunting and fishing permits statewide to retail businesses for sale to the public. Revenue from the conservation sales tax, hunting and fishing permits, federal reimbursement, public use areas, sale of timber, publications and surplus property is received and deposited in the state treasury for department programs.

The general services section manages a broad range of functions in support of department operations. It is responsible for procurement, repair and disposition of vehicles, marine and other mechanical equipment; management of aircraft operations; operation of a distribution center and warehouse for publications, products and media loan services; operation of offset printing, mailing and sign production services; buildings and grounds maintenance services; coordination of the department's earthquake/emergency preparedness plans; and administration of the employee uniform/clothing policy.

Design and Development Division

The design and development division administers the department's construction and development program and is responsible for development and maintenance of areas owned and/or leased by the department.

The division consists of three sections: engineering, architecture/administration and construction. The staff consists of professional engineering, architecture, land surveying, construction and support staff in the areas of drafting and computer applications. All work is highly specialized to meet the needs of the department's resource programs. Typical capital improvements projects are the development of wetlands, reservoirs, hatcheries, buildings, nature centers, river and lake public use access areas, stream corridor improvements and hunter safety training facilities.

The engineering and architecture sections handle all aspects of design and development of capital improvement projects including performing investigations, feasibility studies and environmental assessments; preparing design drawings and contract specifications and administering construction contracts. Boundary, construction and topographic surveys of all land acquisition and development projects are performed under the direction of the division's registered surveyors. Support staff provide technical assistance in the areas of computer applications; state-of-the-art AutoCAD drafting applications; and construction quality control. The cartography unit archives all lands acquired and produces various area maps. The construction section maintains department facilities, and its skilled construction crews construct countless special projects throughout the state.

To effectively design and develop the department's diverse projects, staff combines experience in the fields of survey, soil mechanics, hydrology, river hydraulics, structural, architectural, mechanical, electrical, environmental, computer, CAD, drafting, construction, quality control and maintenance. This unique combination of engineering expertise and biological understanding allows creation of outdoor recreational developments that blend with the surrounding environment and enhance and expand resource habitat.

Creative thinking and innovative solutions prompt original designs and new applications of existing techniques, such as covered floating docks at reservoirs to provide disabled user fishing access; automated control systems at river pump stations; ingenious wetland water control structures; rock-lined levee sections to work with instead of against flood waters; special light switch sensors in office buildings to lower utility costs; and disabled user accessible boat loading platforms at stream and river access ramps.

Fisheries Division

Missouri has about 1,163,000 surface acres of water comprised of nearly 900 public lakes (24% of surface acres), 486 miles of Mississippi River and 553 miles of Missouri River (22% combined), almost 16,000 miles of other permanent streams (8%), over 39,000 miles of intermittent streams (3%) and about 500,000 private lakes (43%). These waters support rich and diverse aquatic communities that are used, enjoyed and appreciated by millions of people each year. Fishing is one of the most popular and economically important uses of these waters. Each year, Missouri's 1.2 million sport anglers (16 years of age and older) make about 11.8 million fishing trips and spend almost a billion dollars on related goods and services.

The Fisheries Division's mission is "to professionally manage the fish and associated aquatic plants and animals of Missouri for the use and enjoyment of the people." Its goals are to: maintain aquatic ecosystem integrity and protect aquatic biodiversity; provide fair, responsive service; provide quality fishing; and increase the number of people engaged in the use and enjoyment of the state's aquatic resources.

To carry out this mission and pursue these goals, the Division has fisheries management staff deployed in the Department's 10 regions. Management efforts are supported by five cold-water fish hatcheries, five warmwater fish hatcheries, the Research, Assessment and Monitoring Section, the Streams For The Future Team and central office staff. The Division has 216 permanent and term employees and varying numbers of temporary employees.

Regional fisheries management staff (headquarters in Cape Girardeau, Clinton, Columbia, Kansas City, Kirksville, St. Joseph, St. Louis, Springfield, Sullivan and West Plains, and other staff in the Camdenton, Chillicothe, El Dorado Springs, Hannibal, Lebanon, Neosho and Sedalia offices) are responsible for monitoring and maintaining the quality of the aquatic resources, managing the public fisheries resources for quality fishing, providing technical guidance in stream and lake management to private landowners and other public agencies, providing and assisting with public information and education programs, assisting with other Department programs and representing the Division and Department on matters pertaining to the aquatic resources in their region.

The five warmwater hatcheries (Blind Pony, Chesapeake, Hunnewell, Indian Trail and Lost Valley) rear the fish needed to stock public waters, suitable private lakes, and waters used for special fishing events and aquatic resource education. Their staff also develop methods of rearing endangered species. The five coldwater hatcheries (Bennett Spring, Maramec Spring, Montauk, Roaring River and Shepherd of the Hills) rear the trout needed to stock public waters. Their staff are also responsible for stocking and managing the popular Bennett Spring, Maramec Spring, Montauk and Roaring River trout parks. The fish pathologist diagnoses and, when appropriate, treats diseases and parasites in public and private waters and for private, state and federal fish hatcheries.

The Research, Assessment and Monitoring Section (Columbia), which includes the Biometrics Unit, Environmental Services Unit and Long Term Resource Monitoring Program station (Jackson), conducts studies and surveys that produce new techniques and information needed for effective aquatic resource management. The Biometrics Unit provides data processing and statistical support for Division projects. The Environmental Services Unit investigates fish kills and water pollution complaints (working in cooperation with the Department of Natural Resources), monitors fish flesh contaminants (working in cooperation with the Department of Health) and coordinates a variety of intra- and interagency projects. The Open River Field Station of the Long Term Resource Monitoring Program monitors the water quality, habitat, land use/land cover, invertebrates and fish communities of the middle Mississippi River under contract with the Biological Resources Division of the U.S. Geological Survey (USGS) and conducts studies supported by grants from the USGS, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and other agencies.

The Streams For The Future Team (Jefferson City) is responsible for administering the STREAM TEAM program, working with the Missouri Department of Natural Resources on the Volunteer Water Quality Monitoring Program, producing and distributing Stash Your Trash bags to canoe liveries, providing stream technical services to regional Division and Department staff and coordinating the Department's Streams For The Future Program.

The Division's central office staff direct and administer Division programs, work on the acquisition and development of public fishing and boat access areas, administer the Community Assistance Program and Corporate and Agency Partnership Program, administer Federal Aid grants, coordinate angler recognition programs, develop and revise technical and popular written materials, and provide administrative support for Division and Department staff and programs.

ROBERT L. KREPPS
Forestry Division Administrator

Forestry Division

The forestry division is responsible for management and protection of the state's forest resources. Major program objectives are to improve rural fire protection in all areas of the state; urge and aid forest landowners and forest industries to adopt practices designed to ensure sustainable forests; engage in research to improve forest management and biodiversity; ensure the proper management and sustainability of public forest lands; and cooperate with public and private agencies in the control and abatement of major attacks of forest insects and diseases.

Some forestry facts: About 13.4 million acres or thirty percent of the land areas of Missouri is covered by commercial forest land. Eighty-four percent of the commercial land is owned by about 200,000 owners. Approximately three-fourths of this forest land is oak-hickory type, five percent is shortleaf pine and oak-pine types and the remainder is in cedar and bottomland hardwoods. Missouri's forests support a large forest products industry with about 1,000 manufacturing plants producing lumber, railroad ties, cooperage, cedar and walnut items (including gunstocks and veneer), charcoal and other products. Over 3.5 billion per year is generated from processing forest products. Missouri leads the nation in the production of charcoal, cedar novelties, gunstocks, walnut bowls and walnut nutmeats.

Division personnel and volunteer rural fire departments annually suppress approximately 4,000 wildfires which burn 60,000 acres of forest and grassland. Although fire control efforts are concentrated in the more heavily forested counties in southern Missouri, protection is provided statewide. Efforts continue to improve rural fire departments statewide and increase fire control efficiency.

Assistance is provided to rural fire districts and volunteer fire departments. Technical assistance, training and federal excess equipment are available at no cost to cooperating fire organizations. Federal legislation provides some funding to qualifying fire organizations on a matching basis. A rural forest fire equipment center is located in Lebanon. The center acquires, inventories and distributes federal excess property to rural fire departments.

"Operation Forest Arson" is a program to combat the high number of arson-caused wildfires. This program is combined with the Smokey the Bear fire prevention campaign to educate school children.

Through a cooperative program with the U.S. Forest Service, technical assistance is provided to private woodland owners. This service is available statewide and includes tree selection and planting advice, forest management recommendations, forest products utilization and marketing assistance and wildlife management recommendations.

The forest health protection program ensures the continuing health of the forest resources through survey and detection, pest and control evaluations and public information. Pests are monitored and infestations reported through a network of trained citizen "forest keepers." Impact and control evaluations are accomplished through formal damage surveys using both ground and aerial mapping techniques. Public information includes diagnostic clinics, pest workshops, monthly status reports and handouts on common pests.

Tree Resource Improvement and Management II is a cost share program that provides "seed" money for establishment or extension of holistic community forestry programs including tree establishment and tree maintenance and care. The Department provides 60% of total costs of projects up to a maximum of $10,000 for activities such as tree inventory, pruning, hazard tree removal, tree research care and tree planting.

Assistance is provided to forest landowners on resource availability, market information, new technology and training. Individual businesses are encouraged to improve utilization of forest resources and reduce output of residues through efficient environmentally acceptable manufacturing methods.

Since the department was established, over 580,000 acres of forest land have been acquired and are managed as sustainable forest ecosystems. Forest management results include biodiversity, watershed protection, wildlife habitat, forest products and recreational opportunities.

To encourage forest and wildlife plantings, 4½ to 5 million seedlings of 70 different tree and shrub species are produced at the George O. White State Forest Nursery to fill over 14,000 orders from Missourians. Every fourth grade student in the state receives an Arbor Day seedling produced at the nursery. Residents can order planting stock after November 1, for delivery the following spring at planting time.

The State Forestry Law was passed by the General Assembly in 1946 to encourage stable and permanent management of privately-owned forest lands. It strengthened department efforts to protect woodlands from fire and timber theft and to assist in forest management, as well as providing partial tax deferment on lands classified as forest crop land.

To be eligible for classification, forest land must conform to the following: market value of the land must not exceed $400 per acre; tract size must be 20 acres or larger; and the owner must agree to follow basic forest management requirements designed to keep the land in permanent forest production.

Land classified as forest crop land through 1974 is assessed for taxation purposes on a valuation of $1 per acre; subsequent classification at $3 per acre. Classification continues for a period of 25 years. To offset the loss of county taxes, the law provides for the department to reimburse counties based on a payment of 75 cents per acre per year on state-owned classified lands and 50 cents per acre per year on privately-owned classified lands. When timber products are cut for sale from classified forest crop land a yield tax on the amount sold is paid by the owner to the department.

Through sound scientific research procedures, answers are sought to improve forest management. Applied research on oak regeneration, pest management and survey, and basic research on ecosystem function and structure are ongoing project topics.

Human Resources Division

The human resources division is responsible for development and administration of a department-wide human resources program. It assists in recruiting, selecting and retaining a qualified, dedicated work force. In doing so, it administers a compensation and classification program; group life, medical, accidental death and dismemberment and dependent life insurance programs; maintains the department's official employee records; and administers the department's safety program, including workers' compensation.

It ensures compliance with employment practices related to affirmative action, ADA and drug testing; provides employee training and development opportunities; administers employee assistance and health/wellness programs; and oversees disciplinary proceedings and grievance resolutions.

Natural History Division

The Natural History Division provides biodiversity and ecosystem conservation leadership for the department. Its mission is to protect, conserve and enhance wildlife diversity resources and natural ecosystems and to enhance public understanding, appreciation and enjoyment of all natural resources.

In order to best protect and manage Missouri's natural legacy, understanding the breadth and diversity of this legacy is essential. This division has coordinated natural features inventories for every county of the state and continually updates these inventories. The division manages Missouri's Natural Heritage Program, which tracks the statuses and occurrences of all 930+ species of conservation concern and high quality natural communities are carefully documented, mapped and continually updated. In 2000, more than 700 new records of endangered resources and natural communities were mapped and documented, and updates and corrections were made on approximately 3,000 of the 14,000 total records.

In addition, Natural History staff regularly conduct more specialized inventories and surveys, such as the Flora of Missouri Project (operated jointly by the Natural History Division and the Missouri Botanical Garden), which describes, illustrates and documents the distribution of Missouri's 3,202 plant species; cave resources inventories; breeding bird surveys of Missouri's 150+ species of nesting birds; winter raptors; migrating birds; swamp rabbits; breeding toads and frogs; other amphibians and reptiles; state and federally listed plants and animals; natural area vegetation; and rare natural communities.

By consulting and sharing data generated from such programs, surveys and inventories, the Natural History Division coordinates programs and activities within the department and with other agencies related to wildlife diversity, ecosystem management, native plants, natural areas, rare and endangered species and karst features, including caves.

Ecologists have identified 83 distinct terrestrial natural community types in Missouri, from dry sandstone forests to deep muck fens. To assure that examples of these communities and their associated species are protected, the Natural History Division participates in land acquisition and development planning for natural areas, endangered species habitat, wildlife diversity enhancement, natural history areas, urban wild acres and wildlife viewing areas. Natural History staff are represented on the Missouri Natural Areas Committee, which oversees the Missouri Natural Areas System. In 2000, the Natural Areas System contained 172 natural areas, protecting 54,378 total acres of the best examples of Missouri's terrestrial and aquatic communities.

Regional Natural History biologists work closely with other department staff throughout the state on resource issues and also advise other agencies and private landowners about endangered species and natural community protection and management.

The Natural History Division promotes research, monitoring and surveys of individual species, groups of species and natural communities by local academic institutions through its small grants program and by coordinating federal funding for such studies. In 2000, for example, small grants were made to researchers to survey the federally endangered Indiana bat, study the habitat of the spring cavefish and survey native prairie pollinators.

The division also works closely with interested individuals and organizations such as garden clubs, The Nature Conservancy, the Missouri Native Plant Society, Audubon Missouri, the Grasslands Coalition and other natural history societies. Division staff provide technical expertise to such groups, and also partner with groups such as The Nature Conservancy or the Missouri Prairie Foundation on land management and conservation issues.

To foster greater understanding and appreciation of Missouri's natural legacy among citizens of the state, the Natural History Division produces field guides and other books, such as The Amphibians and Reptiles of Missouri, and the Flora of Missouri, brochures and nearly 1,000 pages of web resources. Natural History maintains the Missouri Fish and Wildlife Information System (MOFWIS), a searchable database of habitat, management and distribution information on more than 700 species of fish and wildlife. The MOFWIS database as well as the Natural Heritage database also are available on the department's website.

To help Missourians experience the state's natural diversity firsthand, Natural History coordinates nature-oriented recreational activities. Natural History staff provide hiking, biking and horse trail management recommendations, as well as facilitate and plan construction of overlooks, boardwalks, blinds and other wildlife-viewing structures.

Outreach and Education Division

The Outreach and Education Division is dedicated to reaching and teaching Missourians about their fish, forest and wildlife resources. Major programs include media products, nature and visitor centers, and formal education for Missouri teachers. One hundred thirty-five staff members include editors, artists, photographers, TV and video producers, web designers, exhibit designers and builders, media specialists, naturalists, conservation education consultants and administrators.

Media products are created to inform and inspire citizens to care for their outstanding natural resources. Most significant among publications is the monthly magazine, Missouri Conservationist, founded in July 1938 and distributed free to adult Missouri residents. Each year, outreach programs section produces more than seven million pieces of printed literature, including colorful, user-friendly summaries of regulations that govern the harvest of fish and wildlife, and other fish, forestry and wildlife publications made available free of charge upon request. The section also publishes a number of informative nature books and videos, available at low cost.

Missouri Outdoors, the department's Emmy Award-winning, half-hour TV show, is broadcast statewide. Videos distributed free to libraries and schools also help to convey the message of wise use of natural resources. The Department's web page receives over one million hits each month.

High public interest in conservation keeps the news media asking for information on hunting and fishing seasons, conservation issues, department policies and plans. The weekly All Outdoors news packet, special news releases and direct contact with writers, reporters and editors are made on important conservation-related issues.

Regional offices have been established statewide to provide public information and assistance. Regional Outreach and Education Supervisors respond to public inquiries and requests, and disseminate information and educational programs throughout the region. They work with local news media to keep the public informed about department programs and activities.

An outstanding network of interpretive centers help bring people and nature together. The Discovery Center, located in the heart of Kansas City, is the newest addition to these facilities. It features six multi-disciplinary workshops offering hands-on instruction to school groups and individuals, ten acres of demonstration native gardens and a state-of-the-art energy efficient building. It joins nature centers in Blue Springs, Springfield, Jefferson City and Kirkwood, and visitors centers in Andrew, Taney, St. Charles and St. Louis counties to offer unique and high quality nature exploration. The division coordinates other nature study programs such as Eagle Days and Prairie Days, which attract thousands of visitors to view unique wildlife and learn about their habitats.

The formal education staff works with public, private and parochial schools, colleges and universities, school superintendents, administrators and teachers, community leaders, youth leaders and the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education.

KATHRYN S. LOVE
Outreach and Education
Division Administrator

Services to schools include administering formal education support programs in preschool through university levels; developing and distributing teaching materials and visual aids; assisting with college courses and teacher workshops; assisting through demonstration teaching, field trips, lesson plans and presentations; providing stock for school and youth planting projects, conducting programs for civic clubs, organizations, churches, youth organizations and agencies; consultation services related to conservation; and implementing the aquatic/fishing education program.

Missouri schools also have the opportunity to apply for grants to construct outdoor classrooms which can enhance and expand opportunities in many disciplines. This popular program enables students to learn in an "outdoor laboratory" that may include a wetland, stream, wildflower garden, prairie or other natural feature.

The statewide Office of Environmental Education is housed in the outreach and education division to provide an infrastructure for other state agencies and private efforts involving classroom education on environmental principles. One of its major accomplishments has been the creation of the Model Schools Program, which integrates science, math, social studies, art and language arts into studies about the environment. One of several programs nationally, the Model Schools Program has successfully raised test scores and lowered absenteeism where it has been implemented.

The Jerry J. Presley Conservation Education Center on the banks of the Current River in Shannon County hosts workshops for teachers and others who want to learn more about Missouri ecosystems. Teachers take away practical information to help meet Missouri standardized testing goals and conduct effective conservation education.

A variety of programs with colorful acronyms like WOW (Wonders of the Outdoor World), HOOT (Hands-On Outdoor Training) and BOW (Becoming an Outdoors Woman) are all intended to give people the skills they need to enjoy Missouri's outdoors. These popular programs are attended by more than a thousand participants a year, who take away skills like fly fishing, identifying wild edibles, bow and muzzle-loader hunting, and a panoply of other outdoor-oriented activities.

Private Land Services

The mission of the Private Land Services Division is "to help Missouri landowners achieve their land use objectives in ways that enhance the conservation of Missouri's natural resources." The health of much of our state's natural resources is dependent on the land stewardship of private landowners, as approximately 93% of Missouri's landscape is in private ownership. Providing sound natural resource information and technical assistance to these private landowners is critical to long-term sustainability of our forest, fish, and wildlife resources. The Private Land Services Division includes a staff of resource professionals dedicated to working with private landowners to improve forest, fish, and wildlife conditions on their property.

We promote the wise use of fish, forest, wildlife, and natural communities through voluntary participation, information, education, and financial assistance. The Wildlife Habitat Improvement Program (WHIP) provides information, seed, and other materials to private landowners for wildlife habitat improvement. The LAWS (Landowners Assisting Wildlife Survival) program provides a cash incentive to landowners for leaving strips of standing grain next to permanent wildlife cover in production agricultural land. This is a two-year program that provides an idle strip of land that is very beneficial to wildlife next to a crop field. A multi-faceted cost share program provides incentive payments to landowners for implementation of selected natural resources management practices.

Private Land Services personnel strive to provide prompt, professional assistance to landowners in the evaluation of natural resource conditions and recommend appropriate management and improvement techniques. Private Land Conservationists provide one-on-one assistance, tailoring management recommendations to the land use goals of the landowner and site specific natural resource needs. Teams of resource professionals from all MDC Divisions, work collectively and independently with landowners and other resource partners to address important resource issues. Urban Watershed Conservationists provide assistance to urban developers, homeowners, city and county planners, and others to address land use issues relating to urban sprawl and development. The Wildlife Damage Control Program provides assistance to landowners experiencing damage to their property by wildlife, including beaver, coyote, otter, Canada geese, deer, and others. Wetland Services Biologists provide specialized technical assistance to landowners to restore and manage wetland habitats.

Establishment of partnerships with state and federal agencies, commodity groups, agribusinesses, and conservation organizations help achieve shared natural resource goals. MDC has established effective working partnerships with Natural Resources Conservation Service and Farm Service Agency to integrate fish, forest and wildlife considerations into implementation of Farm Bill programs that include Conservation Reserve Program (CRP), Wetlands Reserve Program (WRP), Environmental Quality Incentive Program (EQIP), and Wildlife Habitat Improvement Program (WHIP). To complement funding available through Farm Bill programs, MDC offers cost-share that is tailored to regional resource needs and landowner interest. Close coordination with the Department of Natural Resources' Soil and Water Conservation Program maximizes private land resource progress through programs of both agencies. Liaison efforts with Agriculture agencies and groups have fostered communication and understanding of fish, forest, and wildlife issues within the agriculture and conservation communities. These efforts are enhanced through participation in serving on Farm Bill committees, task force groups, and Ag advisory councils.

Private Land Services Division also promotes the development of alternative economic opportunities that benefit Missouri landowners and our natural resources. Native warm season grass planting and management assistance is provided through the Grassland Biologists on thousands of acres each year. "Grow Native!" is a complementary native plant program that encourages the use of native plant materials in backyard landscaping and large acreage of native community restoration. This program also works to increase the supply of true Missouri native plant materials through the Missouri Ecotype Project (MOEP). Production and sale of these native plant materials provides potential alternative economic opportunities for Missouri landowners.

We encourage a land stewardship ethic among landowners, strive to increase community involvement, build trust and heighten understanding of the Department's overall mission. Our "field force" of Private Land Conservationists, Wetland Services Biologists, Wildlife Services Biologists, Urban Watershed Conservationists, and Wildlife Damage Control Biologists are strategically located throughout the state to provide routine contact with landowners, communities, civil clubs, churches, schools, and others. This interaction with Missouri's citizens provides the foundation for building understanding between different interest groups and ensures a well informed approach to conservation of our natural resources.

Protection Division

The protection division is composed of uniformed conservation agents, outdoor skills supervisors, shooting range program and support staff. Conservation agents, by official designation, serve as department representatives in their assigned areas and have responsibility for enforcing all statutory enactments related to fish, wildlife and forestry, and rules and regulations promulgated by the Conservation Commission. Conservation agents are certified as peace officers to enforce all state laws on lands owned, managed or leased by the department. Many agents are also commissioned by the U.S. Department of the Interior to enforce federal conservation laws.

Resource law enforcement is very important in managing Missouri's fish, forestry and wildlife resources. Conservation agents are assigned to each county in the state and are responsible for carrying out a wide range of wildlife-related law enforcement duties. Patrols by vehicle, boat and foot are routine. Agents depend heavily on help from local citizens to report violations.

Although law enforcement is the division's primary function, only about half of an agent's time is devoted to that activity. Other duties include hunter education, resource management assistance to landowners, media contacts, and educational and informational programs to youth and adult groups. Numerous surveys, censuses and special field studies are conducted for state and federal fish and wildlife research personnel.

Many special programs require personal contact with individual landowners. Preparation of land-use plans, delivery of seed and wildlife plantings, inspection of developments and periodic progress reports are involved in wildlife habitat improvement and fish stocking programs. Preliminary contacts with landowners and arrangements for wildlife management projects, lake development and other large-scale department projects are delegated to agents. Frequently, community interest and participation in department projects designed to provide or increase local recreational opportunities result from encouragement or initiation by agents.

In addition to fish, wildlife and forestry program duties, many agents present regularly scheduled informational or educational programs on radio and television. A number of newspapers in the state carry weekly outdoor columns prepared by conservation agents.

The department implemented a voluntary hunter education program in 1957 and, through 1987, more than 449,000 persons completed training in firearms safety, hunter responsibilities and ethics, and hunter/landowner relations. Hunter education training became mandatory in 1988 for all persons born on or after January 1, 1967, as a prerequisite to purchasing any firearms hunting permit. Conservation agents, along with volunteer instructors, have completed hunter education training for another 411,793 persons since 1988. The education of safe and responsible hunters is an important function that requires continued effort to meet the changing needs of hunters.

Skills in how to safely handle firearms are taught in the hunter education program, and the development of individual abilities to shoot firearms accurately are encouraged. Safe places were needed for firearms practice, and public shooting ranges offer those opportunities.

The department began to develop safe shooting ranges on conservation areas in 1972. Since that time, new ranges have been added almost every year. The ultimate goal is to provide safe places for people to shoot that are easily accessible in and around population centers.

Ranges on conservation areas meet or exceed all national safety standards for shooting range design, and are safety inspected at least twice yearly to ensure proper maintenance and continued safety.

Wildlife Division

The wildlife division is responsible for programs related to the conservation of the wildlife resources of the state for the use and enjoyment of all citizens. Professional programs, staff and a long-term commitment are the keys to the agency's success in wildlife management. Programs are planned, administered and implemented cooperatively through three management units and a research section.

The division has management responsibility for 365 publicly-owned or leased areas totaling 496,736 acres. Annual accomplishments include: active management of 1,500 acres of glades, 29,000 acres of grassland/prairies and 3,500 acres of savannas; completion of 5,000 acres of timber stand improvement; supervision of 66,000 acres of cropping directly and through permittee farmers; management of 3,700 acres of greentree reservoir; manipulation of 20,000 acres of old fields; and provision of 37,000 acres of seasonal wetlands as habitat for resident and migratory wildlife. Public use activities on conservation areas are emphasized and, in addition to traditional uses, also include nature viewing, interpretation and managed hunting programs.

Division field staff provide a wide range of wildlife management assistance to private landowners. On-ground assistance is provided on over 1,000 ownerships each year. Initiatives are being implemented to target species such as prairie chicken and bobwhite quail that are on decline due to wide-scale changes in land use. Division field staff contacted over 11,000 Missouri citizens a year through workshops and programs, providing technical advice and assistance.

Wildlife restoration programs have been conducted for many species since the department was created in 1937 including, wild turkeys, whitetail deer, peregrine falcon, river otter, and ruffed grouse. Most wildlife restoration activities have been coordinated by the division, including the relocation of eight ospreys this past year.

Research projects cover all phases of wildlife management. In recent years, broad scope and long-term ecosystem studies have been emphasized. Researchers complete six to eight population and habitat studies per year and initiate 5 new investigations. Formulation of annual wildlife harvest regulations recommendations are important aspects of research. Approximately eight cooperative studies on agricultural topics affecting wildlife are underway annually. The division also conducts a series of adaptive management experiments designed to provide answers to shorter term management questions.

General Counsel

All litigation in which the department, the commission or a staff member is a party is handled by the general counsel. The general counsel is also responsible for preparation of title options for all real estate purchased by the department, in addition to leases and management agreements. Other functions include services to other attorneys and prospective donors to the department's donation program, assistance in law enforcement training for employees, and liaison with the Office of Attorney General.

Internal Auditor

The internal audit function provides an independent review and evaluation of designated department activities. It assists the commission and director by furnishing analyses, appraisals, recommendations and pertinent information concerning the activities reviewed.

The Department of Corrections is an agency dedicated to public safety through the successful management and supervision of offenders on probation, in prison and on parole. The Department's responsibility is to administer the sentence set by the court—ranging from probation to capital punishment—in ways that promote the longest lasting public safety at the lowest cost to taxpayers. Offenders assigned to the Department are successfully managed by ensuring they are supervised at the correct custody or supervision level. A cadre of over 11,000 well-trained correctional professionals committed to the vision, mission, values and professional principles of the department, assesses each offender's criminal history, evaluates community and institutional conduct and enforces compliance with court orders and department rules. This blend of ongoing assessment, custody classification, placement on a continuum of supervision strategies and assignment to basic habilitation interventions are several of the key methods used to promote sober, civil, productive and law-abiding behavior to enhance public safety.

There are currently more than 28,000 adult felons confined in Missouri's 21 correctional facilities and two community release centers. The department also supervises 11,500 parolees and 48,000 probationers across the state. In all, the department is responsible for the care, custody and supervision of approximately 90,000 adult offenders in Missouri.

There are four divisions within the Department. The management of felons and selected misdemeanants committed by the court are divided between the Division of Probation and Parole and the Division of Adult Institutions. The Division of Offender Rehabilitative Services provides program services to felons assigned to probation, parole or prison. All staff related activities and special program services are provided through the Division of Human Services.

The department utilizes strategic planning to promote continuous improvement and excellent customer service at all levels of the organization. This commitment to continuous improvement ensures that offenders under the supervision of the Department of Corrections are assigned to the correct custody classification and receive those services that reduce criminal behavior and promote the longest lasting public safety through a measurable reduction in recidivism and revocation.

The department has actively assisted in the crafting of legislation that has enhanced public safety by increasing sanctions and expanding pre-release requirements for offenders. Senate Bill 763 which was enacted in 1994 increased the amount of time violent and repeat felons must serve in secure confinement prior to parole and required all inmates to work while confined. This bill also established three tracks for drug treatment to promote sobriety and crime free lifestyles.

House Bill 424 was signed into law in 1995 emphasizing the acquisition of literacy skills by inmates, it established that by January 1, 2001 all inmates will be required to earn a GED to be parole eligible. The bill also set out methods by which inmates with available financial resources will pay for the cost of their incarceration.

In 1996 House Bill 974 established criteria to identify persons who have committed or are likely to commit predatory sexual offenses and per that finding, impose a life sentence featuring a mandatory term of imprisonment, lifetime state correctional supervision and enhanced sex registration requirements.

In 1997 House Bill 823 and Senate Bill 430 codified Restorative Justice Programs to more completely include victims and the community to increase the public's confidence in the criminal justice system through increased involvement and understanding. The bills enabled the courts to establish local volunteer boards to provide community input into sentencing and supervision practices. The bill also authorized the Department to require restorative activities in prison and as a condition of parole to increase offender accountability to the community and victims.

To further protect society from sexual offenders HB 1405 was passed in 1998 to allow the state to commit inmates who perpetrated certain sex offenses to treatment within the Department of Mental Health following completion of their prison sentence. This action can be taken only after a thorough due process court procedure involving approval from two panels independent of each other and a hearing before the local circuit court where the crime was committed.

Offender Management

Risk management is the process of classifying offenders according to the risk they currently present to the public so as to assign them to the institutional custody or community supervision level that best controls their conduct. Department staff assesses, evaluates and intervenes as necessary to ensure offenders are held accountable for the crimes and responsible for their behavior. This ensures that offenders are managed in ways that best promote public safety in accordance with the sentence of the court.

Risk management is accomplished in a variety of ways. Pre-sentence investigations assist the court in determining sentencing options. Individualized institutional treatment programs for substance abusers, sex offenders, and others that experience mental health or other special problems provide offenders with the necessary skills for successful reintegration into society. Supervision strategies such as intensive supervision, electronic monitoring, day reporting centers, residential facilities provide offenders with a structured environment for increased supervision. To make reparation for the harm they have caused individual victims and communities, restorative justice programming in institutions and field offices is in place to require offenders to repair the harm their crimes have caused individuals and their communities. The institutional classification system ensures felons in prison are confined at custody levels that maintain facility security and public safety.

Office of the Director

The Director of the Missouri Department of Corrections is charged with shaping legislation, formulating policies and procedures, and informing the public to effectively and efficiently guide and implement objectives and goals that increase the public's safety. Included in the Office of the Director are units that participate in these endeavors, notably Budget and Planning, Constituent Services, Fiscal Management and General Services, Information Systems, Inspector General, Legal Services, Population Management, Labor Relations, Legislative Affairs, Public Information and Victim Services.

Budget and Planning

This section, under the direction of the Office of the Director, is responsible for guiding the strategic planning process and developing the department's budget proposal. The strategic planning process and the department's commitment to continuous improvement are effective ways in which the Department develops efficient and economical operations. Corrections staff uses the strategic planning process to identify critical issues, develop goals, objectives and strategies to meet and measure the steps required to address critical issues. Staff also identifies the resources required to implement strategies.

The Research and Evaluation unit, a part of the Budget and Planning section, is responsible for providing continuous improvement through outcome research.

Fiscal Management and General Services

Fiscal Management is responsible for departmental financial activities and the coordination of those activities with other state agencies. This section oversees implementation and maintenance of a variety of complex accounting systems including the inmate canteen and inmate banking system, and the working capital revolving fund.

General Services is responsible for purchasing, storing and distributing commodity food items to the department's institutions statewide, accounting for Department expenses and equipment, and for major new construction and maintenance projects within the department.

Information Systems

The Information Systems Unit has the responsibility of managing and operating all data processing activity in the department. A centralized mainframe computer, in conjunction with a statewide telecommunications network, services more than 5,360 employees at 75 locations. The department's offender databases are integrated with other state agency information to comprise a criminal justice support capability throughout the state.

Inspector General

The Office of the Inspector General is charged with objectively examining department operations to ensure they are in compliance with established policy and procedure. This is accomplished through the Internal Affairs Unit and the Compliance and Accreditation unit. Internal Affairs is the investigative arm of the department and conducts investigations in response to reports of suspected violation of statute and department policy and procedure. The Compliance and Accreditation Unit in the Office of the Inspector General develops, reviews and audits current department practices to ensure department policy and procedure is being followed. This unit also recommends and coordinates department policy and procedure revision.

Population Management

This section provides the Department with a continuous assessment and evaluation of the resources available for confining and treating the offender population whether in prison or on probation or parole. Strategic planning ensures that long term models are developed to impact offender management and population growth. Strategies are developed to assist in the successful and cost effective management of offenders and outcome studies are provided to evaluate their effectiveness. Staff in this unit schedules placement dates for residential facilities and community release centers and institutional treatment centers within correctional facilities. This requires staff to work closely with probation and parole officers and the courts to ensure offenders receive treatment within statutorily specified time frames.

Constituent Services, Labor Relations, Legislative Affairs, Public Information and Victim Services

These five sections of the Office of the Director provide and coordinate information to specific audiences concerning the operation of the Department and its Divisions.

Constituent Services invites inquiries from offenders, their families, advocacy groups, the Governor's office and legislators about conditions of confinement.

The Labor Relations Office serves to ensure that effective and continuous communication exists between the department and the certified bargaining units that represent employees. This office also identifies and resolves labor management issues, and serves as the link to the Office of Administration with the responsibility of interpreting and applying state guidelines governing labor management.

Legislative Affairs responds to inquiries from legislators and other interested parties regarding legislation and its impact on department operations.

The Public Information Office addresses inquiries from the news media, the general public, and other interested parties. This office also generates department publications, videos and promotes department activities.

The Department's Office of Victim Services (OVS) was established to ensure core services and accurate information are timely provided to Missouri crime victims. The OVS is designed to ensure victims are regularly advised of offenders' status. The OVS provides victim notification and accessibility to department proceedings including parole hearings, victim impact statements prepared by probation officers for inclusion in pre-sentence investigations, reasonable protection from offenders or others acting on behalf of offenders, notice of release from confinement or supervision and restitution for financial loss. OVS provided services to over 36,000 victims of crime and initiated 10,215 notifications to victims, by telephone or letter, during FY99 and FY00.

Other ways in which offenders make reparation include community service, payment of restitution and other fees imposed by the courts. The total dollar amount returned to the community in FY99 and FY00 by offenders was 14.4 million dollars. This included restitution to victims, payments to the victims' compensation fund and court costs. Through the Department programs offenders repair the harm not only to individuals, but communities as well. Offenders and inmates also performed 1,364,679 hours of community service during FY99 and FY00.

Division of Human Services

The Division of Human Services consists of Training and Employee Development, Employee Health/Wellness/Safety, Human Resource Management, Restorative Justice Services, Religious Affairs, and Volunteer/Intern Programs. This division provides support to the Division of Adult Institutions, Division of Offender Rehabilitative Services, the Division of Probation and Parole and the Department of Corrections technical staff. A professionally trained work force, where safety and wellness is practiced as part of the job, is essential to carrying out the vision, mission, values and professional principals of the department. The Division of Human Services is tasked with improving the work environment of employees, recruiting a diverse professional work force, maintaining that qualified work force, and improving communication between management and staff.

Training and Employee Development

The Training Academy develops, coordinates and delivers pre-service, in-service and management/supervisory training to staff in each of the department's divisions. The Academy consists of 61 full-time staff and a cadre of part-time volunteer trainers who perform their duties in one of the department's three regions: Central, Eastern and Western. The Academy promotes the personal growth, professional development and imparts the departmental vision to all staff members to help them achieve the short and long term goals of the agency. To this end, the regions conduct pre-service basic training courses for all new corrections officers, non-custody staff, and correctional services trainees. In addition, more than 300 in-service and management courses are presented annually. The Academy is also responsible for Probation and Parole safety training and a variety of other certification programs. The Academy designs and develops all departmental curricula.

Restorative Justice

In Missouri inmates perform restorative justice initiatives that assist victims and victimized communities as part of their sentence to prison. As examples, inmates from Boonville raised over 30,000 pounds of vegetables and fruits for a local food bank. In Jefferson City the inmate population raised over $5,000 for local charities through their can recycling program and other charitable events. In Moberly, inmates assemble personal transportation vehicles for individuals who have lost their legs to disease, crime and landmines throughout the world. Inmates in Cameron grow flowers to adorn the lunches for local Meals on Wheels programs and in Farmington inmates build wheelchair ramps for non-for profit agencies.

Probation and Parole offices sponsor a variety of restorative justice programs for offenders under their supervision living in the community. Reparative Boards are comprised of citizens from the community specially trained by Department staff to meet with offenders concerning their behavior under supervision. They provide the court with an assessment of an offender's needs and how the offender can best repair the harm they have caused the victim or the community. Victim impact panels are used in correctional facilities and by probation and parole officers to demonstrate to offenders how crime personally affects victims. The panels are made up of crime victims who explain how criminal behavior has changed their lives and directly impact individuals, families and communities.

Employee Health/Wellness/Safety

This section addresses job-related health and safety concerns with focus on control of communicable and infectious diseases; oversees and implements occupational safety concerns and coordinates and promotes employee wellness activities. The Workforce Violence Coordinator is also part of this unit and provides staff with assistance following a traumatic workplace incident.

A 1997 study by the U.S. Department of Justice found that correctional officers had the fourth highest incidence of violent incidents per 1,000 workers during a recent five-year period. Correctional personnel also have higher levels of work-related stress than other occupations. The Department established a Workplace Violence Prevention Unit as part of the Employee Health/Wellness/Safety Section to develop and implement department wide programs to respond to staff's needs as they relate to violence in the workplace.

Human Resource Management

This section processes all personnel and payroll actions, maintains personnel records, clarifies classification issues and coordinates the recruitment and hiring of employees within the guidelines of the Missouri State Merit System. The Human Resource Management Section also handles employee relations and participates in labor relations discussions.

Religious Affairs

The Supervisor of Religious Affairs oversees the activities of 24 full-time Institutional Chaplains who coordinate meeting space and time for religious services to ensure that the spiritual needs of all inmates are met. Spiritual worship services, programs, and other religious activities are also planned and coordinated through this unit.

Volunteers/Interns - Special Events

Volunteers are utilized throughout the department and recognized as non-salaried employees. They are recruited to augment institutional and community services for offenders. Volunteers are required to complete an extensive training regimen before assignment and are supervised under state and departmental personnel rules and regulations. This section coordinates volunteer training and assignment and monitors student internship programs. This unit is also responsible for implementing and monitoring special events and programs.

Division of Offender Rehabilitative Services

The Division of Offender Rehabilitative Services is the arm of the department responsible for developing and delivering interventions and services necessary for offenders to correct their criminal behavior at each point in the department's supervision continuum. These services and interventions include Academic and Vocational Education, Medical Contractual Services, Mental Health, Missouri Sexual Offender Program, Missouri Vocational Enterprises, and Substance Abuse Services. These program services allow corrections professionals throughout the department to fully utilize the supervision continuum to better resolve offender issues such as literacy, sobriety and employability. Without remediation these factors would impede their return to the community as law abiding and productive citizens. By creating increased offender accountability the longest lasting public safety is achieved.

Adult Basic Education

A basic education is an integral part of the rehabilitative process. In order to prepare inmates for successful reintegration to society and to reduce recidivism, offenders without a high school diploma or equivalent (General Educational Diploma Certificate [GED]) are required by statute to participate in Adult Basic Education classes. The mandatory academic educational program provides offenders an opportunity to obtain the GED certificate and make positive and measurable progress in academic education. It also provides a correctional environment in which inmates are constructive while confined and productive when released. The individually prescribed curriculum utilizes both computer programs and text based materials. Classes range from basic literacy and English as a second language through post-secondary education. The academic education section offers the following programs for the offenders to prepare themselves for release:

Assessment: Staff at intake centers screen and properly diagnose all offenders prior to school assignments.

Adult Education: Classes that assist the offender in working toward the GED certificate.

Literacy: Classes providing specific materials and instruction for those with limited English proficiency and reading skills.

Title I: Provides supplemental instructional services for educationally disadvantaged students under age 21.

Special Education: Provides appropriate education for offenders with disabilities through the age of 21.

Youthful Offender Program: Eligible offenders receive life and job skills through the pursuit of post-secondary education while incarcerated and continue through pre-release and parole.

The Missouri Department of Elementary and Secondary Education certifies all Department teachers and administrators.

The Mandatory Academic Education Statute, Section 207.690.10 Revised Statutes State of Missouri establishes that offenders must earn their GED certificate or exhibit continuous hones, good faith effort toward academic success to be eligible for parole. With this added emphasis on education and academic progress the education section's goal is that eighty percent of students served will show success in one or more areas of reading, math or language during a three-month period.

Currently academic education can serve over 8,900 eligible offenders daily and during the past two fiscal years over 4,500 inmates have earned their GED certificates. Eighty percent of the inmates who take the GED test pass. This rate exceeds both the state and national average.

Workforce Readiness

This section is responsible for the development, delivery and evaluation of school, work and community based activities for Missouri offenders.

School Based programs include a number of vocational training programs throughout the prison system. These programs include computer repair, automotive repair, business technology, electrical wiring, residential carpentry and plumbing, diesel mechanics and industrial technology, culinary arts and cosmetology among others. Additionally, School Based programs include training for offenders in computer refurbishing and repair and technical literacy. This specialized program is delivered in partnership with local community colleges. To help ensure that offenders are prepared to work, an employability and life skills class is available. This program is designed to provide skills vital to success in the work world such as communication, cultural diversity, conflict resolution, personal finance management and knowing how to find and keep a job.

Work Based programs are delivered via apprenticeships and on the job training delivered by the Missouri Vocational Enterprises (MVE) and through institutional jobs. MVE also provides skilled training programs such as computer aided drafting and similar software to assist the offender secure and retain meaningful employment upon release.

Community Based Connecting activities are designed to establish partnerships with state and community agencies. These activities provide access to services available that may help offenders and their families in the process of social reintegration in a free society. Additionally these initiatives bring the department in contact with individuals from within the community to discuss offender reintegration strategies.

Missouri Vocational Enterprises

Missouri Vocational Enterprises (MVE) is responsible for 25 different industries in 11 correctional institutions throughout the state. At any one time MVE employs approximately 1,400 inmates who provide a variety of products and services for sale to state agencies, city and county governments, political subdivisions, state employees, and not-for-profit organizations. MVE's goal is to increase work and training opportunities for inmates. Profits generated by MVE sales are used to develop new products and create expanded vocational training opportunities. During FY99 and FY00 a total of 2,151 inmates graduated from vocational education programs.

One of MVE's most unique industries is the award winning Waste Tire to Energy program. Waste Tire to Energy involves Department of Corrections inmates cleaning up illegal tire dumps around the state as identified by the Department of Natural Resources. The tires are then shredded by inmates into rubber tire chips, which are then mixed with coal to power the University of Missouri, Columbia's power plant. The clearing of the dumps reduces health hazards and prevents fires associated with illegal dumps. The mixture of chips and coal recycles waste, burns hotter and cleaner than coal alone thus reducing air pollution and saving the state fuel costs. Since the program's inception in March 1995, the Department has recycled over 25,000 tons of tires at 25 different sites across the state.

Medical Services

By law the Department is responsible for the health care of offenders in their custody. The Medical Services unit oversees medical care, which have been provided on a contract basis since December 1, 1992. This managed-care system stresses health care education, primary prevention, immediate identification of health problems and early intervention to prevent more debilitating chronic health problems. Medical units are located in every correctional center. Depending upon institutional size, the level of care ranges from daily, routine medical and dental sick call services to 24-hour care infirmaries. Chronic care clinics ensure those with chronic conditions are regularly assessed and provided continuous medical care by licensed nurses and physicians.

Mental Health

When inmates are sentenced to prison mental health needs are accessed during the intake process at the reception and diagnostic centers. This consists of a mental health screening and psychological testing to determine if intervention is needed and, if so, what measures should be taken to stabilize the offender's mental illness and assist with institutional adjustment.

The Department works closely with the Department of Mental Health in three key programs designed for treating individuals with severe and persistent mental illness. There are 42 psychiatric hospital beds available at the Biggs Forensic center at the Fulton State Hospital. This unit is occupied by individuals who are experiencing acute exacerbation of their mental illness. In addition, two specialized programs are available with the Farmington Correctional Center. The Social Rehabilitative Unit is comprised of 200 beds and is designed to provide a long-term structured environment. The Correctional Treatment Center provides mental health services for the offender population and is frequently used as a "step-down" program for offenders released from the Biggs Correctional Treatment Unit. Psychological services are available in all institutions, ranging from individual and group therapy services to special programs for the chronically mentally ill.

Additional mental health programs are available at the Special Needs Unit located within the Potosi Correctional Center. This program is designed to serve offenders with developmental disabilities and prepare them for return to general population in prison. The Algoa Correctional Center, near Jefferson City, has developed the Psychological Rehabilitative Education Preparation Unit (PREP) to assist offenders in understanding mental illness and learn strategies to reduce further criminal behavior.

Missouri Sexual Offender Program (MOSOP)

The director of the Department of Corrections is mandated (RSMo 589.040) to develop a program of treatment, education and rehabilitation for sexual assault offenders. By department policy, the successful completion of MOSOP is mandatory for a release prior to an inmate's sentence completion date. The MOSOP program, consisting of approximately 12 months of therapy, is provided at the Farmington Correctional Center for men and the Women's Eastern Reception, Diagnostic and Correctional Center in Vandalia for females. The department has also instituted MOSOP treatment in its field services to probationers and parolees. During the past two fiscal years of 1999 and 2000, 1,219 inmates attended MOSOP and 313 graduated from the program. Those who failed to successfully complete were required to complete their entire sentence and were not released prior to that date.

The Sex Offenders Assessment Unit (SOAU), a 120-day pre-sentencing residential program, was established in FY94. It is designed to assess community risks and sex offender treatment needs. Information is then shared with the court for sentencing considerations. During FY99 and FY00 there were 237 offenders assessed for the courts at the SOAU.

Substance Abuse Services

About 55 percent of all offenders in Missouri have an acute need for drug education. An additional 20 percent suffer from chronic addiction that requires treatment. To meet those needs the department has developed a wide range of substance abuse services for inmates in institutions as well as offenders supervised in the community to provide the earliest possible intervention and the most effective treatment. There are currently over 2,700 substance abuse treatment beds in Missouri's prisons, an increase of over 200 percent since 1993. During FY99 and FY00 21,760 inmates were treated in these institutional treatment centers.

Department institutional treatment centers provide a structured regimented 12 weeks of comprehensive substance abuse treatment for inmates, parole and probation violators. They operate from eight correctional centers in Maryville, Fordland, Boonville, Jefferson City, Vandalia, Cameron, St. Joseph, Mineral Point and Farmington, and are utilized as alternatives to traditional incarceration. Inmates and offenders are held accountable for their behavior and required to successfully complete the treatment intervention prior to release. The department also sponsors a variety of substance abuse education programs, after care and support groups, as well as 12 step programs both within the institution and the community. The Department also partners with the Department of Mental Health's Division of Alcohol and Drug Abuse to provide effective treatment and continuity of care. The Division of Offender Rehabilitative Services Substance Abuse Services Unit has developed strong links with community providers to establish priorities through joint planning and program development. These efforts can be seen in the institutions and the communities throughout Missouri.

Treatment beds are spread throughout the state from minimum to maximum security institutions. The Maryville Treatment Center is a 525 intensive therapeutic treatment center for offenders requiring structured treatment as a last step before they are released. The Park Building in St. Joseph at the Western Reception, Diagnostic and Correctional Center provides an additional 480 beds for treatment services for male inmates. Other institutions that provide treatment beds include: Ozark Correctional Center, Jefferson City Correctional Center, St. Louis Community Release Center and Women's Eastern Reception, Diagnostic and Correctional Center.

In 1994, Senate Bill 763 authorized the creation of three innovative drug treatment programs to tackle specific substance abuse problems. The Offenders Under Treatment Program, the Post Conviction Drug Program and the long-term Cocaine Addiction Programs are currently in operation for male and female offenders. The Cocaine Addiction Program lasts up to 18 months for offenders who are in need of long-term drug treatment for long-term addictions. Offenders Under Treatment is a 180-day treatment program for those whose drug problem was a precipitating factor in their offense. The Post Conviction Drug Treatment Program is designed for probationers who have failed to complete treatment within the community.

The Required Assessment, Education and Treatment (REACT) is a statewide program for persons placed on probation by the Court for a felony drug offense. Offenders must submit to an assessment within 60 days of their term of probation as a condition of probation and then address the causes identified in that assessment through substance abuse education and treatment programs. REACT also increases offender accountability by requiring probationers to pay for all or a significant portion of the program services, depending on financial ability.

Drug screening via urinalysis is an important part of the department's zero tolerance approach toward drug use by inmates and offenders. Every month about 6,500 urine samples are collected from inmates and offenders and screened by the department toxicology laboratory. These samples assist corrections professionals in assessing, evaluating and referring inmates and offenders to appropriate substance abuse programs within the institutions and the community.

To further combat the illegal use of drugs in prison the department has enhanced interdiction efforts to intercept drug transactions and deliveries. The combination of drug intervention, drug screening and treatment strategies enforces the department's zero tolerance standard for inmate drug use.

Division of Adult Institutions

The Division of Adult Institutions is responsible for the supervision and management of the state's 20 correctional centers. By Missouri law, a felon must be 17 years of age or older or certified as an adult by the Circuit Court and have a sentence of not less than one year to be committed to the division. Inmates are also required to make payments from their individual inmate accounts for court ordered fines or judgments to the Crime Victims Compensation Fund.

Each inmate assigned to the Division of Adult Institutions is required to work, attend school or participate in court or parole board ordered treatment on a full time basis throughout the period of confinement. Community service is also strongly encouraged. As of June 30, 2001 there were 28,000 inmates assigned to the division, an increase of over 3,000 inmates in two years since the last state manual was published.

Citizens Advisory Committee

The Department utilizes a Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) comprised of 12 private citizens appointed by the Governor to evaluate grievances filed by inmates and referred to the Director of the Department. The CAC makes recommendations to the Director of the Department for the resolution of those grievances as specified in the Department Inmate Grievance Procedure. The CAC meets on a monthly basis at different correctional institutions and also makes on-site inspections.

Algoa Correctional Center

The Algoa Correctional Center (ACC) opened in 1932 and is located six miles east of Jefferson City. It is a male medium security (C-3) facility housing 1,635 inmates. ACC was selected as one of three facilities to pilot the Long Distance Dads Parenting Program for male inmates.

Boonville Correctional Center

The Boonville Correctional Center (BCC) is located at the former Missouri Training School for Boys and was constructed in 1889. The facility, located in Boonville, was transferred to the Department of Corrections on July 1, 1983. BCC is a medium security C-3 male facility housing 1,466 inmates.

Central Missouri Correctional Center

The Central Missouri Correctional Center (CMCC) is a (C-3) medium security facility that houses 1,000 adult male offenders. The institution is located approximately six miles west of Jefferson City on Highway 179. It was formerly known as the Church Farm and is frequently referred to by that name also.

Chillicothe Correctional Center

The Chillicothe Correctional Center (CCC) is a female facility named for its host city in the northwest part of the state. CCC houses inmates of all custody levels (C1 to C-5) and has an operational capacity of 525 inmates. It was formerly a detention facility for female juveniles.

Crossroads Correctional Center

The Crossroads Correctional Center (CRCC) is a maximum security (C-5) male facility located adjacent to the Western Missouri Correctional Center in Cameron. It opened in March 1997 housing 1,500 inmates. CRCC was the first Missouri prison to install a lethal electric fence.

Farmington Correctional Center

The Farmington Correctional Center (FCC) is a (C-4) high custody male facility housing 2,725

inmates and has been a correctional facility since 1986. FCC is situated on the grounds of the former Farmington State Mental Hospital. FCC is home to specialized programs for inmates with mental illness, sex offenders and young men in the Regimented Discipline Program.

Fulton Reception and Diagnostic Center

The Fulton Reception and Diagnostic Center (FRDC) is the intake and orientation center for male inmates assigned from central and eastern Missouri. When the Eastern Reception, Diagnostic and Correctional Center opens FRDC will convert to a maximum security (C-5) institution for men and maintain its intake and orientation center for male inmates committed to the Department by the courts of central Missouri.

The staff is responsible for the evaluation of inmates and their assignment to other correctional facilities custody levels C-1 to C-5. Assigning inmates to an appropriate facility increases public and institutional safety by ensuring the mix of inmates are balanced in terms of offense, length of sentence, community and institutional risk, and individual inmate needs such as aggressiveness, mental health, substance abuse, employment and vocational. FRDC houses 1,118 inmates.

FRDC also administers two other programs located on the grounds of the Fulton State Mental Hospital. The Biggs Correctional Unit (BCU) is a 30-day evaluation center for inmates suffering from mental illness. This unit houses 20 male and 10 female inmates.

The Cremer Therapeutic Community Center (CTCC) is a 180-bed comprehensive treatment facility that administers a variety of programs for male inmates requiring further evaluation by the courts. A similar program for females is housed at the Women's Eastern Reception, Diagnostic and Correctional Center.

Jefferson City Correctional Center

The Jefferson City Correctional Center (JCCC), formerly known as the Missouri State Penitentiary, is the oldest correctional institution operating west of the Mississippi River. It was authorized by the General Assembly in 1832 and received its first offender in 1836. One housing unit completed in 1868 is still in use today and is now on the Historic Register of Buildings. The institution is distinguished by a high limestone wall with 15 officer towers surrounding a 47-acre compound. It is a maximum security (C-5) institution housing nearly 2,000 male offenders. Due to its age and high maintenance costs JCCC is scheduled for replacement by a new facility near the Algoa Correctional Center in 2004.

Maryville Treatment Center

The Maryville Treatment Center (MTC), which opened in December 1996 is located in northwestern Missouri and is a minimum security (C-2) treatment facility. MTC has a capacity of 547 male inmates who have a history of alcohol and drug abuse. Inmates are expected to follow a rigid and demanding schedule of activities to prepare them for a successful and sober transition to the community.

Missouri Eastern Correctional Center

The Missouri Eastern Correctional Center (MECC) is a high custody (C-4) facility located at Pacific serving 1,100 male inmates. MECC offers the Missouri Sexual Offenders Program for male inmates with disabilities.

Moberly Correctional Center

The Moberly Correctional Center (MCC), formerly known as the Missouri Training Center for Men, opened in 1963 and is a (C-4) high custody institution serving 1,800 male inmates. MCC is home to the male dialysis center for those with special medical needs.

The Northeast Correctional Center (NECC) opened in March 1998 housing 1,975 high custody (C-4) male inmates in Bowling Green. NECC also provides special housing and programming arrangements for male offenders under the age of 17.

Ozark Correctional Center

The Ozark Correctional Center (OCC) is a minimum security (C-2) institution housing 695 male inmates located in Webster County near the community of Fordland. It was formerly a United States Air Force Base in the 1950's. An additional 45 inmates are housed at a satellite institution, Camp Hawthorn, located at the Lake of the Ozarks State Park. Inmates at Camp Hawthorn provide labor for various state park projects in the Lake of the Ozarks area.

Potosi Correctional Center

The Potosi Correctional Center (PCC) is located on 140 acres approximately two miles east of Potosi. The first facility in the state to be built under the lease/purchase concept received its first inmates in February 1989. The facility was constructed and currently houses 800 capital punishment, maximum security and high risk male inmates including those sentenced to death.

South Central Correctional Center

The South Central Correctional Center is situated on a 205 acre tract site northwest of Licking about one mile west of the city of Licking off U.S. Highway 63. SCCC employs 445 correctional professionals when fully staffed and has a capacity to confine 1,596 maximum security male inmates.

Southeast Correctional Center

The Southeast Correctional center is located one mile south of Charleston on Missouri Highway 105. SECC will confine 1,596 maximum security male inmates and employ 445 correctional professionals at full capacity. SECC is scheduled to open in late 2001.

Tipton Correctional Center

The Tipton Correctional Center (TCC) is a medium security (C-3) facility housing 1,162 male inmates. TCC is located about one mile north of Tipton and was formerly a female correctional facility.

The Western Missouri Correctional Center (WMCC) is a medium security (C-3) facility confining 2,619 male inmates. It is located on 385 acres off U.S. Highway 69 in Cameron. In June of 2000 WMCC staff and inmates embarked on an aggressive recycling project to reduce trash hauling costs. In the first ten months of operation WMCC recycled 438,887 pounds of solid waste such as metal, textile, paper and cardboard.

Western Reception and Diagnostic Correctional Center

In August 1994, the voters of the state of Missouri approved a general obligation bond that allowed for the conversion of the St. Joseph State Mental Hospital into a correctional facility. The facility opened in 1999, and confines 1,880 inmates. It serves as the intake center for male inmates coming from the western side of the state.

Currently, the Park Building Treatment Center confines 480 inmates in either a 120-day Substance Abuse Treatment Program or the 180-day Offenders Under Treatment Program. Additionally, 100 inmates participate in community service work at several locations including the City of St. Joseph.

Women's Eastern Reception, Diagnostic and Correctional Center

The Women's Eastern Reception, Diagnostic and Correctional Center (WERDCC) in Vandalia received its first inmates in January 1998. This facility confines 1,460 minimum to maximum (C-1 to C-5) female offenders and certified juveniles. WERDCC serves as the intake center for females entering the department from around the state and also includes a permanent inmate population. This Reception and Diagnostic unit processes female inmates for assignment to permanent population at WERDCC, Chillicothe Correctional Center or the community release center treatment programs for women in St. Louis or Kansas City. Processing includes orientation to prison life, risk assessment educational testing, psychiatric and medical evaluation, AIDS testing and a drug education program.

Division of Probation and Parole

The board is comprised of seven full-time members appointed by the governor, subject to the advice and consent of the Senate. During their six-year terms, members determine the release of individuals from confinement in the Division of Adult Institutions through parole or conditional release. Parole hearings are held at each correctional center monthly. If a release date is set the board determines whether placement in release strategies such as electronic monitoring, residential facilities and community release centers is appropriate. The board stipulates special conditions in order to address specific offender needs and improve the opportunity for success under supervision. They also monitor the supervision of offenders in the community and return those offenders to prison who are a risk to the community.

The chair of the board is appointed by the governor and is the chief administrative officer in charge of operations, funds, expenditures, Interstate Compact Services for supervision of parolees and probationers and chief spokesperson for the board. Four assistant division directors are responsible for Parole Services, Field Services, Community Corrections and Administrative Services. They report directly to the chair of the Board of Probation and Parole.

The board also investigates and reports to the governor on all applications for pardons, commutations of sentence, reprieves or restorations of citizenship. The board may include information relating to the applicant along with appropriate recommendations.

Parole Services

The Parole Services Section is responsible for the assessment of incarcerated offenders and the tracking of their progress for the board. The institutional parole officers report their findings to the parole board prior to an offender's parole hearing. The institutional parole staff and parole analysts assist the parole board as they conduct hearings. The officers work with the offenders to develop supervision plans as they prepare for their release from confinement.

Institutional Parole Offices are located within the following correctional centers: Algoa, Boonville, Central Missouri, Chillicothe, Crossroads, Farmington (satellites at Potosi and Mineral Point), Fulton Reception and Diagnostic Center (satellite at Cremer Therapeutic Community Center), Jefferson City, Maryville Treatment Center, Missouri Eastern, Moberly, Northeast, Ozark, South Central, Southeast, Tipton, Western Missouri and Women's Eastern Reception and Diagnostic.

The Caseload and Release Manager Units are responsible for processing reports, release orders and correspondence in order to prepare and maintain offender files for the board. The Violator Unit is responsible for overseeing the violation process for those offenders who are not successful under supervision in the community. Offenders who violate their parole supervision may be brought back for treatment, referred to a more structured supervision strategy or returned to prison.

Field Services

The Division of Probation and Parole is divided statewide into six field regions for the effective management of probationers and parolees. Regions are made up of a network of local district offices and, in some instances, are supported by satellite offices.

The Western Region encompasses five district offices in Kansas City and offices in Independence and Belton.

The Northwest Region includes five district offices located in St. Joseph (satellites in Maryville and St. Joseph), Chillicothe (satellite in Trenton), Liberty, Warrensburg and Sedalia (satellite in Marshall).

The Southwest Region consists of two offices in Springfield and offices in Joplin (satellite in Neosho), Nevada, Branson, West Plains and Camdenton.

The Central Region has district offices in Columbia, Jefferson City, Moberly (satellites in Macon and Kirksville), St. Charles (satellites in Lincoln and Troy), Hannibal, Union and Fulton.

The Southeast Region consists of district offices in Rolla, Hillsboro, Cape Girardeau (satellite in Perryville), Farmington, Sikeston, Kennett, Caruthersville and Poplar Bluff.

The Eastern Region consists of nine district offices in St. Louis City and St. Louis County with a satellite office in St. Louis City.

The Field Services Section supervises probationers in the community assigned to the division by the courts, offenders released under supervision by the parole board and offenders from other states through the Interstate Compact. There were over 62,000 offenders under the supervision of the division in the community during fiscal year 2001, including more than 11,500 parolees and 50,500 probationers.

In order to reduce recidivism, probation and parole officers continuously assess and evaluate the offenders assigned to them, and supervise at a level consistent with their risk to re-offend. The probation and parole officer effectively balances treatment and supervision strategies necessary to manage offender risk with the needs and interests of victims and communities. This supervision process consists of a number of critical activities including:

- Accurate and ongoing assessment of offender risk and need
- Development of effective supervision and treatment plans
- Restorative justice practices
- Use of appropriate sanctions and strategies to minimize risk and maximize the potential for successful outcomes

Reparation Boards have been developed in partnership with the courts to help offenders gain insight into the impact of crime on the community. They recommend specific reparative activities to be completed by offenders to restore or repair the community.

During fiscal year 2000 offenders ordered to perform community service hours by the court as part of their reparation to the community completed 321,243 hours. Other offenders were required to compensate victims of crime, pay court costs and make restitution to individual victims. The total dollar amount returned to the community in these categories during FY99 and FY00 by all offenders was 14.4 million dollars.

Across the state Citizen Advisory Boards (CAB) provide valuable assistance to their communities. CABs, composed of citizens who live and work in their communities, promote an environment for offenders to gain the skills they need to be productive, and law-abiding citizens. CABs fund special programs such as financial management courses, alcohol awareness programs, prison tours, Adopt-A-Highway clean-up projects, Alcohol Related Traffic Offender Programs and community service projects. Some CABs sponsor scholarships to high school and college students or have established endowments at local universities and colleges. Still other CABs provide transportation and interest-free loans to offenders for treatment, education and employment needs.

Community Corrections

The Community Corrections Section oversees two community release centers and coordinates a number of community-based correctional programs that supervise and manage offenders in the community. These facilities, programs and services assist with the supervision of probationers assigned by the courts and with the reintegration of parolees upon release from prison. The following programs are designed to provide additional treatment, intervention, sanctions and structure for offenders:

- Local sentencing initiatives, including drug courts
- Community release centers
- Electronic monitoring
- Intensive supervision
- Contract residential facilities
- Targeted outpatient substance abuse treatment
- Targeted employment services

The Community Corrections Section provides assistance and guidance to local jurisdictions in the development and operation of local sentencing initiatives including drug courts. The combination of local assessment, treatment, supervision and short-term confinement enhances the department's ability to improve the success of supervision while involving the local community to a much greater degree.

The department's Command Center is a 24 hour a day, seven days a week communication center whose staff tracks offenders in the community on electronic monitoring, and in community release centers and residential centers. This unit was established to ensure that offenders assigned to community corrections programs maintain their curfews and adhere to other restrictions as required around the clock. Command Center staff conduct investigations for every serious rule violation. They issue arrest warrants should offenders fail to return to their assigned residence at the appointed time. Command Center staff also maintain regular contact with state and local law enforcement to develop leads and to ensure absconders are apprehended and returned to department custody without delay.

Kansas City Community Release Center

The Kansas City Community Release Center (KCCRC) is a minimum security (C-1) facility located in the downtown area of Kansas City. KCCRC has a capacity to house 312 inmates, 280 males and 32 females.

St. Louis Community Release Center

The St. Louis Community Release Center (SLCRC) is located just north of downtown St. Louis and has been in operation since April 1978. SLCRC has a capacity for 400 males and 100 females.

Community Release Centers in Kansas City and St. Louis are department facilities under the auspices of the Community Corrections Section. These facilities offer community-based programs and provide the department with transitional centers to manage and assist offenders requiring a supervised transition from confinement to community supervision. The parole board stipulates offenders for assignment to the centers based on their need for substance abuse treatment or a structured setting in which to develop work release programming as part of the release process.

Offenders assigned to the Community Release Centers are required to accept increased personal responsibility in finding and maintaining employment, obtaining medical care and obtaining educational or vocational opportunities through the Work Release Program. While in Work Release offenders are required to place fifty percent of their gross pay in a savings account and return twenty-five percent to the inmate revolving fund to offset the cost of their room and board. The programs are structured to parallel the offenders' responsibilities after release to supervision in their local communities.

The Substance Abuse Treatment Program consists of addiction assessment and treatment including group and individual sessions provided by certified substance abuse specialists. The parole board stipulates offenders for treatment based on their history of addiction and the need to learn and practice relapse prevention strategies. Assessment and treatment sessions are scheduled to coincide with the offenders' off-hours from work.

The centers also serve as a secure location to assess offenders in St. Louis City and Jackson County who are at risk for revocation, especially those avoiding supervision. Temporary placement at the centers allows the board to consider other supervision strategies with a reduced risk to the community.

Administrative Services Section

The Administrative Services Section consists of the Division's Fiscal Management Unit, Personnel Unit, Central Supply Unit and Central Office Support Unit. This section provides planning and coordination with the other divisions of the Department and other state agencies.

Fiscal Management is responsible for activities related to budget and planning, procurement, contract and lease management and legislative impact.

The Personnel Unit processes all payroll records, time and attendance records and other divisional personnel matters.

The Central Supply Unit oversees two warehouses in Jefferson City, the management of the division's vehicle fleet and maintains an inventory of sufficient supplies for staff.

The Central Office Support Unit provides switchboard, mailroom and environmental support for the staff at the division's central office in

"To make Missouri the best place to live, work, vacation and conduct business."

The Department of Economic Development will achieve its vision by stimulating and supporting economic security, opportunity, growth and a high quality of life in Missouri communities.

The Department of Economic Development administers a wide array of programs designed to enhance Missouri's economy in the 21st Century. It is composed of agencies that execute statutory requirements and department policy in the areas of community, economic and workforce development, as well as the regulation of financial institutions, utility companies and various licensed professionals.

The Department of Economic Development was established September 7, 1984, after voters granted approval to rename the existing Department of Consumer Affairs, Regulation and Licensing (CARL). CARL was created in 1974 during the reorganization of state government.

The department consists of two distinct groups: development agencies and regulatory agencies.

The development divisions and groups include Business Development; Business Expansion and Attraction; Community Development; Division of Workforce Development; Division of Tourism; Missouri Development Finance Board; Missouri Housing Development Commission; Missouri Arts Council; Missouri Community Service Commission; and Missouri Women's Council.

The regulatory agencies are Division of Credit Unions; Division of Finance; Office of the Public Counsel; Missouri Public Service Commission; Division of Motor Carrier and Railroad Safety; and Division of Professional Registration, including its 38 regulatory agencies.

Administrative Services

The department is administered by a director, appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate. The director appoints the central management staff and division directors and is assisted in department administration by a deputy director. The general counsel's office provides comprehensive legal advice regarding issues affecting divisions within the department. The directors of economic and workforce policy development assist the director by promoting integration and best practices throughout the department and strong partnerships with the private sector. Two area directors coordinate policy development and implementation in the state's two largest metropolitan regions.

Several support sections assist in department administration:

- The research and planning section provides information and analysis on Missouri's economic and labor market trends.
- The communications section promotes the department's programs and activities throughout the state and nation by means of news releases, advertisement and other public relation tools.
- The financial management section prepares and monitors the department's budget, analyzes monthly financial statements; works with the state treasurer, state auditor and the Office of Administration to perform cash management activities.

- The human resources section assists the divisions by advertising for and recruiting new employees, administering the wage and salary program, preparing payrolls, and maintaining personnel policies and procedures.

- The management information systems section provides automated information services and systems to the divisions and boards within the department. MIS services include planning and coordinating department data processing activities, as well as development, maintenance and operation of the department's computer systems.

Office of Research and Planning

The Office of Research and Planning provides comprehensive analysis of Missouri's socioeconomic environment at the local, regional and state levels. To achieve this, Research and Planning employs a wide array of analysis tools, which include econometric models, geographic information systems and advanced statistical methods. On-going projects at Research and Planning include targeted development, economic and social impact assessments, industry and occupational analyses, export data, layoff analyses, and information on Missouri's demographic and economic trends. Coupled with its analysis capability, Research and Planning also maintains a comprehensive labor market database.

The Labor Market Information group maintains data on employment/unemployment, wages, layoffs, labor availability, and a variety of other information designed to help understand labor market conditions.

Research and Planning's mission is to provide accurate, relevant and timely information to decision makers and the public in order to facilitate a better understanding of Missouri's socioeconomic environment.

Business Development Group

FAX: (573) 751-7384

Helping Missouri's existing businesses create more wealth is the primary mission of the Business Development Group. A wide array of assistance is available through this group to help businesses experience growth in sales and increased investment in their operations. These services are organized into five primary sections: Office of International Marketing, Office of Science and Technology, Office of Business Information, Office of Business Finance and Office of Minority Business.

Office of International Marketing

The Office of International Marketing works to increase wealth for Missouri businesses by increasing international and domestic sales of Missouri-made products and services. A marketing team develops marketing strategies, conducts market research, counsels businesses, provides export assistance and assists with direct marketing.

A major focus of the office is the development of international sales. The team of international marketing experts works with Missouri businesses trying to cultivate international markets. To better assist Missouri business in international and domestic sales growth, offices are maintained in Jefferson City; St. Louis; Kansas City; London, England; Duesseldorf, Germany; Tokyo, Japan; Seoul, Korea; Bangkok, Thailand; Taipei, Taiwan; Sao Paulo, Brazil; and Monterrey, Guadalajara and Mexico City, Mexico; Accra, Ghana; Johannesburg, South Africa; and Jerusalem, Israel.

The Office of International Marketing also concentrates its efforts toward increasing foreign investment in Missouri—particularly in the life sciences, information technology and transportation industries.

The Missouri Office of Science and Technology

The Missouri Office of Science and Technology (MOST) provides resources necessary to increase the ability of Missouri businesses to compete in a global economy and to increase the efficiency, productivity and profitability of Missouri businesses.

MOST manages activities for the Department of Economic Development within the state's three targeted industries (Life Sciences, Information Technology and Advanced Manufacturing) and has created a resource network that can refer a business to technical assistance and expertise to increase their skills and competitive advantage. These resources include: Centers for Advanced Technology, Innovation Centers and Small Business Incubators, and Missouri Enterprise.

This mission is addressed through a series of state programs and networks with other organizations in Missouri, which assist manufacturers. Centers for Advanced Technology provide financial assistance and expertise for specific research and technology needs. Each dollar spent is matched by the client industry and funded projects are expected to result in either reduced production costs, increased sales or additional investment in the company. Affordable space, business support services and technical assistance can be found at Missouri's Innovation centers/incubators. Formerly known as Mid-America Manufacturing Technology Center, Missouri Enterprise is the manufacturer's problem solver. An extensive staff of engineers with actual working experience in private industry help small and medium size companies become more competitive, improve quality, boost sales and locate production resources. MOST works closely with the Missouri Technology Corporation (MTC) to implement the state's strategy in these areas of the new economy.

Missouri Technology Corporation

The Missouri Technology Corporation was authorized by Section 348.263, RSMo 1994. The Board of Directors is composed of fifteen members, eleven appointed by the governor, for four year terms, from business and academia, the director of the Department of Economic Development, the president of the University of Missouri, a member of the Senate and a member of the House of Representatives.

The purpose of the MTC is to strengthen the state's economy through the development of science and technology programs that generate and provide access to global technologies for Missouri businesses and citizens so they can create wealth and achieve a higher quality of life through economic, educational, and cultural opportunities.

Office of Business Finance

The Office of Business Finance administers eight special programs to increase private investment in Missouri's small businesses, incubators and research activities.

State tax credits are available to individuals or companies who invest in these activities, providing an immediate return on their investment. Programs such as the Certified Capital Companies (CAPCO) and New Enterprise Creation Tax Credit provide seed and early stage investment to new and expanding Missouri businesses. The Qualified Research Tax Credit program provides a tax credit to businesses that increase their research efforts in Missouri. The Urban Enterprise Loan program provides low-interest loans for businesses starting or expanding in specially designated areas of St. Louis and Kansas City.

Seed Capital Investment Board

The Missouri Seed Capital Investment Board was established by Section 620.641 and is composed of thirteen members. The board includes eight members appointed by the Governor with the advice and consent of the senate of which one shall represent a major public research university, one shall represent a major private research university and six members shall have backgrounds in technology, banking, labor or small business development. The remaining five members include the director, or director's designee, of the Department of Economic Development and a member from each of the four Innovation Centers.

The purpose of the board is to approve the professional fund manager and to monitor the activities and verify compliance with the New Enterprise Creation Act.

Office of Business Information/ Missouri Business Assistance Center

The Office of Business Information, through the Missouri Business Assistance Center (MBAC), provides a centralized, single point of contact for individuals seeking information and technical assistance on starting a new business in Missouri as well as for existing small business owners seeking to expand their business or markets.

MBAC, created by the General Assembly in 1986, has as its core mission to ensure easy access to information on state regulations for starting and operating a business in the state and technical assistance in complying with those regulations. In addition, the office serves as a small business "ombudsman" for communication with state agencies.

MBAC is the centralized point of contact for information regarding state rules, regulations, license and permits required to do business in Missouri, as well as copies of required forms. In addition, skilled business counselors can provide counseling, advice and qualified referrals to partner agencies for detailed technical assistance and business counseling services. Business counseling, assistance and information, including MBAC's popular publication Starting A New Business In Missouri, is available through the web at: www.missouridevelopment.org/mbac or by calling 1-888-751-2863.

The Office of Business Information also monitors trends in small business and entrepreneurship; works with partner agencies, both public and private, to identify small business needs; and provides information on sources of Missouri-made products and services.

Office of Minority Business

The Office of Minority Business exists to increase the number of successful minority and women-owned businesses in Missouri. Personal assistance is available to these owners to access all appropriate Missouri and federal programs designed to help them start or operate successful businesses. This personalized counseling assures a well-coordinated effort streamlined to cut through unnecessary levels of bureaucracy.

Minority Business Advocacy Commission*

The Missouri Minority Business Advocacy Commission was created in 1993 to identify and assess the needs of minority businesses. The commission consists of nine members: the director of the department of economic development; the commissioner of the office of administration; three minority business persons, appointed by the governor of which no more than two of the three members may be of the same political party and one must be named as chair of the commission; two members of the House of Representatives, appointed by the speaker of the House of Representatives; and two members of the Senate, appointed by the president pro tem of the Senate.

The Commission initiates programs that will help minority businesses with state and federal procurement and advocates policies, programs and procedures that can affect state policy as it relates to minority businesses. The department provides administrative staff support for the commission through the Office of Minority Business.

Business Expansion and Attraction Group

FAX: (573) 751-7384

The mission of the Business Expansion and Attraction Group (BEA) is to be responsible for working in partnership with Missouri communities and businesses to assist in the retention and expansion of existing business and the attraction of businesses to Missouri. BEA is doing some things differently than in the past, and has implemented several changes in programs and direction in an effort to improve efficiency and effectiveness.

Administration Section

The Administration Section is responsible for overall administration of BEA, including budget, personnel and strategic planning functions. Staff help administer the regional cooperative marketing program, help manage the advertising/marketing program, and maintains a database of community profiles, buildings and sites.

Business Attraction Section

A staff of project managers is involved in marketing the state and its communities as profitable sites for business location and expansion. Marketing efforts include international advertising, trade shows, impact trips to major industrial and business centers, direct mail and telemarketing. Staff works cooperatively with the assistance of The Hawthorn Foundation and the department's advertising/public relations' consultant on many of these activities. Project managers, along with the assistance of other section staff, prepare and present presentations to companies considering Missouri for location. Specific requirements are studied, and all qualifying communities in Missouri are recommended to the company. Project managers accompany corporate officials on community visits to further identify the strategic location advantages of the community and Missouri.

Business Expansion Section

Staff located in Jefferson City and in regional offices throughout the state work with existing Missouri companies and communities, helping to retain and expand job opportunities and investment. Program field staff provide a comprehensive array of services, programs and assistance to meet the expansion needs of Missouri businesses. Staff works with community leaders to develop vital communication links with local industry. Project managers coordinate state assistance on business retention and expansion projects and help prepare proposals to companies encouraging them to expand their facilities in Missouri. Regional offices are located in St. Louis, Kansas City, Trenton, Moberly, Springfield, Houston, Dexter and Jefferson City.

Incentives Section

This section provides business financing and tax credit incentives to help businesses expand and locate in Missouri and help the state compete effectively with other states for locations and expansions. Staff prepares presentations to companies containing information on incentives the state offers for specific projects.

Staff works with the state's businesses, private-sector financial community, public institutions and private investors to generate attractive financing packages for new development in the state. A variety of public-sector financing programs, working with financing from private institutions, can provide funds for land acquisition, construction, renovation, machinery, equipment and working capital at favorable rates and terms. The staff works with the Missouri Development Finance Board to make the board's financing programs available to businesses and communities throughout the state.

Staff prepares tax studies for clients interested in locating or expanding in Missouri; conducts special tax projects, such as workshops; prepares tax publications and promotional materials for the department; develops and maintains databases; and, is responsible for administering several tax credit programs within the Department of Economic Development. These tax credit programs include new and expanding business facility tax credits, enterprise zone tax benefits and rebuilding communities program tax credits. Staff prescribes the method for claiming earned tax benefits, approves/disapproves all claims for tax benefits and certifies to the Department of Revenue that the taxpayer is eligible to claim the tax benefits.

Missouri Film Office

The Missouri Film Office works with filmmakers to find suitable locations for shooting movies or commercials and acts as a liaison between film production companies and local communities. The unit's activities help generate increased capital investment and employment in Missouri. A nine-member Missouri Film Commission advises the department on various matters related to promoting the state as a location for filmmaking.

Community Development Group

The mission of the Community Development Group is to increase the economic self-sufficiency and prosperity of Missouri communities and neighborhoods. Members of the group achieve this result by offering programs to promote community investment, redevelopment activities, planning and leadership development.

Community Development Group personnel offer these programs from locations around the state, including Jefferson City and seven regional offices (Kansas City, St. Louis, Dexter, Moberly, Houston, Springfield and Trenton).

Community Investment Programs

The Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) Program administers grants to cities with fewer than 50,000 population and counties with less than 200,000 population. The program is designed to improve local communities by providing funds to develop suitable living environments and expand economic opportunities, principally for low- and moderate-income persons. The grant process is open to all non-entitlement local governments and provides assistance in areas such as public facilities, housing, economic development, and downtown revitalization.

Funds are provided through the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The Neighborhood Assistance Tax Credit Program (NAP) administers a tax credit program designated for the betterment of communities and neighborhoods. The Neighborhood Assistance Act provides a tax credit incentive to encourage business participation in community development projects operated by not-for-profit organizations in areas such as crime prevention, community services, physical revitalization, job training, economic development, new generation cooperatives and education.

The Youth Opportunities and Violence Prevention Program (YOP) administers a tax credit program specifically directed toward programs which are designed to prevent youth from engaging in violent behavior and enable youth to improve themselves through education, job training and apprenticeship activities. The tax credits are given to businesses and individuals contributing to an approved project undertaken by either a public or private organization.

The Family Development Account Program (FDA) administers a state tax credit program that enables contributors to make donations to organizations that establish and run a Family Development or Individual Development Account project. The funds contributed are used to match low-income participants' savings accounts, enabling them to save funds to further their education, purchase or renovate a home or start a new business.

Redevelopment Programs

The Missouri Main Street Program was created to help communities under 50,000 in population re-establish their downtowns as centers of community activity while strengthening and expanding their economic base. It is not a grant or loan program but rather a training program which helps community leaders to better understand how they can use various tools, plus their own knowledge to help revitalize their downtown areas.

The Historic Preservation Tax Credit Program aids in the redevelopment of Missouri's commercial and residential historic structures. The tax credit is equal to 25% of the total costs and expenses incurred during the rehabilitation of a nationally designated historic property or a property located in an historic district.

The Community Development Corporation Program assists in the development of CDCs — nonprofit organizations that promote the industrial, economic, entrepreneurial, commercial, and civic development of a community. The CDC program also offers a tax credit and grant program to encourage workforce development, housing development and many other CDC services.

The Neighborhood Preservation Program assists homeowners and developers that wish to renovate or construct residences for homeownership by providing state tax credits for housing renovation and or new construction. State statutes require that the program operate in certain qualifying and eligible areas of the state.

The Brownfield Redevelopment Program provides tax credits and grants for remediation of contaminated sites throughout Missouri. The program provides opportunities to redevelop once vibrant business and community sites that are currently underutilized or are vacant, thus bringing jobs and investment back into the area.

Planning and Leadership Development Programs

Missouri Community Betterment (MCB) is a program of immediate community self-improvement. It is an action program designed to increase community development efforts and economic growth by providing strategic planning technical assistance to those communities requesting help and incentives to promote meaningful and successful projects. In short, the purpose of Missouri Community Betterment is to encourage communities to help themselves.

The Rural Economic Assistance Program (REAP) provides technical assistance in economic development to rural communities with populations of fewer than 15,000 persons. That assistance includes a grants program that provides seed capital to initiate local economic development programs by helping fund a local community/economic development professional. The program is designed to meet the needs that the communities have identified will create wealth within their areas.

The Enterprise Zone Program was established to provide certain tax incentives for companies locating in areas of the state which meet certain distressed criteria. A key aspect of the program is development of a plan for redevelopment and renewal.

and state agencies, and by continuing to effectively administer National Service initiatives, the Commission makes it possible for Missourians to serve their communities.

The commission was established by an act of the Missouri Legislature in 1994 as a direct response to the National Service Act of 1993. Its twenty-five members are appointed by the governor and meet quarterly across the state. It has two primary functions, to award grants to local organizations enabling the establishment of AmeriCorps and other National Service programs, and, to foster an "ethic of service" in all citizens, with special emphasis on youth.

The Commission accomplishes these goals by operating as a "point" organization for promoting and recognizing service volunteers, and by supporting quality service projects. The Missouri Legislature passed a measure in 1998 allowing the commission to raise private contributions to assist in its work, thus enabling the commission to broaden its impact on the service and volunteer communities.

Overseeing the AmeriCorps programs is the commission's primary responsibility. AmeriCorps, the domestic Peace Corps, engages citizens of all ages in projects ranging from tutoring, youth mentoring, public safety, housing rehabilitation, health care, environmental issues, and disaster relief. It gives communities and neighborhoods valuable human resources for addressing their most pressing civic issues, and gives the individual a way to serve their country by picking up a book or a shovel rather than a gun. It has given thousands of Americans opportunities to increase their skills and earn money for college that otherwise would not have been available to them.

Any not-for-profit organization, local or state government, school district, or institution of higher education may sponsor an AmeriCorps program. AmeriCorps members serve for one year, full time (1,700 hours) or part time (900 hours). At the completion of their service commitment they receive a $4,725 education award (half that amount for part time service) that may be redeemed at a Title IV university, college, or trade school.

The AmeriCorps state program provides federal funds for living allowance and program administration. Sponsoring organizations are required to produce a one-third match, and should have sufficient capacity to operate personnel and accounting systems, comply with Federal grant provision, and respond to Federal reporting requirements.

The AmeriCorps Education Award Program provides a small amount of federal monies for administrative purposes. However, it frees sponsors from match requirements. Members may still receive a living allowance, but it is up to the sponsor to determine the source and amounts of those funds. Education Award programs are particularly well suited to work study and welfare reform initiatives.

AmeriCorps programs are designed to address specific issues and to achieve measurable objectives. Member activities must not duplicate the work of existing staff. Programs focus on education, environment, human needs, public safety, community and economic development and health.

low- and moderate-income persons. The commission also makes funds available for the purchase of single-family homes, at below-market interest rates, by low- and moderate-income persons. The funds for mortgage financing are provided through the sale of tax-exempt notes and bonds that the commission is authorized to issue.

Additionally, the commission is authorized to establish a revolving fund to make non-interest-bearing loans to non-profit corporations to defray development costs of housing for low- and moderate-income persons. The commission provides advisory, consultative, training, and educational services to non-profit housing corporations.

The commission also administers the federal low-income housing tax credit, state low-income housing tax credit and tax credit for affordable housing; operates a housing trust fund for very low-income persons; and provides assistance for the homeless. The commission participates with the Department of Economic Development in preparing the state's consolidated plan, which replaces the Comprehensive Housing Affordability Strategy.

The commission includes the governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, treasurer and six persons appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate.

The Missouri State Council on the Arts, known informally as the Missouri Arts Council, was created by an act of the 73rd General Assembly to stimulate the growth of the arts in the state and to foster increased awareness by Missourians of their artistic and cultural heritage.

The council is composed of 15 members appointed from throughout the state to staggered, five-year terms by the governor, who also designates a chair and vice chair. The council is the second oldest state-funded, state arts agency in the nation.

Since its inception in 1965, the council has assisted hundreds of communities in expanding cultural opportunities by providing financial assistance for programs, performances, workshops, concerts, festivals, lectures and presentations in the areas of dance, literature, media, multi-discipline, music, theater and visual arts. All these events and services are funded by the council on a matching basis. The council derives its funds primarily from appropriation by the General Assembly, with supplemental funds from the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency.

Sponsors of the council-assisted programs at the community level must demonstrate that they have sound administration and financial management and are capable of promoting the state-local partnership in arts activities to assure broad participation by both creators and their audience. Local sponsors include, but are not limited to, community arts councils, schools, colleges, universities, museums, performing groups and libraries.

Programs must take place within the 12 months of the state fiscal year beginning July 1 and ending June 30. The council and its staff conduct a rigorous examination of proposed programs in close consultation with both the applicants and the council's citizen advisory committees. These committees, structured along the lines of arts fields, consist of council members as well as other Missouri citizens knowledgeable about the various arts disciplines. The council, its staff and its committees function under formal guidelines and bylaws that make provision for conflicts of interest.

Council funding programs include Discipline Program Assistance, Community Arts Program, Missouri Touring Program, Missouri Arts Education programs, Missouri Folk Arts programs and Minority Arts programs.

In addition, the council conducts other staff-administered programs throughout the year, which offer unique alternatives in art activities to those individuals, groups and organizations not sponsoring regular applicant programs.

The Missouri Arts Council Cultural Trust Fund supports programs that provide organizational development to arts organizations throughout the state. Trust funds are used for technical assistance grants, such as conference attendance and consultants, construction projects, staffing initiatives and more. The Cultural Trust also provides matching funds for art organizations raising money for endowments. This program is projected to create $100 million in private investments in the arts by 2008. The council is a member of the Mid-America Arts Alliance, a six-state consortium that provides arts programming on a regional basis. The alliance permits Missourians to benefit from high-quality arts activities from neighboring states while giving Missouri arts organizations and artists an opportunity to expand their audiences regionally.

Division of Workforce Development

The Division of Workforce Development administers and provides direct services through federal and state funds granted to provide employment and training opportunities, which will increase the earned income for Missouri's economically disadvantaged, unemployed and underemployed adult and youth citizens.

The division ensures that comprehensive training occurs at the local level so that the skills of the available workforce meet the needs of businesses. The division allocates Workforce Investment Act and Welfare to Work funds to 14 Workforce Investment regions to help establish a flexible but coordinated workforce development system. Local Workforce Investment Boards and Chief Local Elected Officials within each region determine the types of programs to be offered and are responsible for the policy and oversight of the delivery of services. The division monitors, evaluates and provides technical assistance for continuous improvement with a focus toward customer focused service.

Missouri statutes have assigned the division as staff to the governor-appointed Missouri Training and Employment Council. The council develops policy and guidance for the workforce development system of Missouri and makes recommendations to the governor as to the effectiveness of the system.

The division also plans and implements statewide employment assistance programs as the Public Labor Exchange lead and training programs through the Missouri Customized Training Program and Community College New Jobs Training Program.

Missouri Career Center System

The Division of Workforce Development is one of five state-level partner agencies that work in conjunction with local partners to offer a wide variety of workforce development services according to the needs of the community. The Missouri Career Center System will coordinate the delivery of services for both employers and workers through a variety of programs and agencies at more than 40 locations throughout Missouri, making access to these services quicker and easier for the customer.

Local and area businesses may use the career center to seek or interview potential employees, test applicants' occupational skills, gain access to labor market information or learn about financial incentives for hiring new workers. People seeking work can learn about job openings, create and send a resume, conduct a job search, sign up for training or education, or register for unemployment.

The Missouri Women's Council was established in 1985 by the state's 83rd General Assembly to identify and address the issues affecting the economic and employment status of Missouri Women. The mission of the Council is "Missouri prosperity grows as women become stronger economic, civic, and family leaders."

The Council serves as a resource and referral center connecting women to information on all aspects of women and work, civic issues, and family life. The Women's Council provides free resources for Missouri citizens, including:"

- Business Resource Directory
- Quarterly Newsletters
- Model Job Training Programs for Welfare-to-Work
- Working Women 2000 Report
- Studies on topics that affect women and families
- Current statistics and Fact Sheets on issues that affect women
- Website that provides timely information on women's issues and links to job opportunities
- The Annual Governor's Summit for all working women covering relevant topics on personal and career issues.
- Partnerships with other major women's groups to establish helpful forums for women.

The Council consists of 15 members. The Governor, with the advise and consent of the Senate, appoints eleven of the members for staggered terms. The remaining four vacancies are filled by the General Assembly; two senators and two representatives appointed by their respective bodies in the same manner as members of standing committees are appointed. There is an Executive Director and two staff persons.

For nearly two decades, the Missouri Development Finance Board has provided development financing to assist infrastructure and economic development projects throughout Missouri. These projects have a high probability of success, but would not be feasible without the board's assistance.

Originally created by state statute in 1982, the board previously operated as the Missouri Industrial Development Board and the Missouri Economic Development Commission. In 1985, legislation was enacted which merged the commission into the board. In 1989, the board's name was changed to the Missouri Economic Development, Export and Infrastructure Board. Four years later, the legislature authorized the board's third and current name change.

The legislature, however, was not just making changes to the board's name, it was also progressively expanding the board's authority. These changes increased the board's ability to not only finance small businesses, but to also help fund public infrastructure improvements, cultural public facilities, exporters and larger-scale business locations and expansions.

The board has welcomed these additional responsibilities and now administers several programs to facilitate economic development and to assist in business expansion and attraction in Missouri.

Bond Financing

The Missouri Development Finance Board is authorized to issue taxable or tax-exempt private activity industrial revenue bonds for the acquisition or renovation of fixed assets owned by businesses involved in manufacturing or tangible products production. Currently the board is focusing primarily on redevelopment projects, particularly those that eliminate blight.

The board can issue tax-exempt cultural facility bonds to qualified charitable organizations for acquisition, construction, renovation and equipping cultural projects such as museums or recreational facilities.

The board can issue tax-exempt public purpose infrastructure bonds to local governments that have projects that serve a public purpose, such as public buildings, jails, police and fire stations, and public infrastructure.

Missouri Tax Credit for Contributions

The Tax Credit for Contributions program is, in essence, a significant fundraising tool that uses private contributions to fund public purpose projects. The board is authorized to grant state tax credits equal to 50 percent of any monies contributed to the board by a taxpayer, in which the proceeds assist in offsetting the costs of qualified projects that benefit the general public.

Downtown Revitalization Program

Through the Downtown Revitalization Program, the board is authorized to grant state tax credits equal to 50 percent of any monies contributed to the board by a taxpayer. These funds are then used for public-purpose infrastructure improvements necessary to redevelop downtown areas in communities with populations under 50,000 individuals.

Missouri Infrastructure Loan Program

Through the Missouri Infrastructure Loan Program, the board can offer long-term, low-interest loans to local political subdivisions or rural public sewer and water districts to fund infrastructure improvements.

Business Use Incentives for Large-Scale Development (BUILD)

The board is authorized to issue and monitor BUILD Missouri Revenue Bonds, which provide a tool for the Department of Economic Development and MDFB to finance a portion of the eligible costs for businesses that seek to locate or expand in Missouri. Eligible projects must meet substantial new job, capital investment and general company eligibility requirements.

City/State Partners Program

The City/State Partners Program is a joint effort between the Export Import (Ex-Im) Bank of the United States and state and local entities around the country. The program aims to provide financing services to small- and medium-sized U.S. companies that are in need of financing to start exporting their products and services.

Borrowers participating in the board's programs are responsible for debt repayment. The state of Missouri does not incur any costs, nor does it bear any obligation for retiring loans, bonds or notes.

Membership on the board is composed of nine private Missouri residents who are appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate to four-year terms, the lieutenant governor and directors of the departments of Economic Development and Agriculture. Seven members constitute a quorum. Not more than five appointed members may be of the same political party. Appointed members serve staggered terms to provide continuity and enhance program development.

Tourism continues to rank as one of the most important revenue- and job-producing industries in Missouri, creating more than 211,000 jobs in fiscal year 2000. With an economic impact of approximately $12.9 billion and $5.35 million in state tax revenue, tourism is an important component of economic development, providing one of every 14 Missouri jobs. There were 35.2 million visitors to the Show-Me State in the last fiscal year—an all-time record!

CHRISTOPHER JENNINGS
Director
Division of Tourism

The 74th General Assembly recognized the importance of tourism 33 years ago with the creation of the Missouri Tourism Commission in 1967. In 1997, the Division of Tourism unveiled a new direction for tourism by creating a new state logo and slogan promoting Missouri's river heritage. Now in its fourth year, the division of tourism's advertising slogan, "Where the rivers run," has taken on a new twist in this year's television and print advertising campaigns. The new campaign focuses on the experiences that Missouri offers and tourists' perceptions of Missouri as a scenic destination with cultural, historical and family activities.

Tourism Commission

The commission consists of 10 members: the lieutenant governor; two members of the Senate of different political parties appointed by the president pro tem of the Senate; two members of the House of Representatives of different political parties appointed by the speaker of the House; and five other persons appointed by the governor, which may include, but are not limited to, persons engaged in tourist-oriented operations. No more than three of the governor's appointees shall be of the same political party.

Commission members appointed by the governor serve staggered four-year terms and may be reappointed at the end of their terms. All serve without compensation, but are reimbursed for necessary expenses incurred in the performance of their duties.

The commission elects a chair and meets at least four times in a calendar year at the call of the chair to determine all matters relating to the tourism policies of the State of Missouri and the administration of the Division of Tourism.

The Commission reports to each regular session of the General Assembly the results of its marketing program and any recommendations for legislation in the field of tourism promotion.

The budget of the Division of Tourism is contained within the annual submittal of the Department of Economic Development to the Missouri General Assembly for approval.

The Tourism Commission employs a director of the Division of Tourism, qualified by education and experience in public administration with a background in the use of the various news media. The director employs a staff of professional, technical and clerical personnel.

Activities and plans

Division activities focus on five strategic areas:

- Communications efforts include public and media relations, photographic services and publications;
- Cooperative marketing matches state funds with private-sector tourism dollars for destination promotion;
- Domestic marketing includes advertising, trade shows, sports, cultural tourism, meetings/convention marketing and sports marketing, special promotions and events;
- International efforts are targeted in Canada, the United Kingdom, Japan, Mexico and the Pacific Rim in the areas of trade relations, public relations, product development and advertising;

- Tour & Travel includes group tour and group leader familiarization tours, advertising and marketplaces.

Most activities are in the area of advertising and promotion. Among the promotional tools are brochures, highlighted by the annual Missouri Vacation Planner, which includes an events calendar. This publication is distributed free to the public. News releases and a monthly newsletter, The Tourism Monitor, also are prepared for the news media and others interested in Missouri tourism. The division has an Internet presence through its Web site, which includes destination and attraction information, as well as news and other promotional programs.

Through a paid advertising program, the division promotes Missouri's vacation opportunities. The advertising has the goal of creating a positive image of Missouri and generating travel to the state. Mailing of state information in response to requests is another major part of the division's responsibilities.

In 1993, HB 188 was signed into law as section 620.467, RSMo. This legislation included a performance-based funding formula for the Missouri Division of Tourism, which allowed for the implementation of a Cooperative Marketing program. This is a matching-funds reimbursement program designed to increase the impact and promote the effectiveness of local advertising efforts. By partnering both creative and financial resources of local and non-profit tourism organizations with the financial resources of the Division of Tourism, the program encourages the development of new and expanded marketing initiatives. In its first year (fiscal year 1994), the Cooperative Marketing program processed a total of 72 applications with $1 million in state funding. The fiscal year 2002 program, with state funding allocations of $2.6 million in state funds, will have an advertising impact of $5.2 million. The program encourages local and regional cooperation and partnering efforts and stresses the coordination of advertising with the division's strategic marketing plan.

Much of the division's work is designed to meet the changing trends in the travel/tourism industry. For the third fiscal year, the Division of Tourism will have specifically targeted Missouri's tourism message to audiences in the African American and Hispanic/Latino markets. The division, through its marketing partners, has expanded our marketing campaign to help our tourism industry grow in new areas. This initiative also includes encouraging close-to-home travel for the estimated 80 million Americans who live within a day's drive of Missouri. The division cooperates with tour packagers and group travel promoters to develop efficient, cost-saving travel opportunities for those who prefer pre-planned vacations.

For travelers entering Missouri, the division operates six Official State Welcome Centers. The six welcome centers are located at key entry points to the state at the following locations:

- Joplin Welcome Center—Interstate 44 west of Joplin
- St. Louis Welcome Center—Interstate 270 and Riverview Drive in St. Louis
- New Madrid Welcome Center—Interstate 55 south of New Madrid
- The Hardin C. Cox Welcome Center at Rock Port—Interstate 29 near Rock Port
- Hannibal Welcome Center—Highway 61 at Hannibal
- Kansas City Welcome Center—Interstate 70 entering Kansas City

Close relationships with others in the travel-promotion field are vital. The division maintains these relationships through memberships, including the Travel Industry Association of America, International Visit USA Committees, National Tour Association, American Bus Association and other travel associations.

The division also reaches international markets with promotions targeting Canada, the United Kingdom, Japan and Mexico. Much of this effort is through regional marketing organizations, such as Mississippi River Country USA and America's Heartland. The division has a market representative in the United Kingdom to oversee the growth of this important market, which has direct airline service to Missouri. Further promotional efforts are coordinated with the Department of Economic Development's international offices.

The division works closely with Missouri communities, area promotion groups and federal agencies, including the Missouri Travel Council, Missouri Association of Convention and Visitors Bureaus, Missouri Arts Council, State and National Parks, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, National Forest Service and U.S. Department of Commerce.

Research plays a vital role in the effectiveness of the division's efforts to increase tourism spending and stimulate economic and market-share growth at the state and local level. It not only measures past efforts, but also can give important insight to how and where, when and to whom the state should direct promotional efforts to increase its market share of visitors and expenditures. Research projects are conducted on a continual basis to determine the size, growth and needs of Missouri's travel industry.

Annually, the division works with research firms to assess subjects including the effect of travel spending on the state's economy, tax revenue derived from travel spending and employment generated through tourism.

The original statute governing credit unions was passed by the state Legislature in 1927. This enactment gave the secretary of state chartering authority and required that all amendments to the bylaws be approved by that office. Effective August 13, 1972, these powers were transferred to the commissioner of finance.

The Omnibus State Reorganization Act of 1974 removed credit unions from the jurisdiction of the Division of Finance. On July 1, 1974, the Division of Credit Unions was created and all powers, duties and functions were transferred from the commissioner of finance to the director of the Division of Credit Unions. This agency is under the Department of Economic Development and has a director who is nominated by the department director and appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate.

The Credit Union Commission was created in 1998. The commission determines appeals from certain decisions of the director of the Division of Credit Unions, approves or disapproves regulations proposed by the director of the Division of Credit Unions, and consults with and advises the director of the Division of Credit Unions on matters pertaining to the organization, operation and supervision of credit unions. The bipartisan commission is comprised of seven members; four must have certain credit union experience, two must be individuals not involved in the administration of a financial institution, and one must be an attorney.

The Division of Credit Unions is the regulatory agency responsible for the examination, supervision, chartering, mergers and liquidation of all state-chartered credit unions. The division also responds to consumer requests or complaints in regard to credit union services or operations.

The entire cost of the agency is reimbursed to the state through fees and assessments paid by the credit unions.

The division is an accredited agency through the National Association of State Credit Union Supervisors.

All member deposits are insured by the National Credit Union Administration, an agency of the federal government.

As of December 31, 2000, Missouri ranked eighth in the nation in the number of state-chartered credit unions. The Division of Credit Unions currently regulates 183 credit unions with assets exceeding $5.6 billion. There are approximately 1,127,958 members of Missouri credit unions.

State-chartered banks were under the jurisdiction of the secretary of state until 1907 when the General Assembly created the State Banking Department. Over the years, the agency was renamed the Division of Finance and is now within the Department of Economic Development. The division is headed by the commissioner of finance, who is nominated by the department director and appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate.

The State Banking Board, a quasi-judicial body, was created in 1955 to handle appeals from certain decisions and orders of the commissioner of finance. The bipartisan board is comprised of five members; two must be non-bankers, one a lawyer and two experienced bankers. The Savings and Loan Commission, created in 1957, serves a similar function for state chartered thrift associations. This bipartisan commission is also comprised of five members, one of whom must be a lawyer.

The division is responsible for the incorporation and regulation of state-chartered banks, trust companies, savings banks and savings and loan associations. The commissioner must approve actions such as the relocation of a financial institution's offices, establishment of branches or increase in capital. The statutes provide that each state-chartered bank and trust company be examined for safety and soundness at least once each 18 calendar months. The division also licenses and examines consumer credit companies, credit services organizations and money order companies.

The Division of Finance has 28 administrative and clerical employees in the Jefferson City office and a total of 72 field examiners—58 bank examiners, nine consumer credit examiners and five trust examiners. Field offices are maintained in Kansas City, St. Louis, Columbia, Springfield and Sikeston.

The entire cost of the division's operation is reimbursed through assessments paid by state-chartered banks, trust companies, savings institutions and fees paid by licensees.

Savings and Loan Supervision

The Division of Savings and Loan Supervision, created in 1895, was merged into the Division of Finance effective July 6, 1994, in accordance with the provisions of House Bill 1165. This bill transferred to the Division of Finance the supervision of state chartered savings and loan associations as well as the licensing of mortgage brokers.

The burden of redundant assessments had by that time caused most state thrifts to convert to federal charters. In response, in 1997 the General Assembly authorized the organization of savings banks to make the state thrift charter a viable option once more. As of December 31, 2000, there were seven savings and loans with total assets of $570 million.

Meanwhile the mortgage broker law, §443.800 et seq., was substantially amended in 1995; and over 346 licenses have been issued. Brokers were subjected to surety bond and net worth requirements and a five member Residential Mortgage Board was established to approve regulations and hear appeals from the commissioner's decisions.

Banking in Missouri

Missouri ranks fifth in the nation in the number of state-chartered commercial banks. As of December 31, 2000, the Division of Finance (pursuant to Chapters 361 and 362, RSMo) supervised 326 state-chartered banks and trust companies with combined total assets of $38.9 billion. During 1999 and 2000, the division approved charters for six new banks, two trust companies, and converted one federal savings bank to a state-chartered bank. The number of state-chartered banks decreased by 19 during the period as a result of 13 conversions to national charters or mergers into national banks and 15 mergers into other state banks. The deposits in all state-chartered banks and trust companies are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Branching and Interstate Banking

For most of this century, Missouri was a unit banking state and branching developed gradually as laws were changed over the last 30 years. Interstate barriers have also fallen and since June 1, 1997, banks in Missouri have been able to merge with banks in other states. The Division of Finance has entered into arrangements with other regulators to examine banks with interstate branches.

Consumer Credit

The consumer credit section supervises institutions licensed pursuant to state law (Chapters 364, 365, 367 and 408, RSMo) to engage in consumer lending, retail credit financing of motor vehicles and other goods and the financing of insurance premiums. The statutes give the commissioner authority to issue necessary regulations and examine for compliance with consumer protection laws. This unit also enforces the Sale of Checks Law (Sections 361.700 et seq.), which provides for the licensing of companies which issue money orders and financial services organizations (credit repair companies) per Sections 407.635–644.

The consumer credit section handles consumer complaints in the areas of usury, refunding, credit insurance, billing disputes and collection harassment. This section also coordinates enforcement of the Missouri residential real estate anti-discrimination (redlining) laws.

Office of the Public Counsel

The Office of the Public Counsel is Missouri's consumer advocate in the area of utility regulation. The Public Counsel must be an attorney licensed to practice in Missouri and is appointed by the director of the Department of Economic Development. Martha Hogerty has served as the Public Counsel since 1989.

The Office of the Public Counsel was established in 1974 as an independent agency to represent the interests of utility customers in proceedings before and appeals from the Missouri Public Service Commission (PSC) and the courts. The PSC regulates the rates and services of investor-owned electric, natural gas, telephone, water, sewer and steam heat utilities and also regulates manufactured housing. The Public Counsel's participation in PSC cases and its power to appeal PSC decisions has resulted in important victories for utility consumers.

While keeping abreast of the rapid changes that are currently occurring in the utility sector, the Office of the Public Counsel advocates for high quality utility services at affordable rates. Since many large industrial and commercial utility customers retain counsel to represent their particular interests before the PSC, the Office of the Public Counsel emphasizes residential and small business customers who otherwise would not have their point of view presented or their interests protected. Public Counsel's representation gives these consumers an essential voice in the regulation of life sustaining public utility services.

Recent federal and state legislation contemplates the introduction of competition into the local telephone market, and discussions are underway that could lead to the introduction of competition into portions of the electric and natural gas markets. As these changes occur, the Office of the Public Counsel will continue its traditional role in the remaining monopoly utility markets, but the office will also focus its efforts on the emerging competitive areas to advocate regulatory structures that will facilitate a transition to truly effective competition. Public Counsel will educate and communicate with consumers about their rights and responsibilities. These efforts are especially important to promote workable competition and to guard against consumer fraud.

The office is staffed by attorneys, technical experts and an administrative staff. The attorneys represent the public interest in proceedings before the PSC, the state and federal courts, as well as before the Federal Communications Commission and Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. Accountants, economists, financial analysts and engineers are the backbone of the technical staff. These experts offer the Public Counsel's comments and expert trial testimony on the reasonableness, feasibility, affordability and public policy effects of utility proposals and practices.

The Public Counsel attempts to focus on the most significant cases for utility consumers and cases which have broad public policy effects. The office also consults and works with other public utility consumer advocates in the other states to keep current on issues vital to the consumer and to address national and regional issues of interest to Missouri consumers.

The Missouri Public Service Commission is charged with the statutory responsibility of ensuring that public utility consumers receive safe and adequate services at just and reasonable rates that will provide the utility companies' shareholders the opportunity to earn a reasonable return on their investment.

The commission regulates utility rates, service and safety for investor-owned electric, gas, telecommunications, sewer and water companies. The commission also monitors the construction of manufactured homes to ensure compliance with state and federal law. Although the rates charged by rural electric cooperatives and municipally owned electric utilities are determined by their respective governing bodies, the commission has limited jurisdiction over rural electric cooperatives and municipally operated natural gas systems on matters of safety. The commission does not have jurisdiction over the basic service rates for telephone cooperatives, but regulates other aspects of their operations.

The commission consists of five commissioners who are appointed by the governor to six-year terms with the advice and consent of the Missouri Senate. The terms are staggered so that no more than two terms expire in any one year. The governor designates one member as chair who serves in that capacity at the pleasure of the governor.

The commission is served by a staff of professional accountants, engineers, economists, attorneys, financial analysts and management specialists.

The main commission offices are located in the Governor Office Building, 200 Madison Street in Jefferson City.

Traditional rate cases have the most immediate impact on public utilities and the customers they serve. Rate cases are usually complex and can draw much public attention. The commission is also engaged in a variety of activities reflecting changes in state and federal law that are bringing increased competition to the telecommunications and energy sectors of the utility industry.

As federal regulators make decisions which directly affect Missouri ratepayers, the commission has increased its activities before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) and the Federal Communications Commission (FCC). Commissioners and staff members have testified on numerous occasions before these agencies.

The traditional rate case is the process through which the commission ultimately determines what customers will pay for their utility services. The process is commenced in one of two ways: a utility company files a tariff for authority to change its rates; or a complaint is filed by the commission, the PSC staff, the Office of Public Counsel or others challenging the reasonableness of the utility's rates. Generally, a tariff filing seeks a rate increase while a complaint seeks a rate reduction.

The general public is formally represented before the commission by the Office of the Public Counsel, which is a separate state agency under the Department of Economic Development.

Under both the tariff method and the complaint case method, the commission will conduct hearings for the purpose of addressing the reasonableness of the proposed tariff or the reasonableness of the rates being challenged. In most tariff filing cases, the commission has up to 11 months from the time a tariff is filed to reach its decision, or the rates will go into effect as filed.

The commission staff conducts an independent, on-site investigation of the company's books and records to provide the commission with a recommendation as to what increase or decrease, if any, should be ordered. This investigation can take from two weeks to several months and results in the pre-filing of written testimony. Other parties such as the Office of the Public Counsel, consumer groups, commercial and industrial interests and municipalities are given an opportunity to pre-file written testimony.

Once the participants in a case have filed their testimony, the parties meet to determine which issues will be contested at the hearing. Prior to holding formal evidentiary hearings, the commission may hold local public hearings, which allow customers to express their views on the proposed increase or the utility's service.

At the formal evidentiary hearing, parties may cross-examine other parties' witnesses in a courtroom-like setting. Once the hearing is completed, the commission reviews the evidence submitted, deliberates and then issues a decision. That decision is subject to appeal to the courts by any party except the PSC staff.

Regular meetings of the commission are held in the commission's agenda room at 9:30 a.m., on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Like other state agencies, commission meetings are subject to the state's open meetings law.

The Records Department keeps a record of all filings and proceedings of the commission. These records are available for public inspection from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday, except for legal holidays.

A consumer who has questions about specific matters relating to utility service should first call the utility company. If the consumer is not satisfied with the company response, he or she may call the commission's consumer services department. Consumers may also file formal written complaints.

The commission's main consumer services office is located in Jefferson City on the eighth floor of the Governor Office Building. The commission's branch office is located in the St. Louis area at 815 Charter Commons Dr., Ste. 100-B, Town and Country. The commission's toll-free hot-line number for complaints is 1-800-392-4211.

Under the commission's procedure, each informal complaint is assigned a specialist who acts as an intermediary between the consumer and the utility in an attempt to resolve the complaint. Through investigations of consumer complaints, the consumer services department works to ensure that utilities comply with their approved tariffs and commission regulations.

The Missouri Public Service Commission was established in 1913 by the 47th General Assembly. The 1974 State Reorganization Act placed the commission within the Department of Consumer Affairs, Regulation and Licensing. In 1984 the department name was changed to the Department of Economic Development (DED).

Jefferson City 65102

Functions

The Division of Motor Carrier and Railroad Safety within the Missouri Department of Economic Development is responsible for the general regulatory oversight of motor carriers, railroads, and light rail within this state. The division oversees safety for all commercial motor vehicles, both private and for-hire, except for taxis and schoolbuses. The division approves rates and tariffs for intrastate household goods movers and non-charter passenger carriers. The division oversees safety for all freight (heavy) railroads operating in Missouri and is the designated safety oversight agency for the MetroLink light rail system in the St. Louis metropolitan area.

The strategic goals the division strives to achieve include:

- Increasing compliance of safety regulations by motor carriers and ultimately reducing accidents
- Increasing compliance of registration regulations by regulated motor carriers to ensure financial responsibility by the carriers
- Reducing the number of railroad crossing collisions, derailments, light rail incidents, and trespass incidents in Missouri
- Reducing the number of potentially dangerous railroad crossings in Missouri
- Ensuring that operators of regulated household goods and passenger transportation services are abiding by their service and pricing commitments to the shipping and traveling public
- Pursuing prosecution of violations of the division's regulations pursuant to the statutory authority of the division
- Increasing the efficiency of division programs and reducing the costs associated with division regulations

History

Senate Bill No. 2, passed by the First Regular Session of the 83rd General Assembly and signed into law by the Governor, effective July 1, 1985, established a Division of Transportation within the Department of Economic Development. The division was organized for the purpose of assuming all regulatory and supervisory powers, duties, and functions relating to transportation activities within the State of Missouri that were previously performed by the Missouri Public Service Commission under Chapters 386, 387, 388, 389, 390, and 391, RSMo. The division was renamed the Division of Motor Carrier and Railroad Safety, effective August 28, 1996, under the provisions of both Senate Bill 780 and House Bill 991, 88th General Assembly, 2nd Regular Session (1996). In addition, House Bill No. 876, 88th General Assembly, 2nd Regular Session (1996), reclassified light rail as a separate class of transportation entity from railroad corporations and designated the Division of Motor Carrier and Railroad Safety as the primary state agency having safety oversight responsibility for such light rail transit systems. Many of the division's powers, duties, and functions have been transferred to or recodified by the 1996 legislation under Chapter 622, RSMo.

The federal Aviation Administration Authorization Action of 1994 significantly reduced the division's involvement in economic regulation by preempting state regulation of rates, routes, and services for most motor carriers. In June, 1998, the federal Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century (TEA '21) became law and further deregulated certain interstate and charter bus operations. The division continues to enforce safety regulations on these carriers, and regulates safety and economics of intrastate, non-charter bus operations.

Organization

The Division of Motor Carrier and Railroad Safety is made up of seven sections. The responsibilities and duties of those sections are as follows:

Office of the Director. The Office of the Director oversees every segment of the division's activities including budgeting, accounting, personnel, enforcement, rate regulation, and supervising the technical aspects of transportation regulation. The director has the authority to promulgate rules of practice and procedure for the division. Additional activities include representing the division on transportation matters with regulatory personnel from other states, federal regulatory agencies, state and local government officials, civic organizations, and transportation industry associates. The Office of the Director consists of four full-time employees.

Administrative Law Judge Section. The Administrative Law Judge Section consists of two administrative law judges and their secretary. The administrative law judges hear and decide cases involving truck, bus, and rail activities. Those duties are performed by each administrative law judge without the concurrence of the other one. In addition, the administrative law judges, acting together, promulgate all practice and procedure rules that affect proceedings before the division. This section consists of three full-time employees.

Motor Carrier Safety Section. The Motor Carrier Safety Section is responsible for enforcing the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations and Missouri statutes and regulations pertaining to commercial motor vehicle safety and hazardous materials. Duties include identifying possible violators; inspecting motor coaches and hazardous materials cargo tanks at their terminals and destinations; performing terminal compliance reviews and commercial motor vehicle safety inspections; investigating the safety fitness of motor carrier registration applicants; investigating complaints received from shippers, receivers, carriers, and the general public; providing educational and technical assistance to carriers, drivers, and carrier associations; and cooperating with the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration. This section consists of 34 full-time employees.

Motor Carrier Registration Section. The Motor Carrier Registration Section reviews and files applications submitted by motor carriers for operating authority; verifies proof of insurance filed for carriers and updates insurance records on a daily basis; collects annual registration fees; prepares property carrier registrations, certificates, and/or permits; audits Single State Registration fees; audits passenger and household goods carriers; examines the rates and charges in passenger and household goods tariffs; prepares analyses and testimony for rate or complaint cases; and maintains all motor carrier and rail case files. This section consists of 14 full-time employees.

Railroad Safety Section. The Railroad Safety Section conducts track safety inspections, hazardous materials inspections, and grade crossing signal inspections in accordance with Federal Railroad Administration regulations; investigates rail employee safety conditions in accordance with the division's rules; investigates all grade crossing fatalities; and investigates complaints concerning safety conditions at crossings. The section also develops a priority list for the installation of signals at crossings; works on developing corridor improvement programs in order to utilize railroad money, in addition to state and federal monies; and coordinates the Missouri Operation Lifesaver Program which is part of a nationwide safety program aimed at reducing rail grade crossing accidents. This section consists of ten full-time employees.

General Counsel's Office. The General Counsel's Office is responsible for the coordination of all legal activities and preparation of legal documents on behalf of the division staff; the preparation of evidence and argument in cases heard before the division and courts in which the division may be a party, including the prosecution of administrative complaints and other enforcement cases against carriers who violate applicable statutes, rules, or orders; advising the division staff on legal issues relating to division powers, duties, and procedures; discussing legal and procedural problems with the public and with parties to proceedings before the division; and the drafting of rules and legislation. This section consists of five full-time employees.

Support Services Section. The Support Services Section is responsible for the preparation and disbursement of the division's annual operating budget; internal controls; outstate leases; personnel records; payroll; accounts receivable; accounts payable; financial reporting; purchasing practice and procedures; property control; computer support and repair; monitoring federal grants; and assisting in the recruiting, interviewing, and recommendation process for hiring professional and clerical personnel for the division. This section consists of five full-time employees.

The Missouri accountancy law protects the interests of the citizens of Missouri through the examination, licensure and regulation of individuals, limited liability companies, partnerships and professional corporations engaged in the practice of public accounting; assures the users of financial and economic data of an independent, objective and uniform product based upon generally accepted accounting principles and auditing standards; and ensures that the services are provided by competent and ethical practitioners. Only individuals, partnerships, limited liability companies and professional corporations qualified and registered as prescribed in Chapter 326, RSMo, may practice public accounting in the state.

The Missouri State Board of Accountancy was created in 1909 and consists of six certified public accountants and one public member appointed by the governor with the consent of the Senate for terms of five years. Nominations are made to the governor by the director of the Department of Economic Development. The board meets at least six times each year. Examinations for certificates are administered in May and November. Officers are elected in June of each year.

The board is a member of the National Association of State Boards of Accountancy and Council on Licensure, Enforcement and Regulation.

The State Board of Cosmetology was established in 1945 to examine, license and register qualified persons engaged in the practice of hairdressing, cosmetology and manicuring and, effective August 1995, esthetics. The board also licenses cosmetology schools and shops and inspects them for compliance with sanitary regulations.

The board is composed of seven members, including one voting member. All members, except the public member, shall be registered cosmetologists actively engaged in the lawful practice of cosmetology, hairdressing, esthetics or manicuring for at least five years.

All members are nominated by the director of the Department of Economic Development and appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate for four-year terms.

The board meets regularly six times each year as well as any special meetings that are deemed necessary. Officers are elected annually at the January board meeting.

The board is self-sustaining. It generates the necessary funds through the collection of fees for the issuance of new licenses, renewal of licenses and other fees paid by the 70,000 licensees. The board is a member of the National Interstate Council of State Boards of Cosmetology and participates in its national testing program.

The State Board of Barber Examiners was created by the 40th General Assembly on January 4, 1899. The board is composed of three barbers who have been licensed and practicing barbers for five years preceding their initial appointments and one voting public member. Members are nominated by the director of the Department of Economic Development and appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate for four-year terms. The board is self-sustaining by means of fees derived from the issuance of new licenses, the renewal of licenses, student registrations and other fees paid by approximately 5,500 licensees.

Board meetings are held regularly six times annually in conjunction with the examination for licensure as a barber or instructor. Officers of the board are elected annually by its members. The board is also a participating member of the National Association of Barber Boards of America.

While working with the Division of Professional Registration on budget and legislative matters, the board is responsible for enforcing Chapter 328, RSMo; responding to consumer complaints; and investigating and bringing formal complaints against licensees who violate the barber law or rules and regulations of the board.

It is the objective of the board to protect the public by ensuring that only qualified persons are examined and licensed to practice barbering in sanitary barber shops and schools/colleges, and that the curriculum in barber schools/colleges adequately prepares individuals to practice barbering.

The State Board of Chiropractic Examiners, created in 1927, consists of six members submitted by the Director of the Division of Professional Registration and appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. The members, five licensed chiropractic physicians and one public member, serve terms of four years.

It is the duty of the Board to administer and enforce the chiropractic practice act and issue licenses to persons entitled to practice chiropractic under the provisions of the law. Board meetings are usually held four times annually.

The Board is funded by fees derived from new and renewed licenses. There are over 1,800 chiropractic physicians currently licensed by the Board.

To qualify for license renewal, chiropractic physicians must earn 24 hours of board-approved continuing education, four hours of which must be in x-ray, four hours in differential or physical diagnosis and four hours in emergency procedures, boundary training, training in HIV or other infectious diseases.

The Board certifies qualified chiropractic physicians to perform meridian therapy, acupuncture or acupressure (MTAA). To retain the certification, the chiropractic physician must earn 12 hours of annual continuing education in MTAA approved by the Board.

The Office of Athletics has general control and supervision of all professional boxing, sparing, wrestling, kick boxing and full contact karate exhibitions held in the state and is empowered to make and publish rules and regulations governing the conduct of these sports.

The office investigates and processes all applications for licenses.

Upon satisfactory proof that applicants are qualified, the office grants licenses to sponsors, promoters, matchmakers, referees, doctors, timekeepers, managers, seconds, announcers and professional boxers and wrestlers.

A permit is granted for each event, and a charge is made for the permit allowing the exhibition or contest to be held under the office's rules and regulations and supervision. Sponsors are protected from encroachment of dates.

The office requires each boxing contestant to be examined by a licensed doctor before each exhibition or event.

In performing its duties, the office is assisted by inspectors who attend each event.

The Missouri Dental Board was created by the General Assembly in 1897. The Omnibus State Reorganization Act of 1974 transferred the board to the Division of Professional Registration.

The Missouri Dental Board consists of five dentists, one public member and one dental hygiene member appointed for five-year terms. Members are nominated by the director of the Department of Economic Development and appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. The board is self-sustaining through annual license and other fees paid by dentists, specialists and dental hygienists.

One of the primary functions of the board is examination for competency of candidates who wish to become licensed as dentists, dental specialists or dental hygienists. The Missouri Dental Board is a participating member of the Central Regional Dental Testing Service (CRDTS). CRDTS gives a clinical examination which is accepted by each member state. Applicants for original licensure who wish to practice in Missouri must pass the CRDTS regional examination or a state or regional entry-level competency examination as well as apply to the Missouri Dental Board. The board also issues licenses by credential verification to qualified applicants who have been licensed in another jurisdiction.

The board is responsible for the enforcement of Chapter 332, RSMo; responds to consumer complaints; and investigates and brings formal complaints against licensees who violate the dental law or rules and regulations of the board. The board also brings actions against persons practicing dentistry or dental hygiene without a license and may promulgate rules and regulations necessary to enforce Chapter 332, RSMo.

The Committee for Professional Counselors was established by the General Assembly in 1986 and began licensing professional counselors in 1987. The six-member committee is appointed by the governor, confirmed by the Senate and comprised of five practitioners and one public member. While working with the Division of Professional Registration on budget and legislative matters, the committee is responsible for reviewing the educational qualifications and supervised counseling experience of applicants, and investigating complaints relating to the counseling professions. The committee provides information and outreach programs to counseling education programs and professional associations to keep students and practitioners apprised of changes in the law or regulations as well as solicit input regarding committee procedures.

The State Board of Embalming was created in 1895 by an act of the Missouri General Assembly. In 1965, the legislature passed a bill licensing funeral directors as well as embalmers and changed the name of the board to the State Board of Embalmers and Funeral Directors. In 1977, Senate Bill 6 required all applicants for a funeral director's license to pass an examination prior to licensure. In 1993, legislation established an apprenticeship program and an additional examination for funeral directors. The board consists of six members, including one voting public member. Members of the board are nominated by the director of the Department of Economic Development and appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate for five-year terms. No more than three members of the board may belong to the same political party.

The board is self-sustaining by means of fees, derived from new licenses issued and through renewal of licenses of embalmers, funeral directors and funeral establishments and registration of embalming students.

Meetings are held at least four times per year. Examinations are given the third Wednesday of each month in Jefferson City.

Each council member must be a resident of Missouri for at least one year, be at least 30 years old and have at least 10 years active experience in the professional practice of landscape architecture as a principal livelihood.

Under the law, no person may use the title "landscape architect" or "L.A." or the terms "landscape architecture" or "landscape architectural" without registering with the council. The cost for administering the statute is funded by means of registration fees and renewals. The council is a member of the National Council of Landscape Architectural Registration Boards and an affiliate member of the American Society of Landscape Architects.

The pharmacy law has been amended at various times to meet the needs and requirements of the profession. During the 66th General Assembly, a drug store or pharmacy law was enacted granting the board power to license all drug stores, pharmacies, apothecary shops and chemist shops in the state. Six inspectors assist in enforcing the law with their salaries and travel expenses set by the board.

Organization of the board is held annually with the election of a president and vice president, both of whom must be board members.

The board annually licenses 6,500 renewals to registered pharmacists and permits to some 1,400 pharmacies in the state. In addition, the board annually issues 75 renewals to non-resident pharmacies as well as 900 renewals to drug distributors. The board also licenses intern pharmacists and renews approximately 400 intern pharmacist licenses annually. The board issues temporary licenses to pharmacists who are licensed in another state and who are completing a residency program in Missouri. This type of license restricts the pharmacist to specific sites approved by the board.

The initial registration of approximately 7,000 pharmacy technicians occurred in 1999. The first renewal period for these registrants, and subsequently registered individuals, occurred in FY2001.

The Missouri Real Estate Commission was created by an act of the 61st General Assembly and approved by the governor on July 31, 1941.

The commission consists of seven voting members. Six of those members must have at least 10 years experience as real estate brokers. A public member serves as the seventh member. Each commissioner is appointed for a five-year term.

Under the provisions of the real estate act, no real estate broker or salesperson may act as such without first procuring a license from the commission. Other responsibilities include investigating complaints generated by consumers against the acts of a real estate licensee and auditing real estate escrow accounts to verify proper handling of buyers' earnest money. The commission also approves all real estate pre-licensing and continuing education courses.

The Missouri Veterinary Medical Practice Act, revised in 1992, protects the citizens of the state through the examination, licensure and regulation of doctors of veterinary medicine and veterinary technicians. It authorizes the board to respond to consumer complaints, investigate and file formal complaints against licensees who violate the law.

The Missouri Veterinary Medical Board was created in 1904 and consists of five licensed veterinarians, one of whom is the state veterinarian who serves as an ex officio member of the board, and one public member. The board is appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate for terms of four years. No more than three members of the board may belong to the same political party.

The board appoints a Veterinary Technician Examining Committee consisting of two veterinarians, two veterinary technicians and the executive director to administer the examinations for registration in veterinary technology.

The board is a member of the American Association of Veterinary State Boards.

The board is entirely self-sustaining by means of fees derived from issuance of new licenses, registrations and facility permits and the annual renewal of those licenses and permits.

State Board of Education

Under the Missouri Constitution (Article IX), the State Board of Education has general authority for “supervision of instruction in the public schools.” Today, this responsibility includes the oversight of educational programs and services that serve Missourians from preschool through the adult levels.

The State Board of Education is composed of eight lay citizens, appointed by the governor and confirmed by the senate to serve eight-year terms. The terms are staggered so that one term expires each year. No more than four members may belong to the same political party. No more than one member of the board may live in the same county or congressional district.

The board appoints the commissioner of education to serve as its chief executive officer and as director of the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education. The board is required by law to meet at least twice a year in Jefferson City. Generally, though, the board meets for two days each month.

The primary role of the board is to provide leadership and advocacy for the improvement of Missouri’s public education system. The board also establishes policies and regulations needed to carry out state and federal laws related to public education. The board’s major duties include:

- Setting accreditation standards for local school districts through the Missouri School Improvement Program (MSIP). The accreditation standards define basic requirements for curriculum, student performance, staffing, high school graduation, and other areas of school operations.
- Establishing “academic performance standards” for the public schools and designing an assessment system to measure students’ learning, as required by the Outstanding Schools Act of 1993. In response to that law, the state developed the “Missouri Assessment Program” (MAP), a performance-based testing system that is used annually in all school districts.

- Setting education and certification requirements for all professional personnel (teachers, administrators, librarians, counselors, etc.) in public schools.
- Approving educator-preparation programs in the state’s community colleges and four-year institutions, both public and private.
- Establishing regulations and administrative requirements for the distribution of state and federal funds to school districts and other agencies.
- Monitoring school districts’ compliance with state and federal laws and regulations. This includes the administration of federally supported programs in the areas of special education, vocational-technical education and child nutrition (the school lunch and breakfast programs).
- Administering the Missouri School for the Blind (St. Louis), the Missouri School for the Deaf (Fulton) and the system of State Schools for Severely Handicapped.
- Administering vocational rehabilitation services for adult citizens with disabilities. (See Division of Vocational Rehabilitation.)

Department of Elementary and Secondary Education

Article IX of the Missouri Constitution reads, in part: “A general diffusion of knowledge and intelligence being essential to the preservation of the rights and liberties of the people, the general assembly shall establish and maintain free public schools for the gratuitous instruction of all persons in this state within ages not in excess of twenty-one years as prescribed by law.”

To help carry out this mandate the legislature first established a state office of education, with an elected state superintendent, in 1839. The office went through several transformations until the current constitution, adopted in 1945, established the State Board of Education in its present form and created a department of education, headed by an appointed commissioner of education.

The Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (DESE) was reorganized and established in its present form by the Omnibus State Reorganization Act of 1974.

The department is primarily a service agency that works with educators, legislators, government agencies, community leaders and citizens to maintain a strong public education system. Through its statewide school-improvement initiatives and its regulatory functions, the department strives to assure that all citizens have access to high-quality public education.

The Department of Elementary and Secondary Education is the administrative arm of the State Board of Education. In addition to the Commissioner of Education, the senior staff of the department consists of one deputy commissioner, one associate commissioner and five assistant commissioners. The associate and assistant commissioners each head one of the department's six main divisions.

Office of the Commissioner of Education

The commissioner of education directs the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education and fulfills other duties as prescribed by law

(Section 161.122, RSMo). These duties include: supervising schools and directing the process by which school districts are accredited; suggesting ways to upgrade curriculum and instruction in public schools; working with state and local officials to assure efficient management of public schools; advising local school officials, teachers and patrons about education-related issues and laws; and seeking "in every way to elevate the standards and efficiency of the instruction given in the public schools of the state." The commissioner is appointed by, and serves at the pleasure of, the State Board of Education.

Deputy Commissioner

The deputy commissioner serves as chief of staff for the agency, maintains liaison with the legislature and other agencies, and oversees all of the department's activities related to school improvement.

Division of Administrative and Financial Services

Telephone: (573) 751-2587 / FAX: (573) 751-1179

The school finance section assists local school officials with budgeting, audits, and the reporting of financial statistics. Other personnel in this division administer the federally funded school lunch and breakfast programs and distribute state funds for pupil transportation. This division also manages the department's internal business operations, such as accounting, budget, human resources and information technology.

Division of School Improvement

A primary function of this division is to manage the Missouri School Improvement Program (MSIP), the state's accreditation system for public school districts. It also assists local educators with curriculum development and student testing. The Curriculum Services Section provides technical assistance to local school personnel in the areas of math, science, social studies, language arts, health/physical education and fine arts. This division also administers a wide range of state- and federally-funded grant programs that assist local schools (Title I and other federal programs, early childhood and parent education, charter schools, gifted education, educational dinate the Missouri First Steps program, which provides early intervention services for infants and toddlers with disabilities and their families. The division works with local school districts in developing and improving special education services for students (ages 3-21) with disabilities. It also provides financial and technical support for all approved sheltered workshops in the state. Sheltered workshops provide employment for adults with disabilities.

The division is responsible for the operation of three school systems administered by the State Board of Education. These are the Missouri School for the Blind, the Missouri School for the Deaf, and the State Schools for Severely Handicapped. Through their outreach programs and consulting services, these school systems assist local school personnel and families throughout the state in meeting the needs of children with disabilities.

Division of Teacher Quality and Urban Education

This division is responsible for evaluating teacher-training programs offered by Missouri's higher education institutions and for issuing certificates (licenses) to all professional personnel who work in the state's public school system. Personnel in this division also conduct background checks on applicants for teaching certificates and investigate certificate-holders who are charged with misconduct.

Other sections in this division award grants for innovative professional development programs; administer the state-funded "career ladder" program; and manage state-funded scholarship programs for prospective teachers.

Division of Vocational and Adult Education

This division is responsible for a wide range of programs that serve the vocational and technical training needs of high school students, post-secondary students (community college), adults, and industry. Personnel in the division provide professional leadership and administer state and federal funds to support occupational training services in local high schools, area vocational-technical schools and community colleges.

The division's programs and services provide students and adults with the knowledge and skills needed for employment in current or emerging fields, to continue their education, or to be retrained for new business and industry

"VR" provides specialized services to adult citizens with disabilities to help them achieve employment and independence. The division maintains offices across the state to provide convenient services to clients. Vocational Rehabilitation personnel provide individualized counseling, training and other services to help clients achieve gainful employment or independent living. The VR program is supported primarily with federal funds.

The division currently funds 21 Independent Living Centers across the state. These centers provide counseling, advocacy, personal care, and training in independent living skills for adults with disabilities.

The Disability Determinations program is part of this division and operates under regulations of the Social Security Administration. Located in offices across the state, Disability Determinations personnel adjudicate claims from Missouri residents seeking federal disability benefits.

Commissions assigned to the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education

Education Commission of the States

The interstate compact for education is an agreement entered into by Missouri and a number of other states to provide an Education Commission of the States. The commission consists of the governor, two legislators and four governor's appointees from each member state. The commission is charged with collecting and analyzing data concerning educational needs and resources, coordinating research and developing proposals for adequate financing of education as a whole and formulating policies and plans for the improvement of public education. The commission is required to make a report to the legislature and governor of each member state annually on its activities.

The Missouri Commission for the Deaf was created in 1988 to improve the quality of life for all deaf and hard of hearing Missourians. It advocates for public policies, regulations and programs to improve the quality and coordination of existing services for people with hearing loss, and promotes new services whenever necessary.

The commission promotes deaf awareness in the general public and serves as a consultant to any public agency needing information concerning deafness; administers the Missouri Interpreter Certification System; conducts and maintains a census of the deaf population in Missouri; advocates for improved physical and mental health services for deaf Missourians; promotes the development of services for deaf adults such as shelter homes, independent living skills training, and postsecondary educational programs; facilitates a communication network among deaf adults; and promotes improvements in telephone relay services (TRS).

The Department of Health and Senior Services was created by the passage of House Bill 603 in May 2001. The bill transferred the roles and responsibilities of Division of Aging in the Department of Social Services to the Department of Health creating the Department of Health and Senior Services. This change will result in better integration, closer coordination and communication regarding health, public health, regulation and senior services for all Missourians.

State Board of Health

The State Board of Health serves as an advisory body for activities of the department. It consists of seven members appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate. Members serve four-year terms. Missouri law (RSMo 191.400) specifies that three members shall be licensed physicians; one member shall be a licensed dentist; and the other three members shall be persons other than those licensed by the State Board of Registration for the Healing Arts or the Missouri Dental Board and shall be representative of those persons, professions and businesses which are regulated and supervised by the Department of Health and Senior Services and the State Board of Health.

The State Board of Health advises the director of the Department in planning for and operating the department; and acts in an advisory capacity regarding rules promulgated by the Department.

State Board of Senior Services

The State Board of Senior Services will serve as an advisory body for activities of the department. It consists of seven members appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate. Members serve four-year terms. House Bill 603 specifies that board members shall currently be working in the fields of gerontology, geriatrics, mental health, nutrition and rehabilitation services of persons with disabilities. Four of the seven members appointed shall be members of the Governor's Advisory Council on Aging.

The State Board of Senior Services advises the director in planning for and operating the department and acts in an advisory capacity regarding rules promulgated by the Department.

Appointments to the State Board of Senior Services have not yet been made.

Office of the Director

The governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoints the director of the Department of Health and Senior Services. Under the director of health and senior services, the department is functionally organized into seven divisions: Administration; Chronic Disease Prevention and Health Promotion; Environmental Health and Communicable Disease Prevention; Health Standards and Licensure; Maternal, Child and Family Health; Nutritional Health and Services; and Senior Services.

The director is the chief liaison officer of the Department of Health and Senior Services for joint efforts with other governmental agencies and with private organizations which conduct or sponsor programs that relate to health and senior services in Missouri. The director is assisted by a Chief Operating Officer and two Deputy Directors responsible for the management of the Department and administration of its programs and services.

The director's office also oversees the Center for Local Public Health Services, Center for Health Information Management and Evaluation, Center for Health Improvement and State Public Health Laboratory, the offices of public information; minority health; personnel; training and professional development; governmental policy and regulation; women's health, general counsel, epidemiology, as well as district and regional offices.

The Office of Minority Health and Senior Services was established by statute to monitor the programs in the department for their impact on eliminating disparities that exist among Black, Hispanic, Native and Asian Americans. The Office also works collaboratively with community based organizations and leaders to identify specialized needs of minority populations and older individuals.

The Office of Epidemiology provides epidemiological consultation to all divisions, centers and offices to develop and implement research projects that assist in needs assessment, policy development, planning and implementation of programs. The office also provides consultation to local agencies in response to threats to their population and participates in training courses and presentations regarding various aspects of epidemiology. The office publishes prevention research in peer-reviewed journals, departmental publications and the Missouri Epidemiologist newsletter.

The Center for Health Information Management and Evaluation oversees the statistical and information systems activities of the Department of Health and Senior Services. Based on the analysis of statistics, this center advises the director regarding the general status of Missourians. Other statistical responsibilities include monitoring the supply of selected professionals in the state and monitoring the supply, staffing and utilization of hospitals and other facilities.

The Bureau of Vital Records serves as the state archives for vital records. All births and deaths in Missouri are registered with the bureau which, in turn, issues copies of birth and death certificates to eligible persons. In 2000, the bureau issued more than 119,000 copies of vital records on file. Other records on file are for marriages and marriage dissolutions in Missouri. Approximately 202,000 records of births, deaths, fetal deaths, marriages, divorces, and adoptions were filed with the Bureau of Vital Records in 2000. Missouri's files for resident births and deaths date from 1910 and the files for marriage dissolutions date from 1948.

Statistical services of the Department of Health and Senior Services are assigned to the Section of Health Statistics. The units of this section collect, analyze and distribute information which promotes better understanding of problems and needs in Missouri, as well as spotlighting progress achieved in the general health status of Missourians. Data generated by the section aid and guide the planning, development and evaluation of programs and services of the Department as well as the related activities of other agencies, institutions and organizations.

While the data collected by the Section are primarily valuable to help solve Missouri problems, much of the activity is coordinated with the National Center for Health Statistics. This allows comparable data to be collected at the state level that can be added with data from other states to form a picture of the health status of the nation.

The Bureau of Health Data Analysis analyzes and reports data related to births, deaths, marriages, marriage dissolutions, abortions, and other health statistics. These vital statistics are published in a monthly news bulletin, and annual report and periodic special reports. The bureau also prepares annual population estimates. Births and death data and special surveys are used to evaluate the effectiveness of maternal and child health programs in Missouri.

The Bureau of Health Resources Statistics develops statistics regarding Missouri resources in the areas of health manpower and health facilities. These statistics are compiled from the information received on annual surveys to the individual practitioners and facilities.

Effective January 1, 1993, hospitals are required to report financial data. These data are used to prepare consumer reports on charges and quality of care. This bureau also coordinates the development and publication of data on the Department's web site.

The Bureau of Health Services Statistics supports the Office of Injury Control by analyzing data related to injuries in Missouri. These data sets include ambulance trip ticket data, Head and Spinal Cord Injury Registry data, mortality data, hospital inpatient and outpatient data, motor vehicle crash data and data related to the sexual abuse of children. The bureau also assists other bureaus in designing, conducting and analyzing surveys.

The Bureau of Health Care Performance Monitoring collects and analyzes patient abstract data filed by hospitals and ambulatory surgical centers. This data is used to produce the interactive, hospitalization-related Missouri Information for Community Assessment (MICA) reports available on the Department Website. The Bureau also publishes two types of consumer's guides. The Outpatient Procedures Guide reports facility charges associated with selected outpatient procedures. The Managed Care Consumer's Guides contain information obtained from commercial, Medicare, and MC+ managed care plans on the quality of care and access to care of Missouri's HMO and POS products and their members' reports of satisfaction.

The Office of Information Systems supports the mission of the Department by supplying the information services and technology infrastructure required to address identified public needs of Missouri citizens. This is provided through applications development and maintenance, wide area and local area network administration, server administration, help desk services, client installations, and training.

The Center for Health Improvement has as its mission to aid in the design and development of sustainable systems to define and achieve improved health. A comprehensive community development process is used to aid communities in the design and development of sustainable systems to improve health. Several initiatives designed to improve access to preventative and primary health care and oral health care are utilized to strengthen the system necessary for improved health. Through the integration of these functions, there is greater coordination of health improvement activities within the department and with other departments, community partnerships, medical schools, not-for-profit organizations, professional organizations and our elected officials. The Community Support Unit carries out all functions of the center at the community level. The staff, which is located throughout the state at the District Health offices, serves as the primary contact for communities that are interested in improving their health.

The Caring Communities initiative is designed to challenge state agencies to reexamine the way they do business and challenges communities to organize their structures to accept sustained responsibility for the well being of children and families. State agencies and local communities collaborate to design strategies to improve the well being of children and families. Communities use state and local resources to implement the strategies. Six core results guide the state agencies and the communities as they strive to achieve better results for children and families. There are currently twenty-one Community Partnerships and three Community Collaboratives. Eight state agencies, the departments of Health and Senior Services, Mental Health, Social Services, Elementary & Secondary Education, Labor & Industrial Relations, Economic Development, Corrections and Public Safety, are involved in Caring Communities.

The Community Health Assistance Resource Team (CHART), developed in 1994, is a framework for community health improvement that provides technical assistance without dictating priorities. The statewide CHART process is built upon four tenets—community involvement, commitment, control and accountability—and facilitates improved health through increased empowerment, understanding and identification of community resources. CHART serves as a catalyst for development of new ways to partner for mutual success and a framework for community-based initiatives. It provides communities both the opportunity and the process to participate in changes in the health care delivery system. Coordination and cooperation of state and local partners is enhanced through CHART by reducing or eliminating duplication in technical assistance at all levels. Through the assessment of local need, garnering of local and other resources and the design and development of specific, sustainable solutions, communities are active participants in the health improvement process.

The Health Systems Development Unit establishes data systems and analysis to monitor access to the health care system and the quality of health services provided. The unit assists communities, health facilities and individuals in their efforts to improve preventative and primary health care services. The unit serves as a liaison with the federal government in the administration of the Public Health Service, community health center, rural health and urban health initiative programs. The unit develops needs assessments to determine health professional shortage areas and assists in site development, recruitment and placement of National Health Service Corps professionals in such areas. The unit administers the Primary Care Resource Initiative for Missouri (PRIMO), which is designed to improve access to primary, dental and mental health care services through a continuum of incentives for students pursuing health careers and community investments. The unit administers the health professional loan repayment program for licensed, practicing medical and osteopathic resident graduates of primary care specialties and/or dentists who agree to practice in an area of defined need. The unit also administers the professional and practical nursing student loan program and nursing loan repayment program.

The Oral Health Policy Unit administers a statewide community water fluoridation program. The program provides equipment for new installations and replacement equipment for those communities upgrading or replacing equipment. The unit monitors the 166 systems currently fluoridating and provides technical assistance and water plant operator training. The unit administers a fluoride mouth rinse program in schools across the state at no cost to the students. Dental sealants are provided at no cost to students in second, third and seventh grade who meet certain income guidelines. This program is carried out in school-based settings, private dental offices and public clinics. Through a cooperative agreement with the Elks Benevolent Trust, and the Department of Hospital Dentistry at Truman Medical Center East, the unit assures primary oral health care services for mentally retarded and developmentally delayed children utilizing mobile dental vans that cover the state once a year. The unit provides training and technical assistance, and policy guidance on a wide variety of oral health related issues such as child abuse and family violence, disaster dental identification, Occupational Safety and Health (OSHA) compliance, infection control, Medicaid, and oral public health research.

The State Public Health Laboratory building houses the department's laboratory. Each year, over a half million samples are received by the central laboratory, at branch laboratories in Springfield and Poplar Bluff, and at the State Tuberculosis Laboratory in Mt. Vernon. The laboratory provides testing services in the fields of chemistry, environmental bacteriology, microbiology, serology and virology. The laboratory also approves breath alcohol testing equipment used in Missouri; issues permits to persons qualified to supervise and operate these devices and periodically inspects breath testing instruments used in the state.

In addition to programs of the Department, the laboratory performs tests in support of activities of the state departments of Corrections, Mental Health, Natural Resources, Agriculture and law enforcement agencies.

The chemistry unit conducts chemical analyses of water, dairy products, foods and beverages to determine the presence of toxic chemicals or substances.

The environmental bacteriology unit tests public and private water supplies for the presence of coliform bacteria, swimming pool water samples for the presence of staphylococcus organisms, milk for the bacterial counts and food suspected of causing disease outbreaks (food poisoning).

The metabolic disease unit examines blood samples from newborn babies to find those who need treatment for phenylketonuria (PKU), hypothyroidism, galactosemia and sickle cell disease.

The microbiology unit examines blood, feces and food samples for the presence of the causative agent for typhoid fever and for organisms which cause other intestinal diseases. It prepares throat cultures for the detection of pertussis (whooping cough); identifies blood, intestinal and tissue parasites; and conducts testing for gonorrhea and chlamydia.

The serology/virology unit performs tests to help diagnose syphilis and AIDS; examines animal brains for rabies; performs blood tests for measles, rubella and hepatitis; and examines clinical specimens to detect influenza and other viral diseases.

The State Tuberculosis Laboratory conducts diagnostic tests on clinical specimens for the presence of the causative agent of tuberculosis in support of the state's TB prevention program. It also serves as a reference center for the state and region for identifying other mycobacterial and fungal diseases and infections.

Working in conjunction with the scientific units of the laboratory are two support units—administrative services and central services. The administrative services unit compiles statistical work loads, records and mails laboratory reports and collects fees paid for laboratory services. The central services unit prepares glassware, culture media and reagents for use in the various scientific units.

The Division of Administration assists and supports the department's programs in the accomplishment of their goals by providing administrative and technical services. Business support services include budget administration, grants and contract administration, accounting and procurement, general office services and internal auditing.

The Center for Local Public Health Services strengthens the public health system by supporting the continued development of a population-based approach to health issues in Missouri communities. The center promotes a strong local public health system by facilitating development of professional standards and continuous learning opportunities for the local public health workforce. The center provides leadership and technical assistance to develop processes that improve Missouri's public health system. These processes, such as strategic planning, continuous quality improvement, defining and implementing core public health functions, and Missouri's Model Agency Project help to develop and communicate a common vision and direction for public health in Missouri. The center works with policymakers and the public to improve understanding of the importance of public health and the responsibility of government to assure that a strong public health system is in place.

The Division of Chronic Disease Prevention and Health Promotion provides leadership and coordination in efforts to combat the major causes of illness, disability and premature death in Missouri such as heart disease, cancer, stroke, diabetes, osteoporosis and arthritis. This division includes three bureaus: Chronic Disease Control, Cancer Control, and Health Promotion. In addition, the Office of Surveillance, Research and Evaluation provides support to all programs within the division and the department.

The Bureau of Chronic Disease Control administers programs targeting Missourians at high risk for chronic disease, disability and premature death. Minorities and the economically disadvantaged have been identified as groups at high risk for cardiovascular disease, diabetes, arthritis, osteoporosis, kidney disease, and pulmonary diseases. Major disparities exist in the health status, and disease and death rates experienced by minorities and low socioeconomic groups when compared with all other Missourians.

Primary and secondary prevention programs are conducted to prevent or detect chronic diseases, including cardiovascular disease, diabetes, osteoporosis, and arthritis. Educational programs promote healthy lifestyles among youth and adults. Urban and rural follow-up programs monitor persons identified as high risk. Professional education programs provide current and accurate scientific information to health care providers and promote coordination of health services to meet the special needs of high-risk populations.

The Missouri Arthritis and Osteoporosis Program (MAOP) promotes optimal health and quality of life for all Missourians affected by arthritis, rheumatic disease, and musculoskeletal conditions. There are more than 100 different diseases and syndromes under the "arthritis" umbrella including lupus, juvenile arthritis, rheumatoid arthritis, osteoporosis, gout, carpal tunnel, etc. The program's focus is on prevention, early intervention, education, service, and collaboration. The MAOP collaborates with a variety of local, state and federal partners to address and support key issues related to arthritis and osteoporosis—planning, developing, and implementing statewide education and outreach activities. The MAOP supports a network of seven Regional Arthritis Centers and five Juvenile Arthritis Centers.

The Missouri Cardiovascular Health (MCVH) program focuses on primary and secondary prevention of the risk factors of physical inactivity, poor eating habits, smoking, obesity, hypertension, high cholesterol and diabetes. Interventions include community, worksite, school, and health care policy and environmental change programs to improve physical activity and heart healthy eating. The MCVH Program partners with a variety of state, local and national organizations to implement these programs and provide training and resources to health professionals at all levels.

The Missouri Diabetes Control Program (MDCP) provides and promotes programs, policies and education to health professionals and community-based organizations in order to reduce the impact of diabetes. This is accomplished through partnerships with a variety of state, local, and national organizations to implement quality improvement, awareness and educational programs and provide training and resources to health professionals at all levels.

The Bureau of Cancer Control coordinates department activities in the areas of cancer control, screening and some diagnostic tests, and cancer inquiries. Through its activities, the bureau seeks to reduce cancer mortality throughout Missouri.

Bureau staff promote cancer education and awareness and fund cancer control activities through eight regional cancer control coalitions.

They maintain information on cancer control resources available in Missouri and nationwide.

Staff also respond to citizens who are concerned there may be an excess of cancer in their community through a scientific-based protocol. They examine cancer concerns, conduct cancer inquiries, meet with a Cancer Inquiry Committee three times a year, and are available for educational presentations on cancer and the Cancer Inquiry Program.

Staff work cooperatively with the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in a project aimed at providing breast and cervical cancer screenings and some diagnostic tests to older women who are at a higher risk for these conditions and who qualify by age and income guidelines for the program. They are responsible for professional and public education, coalition support, quality assurance, and surveillance.

The Bureau of Health Promotion coordinates health promotion and education programs designed to reduce chronic disease risk factors and promote healthy lifelong practices. Programs administered by the Bureau of Health Promotion staff include the Missouri Tobacco Use Prevention Program, Chronic Disease Health Education Initiative, Health Promotion Training Institute, and Missouri Organ Donation Program.

The Missouri Tobacco Use Prevention Program provides funding and other resources to community coalitions to assist with implementing comprehensive tobacco prevention and control programs in schools and communities. Staff works closely with the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) Office on Smoking or Health to guide community efforts in support of the CDC's "Best Practices for Comprehensive Tobacco Prevention and Control."

The Bureau of Health Promotion also contracts with 15 local public health agencies to design and implement chronic disease prevention programs in 33 counties statewide. County public health educators hired through these contracts work with schools, worksites, and in other community settings to implement programs designed to increase physical activity and healthy eating, and reduce tobacco use.

Through the Health Promotion Training Institute, professional development is provided for health promotion and education professionals statewide. The Institute also facilitates information and resource sharing among health education and health promotion professionals statewide.

Legislation passed in 1996 established the Missouri Organ Donation Program within the Department. The goal of the program is to reduce the gap between the need for donated organs and the available supply. Two major initiatives coordinated by staff are a public education campaign on the need for organ donation and the maintenance of a registry. Program activities are dependent on public contributions collected at the time individuals obtain or renew a Missouri driver's license.

Health education staff in the Bureau of Health Promotion also develops health promotion and education materials for statewide dissemination. The MOve For Your Health physical activity initiative provides information necessary for individuals to plan and participate in a regular physical activity program in school and community settings.

The Office of Surveillance, Research and Evaluation conducts ongoing surveillance of risk factors for chronic diseases among Missourians as well as special projects ranging from insurance coverage to natural disasters to determine the impact on the public's health. The office also includes the Missouri Cancer Registry that collects, reviews and analyzes information on cancer cases. More than 125 public and private hospitals report cancer cases to the registry. Under a recently enacted expanded reporting statute, reporting by non-hospital facilities is being initiated. Department staff use the registry and other databases to conduct epidemiologic research. This research includes descriptive studies that monitor cancer incidence and mortality and analytic studies that identify risk factors for various types of cancers and other chronic diseases.

The mission of the Division of Maternal, Child and Family Health is to promote optimal health by providing leadership to both the public and private sectors in assessing health care needs of families and communities and in assuring that the health system responds appropriately. This division is accountable for the development and support of a comprehensive maternal, child and family health system capable of responding appropriately to identified community needs. The assurance of the system is possible through a network comprised of public and private participants. The division is also responsible for developing policy; planning systems of care; and designing, implementing and evaluating programs to meet the health care needs of families in the state of Missouri.

The division has the administrative and programmatic responsibility for a combination of state, federal and private funding to support programs that:

- Prevent injuries, disabilities, and the avoidable negative consequences of inadequate prenatal care (e.g., Genetics Tertiary Centers, education and early identification of fetal alcohol syndrome, the state TEL-LINK information service);
- Assure that children and disadvantaged adults receive high quality, basic health and support services (e.g., the Missouri School Age Children's Health Services Program; support for programming and services in all local public health agencies; dental screenings, sealants, and community water fluoridation); and

- Provide payment for care for uninsured and underinsured citizens who require specialized health care services (e.g., genetics services, including metabolic formula distribution, and treatment for sickle cell disease, hemophilia and cystic fibrosis; case management and payments for services to children with special health care needs; services and care coordination for adults with traumatic brain injury).

The Office of Planning, Evaluation and Injury Prevention coordinates a range of functions aimed at facilitating the integration of selected maternal and child health programs and support functions into mainstream health plans and community delivery networks. This office also supports departmental and interagency planning to better achieve healthy outcomes for women, infants, children, adolescents and children with special health care needs. These functions include:

- Grants Development and Management: Title V Maternal and Child Health Block Grant and State Systems Initiative Grant.

- Program Evaluation: Process and impact evaluations of selected MCH programs.
- Statewide MCH need/capacity assessments.
- This office provides staff support for the State Injury Prevention Advisory Committee. This committee functions as an inter-agency task force monitoring the frequency and location of injuries in Missouri and assessing programs and interventions that can be targeted to reduce injuries.

The Bureau of Family Health designs and administers programs and interventions relating to comprehensive family planning; prenatal care; Medicaid prenatal case management quality assurance; healthy birth outcomes; adolescent health education; school age children's health service; sexual assault prevention services; and medical examinations for rape victims; coordination of statewide network of providers trained to perform safe child exams; abortion alternative programs and well-child outreach.

Comprehensive family planning funds, which include funds for pregnancy testing, contraceptive alternatives and family planning services, are contracted to a wide variety of providers across the state to help women plan their pregnancies, and the spacing of their pregnancies, in order to reduce the number of unintended pregnancies, increase the number of women who receive adequate prenatal care, and achieve better birth outcomes. In addition, funding is available to support programs to help women identify alternatives to abortion.

Grants are provided to public schools, public school districts, and local public health agencies to establish or expand health services for all children of school age in defined geographic areas. Technical assistance and consultation are available as a collaborative effort among the principle departments of state government to help grantees plan for and establish services.

A sexual assault prevention program and services to victims are provided on a contract basis through a number of community-based crisis centers. Major foci of this program are community education; professional education for police, prosecuting attorneys for medical personnel; short-term and group counseling for victims; hotlines, and prevention programs for school age children. A resource library is maintained and available to the public.

The Sexual Assault Forensic Evaluation-Child Abuse Resource and Education (SAFE-CARE) Network is a statewide program that provides comprehensive, state-of-the-art medical evaluations to the alleged victims of child sexual assault. The Network is comprised of physicians and nurse practitioners who are trained by the Network and required to attend yearly update training sessions. The program was developed to respond to the need for a coordinated, effective response to child sexual assault and utilizes electronic linkages between SAFE-CARE Network providers to improve medical consultation in rural and underserved areas.

Funds are available to reimburse hospital and physicians for the costs of a medical examination for victims of rape or child sexual assault when no other source of funding is available.

Funds are also available to pay for autopsies and transportation of infants who are suspected of having died from SIDS. Qualified pathologists perform autopsies to determine the cause of death.

Home visiting services are provided to qualifying pregnant women and families of newborns in various sites throughout the state. The Building Blocks of Missouri program targets low income, first time, mothers who enter the program prior to the 28th week of pregnancy. Registered nurses with experience in home visiting and maternal-child health work with the women and their families in their homes during pregnancy and the first two years of the child's life. The program, which is evidence-based, has been shown to improve pregnancy outcomes, improve child health and development, and to improve the family's economic self-sufficiency. The Missouri Community-Based Home Visiting program provides an interdisciplinary team intervention which combines the expertise of registered nurses, social workers, and lay family support workers to provide family support. Home visiting services include: a post-partum and newborn assessment by a registered nurse, assessment for risk factors associated with child abuse and neglect, education on child health and development, education on parenting and problem solving skills, nutrition education, and enhancement of the family support system through referrals for services to other community agencies. The goals of the program are to increase pregnancies that result in healthy babies, decrease infant mortality, decrease the pregnancy rate for females under age 18, and to decrease family violence. A crisis intervention program is available in various counties in the state to assist pregnant women and new mothers deal with problems that arise related to their pregnancy or to the birth of their newborn. Services are provided by registered nurses with maternal-child health experience.

The Bureau of Family Health operates 1-800-TEL-LINK, the state's toll-free number for information and referral to maternal and child health services across the state.

The Well Child Outreach program promotes the importance of preventive health screenings for children. It is operated through a collaborative agreement between the department and the Division of Medical Services (DMS) with a special focus on children who are eligible for MC+. Funds are utilized to purchase and distribute health education materials educating parents about the importance of regular checkups for children. Materials are exhibited at health fairs, public events and professional conferences. To enhance outreach efforts, the bureau provides local public health agencies with a monthly report printed by DMS that lists children who are eligible for MC+ and due for a screening.

The Healthy Babies Initiative promotes the importance of early and regular prenatal care, breastfeeding, folic acid intake, placement of sleeping infants on their backs, birth spacing, and avoidance of alcohol, tobacco and drugs during pregnancy. A license was purchased to utilize the Baby Your Baby campaign as the media component. Partnerships are being developed with television stations and radio stations. Keepsake books for pregnant women and child development newsletters for new parents have been developed. Culturally diverse health education print materials have been purchased. Collaborations have been established with Parents as Teachers, March of Dimes, SIDS Resources, Inc., Division of Medical Services, Division of Highway Safety, local public health agencies and local Division of Family Services offices to maximize distribution of Baby Your Baby materials. A pre-campaign survey was conducted with new mothers to determine their knowledge and behaviors on the key initiative components. A post-campaign survey in FY04 will measure change in knowledge and behaviors and will serve as the evaluation tool.

In addition, the bureau provides funding, consultation and assistance for a child health screening program; a school health screening program; adolescent health programs and education, and audio-visual and printed material relevant to maternal and child health.

The bureau is responsible for a Prenatal Case Management Program in collaboration with the Department of Social Services/Division of Medical Services, for fee-for-service MC+ (Medicaid) enrollees. This program includes orientation to case management, quality assurance and data management for the specific population. The department also provides technical assistance to local public health agencies and federally qualified health centers who provide prenatal case management.

Domestic Violence is a pattern of assaultive and coercive behaviors that adults or adolescents use against their current or former intimate partners. The Bureau of Family Health works to enhance the capacity of health and human service providers to develop safe and effective prevention, screening, intervention and follow-up strategies related to domestic violence.

Funds are provided through contracts to local public health agencies focusing upon building and enhancing local public health systems to address targeted health indicators.

The Bureau of Special Health Care Needs provides services for children and adults with disabilities, chronic conditions, and birth defects. Within the bureau:

The Children with Special Health Care Needs Program provides services for children under the age of 21 who meet financial and medical eligibility guidelines. This program focuses on early identification of children with special needs; funding for prevention, diagnostic and treatment services; and provision of service coordination services to families. Service coordination is provided by staff located in ten regional offices throughout the state.

The Adult Head Injury Program provides assistance in locating, coordination, and purchasing rehabilitation and psychological services for individuals who have survived a traumatic brain injury (TBI). TBI is defined as "a sudden insult or damage to the brain or its coverings, not of degenerative nature." Service coordination is available free of charge, regardless of financial status of the individual with TBI. Rehabilitation funding is available statewide to survivors of TBI whose income is 185% of poverty or lower. Funded services include:

- Neuropsychological Evaluation and Consultation
- Behavioral Assessment and Consultation
- Adjustment Counseling
- Comprehensive Day Program
- Transitional Home and Community Support
- Pre-Vocational/Pre-Employment Training
- Supported Employment/Follow Along
- Special Instruction
- Physical Therapy Evaluation/Treatment
- Occupational Therapy Evaluation/Treatment
- Speech Therapy Evaluation/Treatment
- Recreation Activities
- Respite Care
- Transportation

Metabolic Formula Distribution Program provides prescribed dietary formula to individuals with covered metabolic disorders such as Phenylketonuria (PKU) or Maple Syrup Urine Disease (MSUD). Use of the dietary formula combined with a medically supervised diet eliminates or reduces the adverse consequence of the disorder. Service Coordination is available to assist the individual to assess their needs and develop a treatment plan to address those needs.

The First Steps Program identifies infants and toddlers between the ages of birth and 36 months who have 50% developmental delay in one of more of the following areas: cognitive, physical (including vision and hearing), communication, social/emotional, or adaptive/self-help development, or who have a diagnosed physical or mental condition that has a high probability of resulting in developmental delay or disability. Service coordination and early intervention services are provided to eligible infants and toddlers and their families.

The Healthy Children and Youth-Administrative Case Management Program provides preventative health services to children under the age of 21 who are enrolled in Medicaid. The objectives of this program are improved access to health services; increased frequency of health screenings; improved provider participation in Medicaid; and expansion of diagnostic and treatment services.

The Physical Disabilities Waiver (PDW) Program was designed to provide home and community-based services to individuals with serious and complex medical needs who have reached the age of 21 and are no longer eligible for home care services available under Early Periodic Screening, Diagnosis and Treatment (EPSDT), known as Healthy Children and Youth (HCY) in Missouri. This waiver is designed to provide a cost-effective alternative to placement in an Intermediate Care Facility for the Mentally Retarded/Developmentally Delayed.

The Perinatal Substance Abuse Program offers service coordination to women who use alcohol or controlled substances during pregnancy and to the families of children who are at risk of child abuse or neglect because of exposure to alcohol and/or controlled substances and who show signs or symptoms of exposure at birth. Health professionals will enlist families to assist in identifying what services are needed, who can help find the services. Assistance is provided to help develop a plan to meet individual and family needs.

The Bureau of Genetics and Disabilities Prevention coordinates and expands prevention activities in Missouri to reduce the incidence of primary and secondary disability associated with birth, development and disease. The bureau conducts public, professional and patient education; advocacy; surveillance; needs assessment; resource identification and/or development; and collaboration and coordination with other public and private entities.

The disability prevention component develops data systems and links data sets to enhance surveillance capacities contributing to the understanding and prevention of secondary conditions, enhances referral networks and available resources, and fosters health promotion among people with disabilities through statewide collaborations.

The genetic disease program expands existing programs and develops new programs where needed to reduce the morbidity and mortality associated with genetic disorders. Information is provided to the public and medical professionals regarding genetic services in Missouri. A referral network is maintained for individuals in need of diagnostic treatment, counseling and other genetic-related services.

The sickle cell anemia program provides information to the public and health professionals about sickle cell anemia and sickle cell trait, and promotes and provides screening, testing, referral, counseling and follow-up services for Missouri citizens at risk for sickle cell disease.

The newborn screening, tracking and follow-up program provides confirmation of diagnosis and tracking of newborns to ensure that those with a positive screening result for phenylketonuria (PKU), galactosemia, hypothyroidism and hemoglobinopathies are retested and entered into a system of health care. Pilot testing is also being conducted on congenital adrenal hyperplasia in order to add it to the required battery of newborn screenings. In the future additional newborn screenings will be implemented by the Department.

The newborn hearing screening program is a tracking and follow-up program which assures each baby born in Missouri receives a hearing screening by 3 months of age and is referred for early intervention services by 6 months of age.

The mission of the Division of Nutritional Health and Services (DNHS) is to decrease preventable nutrition-related morbidity and mortality throughout the life cycle. The Division of Nutritional Health and Services is responsible for coordinating all nutrition-related activities within the Department, conducting nutrition-related epidemiological and surveillance activities, and providing technical guidance as needed. The Division of Nutritional Health and Services is also responsible for facilitating appropriate linkages between Department programs and programs in other state agencies that have nutrition components.

The Office of the Division Director is responsible for administrative and fiscal management of all division functions. The Office of the Division Director provides division-wide leadership in the areas of nutritional epidemiology, strategic planning, marketing and outreach.

The Bureau of Community Food and Nutrition Assistance administers the Child and Adult Care Food Program; the Summer Food Service Program; and other programs that promote and support the health, safety, nutrition and education of children and at-risk adults in various locations, including day care, child care, schools and other community-based settings:

- The Child and Adult Care Food Program (CACFP) provides reimbursement for nutritious meals and snacks served to eligible participants in child care centers, family day care homes, homeless shelters, outside-school-hours programs, and adult day care centers. CACFP's goal is to see that well-balanced meals are served and good eating habits are taught in child and adult care settings. CACFP serves children under the age of 13, children of migrant workers age 15 and under, physically and mentally-handicapped persons receiving care in a center where most children are 18 years and under, and adults who are functionally impaired or over 60 years old. CACFP provides training and technical assistance on nutrition, food-service operations, program management and record keeping.

- The Summer Food Service Program (SFSP) helps assure that eligible populations have access to nutritious meals during the summer months by providing reimbursement to community agencies that can offer the required continuum of meals. Eligible participants include children 0-18 years of age whose family incomes are less than or equal to 185% of the Federal Poverty Guidelines. Income-eligible adults over 18 years of age who have been determined by a state educational agency to have a disability and who participate in a school-based program for the disabled during the school year also are able to participate in the SFSP. SFSP has contracts with schools and other community-based organizations to sponsor the local programs and provide the meals that must meet established guidelines. SFSP increases the nutrient intake of program participants, thereby reducing their risk for health problems and enhancing their learning capacities. SFSP also improves the quality of the summer programs offered in areas of economic need.

The Bureau of Nutrition Policy and Education provides leadership in the science and practice of dietetics and public health nutrition. The Bureau monitors research and scientific advancements, assesses the needs for policy solutions by various stakeholders, and transfers that knowledge into information and programs that can be used effectively by those stakeholders. The Bureau also administers critical programs and activities, including:

- The Missouri Nutrition Training Institute improves the effectiveness of all professionals who have responsibilities for providing nutrition education and counseling services to Missouri residents, including schoolteachers, physicians, nutritionists and others. The NTI currently consists of the Program for Dietetics Interns, the Breastfeeding Curriculum Development Initiative, the School Nutrition Education Program, and a course in Evidence-Based Decision-Making for Nutrition Professionals. New programs are added as professional training needs are identified.

- The Missouri Nutrition Network (MNN) advises the Division of Nutritional Health and Services on methods by which consistent and relevant nutrition messages can be communicated to Missourians who are eligible for the food stamp program. Statewide organizations that influence the health behaviors of the food stamp population are members of the MNN. MNN advice helps assure that initiatives and materials developed have the greatest potential for success. Initiatives undertaken with the advice of the MNN include the Healthy Children's Nutrition Education Initiative, the Eat for Health Campaign, and the Nutrition Training Institute.

- The Healthy Children Nutrition Education Initiative (HCNEI) increases the number of low-income families with children who practice healthful eating behaviors. Families with children who are receiving, or are eligible to receive, food stamps. HCNEI is provided through contracts with community-based coalitions. Coalitions are eligible to apply for funding if they are local, not-for-profit entities who are awarded funding through a competitive process. The local coalitions coordinate, present, and evaluate community-based nutrition education initiatives.

The Bureau of Nutrition Research and Surveillance conducts population-based surveillance activities to determine the nutritional status of all Missourians, provides technical advice to the division in the area of data management, and designs and conducts evaluations of division programs. Currently, the bureau has two surveillance systems: the Pregnancy Nutrition Surveillance System, and the Pediatric Nutrition Surveillance System. These surveillance systems monitor the prevalence of nutrition-related risk factors that can be linked to infant mortality and low birth-weight in high-risk prenatal populations, and the prevalence of specific health indicators in at-risk infants and children. These data are used by program planners and policy makers at the federal, state and local levels to aid them in establishing health priorities and policies.

The Bureau of Nutrition Services and WIC administers the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC), and the Farmers' Market Nutrition Program (FMNP). The bureau also coordinates the operation of the mobile health unit, community nutrition assessment and education, breastfeeding promotion activities, nutrition services for special needs population, and the public health practicum experience for the dietetic internship program.

- The WIC Program prescribes and pays for nutritious foods to supplement the diets of pregnant women, new mothers, infants and children up to five years of age, who qualify as "nutritionally at-risk," based on a medical and nutrition assessment, and state income guidelines. Program participants are reassessed periodically to determine eligibility status. These services are provided through contracts with county and city health departments, community health centers, community action agencies and hospitals at the local level. WIC has contracts with retail grocers and pharmacies to provide the prescribed supplemental foods. The WIC Program provides nutrition education to program participants, the goal is to change eating patterns in a positive way to improve their health status; breastfeeding counseling and support to pregnant women and new mothers on the program; conducts immunization screenings and referrals to assure children are age-appropriately immunized; nutrition counseling to special needs populations; and medical referrals to health care providers to address the needs of WIC participants.

- The Farmers' Market Nutrition Program provides fresh fruits and vegetables from farmers and farmers' markets to WIC participants. The Farmers' Market Nutrition Program contracts with county and city health departments to provide nutrition education to WIC participants on ways to incorporate fresh fruits and vegetables in their family meals; and with farmers and farmers' markets to provide fresh fruits and vegetables to WIC participants.

Division of Environmental Health and Communicable Disease Prevention

The mission of this division is to prevent and control communicable and environmentally-induced diseases in Missouri. The methods of epidemiology are used to investigate the cause, origin and method of transmission of disease conditions in the human population and to control the spread of disease. Using methods such as case and outbreak investigations, data collection, and analysis, the sections and programs within the division investigate how a wide variety of diseases and conditions are caused and spread, and determine the best ways to limit further spread or exposure. This division includes the sections of STD/HIV, Communicable Disease Control and Veterinary Public Health, Vaccine Preventable and Tuberculosis Disease Elimination, and Environmental Public Health, and the Offices of Surveillance and Fiscal Services.

The interrelated services of these sections focus on the development and implementation of disease prevention and control efforts. Included are responsibilities related to communicable diseases, zoonoses (animal to person transmitted diseases), nosocomial (hospital-acquired) infections, sexually transmitted diseases, HIV, immunizations, community sanitation (food safety, sewage, etc.), environment-related health hazards, and occupational health.

Section of STD/HIV

Within this section, HIV/AIDS Service Coordination is a system for locating, coordinating and monitoring a comprehensive set of services with a designated individual or organization in order to promote effective and efficient access to necessary services. HIV/AIDS Service Coordination builds on maintaining an infected person's dignity and independence while effectively utilizing the strengths and resources of the infected person.

The HIV/AIDS Service Coordination network is available statewide, free of charge, regardless of the insurance or financial status of the individual. Service coordinators are located in a variety of settings in more than 30 agencies, including local public health agencies and community-based organizations. The HIV/AIDS service coordinator works with the client to complete a needs assessment and to develop a service plan. The client is an equal partner with the service coordinator in decision-making, planning and service selection. The service coordinator assists the client in locating and accessing physicians, medications, home care, mental health, dental, nutrition counseling, housing and utility assistance, transportation services, and other necessary health and social services. Funding for these services is available to financially-eligible infected persons who do not have insurance or other resources.

The section is also responsible for the prevention and control of sexually transmitted diseases (STDs), though the focus is primarily on HIV, gonorrhea, syphilis and chlamydia. The section collaborates with community members throughout the state who serve on the Statewide HIV Prevention Community Planning Group. This group prioritizes HIV activities. Together with local public health and community partners, the section provides the basic prevention services of education, identification and intervention.

HIV and STD counseling and testing efforts have been expanded into many programs, such as family planning clinics, drug treatment programs, and community based organizations in addition to local public health agencies and STD testing sites. Outreach venues for HIV and STD testing increase as technology changes. Another key intervention is partner notification, the process of confidentially notifying sexual and needle-sharing partners of persons who have tested positive for HIV or STDs. This notification allows partners to find out their health status, get treatment, and alter their high-risk behavior.

The section also coordinates and supervises the work of field representatives throughout the state. These representatives assist district, county and city health agencies with STD control efforts; distribute antibiotics to public health clinics to treat STDs; and provide consultation related to diagnosis, treatment, and case finding, as well as procedures and techniques recommended for specific STDs.

The Section for Environmental Public Health inspects food establishments for compliance with sanitation codes and standards, reviews plans for new food facilities, and conducts food sanitation training for personnel of food establishments. The section provides technical services to other state agencies relating to food sanitation and environmental health. The section evaluates food protection programs conducted by local public health agencies; certifies food and drug sources located in Missouri for interstate transport and export; collects food and beverage samples at random for laboratory analysis for purposes of public health safety; and monitors salvage operations for reclaiming distressed food, drugs, and cosmetics from transportation accidents, fires, floods, and windstorms. Technical assistance is provided to local and state law officials on matters relating to food and drug sanitation. Milk is made available for interstate shipment through a certification program administered by the section.

In addition, the section administers programs for licensure of frozen dessert machines, non-intoxicating beverage manufacturers, and bedding manufacturers as required by statute. Sanitation and safety inspections are conducted for licensure of hotels and motels.

The section also enforces the state statute that regulates the installation and repair of individual on-site sewage systems.

The section provides consultation, and technical assistance related to private water supplies and rodent and insect control. Environmental nuisance complaints are investigated and recommendations for corrective actions are made.

The Section for Environmental Public Health is involved in the investigation and prevention of disease related to the environment. The section's efforts focus on disease associated with exposure to chemical, physical, or radiological agents. The section conducts epidemiological studies of environment-related disease; performs health and risk assessments of uncontrolled or abandoned hazardous waste sites; provides technical advice and consultation related to hazardous substances; trains district and local public health agency personnel in techniques for investigating contamination caused by hazardous substances; and administers the Missouri dioxin exposure register. The section also works closely with state and federal health and environmental agencies and consults on appropriate strategies for remediating hazardous waste sites to health-protective contamination levels.

The section also serves to reduce and prevent childhood lead poisoning through health education campaigns and consultation with local public health agencies, families and individuals. Section staff coordinate blood lead screening promotion and coordination, and conduct health profession education. The section also administers a radiological health program that includes registering, inspecting non-medical sources of ionizing radiation for compliance with state regulations. Program staff provide consultation to persons involved with radiation-producing devices and radioactive materials, and evaluates health risk of radiation exposure in various work environments. It also provides training in radiation protection and radiological emergency response and responds to all reported radiological incidents.

The Section of Vaccine-Preventable and Tuberculosis Disease Elimination promotes the prevention of vaccine-preventable diseases and tuberculosis in Missouri. It works with other public and private agencies to assure immunization services and to educate and inform Missourians about the importance of immunization. The section consults with the Advisory Committee on Childhood Immunization to develop state immunization policies and recommendations.

In working toward the goal of fully protecting Missourians from vaccine-preventable diseases, the section assesses immunization providers, collects and analyzes data to measure immunization levels, and develops interventions to increase immunization rates. In concert with private physicians, local public health agencies, and the State Public Health Laboratory, the section tracks the incidence of vaccine-preventable diseases and works with communities to reduce the effects of outbreaks.

The section provides vaccines to local public health agencies and private physicians; coordinates the distribution of influenza/pneumonia vaccine to local public health agencies; and provides immunization information to international travelers. The section enforces the state child care and school immunization laws.

The Section of Vaccine-Preventable and Tuberculosis Disease Elimination provides medical consultation and laboratory services to local public health agencies and private physicians regarding the diagnosis and management of tuberculosis; on a limited basis pays for tuberculosis diagnostic services; provides without charge, prescribed medication for the treatment or prevention of tuberculosis; provides tuberculin skin testing materials for use in contact testing programs; and maintains registries for tuberculosis disease and infection in Missouri. The registries serve as guides for case follow-up and supervision. The section also provides information for planning and evaluating tuberculosis control efforts.

Each year more than 2,000 refugees throughout the world are resettled in Missouri. The refugee health program within the section provides technical and financial assistance to local public health agencies and community health centers in providing health assessments for refugees entering their community.

The Section of Communicable Disease Control and Veterinary Public Health is dedicated to preventing and controlling communicable diseases including viral hepatitis, bacterial meningitis, foodborne illnesses, institutionally acquired infections, and others. Disease prevention and control are achieved through surveillance activities, consultation, epidemiologic field investigations and public health education.

The section establishes procedures and protocols pertaining to the control of communicable diseases; consults with local public health agencies, practicing physicians and others regarding diagnosis and control measures for specific communicable diseases. The section also consults with local public health agencies on coordination of disease outbreak investigations, disease investigation/control activities, and analysis of data. The section works with physicians, infection control professionals, and laboratories to encourage complete reporting; provides consultation and epidemiological services to prevent and control institutionally acquired infections; provides educational programs for health care providers and the public; and acts as liaison between the Department of Health and the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and other federal and state agencies concerned with communicable disease control.

In addition, the section serves as a resource to local public health agencies, veterinary professionals, and the public on the prevention and control of animal transmitted (zoonotic) diseases. The section provides consultation, education, and guidelines/recommendations on zoonotic disease outbreak investigations, human prophylaxis, and management of animals with disease capable of transmission to humans.

The Office of Surveillance tracks and documents occurrence and distribution of communicable, zoonotic, and environmentally induced diseases in Missouri through the development and improvement of the statewide surveillance system. Examples of data collected, analyzed, and reported by the office include cases of childhood lead poisoning, sexually transmitted diseases, HIV, rabies, and hazardous substance releases. The Office of Surveillance provides technical assistance to division staff in identifying surveillance data needs, designing data collection processes/ systems, developing datasets, and analyzing and interpreting data.

The STD/HIV/AIDS surveillance program tracks and documents the spread of infection. This program identifies groups and communities affected, associated risk factors and progression of HIV disease and sexually transmitted diseases. This information is provided to the Section of STD/HIV where it is used to evaluate prevention efforts and identify areas for program development. The information also supports community planning for care resources and allows public health officials to more accurately predict the rate of infection among the general population.

The Office of Surveillance also investigates occupational fatalities and provides recommendations and consultations to Missouri employers to help prevent fatal injuries on the job. This program maintains a workplace fatality surveillance system that includes county coroners, policy and sheriff departments, fire departments, and ambulance and emergency response companies.

The Office of Fiscal Services provides oversight, technical assistance and training to division staff regarding fiscal management and accountability.

The Division of Health Standards and Licensure oversees the health care regulatory programs of the Department. Supervision is provided for hospital licensure and certification activities, hospice and home health licensure and certification activities, emergency medical services, registration of handlers of controlled substances, child day care providers licensure activities, inspection of license-exempt child day care providers, lead inspectors licensing and accreditation of lead inspectors training programs. The division also maintains the Family Care Safety Registry.

The Office of Lead Licensing and Accreditation licenses lead abatement professionals and accredits training providers as mandated by Missouri Revised Statutes 701.300-338. The purpose of the office is to ensure that lead abatement professionals are properly trained and have the appropriate work experience to do lead abatement work and lead-based paint detection in order to prevent childhood lead poisoning.

The Office of Lead Licensing and Accreditation staff reviews applications, checks references, administers state licensing examinations, issues licenses and photo identification badges, reviews training curriculum, audits training programs, and conducts enforcement and compliance activities.

This office is responsible for conducting random inspections of lead abatement professionals at lead abatement worksites to ensure that they are licensed and in compliance with state statutes and regulations. It is also responsible for randomly auditing training classes given by accredited training programs to ensure that they are in compliance with state statutes and regulations.

The Bureau of Health Facility Regulation is responsible for the regulation and licensing of Missouri's hospitals, ambulatory surgical centers and abortion facilities that are required to renew their licenses annually in accordance with current statutes. License renewals are based upon compliance with state regulations in the areas of fire safety, environment, organization and administration, and all aspects of patient care.

The bureau also contracts with the National Health Care Financing Administration to survey and recommend certification of providers and suppliers of services as participants under Title XVIII (Medicare) of the Social Security Act. Providers include hospitals, independent laboratories, outpatient rehabilitation facilities (physical, occupational and speech therapy), end-stage renal disease facilities, independent physical therapists, occupational therapists, portable x-ray providers, ambulatory surgical centers, rural health clinics, comprehensive outpatient rehabilitation facilities and long-term care units in hospitals.

The bureau also registers medical sources of ionizing radiation throughout the state, including x-ray machines and those radioactive materials which are not subject to federal control and inspects those resources for compliance with state regulation. The bureau provides health physics consultation to those medical facilities involved with radiation producing devices and radioactive materials. The bureau contracts with

LOIS KOLLMAYER, R.N.
Director
Health Standards and Licensure

the Federal Drug Administration to perform surveys of screening mammography providers.

The Bureau of Home Health and Hospice Standards is responsible for the regulation and licensing of Missouri's home health agencies, hospices and outpatient rehabilitation facilities. The home health agencies and hospices are required to renew their state licenses annually and in accordance with current statutes.

Additionally, through contracts with the National Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA), surveys are conducted for certifying home health agencies, hospice organizations and outpatient rehabilitation facilities as providers under the Title XVIII (Medicare) of the Social Security Act. Consultation is provided regarding home health and hospice licensing requirements and compliance with Medicare standards.

The Bureau of Emergency Medical Services administers the laws relating to emergency medical technician-basics, emergency medical technician-paramedics, air ambulance services, ground ambulance services, emergency medical response agencies, emergency medical service training entities, and trauma centers.

Currently, Missouri's ground ambulance services, air ambulance services and fixed-wing air ambulance services make approximately 650,000 runs per year. These ambulance services are inspected for licensure every five years. At least one paramedic, nurse or physician with the capability of providing an advanced level of care to the patient staffs ninety percent of the emergency ambulance transports of a patient to a hospital. This is one of the highest rates in the nation.

The trauma program was formally established by state law in 1987 and revised in 1998. Regulations that specify the criteria for trauma center designation went into effect in January 1990 and September 1998. A network of trauma centers designated according to capability serves Missouri. Missouri's trauma center hospitals see over 10,000 severely injured patients per year.

This bureau administers the ambulance reporting system, head and spinal cord injury registry, and trauma registry. These are among the most comprehensive reporting systems of their type in the United States.

The governor-appointed State Advisory Council on EMS provides advice to the department on EMS regulatory issues.

The Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs (BNDD) is responsible for ensuring the proper management and distribution of controlled substances for legitimate medical and manufacturing purposes. Controlled substances include medications and chemicals used in the manufacture of these medications which have been determined to be abusable or addictive.

All individuals and firms who manufacture, distribute, prescribe, dispense or handle controlled substances in the state of Missouri must register with the BNDD every two years. Those required to register with the BNDD include physicians, hospitals, pharmacies, dentists, ambulance services, veterinarians, optometrists, podiatrists, manufacturers, distributors, labs and importers and exporters who desire authority to possess or perform functions with controlled substances.

The BNDD is active in the education of health professionals who handle controlled substances. The records of all registrants are subject to inspections, audits, or investigations (if needed). Violations of controlled substance laws can lead to administrative sanctions. Criminal violations are referred to appropriate law enforcement agencies.

The bureau's surveillance helps prevent the diversion of drugs or chemicals from their proper channels of distribution. This helps protect against the misuse or abuse of their substances.

The Bureau of Child Care Safety and Licensure is responsible for the regulation and licensing of child care facilities. The bureau is also responsible for the annual safety, health and sanitation inspections of child care facilities operated by religious organizations.

Child care staff provide on-site inspection services to the child care facilities as well as giving technical and consultative assistance. The bureau's mission is to ensure that all facilities provide a healthy, safe and developmentally-appropriate environment for Missouri's children.

The goal for the bureau is to have a positive impact on the overall health, safety and well-being of children in child care programs. The bureau works to meet this goal through health promotion and education, facilitating immunizations, improved meals and nutrition education, communicable disease prevention, improved cleanliness and sanitation, injury reduction, prevention of child abuse and neglect, and serving children with special needs. The bureau also coordinates resource and referral activities for parents seeking child care. Training for child care providers is partially provided through training grants administered by the bureau. Consultation and technical assistance for child care providers are provided by local community health nurses through a contracted program.

With the passage of House Bill 490 in 1999, the department established an automated data system called the Family Care Safety Registry. This registry is designed to provide individuals and employers with information regarding persons they are considering for hire to work with children or the elderly. With one phone call, the caller can find out if a perspective employee is listed on:

- The Employee Disqualification List maintained by the department;
- Child-care facility licensing records maintained by the department;
- Foster parent licensing records maintained by the Division of Family Services;
- Residential living facility and nursing home licensing records maintained by the department.

Further, with permission of the perspective employee, the employer can request more detailed information regarding the individual's history. Individuals wanting to be hired as a child care or elder care worker must register with the Family Care Safety Registry. There is a one-time cost of $5. The toll free number is (866) 422-6872.

Section of Long Term Care Regulation

Some older Missourians will eventually live in a long-term care facility. In accordance with the Omnibus Nursing Home Act, this division is responsible for assuring the safety, health, welfare and rights of persons residing in institutional facilities. The division has the legal authority to intervene in cases where abuse, neglect or exploitation is apparent among institutionalized elderly or disabled persons. The division seeks to:

- Inspect and license adult day care centers, adult residential care, intermediate care and skilled nursing facilities;
- Investigate complaints of abuse or neglect at long-term care facilities;
- Establish eligibility for Medicaid and cash grant assistance for residents in long-term care facilities;
- Review and approve plans for proposed long-term care facilities;
- Develop and implement appropriate rules and regulations in accordance with the Omnibus Nursing Home Act;

- With the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, determine Medicaid/ Medicare certification of intermediate care and skilled facilities; and
- Provide data for certificate of need determinations.

Division of Senior Services

Many of Missouri's senior citizens can remain in their own home with the assistance of various support services. The Missouri Care Options program, designed to avoid unnecessary institutionalization, is a comprehensive and coordinated approach to support people in their homes and communities.

The primary funding sources for home and community care services are General Revenue, Social Services Block Grant, Title XIX (Medicaid) and the Older Americans Act of 1965. These sources provide the funds with which services are made available to Missouri's elderly and disabled population.

Protective services

In 1980, the Missouri General Assembly passed legislation which requires the division to investigate reports of abuse, neglect or exploitation of persons 60 years of age or older and provide protective services. This legislation is designed to assist adults who are unable or unwilling to obtain services necessary to meet their essential human needs. The division also has the authority to investigate or refer reports of abuse, neglect or exploitation of disabled adults.

To assist in the identification of elderly or disabled persons who may need protective services, the division operates a 24-hour toll-free hotline telephone service (1-800-392-0210). When a call is received at the hotline, a division social worker will conduct a prompt and thorough investigation of the report, attempt to resolve the crisis and arrange for necessary and appropriate services.

Care Management

The division maintains a network of social service workers who serve each of Missouri's 114 counties and St. Louis City. A sophisticated case management system secures and coordinates services that most adequately address the needs of the client. This is accomplished through assessment, service plan development, service authorization and follow-up. Services are available to persons 60 years of age or older and disabled persons between 18 and 59. General Revenue and Social Services Block Grant services include in-home personal and advanced personal care, homemaker/care, counseling, information and referral, transportation and congregate and home-delivered meals. Title XIX services include personal care, homemaker/care, respite care, telephone reassurance and adult day health care.

Missouri Care Options

In response to a legislative initiative, the Missouri Care Options program was implemented in August 1992. This program promotes a working relationship between hospital discharge planners, nursing home social workers and the division to identify individuals for whom home- or community-based care is a viable option.

Pre-long-term care screening equalizes access to long-term care services for those requiring less intensive care and supervision than provided by a nursing facility. The screening offers information on the array of available services. Missouri includes staff for screening and new resources for community-based services such as home-delivered meals, respite, personal care and adult day care.

Governor's Advisory Council on Aging

Authority for the creation of the Governor's Advisory Council on Aging was derived from the Older Americans Act of 1965. The council consists of 27 persons appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. The term of membership for each person is three years. The council is required to meet a minimum of four times each year.

The primary responsibility of the council is to advise the governor and the department on ways to improve programs and services for older persons in Missouri. The council maintains continuous review of programs for seniors and the availability, responsiveness and adequacy of all services provided to older persons. The council is responsible for representing the interests of older persons before legislative bodies and promoting public awareness activities to enhance the independence and dignity of older Missourians. The council also sponsors Older Worker Week, the Century Club and other activities to celebrate the value of older adults.

Missouri Board of Nursing Home Administrators

The Missouri Board of Nursing Home Administrators was established in 1970. The board is responsible for adopting, amending and repealing rules necessary to carry out the provisions of Chapter 334, RSMo; establishing minimum standards for licensing nursing home administrators; providing testing opportunities for qualified applicants; approving and monitoring continuing education programs designed for nursing home administrators; auditing license renewal applications and renewing the licenses of qualified licensees; and conducting hearings affording due process of law, upon charges calling for discipline of a licensee.

The board, appointed by the director of the department, consists of 10 members who serve three-year staggered terms. Membership of the board consists of one licensed physician, two licensed health professionals, one person from the field of health care education, four people who have been in general administrative charge of a licensed nursing home for at least five years immediately preceding their appointment and two public members.

respite care. Caregivers assuming around-the-clock responsibility for frail elderly may need relief from the physical and emotional toll of such care. In a collaborative effort between the division and local agencies, volunteers are recruited, trained and matched with families needing respite care. Volunteers benefit by remaining active while storing "credit" for future services. Credits must be earned by or given to persons over age 60.

available to older Missourians. The division does not provide direct services with these funds; instead, services are provided by local organizations working with the 10 area agencies on aging who contract with the division.

The Older Americans Act funds a variety of services including, but not limited to, in-home services, transportation, information and assistance, case management, outreach, legal services, health promotion and disease prevention programs, programs for Alzheimer's victims, National Family Caregivers Program, ombudsman programs, congregate and home-delivered meal programs and employment and training programs. All persons 60 years of age or older are eligible to receive these services and offered the opportunity to voluntarily contribute toward the cost of the service. Services are directed toward those persons in the greatest social and economic need with emphasis on low-income and minority seniors.

The act also provides for the Office of the State Long-Term Care Ombudsman, which is the focal point of advocacy for long-term care residents through volunteer ombudsmen.

Certificate of Need Program (CONP)

The primary cost containment agency for Missouri is the Certificate of Need Program (CONP).

CONP, designated in 1976 as a statewide health planning agency, has been an administrative unit of the Department since 1981.

CONP functions in three categories: planning, review and support activities. The agency conducts some of the health planning activities of the state and determines the needs of Missouri for substantial health capital expenditures and major medical equipment. It prepares, reviews and revises health models for Missouri for use in the CONP.

The Missouri Health Facilities Review Committee carries out its function as the administrator of the Missouri CON law with the support of CONP staff.

The agency assists with program planning, development and analysis of health data, policy planning, identification of program needs, graphics development, strategic assessments and other special projects in cooperation with the director of the Department and other state departments.

public community college campuses, 1 public two-year technical college, 25 independent colleges and universities, and 120 proprietary schools serving more than 340,000 students.

The department's functions include identification of statewide needs for higher education, statewide planning for higher education, evaluation of student and institutional performance, review of institutional missions, development of effective and economical specialization among institutions, administration of a performance funding program encouraging the achievement of statewide priorities, submission of a unified budget request for public higher education to the governor and the Missouri General Assembly, administration of a statewide postsecondary technical education program, approval of new degree programs offered at the public colleges and universities, policy setting for student financial assistance programs, and administration of the Proprietary School Certification Program. The department's planning activities include the state's independent institutions as well as the public institutions.

The Coordinating Board has statutory responsibility for the administration of state student financial assistance programs, including the Charles Gallagher Student Financial Assistance Program, the Higher Education Academic Scholarship Program, the Missouri College Guarantee Program, the Advantage Missouri Program, the Marguerite Ross Barnett Memorial Scholarship Program, the Vietnam Veteran's Survivor Grant Program, and the Public Service Officer or Employee's Child Survivor Grant Program.

The Coordinating Board also is the state's designated guaranty agency for the Missouri Student Loan Program (MSLP), which administers the Federal Family Education Loan Program. Through this program, the MSLP guarantees low-interest loans that are provided by eligible lending institutions to students attending approved postsecondary institutions.

The Department of Higher Education has administrative responsibility for several additional federal programs as well as organizational responsibility for the Missouri State Anatomical Board.

The Coordinating Board adopted a strategic plan for the state's system of higher education, known as the Blueprint for Missouri Higher Education, in June 1996. The plan incorporates a vision for Missouri higher education that establishes the following expectations:

- higher education and vocational training services of the highest quality that are truly competitive on a national and international level;
- a coordinated, balanced, and cost-effective delivery system;
- a range of vocational, academic, and professional programs affordable and accessible to all citizens with the preparation and ability to benefit from the programs;
- differentiated institutional missions and implementation plans both among and within sectors designed to meet state needs and goals with a minimum of program duplication; and
- systematic demonstration of institutional performance and accountability through appropriate assessment efforts.

Under the Blueprint, Missouri higher education made significant progress in:

- enhancing its quality and efficiency by differentiating institutional missions;
- improving financial access to higher education;
- coordinating the use of educational technology and other resources through MOREnet, MOBIUS, and the Missouri Learners' Network;
- expanding access to technical education throughout the state; and
- ensuring the quality of educational programs by annually evaluating the performance of institutions and their students.

The Coordinating Board is now working to build on the accomplishments of recent years and push for further improvement under The Coordinated Plan for Missouri Higher Education. This new strategic plan will continue some of the initiatives of the Blueprint and introduce others to address new challenges as it sets the priorities for Missouri higher education for the next several years. The Coordinated Plan will focus on student success, institutional strength, and public engagement to meet the future educational needs of Missourians.

Established in 1887, the Missouri State Anatomical Board functions to receive "unclaimed" human bodies requiring burial at public expense and to distribute them for scientific study to certain qualified schools. The board, which operates under state law (RSMo 194.120–180), was transferred to the Department of Higher Education by the State Omnibus Reorganization Act in 1974.

In 1955, the anatomical board was also authorized to receive bodies by will and codicil (RSMo 474.310). In 1969, the board was designated a recipient for bodies donated under the Uniform Anatomical Gift Act (RSMo 194.230).

The day-to-day business of the anatomical board is handled through local anatomical boards or secretaries in Columbia, Kansas City, Kirksville and St. Louis. The annual meeting of the entire board is in May in Columbia. Officers are elected for two-year terms.

Each qualified school that is a member of the board pays an assessment in proportion to the number of students in attendance. The state board secretary/treasurer receives 16 cents per student enrolled in the state, and each local board secretary receives 24 cents per registered student in the local anatomical district. The secretary to the state secretary/treasurer receives 8 cents per registered student. The president and vice president serve without pay. Management of the board rests on its secretary/treasurer, whose office is located at the University of Missouri–Columbia School of Medicine.

University of Missouri System

www.system.missouri.edu

With campuses in Columbia, Kansas City, St. Louis, and Rolla, plus a statewide extension and outreach program, the University of Missouri System serves Missourians from all walks of life.

The university has provided teaching, research and service to Missouri since 1839. It is the state's premier public research university with an enrollment of approximately 54,000 students.

Providing quality teaching is the university's foremost concern. The university awards more than 10,000 degrees annually and is Missouri's only public university that grants doctoral degrees as well as degrees in law, medicine, optometry, pharmacy, dentistry, and veterinary medicine.

To make the most effective use of resources and better serve Missouri's needs, the university's campuses often share the responsibility for providing academic programs, such as the doctoral degree program in nursing. The university also cooperates with other Missouri educational institutions, public and private, to improve access to its programs, such as the doctoral degree in education.

The university also works with industry, as exemplified by the University of Missouri Research Park near St. Louis. The MRP provides opportunities for joint research and development and benefits the area's economy. The university receives about $100 million annually for research in areas ranging from agriculture to aerospace.

Virtually every community is touched by University Outreach and Extension. County extension centers offer programs on agricultural profitability, community resource development, family strengths and youth development, environmental technologies, business and industry, and urban problems among other areas.

Continuing education programs on and off campus make university expertise widely accessible, as does the university's support of computer and telecommunications technologies to link Missouri's public schools and libraries.

The University of Missouri System is governed by a Board of Curators composed of nine persons appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate. The board also has a non-voting position for a student representative.

The university's chief administrative officer is the president, and each campus is directed by a chancellor.

Authorized only 18 years after the Missouri Territory became a state, the University of Missouri-Columbia is the oldest state university west of the Mississippi River and the oldest in the Louisiana Purchase Territory. The university, created by the Geyer Act of the 10th General Assembly of 1839, was designed according to Thomas Jefferson's pattern for the University of Virginia.

The first president of the University of Missouri, John Hiram Lathrop, took office in 1841. Columbia College, a private institution purchased by the university, housed classes until July 1843 when they were moved to Academic Hall, the first building constructed for the university.

Federal troops' occupation of the university forced its closing for a time in 1862. The signing into law of the land-grant college act, commonly known as the Morrill Act, gave the university 330,000 acres of land with proceeds used for the development of instruction and instructional facilities in agriculture and the mechanic arts. Through this assistance, both the College of Agriculture in Columbia and the School of Mines and Metallurgy in Rolla were established. The Morrill Act brought great encouragement to the university because until 1867 no state funds had been appropriated for its operation.

In 1892, fire destroyed Academic Hall, leaving only its six stately columns, the best-known symbol of the University today. The present administration building, Jesse Hall, was completed in 1895.

Currently, MU has the following schools and colleges: the College of Agriculture, Food and Natural Resources, with a School of Natural Resources; College of Arts and Science with a School of Fine Arts and a School of Music; College of Business, School of Accountancy, School of Business and Department of Public Administration; College of Education with a School of Information Science and Learning Technologies; College of Engineering; Graduate School; College of Human and Environmental Sciences with a School of Social Work; School of Health Professions; School of Journalism; School of Law; School of Medicine; School of Nursing; and College of Veterinary Medicine. The enrollment of the University of Missouri–Columbia is more than 23,000 students.

College of Agriculture, Food and Natural Resources

Established as a division of the University of Missouri in 1870 under provisions of the first Morrill Act of 1862, the College of Agriculture, Food and Natural Resources offers the degree of bachelor of science. Specializations are offered in agriculture economics, agriculture education, biological and agriculture engineering, agricultural journalism, agricultural mechanization, animal sciences, biochemistry, food science and human nutrition, general agriculture, hotel and restaurant management, and plant science.

The School of Natural Resources, within the College of Agriculture, Food and Natural Resources, offers four undergraduate curricular programs: forestry; fisheries and wildlife; parks, recreation and tourism; and soils and atmospheric sciences. Advanced degrees are offered through the Graduate School.

The college's research is conducted in Columbia through the agricultural experiment station authorized in 1887 by the Hatch Act, and at area centers throughout the state that fit unique localized situations. Research strengths include Life Sciences, agricultural biotechnology, genomics and bioinformatics, phytonutrients, mineral nutrition, animal reproductive biology, animal nutrition, agroforestry and environmental sciences.

Through University Extension the College of Agriculture, Food and Natural Resources conducts educational and outreach activities related to agriculture and natural resources throughout Missouri. Focused interdisciplinary programs are organized around the themes of agribusiness management, integrated crop management, livestock production systems, horticulture and forestry and environmental quality.

College of Arts and Science

The College of Arts and Science, oldest and largest division of the university, provides liberal education programs in the basic humanities, social sciences, and natural sciences. Within the School of Fine Arts are the School of Music and the departments of art and theatre.

Presently, the college offers the following baccalaureate degrees: bachelor of arts, bachelor of fine arts, bachelor of sciences, bachelor of music, and bachelor of general studies. Students pursuing advanced degrees of master of arts, master of fine arts, master of science, and doctor of philosophy enroll in the graduate school.

MU's General Education Program is recognized as a model for undergraduate education at major public research universities—Mizzou is one of only eight universities, and the only one in the Big 12, to be honored with the Hesburgh Award. Faculty across campus are deeply involved in enterprise, fine-tuning it and working across academic disciplines to deliver a unique educational experience to MU students. One aspect of the program that has drawn national attention is the incorporation of writing across the undergraduate curriculum—two writing intensive courses. Nearly 120 sections of writing intensive courses are offered each semester at MU, representing every department in every undergraduate division at the institution.

Special programs that enhance the curriculum are the Summer Repertory Program in theatre; a summer field camp in Wyoming for students of geology; and the Center for the Literary Arts, uniting creative writing in the English department, literary writing in journalism, and writing for the stage and screen in theatre. Mizzou on Tour allows music students to audition for a performance in New York, most recently at Carnegie Hall; Mizzou on Broadway offers theatre students a chance to perform original plays in New York; and the Undergraduate Research Mentorship encourages undergraduate students to collaborate on research with respected faculty members.

College of Business

The College of Business was established in 1914 and was among the first business programs in the nation to be accredited. The College of Business includes the School of Accountancy and the departments of finance, management, and marketing.

The School of Accountancy offers the Bachelor of Science and Masters of Accountancy degree programs merged into an integrated 150-hour curriculum. The college offers a Bachelor of Science in Business Administration degree with an emphasis selected from economics, finance and banking, international business, management, marketing, and real estate. Advanced degrees in accountancy and business administration are offered through the college.

More than 2,750 undergraduate students and 250 graduate students are enrolled in the college. Business administration and accountancy are two of the most frequently declared undergraduate majors at MU. Freshmen are admitted directly into the College of Business. Students with sophomore standing must have at least a 2.6 GPA to be eligible to complete their junior and senior years in business administration; a GPA of at least 3.0 is needed to enter the 150-hour accountancy program.

The College of Business's students are among the top students at MU. Most recently, the College of Business student body included 5 National Merit Scholars, 53 Excellence Scholars, 191 Curator Scholars, 290 Bright Flight Scholars, and 112 University Scholars. The college awards approximately 700 degrees annually, which is equal to 13% of MU degrees.

College of Education

The programs of the College of Education and its School of Information Science and Learning Technologies provide preservice preparation and specialization in teaching; continuing professional education for practicing teachers, administrators, and special service personnel; and advanced study at the graduate level.

Two baccalaureate degrees are offered: the bachelor of science in education, which leads to certification to teach at the elementary or secondary level, and the bachelor of educational studies, which provides an opportunity for those interested in non-public school education to prepare for jobs tailored to their education-related aspirations. Graduate programs lead to master of arts, master of education, specialist, doctor of education and doctor of philosophy degrees.

Among its special facilities contributing to service and research are Center for Technology Innovations in Education; National Center for Middle Level Mathematics; Middle Leadership Center; Center for Educational Policy Analysis; Assessment and Consultation Clinic; Assessment Resource Center; Center for Innovations in Special Education; Instructional Materials Laboratory; microcomputer laboratories; Reflector and Career Services.

College of Engineering

The College of Engineering, one of the oldest engineering schools in the nation, offers bachelor of science, master of science, and Ph.D. degrees. Its departments and programs include: Biological Engineering, Chemical Engineering, Civil and Environmental Engineering, Computer Engineering and Computer Science, Electrical Engineering, Industrial and Manufacturing Systems Engineering, Mechanical and Aerospace Engineering, and Nuclear Engineering.

In addition to its teaching responsibilities, the College of Engineering also has important responsibilities in fundamental and applied research involving faculty members from all engineering departments. A number of research centers have also been established.

Graduate School

Master's degrees were first awarded at the University of Missouri in 1846. The first doctor of philosophy degree was awarded in 1899. MU is one of the most comprehensive and diverse universities in the United States. As a member of the American Association of Universities (AAU) and a university classified "Doctoral Research Extensive" by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, MU is a premier provider of graduate and professional education.

MU's Graduate School enrolls more than 4,000 graduate students in more than 90 graduate degree programs. In its history, the school has granted more than 54,000 master's degrees, 1,081 educational specialists degrees, and 10,300 doctoral degrees. The Graduate School is a member of the Association of Graduate Schools and the Council of Graduate Schools. Graduate programs are designed by MU's graduate faculty to meet both societal needs and the career and intellectual objectives of the individual graduate student. The classic student-mentor relationship is the keystone of graduate education at MU.

The Graduate School seeks to assure the people of Missouri that faculty and student research adds significantly to the supply of knowledge. The school also seeks to assure its supporters that new knowledge and skills are transmitted, traditions are challenged and sustained, and creative activities and achievements are recognized and supported.

The Graduate School is home to the Graduate School of Public Affairs (GSPA), which was established by the University of Missouri Board of Curators in September 1999. The GSPA grows out of MU's highly regarded Department of Public Administration, which for forty years offered graduate professional education for careers in public service. The creation of the GSPA represents an extensive new commitment by the University of Missouri-Columbia toward public policy and management education, research, and public service.

College of Human and Environmental Sciences

Rooted in the university since 1900 and established as a separate division in 1973, the college offers baccalaureate and master's degrees in five program areas: human development and family studies, textile and apparel management, consumer and family economics, environmental design, and nutritional sciences. A doctor of philosophy degree in human environmental sciences is offered with specializations in the five departments. Bachelor of social work and master of social work degrees are offered in the School of Social Work. Through University Extension, educational activities are transmitted to citizens of the state. Research is conducted at the Agricultural Experiment Station with state and federal support from the agriculture and private sector.

Human Environmental Sciences programs prepare students for professional positions in business, industry, government, education, human services, and research. Accreditation has been earned within specializations. Ranked among the top 10 human sciences units in the nation, Human Environmental Sciences is unique among professional peers in its comprehensive use of advisory boards for each department. Experts in the employment community provide guidance and support fields to students and faculty and provide perspectives from their specialized fields to enrich curriculum development.

School of Journalism

Professional journalists consistently give the Missouri School of Journalism more top rankings than any other school of journalism in the country. The school, the first in the world, offers the bachelor of journalism degree with six areas of emphasis. Three-fourths of a student's course work is in liberal arts, the sciences, and the social sciences; the other fourth is in professional journalism courses. Advanced study in the graduate school leads to the master of arts and doctor of philosophy degrees in journalism.

The Columbia Missourian and Vox Magazine its, weekly supplement, IPI Global Journalist, a four-color quarterly magazine on international journalism, KOMU-TV, and KBIA-FM serve as laboratories for students to perform editorial, advertising, feature, and photographic work under faculty supervision.

School of Law

The School of Law, established in 1872, has a distinguished and diverse faculty, all of whom are experienced in the practice of law. The juris doctor degree is conferred upon students who complete three years of study. All graduates are prepared for licensing exams as attorneys in all of the United States. In 1999, the school started its LL.M. in Dispute Resolution degree program.

The school provides both a traditional legal curriculum and practical education in such areas as trial practice and advocacy, clinical education involving representation of clients in a variety of settings, negotiation, client interviewing, and counseling and computerized legal research. The school is also a national leader in alternative dispute resolution practice. MU law students publish the highly regarded Missouri Law Review, the Journal of Dispute Resolution, and the Missouri Environmental Law and Policy Review. They also operate the Board of Advocates, which conducts a wide variety of advocacy competitions.

University of Missouri Health Care

The health-care needs of rural Missourians comprise the central mission of MU Health Care, which provides education, research and clinical services through its schools, hospitals and clinics.

Hospitals and clinics

Patients come from every county in the state to receive primary, acute and rehabilitative care at University Hospital, Children's Hospital, Ellis Fischel Cancer Center, Columbia Regional Hospital and Rusk Rehabilitation Center. The health-care system also includes Missouri Rehabilitation Center in Mount Vernon and associated clinics in Columbia and other mid-Missouri communities. Physicians from MU Health Care also travel on a regular basis to communities throughout Missouri to hold outreach clinics.

School of Medicine

The origin of health-care education at MU can be traced to 1841 when the university affiliated with Kemper College in St. Louis. After offering a two-year preclinical sciences degree for many years, the School of Medicine expanded to a comprehensive four-year medical program in 1955. Today, the School of Medicine and its Department of Family and Community Medicine consistently are ranked highly by U.S. News and World Report for their leadership in primary-care education.

Through the Rural Scholars Program and other admission initiatives, more than half of new medical students come from rural Missouri communities. The medical school's problem-based curriculum offers case-based learning in small-group settings and provides a number of opportunities for students to gain practical experience at rural clinics and hospitals.

MU biomedical scientists have gained national attention for their research in arthritis rehabilitation, cardiovascular medicine, kidney dialysis, diabetes, cystic fibrosis, nuclear medicine, cancer and children's psychiatric disorders.

The School of Medicine, in conjunction with the hospitals, offers 35 fully accredited residency training programs and advanced degrees in the basic medical sciences. As part of the School of Medicine, a program in Health Management and Informatics is offered to educate both traditional students and experienced health-care administrators through its master's degree programs.

MU Sinclair School of Nursing

The MU Sinclair School of Nursing offers educational programs at the baccalaureate, master's and doctoral levels. It is committed to promoting, maintaining, and improving health and health care delivery in Missouri and worldwide through nursing education, research, practice and service. The school is nationally accredited by the Commission of Collegiate Nursing Education and approved by the Missouri State Board of Nursing.

The undergraduate program, offering preparation for professional nursing, leads to the degree of bachelor of science in nursing and prepares our graduates to practice as generalists in a variety of health-care settings. For the BSN program, students apply to the clinical nursing major during their sophomore year. MU also offers a web-based RN-BSN degree option.

At the master's level, advanced practice nurses are prepared as nurse practitioners and clinical nurse specialists in mental health, public health and case management, pediatric, family or gerontological nursing. Nursing education, nursing administration and school-health nursing may also be studied.

The doctoral nursing program, the first cooperative PhD in nursing to be offered at a public university in Missouri, prepares nurse scholars to assume leadership positions in service and educational settings, advancing the discipline, conducting research, and contributing to the development of social and health policy. The school's activities are purposefully designed to prepare our nurses on all levels for a variety of leadership and scientific roles, and to meet the knowledge and technology requirements of today—and the future.

Gerontology, women's health, health behavior change, and oncology comprise the school's major research interest areas. The School of Nursing is deeply committed to the principle of multi-disciplinary and inter-disciplinary collaboration as a means of solving some of our most important health-care dilemmas. By focusing a major research effort on Missouri's elderly, the School of Nursing is working to improve the quality of their lives and is helping them live independently and with dignity in their own homes. MU's nursing researchers are exploring new and innovative ways to help nursing homes everywhere improve the quality of care they offer.

School of Health Professions

Founded in 1978 as a program within the School of Medicine, the School of Health Professions attained independent status as a separate school in 2000. The School of Health Professions provides baccalaureate programs in six allied health fields, including physical therapy, occupational therapy, communication science and disorders, radiography, nuclear medicine and respiratory therapy. It also offers master's degrees in speech-language pathology and physical therapy, as well as doctoral degrees in speech-language pathology.

College of Veterinary Medicine

One of 27 schools of veterinary medicine in the United States, the College of Veterinary Medicine includes four departments and, in addition to the regular curriculum, provides graduate instruction to students in other divisions. Students admitted to the college must have completed a minimum of two years of preprofessional study at the college level. A four-year course of study leads to the doctor of veterinary medicine degree.

Each department conducts a graduate and research program as well as advanced training for board certification in many specialties. The college's teaching hospital provides diagnosis and treatment of animals, while the veterinary medical diagnostic laboratory offers assistance in disease diagnosis. This laboratory provides a steady flow of teaching and research material for the college and identification of research areas in veterinary and comparative medicine pertinent to Missouri.

Libraries

The MU Libraries include the Elmer Ellis Library, the main library on campus, and specialized branch libraries for Engineering, Geological Sciences, Health Sciences, Journalism, Mathematics, and Veterinary Medicine. The University Archives and the Columbia Missourian Newspaper Library are also part of the library system. The MU Libraries, housing more than 3 million volumes, 20,500 current periodicals, more than 1.7 million government documents, and 6.6 million microforms, provide outstanding facilities for course preparation and scholarly work.

Ellis Library includes principle resources for research in the social sciences, humanities and basic sciences. Ellis Library also has a department of special material (rare books and microforms) and a current periodicals reading room. The libraries have many automated research tools. The libraries' main web page <http://web.missouri.edu/~elliswww> provides a gateway to the MERLIN Online Catalog. In addition, over 100 electronic databases in all academic disciplines are accessible at the web page for current students, staff and faculty.

The university collections are frequently reinforced by gifts of friends and alumni. Outstanding gifts include an unpublished manuscript of Charlotte Brontë; the library and manuscripts of John G. Neihardt; the library and manuscripts of Mary Lago; the V.T. Hamlin "Alley Oop" collection; and the libraries of the late Dr. Frank Luther Mott (dean and professor of journalism), Judge Laurance M. Hyde of the Missouri Supreme Court, Methodist Bishop Ivan Lee Holt, and former Governor Henry S. Caulfield.

Two other libraries, the Western Historical Manuscripts Collection and the library of the State Historical Society of Missouri, are open to faculty, students, and the public for study and research. Most of the papers in the Western Historical Manuscripts Collection relate to the area of the Missouri River and Great Plains and include interesting correspondence, account books, and diaries representing early and recent business, professional, political, and social life. The library of the State Historical Society of Missouri has an extensive collection of Missouriiana and the early West and a painting collection including the works of George Caleb Bingham. A law library also is housed in Hulston Hall, the School of Law.

MU Research Reactor

The University of Missouri Research Reactor Center (MURR) is a unique national resource that brings together the most powerful (10 megawatt) and productive university research reactor in the world and the resources of a major teaching hospital, a respected cancer center, a leading college of veterinary medicine, and distinguished university programs in the biosciences, chemistry, and engineering. Since 1966, MURR has served as a unique resource for researchers, faculty and students from universities, government agencies and private companies.

MURR research programs encompass three major areas: biomedical sciences, materials sciences, and trace element analysis. All of the programs emphasize collaborative efforts. The biomedical science program focuses on the development of radiopharmaceuticals for use in cancer research and therapeutic applications. The trace element analysis program uses neutron activation analysis and other sophisticated techniques to determine the composition of biological, archaeological and geological samples. The materials sciences program focuses on the use of neutron scattering instruments and techniques to define and characterize materials at the molecular or atomic level.

Educational opportunities abound at MURR. As an international educational resource for multidisciplinary research, the center draws students from every continent except Antarctica. Undergraduate and graduate students participate in MURR research projects in diverse disciplines such as anthropology and archaeology, chemistry, engineering (chemical, electrical, mechanical and nuclear), geology, materials science, medical and life sciences (including cancer diagnostics, treatment and prevention), nutrition, physics and veterinary medicine. MURR also participates in the Research Experiences for Undergraduates program, a summer research program sponsored by the National Science Foundation.

University of Missouri–Kansas City

www.umkc.edu

The history of the University of Missouri–Kansas City goes back to the 1880s. Three of the professional schools now a part of the university were founded in the 19th century: the School of Dentistry, 1881; the School of Pharmacy, 1895; and the School of Law, 1895. The Conservatory of Music was founded a few years later in 1906. Around that time, community leaders were discussing the need for a university in Kansas City.

By the 1920s, two groups were planning for such a university. One group wanted to establish a Methodist-affiliated Lincoln and Lee University. The other group wanted a private University of Kansas City. Eventually, the two groups united and, in 1929, the University of Kansas City was chartered.

The next year, William Volker, Kansas City manufacturer and philanthropist, gave the newly chartered institution 40 acres purchased from the William Rockhill Nelson estate. In 1931, Volker donated the funds to buy the eight-acre site of the Walter S. Dickey mansion. It was in this remodeled building that the University of Kansas City began its first academic year on October 2, 1933, with 264 students and 17 faculty members.

The first commencement at the University of Kansas City was June 9, 1936, with 80 graduates.

In 1963, the University of Kansas City merged into the University of Missouri System, giving birth to the University of Missouri–Kansas City. In 1963, the enrollment was 4,394; by 1999, the total student enrollment was more than 13,100.

College of Arts and Sciences

The College of Arts and Sciences is the largest division of UMKC. It provides a broad liberal arts education as well as graduate and doctoral preparation, enabling students to take their places as specialists in a number of chosen fields.

The major areas of study are art and art history, chemistry, communication studies, economics, English language and literature, geosciences, history, mathematics and statistics, philosophy, physics, political science, psychology, sociology and theatre. Several interdisciplinary majors also are offered in such areas as Judaic studies and urban affairs. Graduate work at the master's level is offered in nearly all of the college's departments. Doctoral studies are available in psychology. A number of departments also participate in the interdisciplinary Ph.D. program offered through the School of Graduate Studies. Within Arts and Sciences, the Department of Theatre, creative writing and the UMKC Debate Squad consistently receive national attention. U.S. News & World Report ranks the Department of Theatre's master's of fine arts degree in drama at 21st nationwide and the Department of English's creative writing program at 83rd nationwide.

School of Biological Sciences

The School of Biological Sciences seeks to provide quality education, to expand knowledge through scientific research and to apply the latest scientific information for the advancement of human welfare.

Created in 1985, the school serves to advance the missions of the campus and those programs that have a foundation in the life sciences. It is closely tied to and supports academic programs in the schools of dentistry, nursing, pharmacy and the College of Arts and Sciences. It also offers bachelor's, master's and interdisciplinary Ph.D. degrees.

In 1999, the School of Biological Sciences announced its membership in an exclusive national consortium to conduct research at the prestigious Argonne National Laboratory in Chicago.

Henry W. Bloch School of Business and Public Administration

Programs at the Henry W. Bloch School of Business and Public Administration provide present and future administrators of business, government and non-profit organizations opportunities to gain or enhance their knowledge and skills for effective leadership. These degree programs lead to the bachelor of business administration, bachelor of science in accounting, master of business administration and master of public administration. The Bloch School also offers interdisciplinary doctoral degrees.

DR. MARTHA GILLILAND
Chancellor, University of Missouri-Kansas City

The school actively engages in research of interest to the business community, Kansas City's urban core and government agencies. The school added an accelerated Executive MBA program in 1995.

Additionally, U.S. News & World Report recently recognized the school for its program in non-profit management.

School of Interdisciplinary Computing and Engineering

The School of Interdisciplinary Computing and Engineering, launched in 2001, was created to tackle the challenges posed by rapid changes in the fields of computer science, telecommunications and networking and engineering, and to offer new research and educational opportunities that will fuel the information technology and biotechnology areas.

The program offers courses leading to the bachelor of science, bachelor of arts and master of science degrees in computer science and participates in the School of Graduate Studies Interdisciplinary Ph.D. program. The master's degree program has special emphases in telecommunications and computer networking. In collaboration with the business community, the program recently received state approval to offer a bachelor's degree in information technology.

The school also offers degrees in civil, electrical, mechanical and industrial engineering.

Students can pursue their bachelor of science, master of science and interdisciplinary Ph.D. degree options.

School of Dentistry

The UMKC School of Dentistry is the oldest component of the university. It evolved from both the Kansas City Dental College, founded in 1881 as a unit of the Kansas City Medical College, and the Western Dental College, founded in 1890. In 1919, these two colleges merged to become the Kansas City Western Dental College. The college became part of the University of Kansas City in 1941.

The majority of dental students have earned at least a bachelor's degree before admission. The entering body is selected with preference for residents of Missouri and those from New Mexico, Arkansas, Kansas and Hawaii, states that participate in exchange and support programs. A graduate receives the degree of doctor of dental surgery.

In addition to the dental students, there are dental hygiene students and graduate dentists pursuing specialty education or education in the basic sciences leading to the graduate professional diploma or the master's degree.

The research program at the Dental School is supported by grants from the United States Public Health Service and from industry.

The clinic provides educational experience in the patient care for the dental students. At the same time, dental care is provided for thousands of patients who visit the clinic annually. The patients pay nominal fees designed to make the clinic partly self-supporting.

Continuing education courses are offered for practicing dentists and dental hygienists. These courses, designed to prevent professional obsolescence, are fully subscribed.

The Dental School also conducts numerous outreach efforts each year, including clinics in rural areas of Missouri, Latin America and for area migrant workers and homeless persons.

School of Education

A major responsibility of the School of Education is preparation of teachers for elementary and secondary schools. Other responsibilities include preparation of college teachers, counseling psychologists, reading specialists and administrators.

A person is eligible to apply for admission to the teacher education program after completing 20 hours of undergraduate credit. Graduates receive the bachelor of arts degree in education. Graduate degree programs lead to the master's of arts, educational specialist and the doctoral degree. Graduate degree programs leading to the master's of arts degree in education are offered in counseling, curriculum and instruction, educational research and psychology, reading education, special education and administration.

Education specialist degrees are available in educational administration, reading education, curriculum and instruction, and counseling. Doctoral degrees are available in counseling psychology. The School of Education also participates in the interdisciplinary Ph.D. program.

A vital aspect of the teacher education curriculum is the student teaching program. Through the cooperation of the metropolitan Kansas City school districts, a demonstration program is maintained. In addition, a number of student teaching centers exist through the cooperation of the metropolitan Kansas City school districts.

The experiences available through these programs are designed to provide an opportunity for the study of child development as well as the application of appropriate instructional techniques. Student teaching assignments are available in a wide range of urban and suburban school settings in a number of Missouri and Kansas school districts.

School of Graduate Studies

Programs for advanced degrees in the liberal arts were introduced by the University of Kansas City in 1939. Degree programs are offered in a variety of fields in the humanities, social sciences and natural sciences. Several are of special interest to students preparing for careers in the health sciences, performing arts and urban affairs.

There are master's degree programs in accounting, criminal justice and criminology, art history, biology, business administration, chemistry, computer science, dental hygiene, economics, education, English, history, law, mathematics, microbiology, music, oral biology, nursing, pharmaceutical sciences, physics, political science, psychology, public administration, romance languages, social psychology, sociology, studio art, theatre and urban environmental geology.

The education specialist degrees, master of fine arts, master of laws and doctor of musical arts are also available. The interdisciplinary Ph.D. program offers students a range of doctoral options. Support is available to qualified graduate students through scholarships, assistantships and fellowships.

School of Law

The Kansas City School of Law, founded in 1895, merged with the University of Kansas City in 1938. When UKC joined the UM system in 1963, the school became known as the UMKC School of Law.

The Law School is housed in a modern facility, equipped with the latest audiovisual aids, ample seminar rooms, a large student lounge and individual offices for student organizations. The library is designed to accommodate 215,000 volumes. A unique feature of the building is the placement of student study stations in office suites shared by faculty.

The location of the School of Law on an urban university campus provides abundant opportunities for student participation in special clinical programs. Missouri and Kansas Supreme Court rules permit senior law students to appear in court and before administrative tribunals on behalf of indigent people. Students also serve as editors and write a substantial portion of the UMKC Law Review, a scholarly legal journal.

School of Medicine

In 1971, the UMKC School of Medicine accepted its first class in the six-year medical program. The year-round program, involving 48 weeks of study each year, provides students the opportunity to earn both their M.D. degree and a bachelor's degree from the College of Arts and Sciences. It is designed primarily for highly qualified high school seniors.

The curriculum of the School of Medicine provides an early exposure to clinical medicine and basic science education, as well as a liberal arts education that is fully integrated into the six-year program. Admission to this program as a freshman gives the student the opportunity to complete requirements for the doctor of medicine degree without a second admission process.

A unique feature of the school is the docent system, which provides a full-time faculty member assigned to 17 students for a four-year period, creating an opportunity for the student to have close interaction with a faculty member who serves as a teacher, counselor and friend.

Nearby are the Medical School's major affiliate hospitals; Truman Medical Center, Children's Mercy Hospital, St. Luke's Hospital and Western Missouri Mental Health Center. In addition, the School of Medicine utilizes a number of outstanding private community hospitals in the Kansas City area for education in clinical medicine.

Conservatory of Music

The Conservatory of Music, organized in 1906 as the Kansas City Conservatory of Music, merged with the University of Kansas City in 1959. It offers the degrees of bachelor of music, bachelor of arts, bachelor of fine arts, master of music education and doctor of musical arts.

The conservatory offers the community hundreds of music and dance programs annually by visiting artists, faculty and students. In addition to maintaining a faculty resident string quartet, brass quartet, baroque music ensemble and contemporary music group, the conservatory allows students to participate in many ensembles, such as the Conservatory Orchestra, the University

Percussion Ensemble, Conservatory Wind Ensemble, University Singers, Heritage Chorale, UMKC Jazz Band, UMKC Accordion Orchestra, along with many smaller chamber ensembles.

The conservatory recently was ranked 40th nationally by U.S. News & World Report for its master's of music.

School of Pharmacy

A private school of pharmacy was organized in 1885 to serve the Kansas City area. In 1943, it became the School of Pharmacy of the University of Kansas City. In 1963, with the formation of the University of Missouri-Kansas City, it became the only state-supported pharmacy school in Missouri.

The school offers both professional and graduate programs in the pharmaceutical sciences, including pharmaceutics, pharmacology, biopharmaceutics and pharmacokinetics and toxicology; pharmacy administration; and pharmacy practice.

The primary professional degree is the doctor of pharmacy. Pharmacy faculty team-conduct interdisciplinary research and engage in community service. Students are active in various outreach projects, including a program to educate school children about the dangers of illegal drugs.

The pharmacy program includes significant amounts of patient contact and provides training in the interdisciplinary approach to patient care. The clinical components of the curriculum are conducted at Truman Medical Center and other area health facilities. A senior externship is available at sites throughout Missouri.

The School of Pharmacy has been listed as the nation's 31st best program for the doctor of pharmacy degree by U.S. News & World Report.

Libraries

Located at four sites on the UMKC campus, library collections contain nearly 950,000 volumes, some 8,764 current serial subscriptions, 1.4 million microforms and more than 450,000 government documents supporting the programs of the university. Resources are complemented by agreements that provide access to information held in other libraries and repositories worldwide.

The libraries employ advanced technologies to locate and deliver information to faculty, students and others. Up-to-date laser, computer and telecommunications and other advanced systems provide timely delivery of needed information. Internal operations also rely on advance systems to acquire, process, catalog and circulate materials owned by the libraries.

The libraries lend materials to any citizen of Missouri through a number of resource-sharing arrangements. These arrangements are designed to assist Missouri government at all levels and foster the economic development of the state and region.

Especially prominent is the commitment to enhance the development of the Kansas City metropolitan area through active cooperative programs with local libraries. The UMKC libraries are committed to such innovative programs as the community information program and membership in the Kansas City Metropolitan Library Network.

In addition to the general holdings, the libraries have many special collections. These include the papers and manuscripts of Paul Creston, prominent 20th century American composer; the Midwest Center for American Music collections, including those of renowned Kansas City composer Virgil Thompson; the Gaylord Marr Sound Archives; the Snyder American collection and the Baker collection of 20th century British and American literature.

Working closely with the libraries, the University of Missouri Western Historical Manuscripts Collection has the papers of such well-known Kansas Citizens as Charles N. Kimball, Arthur Mag, J.C. Nichols, Oscar D. Nelson, Elmer F. Pierson, L. Perry Cookingham, Charles B. Wheeler and Lou E. Holland as well as extensive architectural records of Kansas City buildings augmented by the Holt, Price, Barnes and Asa B. Cross papers.

School of Nursing

Approval for establishment of a School of Nursing was granted by the UM Board of Curators in 1979. The school accepted its first class of registered nurse undergraduates into its baccalaureate program in fall 1981. A four-year B.S.N. program begins in fall 2001. Fully accredited by the National League for Nursing, the school also offers a bachelor of science in nursing focusing on adults', women's and children's health; and the inter-campus Ph.D., in cooperation with the University of Missouri–St. Louis and University of Missouri–Columbia campuses.

The Nursing School is listed among U.S. News & World Report's top 100 programs.

Continuing Education

The university's schools and colleges, with responsibility for their respective continuing education programs, extend the university's knowledge resources beyond the traditional on-campus degree programs. Through credit courses, non-credit courses, conferences and institutes, residents of the state and the community are provided the opportunity to continue their education in a manner suited to the adult mind.

Non-credit continuing education activities are carefully planned undertakings involving an academic department and usually an organized group from business, industry, government or the general public. Citizens throughout the state are served by UMKC through its relationship with statewide University Extension.

Offerings include liberal arts lectures and seminars; professional, refresher, remedial and post-graduate courses, and problem-oriented educational programs designed for the analysis and study of major social and urban problems. Formal education also may be continued through credit courses offered off the campus or by enrollment in correspondence courses for academic credit. Frequently, public forums concerned with vital issues of the day are organized and offered in order to increase both the number and effectiveness of people who work toward solutions of community problems.

While responding to the broad and varied needs of the community and state, the university is at the same time placing increased emphasis on the development of specific program areas identified as important to large professional, economic and other special-interest audiences with in the community.

Admission

The Office of Admissions serves as the initial contact between the student and UMKC. This office conducts the registration of students in cooperation with the various schools and colleges within UMKC and maintains student academic records.

University of Missouri–Rolla

umrolla@umr.edu

The University of Missouri–Rolla was founded in 1870 as the University of Missouri School of Mines and Metallurgy. MSM was the first technological institution west of the Mississippi and one of the first in the nation. The campus was renamed the University of Missouri–Rolla in 1964.

A product of the land-grant movement of the late nineteenth century, the campus was Missouri's response to the acute need for scientific and practical education in the developing nation. The early academic programs focused on the mining and metallurgical industries, but the campus broadened its engineering mission over time as the need for engineering and scientific education grew.

Graduate education and research began to assume a greater emphasis on the campus in the 1950s, and the school of Mines and Metallurgy became a comprehensive technological university.

In 1964, UMR became one of the four campuses of the reorganized University of Missouri. Today, UMR continues its focus on educating leaders in engineering and science and ranks among the top 25 in the nation in the number of bachelor's degrees awarded in engineering.

The change from "school" to "university" involved three major shifts in emphasis:

- An expanded curricula expanded to encompass the full range of engineering and scientific subjects, including nuclear engineering, biological sciences and computer science.
- New degree programs in the liberal arts, humanities and social sciences, with an appropriate growth in the number and quality of faculty and courses.
- New graduate programs to strengthen the science and engineering disciplines, and a strong commitment to research in all areas. These changes better enabled the campus to respond to Missouri's needs.

Originally a mining school and later an engineering school, the University of Missouri-Rolla has become a technological university of national distinction. The University of Missouri-Rolla offers bachelor of arts and bachelor of science degrees in 25 fields of engineering, science, humanities and social sciences. Master of science degrees are offered in 22 disciplines, the doctor of philosophy in 18, and the doctor of engineering in nine.

School of Engineering

The School of Engineering is the largest on the UMR campus, with about 58 percent of the student body enrolled in its five departments.

Within the School of Engineering are the departments of chemical engineering, civil engineering, electrical and computer engineering, engineering management, and mechanical and aerospace engineering and engineering mechanics.

Areas covered by these departments are widely diversified and include the major branches of engineering vital to the industrial progress of the state and nation. An education in one of these fields of engineering prepares a student professionally for positions, both technical and managerial, in a variety of industries and governmental organizations.

All departments in the school offer B.S., M.S., and Ph.D. programs. The doctor of engineering is offered in civil, chemical, electrical and mechanical engineering. In addition, UMR offers a statewide video-based M.S. degree in engineering management and manufacturing engineering, and an online M.S. degree in systems engineering.

DR. GARY THOMAS
Chancellor
University of Missouri-Rolla

The quality of its graduates and contributions made through research have made the School of Engineering internationally known. Departments within the school are among the largest and most outstanding in the country.

School of Mines and Metallurgy

The School of Mines and Metallurgy offers undergraduate and graduate programs in seven disciplines related to the energy and minerals engineering fields: ceramic, geological, metallurgical, mining, nuclear and petroleum engineering, and geology and geophysics. All offer bachelor's, master's and Ph.D. degree programs. A doctor of engineering is offered in ceramic, geological, mining, nuclear and petroleum engineering.

UMR is one of only two institutions of higher education in the country offering professional training in all of the energy and minerals engineering disciplines.

The school has long enjoyed national and international recognition for the quality of its educational and research programs. Through these, it has made significant contributions to both the metallic and non-metallic mineral industries of the state and nation. Close liaison is maintained with state and federal agencies concerned with mineral resources technology and management, as well as with industry and professional organizations.

College of Arts and Sciences

The College of Arts and Sciences was formed in 1970 by the merger of the existing School of Science and the Division of Liberal Arts.

The college includes the departments of biological sciences, chemistry, computer science, mathematics and statistics, physics, economics, English, history and political science, philosophy and liberal arts and psychology. The college also houses a multidisciplinary program in management systems. B.S., M.S. and Ph.D. degrees are offered by all science departments except biological sciences. The B.A. degree, which has been granted on the UMR campus since 1967, may be earned in English, history, philosophy, psychology, economics, biological sciences and chemistry. The B.S. may be earned in psychology, economics, biological sciences and management systems.

Departments in the College of Arts and Sciences not only provide course work for students majoring in those fields (about 19 percent of the student body) but are also responsible for teaching science, mathematics and liberal arts courses to students majoring in engineering. The computer science department is the state's largest.

In addition to educating UMR students, the college serves the people and industries of the state through research and science activities.

Graduate Study

Graduate study has been offered at the University of Missouri–Rolla since about 1900 when the first master of science degree programs were established. The first doctor of philosophy degree for work done on the Rolla campus was granted in 1926. M.S. and Ph.D. degrees are now granted by all engineering and science departments except biological sciences.

The M.S. degree is also granted in environmental and planning engineering, in manufacturing engineering, and in systems engineering. Nine departments offer the doctor of engineering degree.

UMR Engineering Education Center

The UMR Engineering Education Center on the University of Missouri–St. Louis campus was established in 1964 as part of the continuing education program of the UMR Extension Division. It offers evening courses leading to M.S. degrees in aerospace, chemical, civil, electrical, mechanical, metallurgical, environmental and planning engineering; engineering management; engineering mechanics; and computer science. Course instruction is by UMR faculty and selected engineers and scientists from industry. More than 2,000 degrees have been granted for work completed at the center.

Academic extension

Most of UMR's extension activities relate to engineering and science. In general, the program consists of two parts: (1) university-level continuing education opportunities to keep people in all walks of life abreast of the knowledge explosion; and (2) use of faculty, research and library resources to assist in problem-solving.

Continuing education offerings include both credit and non-credit courses. The major graduate credit program is through the UMR Engineering Education Center located on the UMSL campus. Non-credit programs—conferences, short courses, workshops and institutes—are especially designed to maintain the professional proficiency of engineers and scientists. These draw attendance from all over the United States and many foreign countries.

UMR problem-solving programs relate to urban and rural needs and technical assistance to industries and governmental units. Statewide programs have been developed to assist city and county officials and small businesses and industries in solving their technical problems.

In 1994, UMR and the Army Engineering Center at Fort Leonard Wood established a cooperative education program.

Research

As one of a select national group of state technological universities, UMR has directed its research chiefly toward supporting education and service in engineering and science.

Research is important on the Rolla campus not only because of its results but as an educational tool for both faculty and students. Research projects are conducted in every academic department in nearly every phase of engineering and science and in some areas of liberal arts. Much of it is directly related to the needs of the people and industries of Missouri and to national problems such as energy, mineral resources and the environment.

UMR's research is focused on five areas: environmental engineering and science; geotechnical engineering; infrastructure engineering; manufacturing engineering; and materials engineering and science. Among the notable research occurring at UMR is a multidisciplinary effort to develop technology for the removal of land mines; testing and development of new lightweight composite materials for use in bridges, buildings and other infrastructure; investigations into the effects of aircraft, space shuttle and rocket exhaust on the ozone layer; and the development of more environmentally friendly methods for removing paint from aircraft. Other projects are as diverse as basic investigations in cloud physics, the study of the gases in meteorites and moon rocks, research on lightweight structural steel and earthquake structures, plus robotics, flexible manufacturing and smart materials.

UMR's research centers carry out interdisciplinary investigations that involve different fields of engineering and science. UMR's research centers include the Biochemical Processing Institute, Center for Cold-Formed Steel Structures, Center for Economic Education, Center for Environmental Science and Technology, Center for Infrastructure Engineering Studies, Cloud and Aerosol Sciences Laboratory, Design Engineering Center, Electronics Materials Processing and Characterization Institute, Engineering Research Laboratory, Experimental Combustion Laboratory, Experimental Mine, Generic Mineral Technology Center for Pyrometallurgy, Graduate Center for Materials Research, High Pressure Waterjet Laboratory, Institute for Applied Mathematics, Institute of Applied Chemistry, Institute for Artificial Intelligence, Institute for Chemical and Extractive Metallurgy, Institute of River Studies, Institute of Thin Film Processing, Intelligent Systems Center, International Institute of River and Lake Systems, Laboratory for Atomic and Molecular Research, Manufacturing Research and Training Center, Missouri Mining and Mineral Resources Research Institute, Nuclear Reactor, Rock Mechanics and Explosives Research Center and Transportation Institute.

Admission

Interested students may obtain information on admission and enrollment upon request, in person, on-line or by mail, from the office of the director of admission at UMR. Prospective students and their parents are encouraged to visit the campus or call the toll-free number (1-800-522-0938) dedicated to inquiries about admissions, financial aid and enrollment procedures. Students also may contact the admissions office through electronic mail at umrolla@umr.edu, or visit the UMR Web site (www.umr.edu).

University of Missouri–St. Louis

In the 1960s, a movement began across the country that marked the most significant change in higher education in the 20th century. That movement was toward the creation of public universities located within metropolitan centers. The University of Missouri–St. Louis is a product of that movement.

UM–St. Louis, the fourth campus of the University of Missouri system, was established in 1963 as a bold experiment in urban higher education. In a brief period of 36 years, the notion of a major public institution serving the St. Louis area has evolved into the state's third largest university.

Located on the site of a former country club, UM–St. Louis now has 50 buildings on 300 acres. The region's largest public institution has grown from a faculty of 50 in 1963 to more than 1,347 full- and part-time faculty and research staff committed to the future of the St. Louis area through teaching, research and service.

Student enrollment has steadily increased from 660 in 1963 to nearly 16,000. The numbers have changed but not the spirit. Still paramount in the minds of faculty and students is preparation of new talent to contribute to the social, intellectual and economic health of Missouri's largest metropolitan area. In fact, UM–St. Louis alumni ranks have grown to include more than 56,000 graduates, 85 percent of whom still live and work in Missouri.

The University of Missouri–St. Louis is academically divided into the College of Arts and Sciences, College of Business Administration, College of Education, Evening College, Graduate School, School of Optometry, Barnes College of Nursing, Pierre Laclede Honors College, UM–St. Louis/Washington University Joint Engineering Program, and Continuing Education and Outreach.

College of Arts and Sciences

Largest of the schools and colleges at UM–St. Louis, the College of Arts and Sciences, through its 18 departments, offers a curriculum linking the liberal arts with the metropolitan area. A major in any of these departments provides a degree of specialization sufficient to prepare students for professional careers or graduate study.

Students enrolled in the college may pursue academic majors in anthropology, art history and studio art, biology, chemistry, communication, computer science, criminology and criminal justice, economics, English, history, mathematical sciences, foreign languages and literatures, music, philosophy, physics, political science, psychology, public policy administration, social work, and sociology.

The college offers master's degrees in computer science, creative writing, criminology and criminal justice, biology, chemistry, economics, English, history, mathematics, music education, physics, political science, psychology and sociology. It offers doctorates in biology, chemistry, physics, political science, and psychology.

College of Business Administration

At the undergraduate level, the College of Business Administration offers the Bachelor of Science in Business Administration (BSBA) degree with emphases in finance, international business, logistics and operations management, management and organizational behavior and marketing.

Bachelor of Science in Accounting (BSA) and Bachelor of Science in Management Information Systems (BSMIS) degrees are also offered to undergraduate students. These programs provide students with a high quality business education that prepares them to become productive contributors in both private and public sector organizations.

The College of Business Administration also offers three master's degrees: the Master of Business Administration (MBA), the Master of Science in Management Information Systems (MS in MIS) and the Master of Accounting (Macc).

The MBA program is available in two formats: the evening MBA program and The Professional MBA On-Line program. The program is designed to fully prepare students for administrative positions. The MS in MIS program includes a specialized program in computer-based management information systems. The Macc program is intended for students preparing to enter the accounting profession or furthering existing accountant careers.

Both the undergraduate and graduate programs are accredited by AACSB—The International Association for Management Education, the authorized professional accrediting body in collegiate business education.

The Center for Business and Industrial Studies was established in 1982 to meet the research needs of the St. Louis business community. The center analyzes managerial programs and conducts applied research. Through the center, clients have access to a distinguished faculty with specialized knowledge and analytical tools, statistical databases and computer software adaptable to a wide variety of business applications.

College of Education

The College of Education provides undergraduate and graduate programs to prepare and sustain educational leaders for a variety of school and nonschool settings.

The college is consistently one of the top three institutions in the state in the production of educators. Consistent with the school's theme of "Creating the 21st Century School of Education," programs emphasize state-of-the-art technological applications to enhance teaching and learning as well as collaboration among university, school, agency, and corporate partners to prepare and revitalize educators.

The faculty, including a number of nationally recognized endowed professors, is committed to a continuous exchange between research and practice that improves the learning environment of diverse learners.

The school is divided into four divisions: teaching and learning; educational psychology, research and evaluation; educational leadership and policy studies; and counseling.

Master of education degrees are offered in counseling, educational administration, elementary education and secondary education. Within these programs, a number of emphasis areas are available, including community education, elementary and secondary school administration, special education, elementary and secondary reading, general and school counseling, and secondary curriculum and instruction.

Course concentrations are offered in adult education, educational technology and physical education. Programs leading to the doctor of education degree and the doctor of philosophy in education degree are offered in the two broad interdisciplinary emphasis areas of learning-instructional processes and behavioral-developmental processes.

Evening College

There is little difference between going to school during the day and the evening at UM–St. Louis. The Evening College conforms to the same requirements and standards as day programs, and many of the full-time faculty also teach evening courses.

Because most evening college students are employed full time, they normally carry less than a full academic load. To enable students to carry as many courses as they wish, the evening college schedules classes between 5 and 9:35 p.m.

The college is the largest degree-granting evening institution in the metropolitan area with an enrollment of about 2,300. The college offers the 32 undergraduate degree programs, 28 minors, four certificate programs and a bachelor of general studies degree and a bachelor of health services degree. A bachelor of fine arts degree and a bachelor of social work are also offered.

Bachelor of arts degrees are offered in biology, chemistry, communication, economics, English, history, mathematics, physics, political science, psychology and sociology.

Bachelor of science degrees are offered in applied mathematics, biology, chemistry, computer science, criminology and criminal justice, economics, physics and sociology. Bachelor of science degrees in education and public administration are also available.

The bachelor of health sciences degree program is designed for students pursuing studies in clinical laboratory sciences and cytotechnology.

For the non-degree oriented student, the evening college offers an opportunity to update professional competence, prepare for a new job or broaden educational background. Pre-professional and teacher certification courses are also offered.

School of Optometry

After more than 10 years of study and planning, the School of Optometry at the University of Missouri–St. Louis came into existence on June 1, 1980.

The first class of 36 students was enrolled in the fall of 1980 and graduated in May 1984. This school allows Missourians the opportunity to study optometry within the state.

Doctors of optometry are health-care practitioners who provide primary vision care including prevention, detection, diagnosis, treatment and management of visual and ocular health education, and devise and administer continuing programs of vision and ocular care.

The School of Optometry offers a four-year graduate professional program leading to the doctor of optometry degree. The first year of the program stresses basic health science courses and visual science courses. During the second year, clinical optometry and ophthalmic optics, courses in systemic pathology, ocular pathology and physiology, and other visual sciences are taught.

In the third and fourth years, students spend the majority of their time involved with patient care and take courses dealing with contact lenses, pediatric optometry, vision performance, low vision and rehabilitation and public health.

Admission to the professional program is based primarily on the quality of the applicant's scholarship in the required pre-optometry courses, the Optometry Admission Test (OAT) scores, interviews and letters of recommendation.

Barnes College of Nursing

The Barnes College of Nursing offers nursing studies at the undergraduate and graduate levels. Knowledge and skills needed to complete the professional licensure examination to become a professional registered nurse are available through a basic baccalaureate option. Nurses who have obtained their basic nursing education through associate degree or diploma nursing programs may complete the baccalaureate degree.

The college also offers the master of science in nursing in cooperation with the School of Nursing at UM–Kansas City and the Ph.D. in nursing in cooperation with the Columbia and Kansas City schools of nursing.

The college was established as a School of Nursing in 1980 and graduated its first class in May 1983. College status was achieved in 1994 with the acquisition of the basic baccalaureate program through the merger of the Barnes College of Nursing and UM–St. Louis.

Graduate School

The graduate school has responsibility for all graduate degree programs in the various schools and colleges of the university.

Graduate programs have been designed to serve students with either of two career goals: to obtain an advanced degree or to obtain advanced training for personal or professional growth.

Academic programs include 27 offering master's degrees and 11 offering doctoral degrees. Two interdisciplinary graduate programs, Gerontology and Public Policy Administration, report directly to the graduate school.

Graduate programs are structured to respond to the needs of the metropolitan area and to provide students with the knowledge necessary to relate effectively to the modern world.

UMSL/Washington University Joint Undergraduate Engineering Program

This program was established in 1992 and offers bachelor of science degrees in civil, mechanical and electrical engineering as well as a minor in environmental engineering science.

Students who enter the program take about one-half of their course work on the UM–St. Louis campus. The remaining half of the degree program, consisting of the upper-level engineering courses and laboratories is taken on the campus of Washington University and taught by Washington University engineering faculty members.

Students register for all their courses at UM–St. Louis, pay tuition at UM–St. Louis rates and receive their degrees from the University of Missouri.

The joint program allows Missouri to make the most efficient use of public funds while meeting the needs of non-traditional students. Joint program students are generally older than traditional students and are unable to leave the area to pursue an engineering degree. They are likely to have substantial family responsibilities or full-time employment during the day, returning to higher education to complete their studies for an engineering degree after a lapse of many years.

Continuing Education and Outreach

UM–St. Louis Continuing Education and Outreach, charged with extending the resources of the university to the people of the state, takes continuing education programs to wherever there is a demand.

The program uses the facilities of government agencies, hospitals, schools and businesses to make college credit and non-credit courses conveniently available to the public. The J.C. Penney Conference Center provides a modern adult education setting on campus for short courses, conferences, institutes, workshops and seminars.

Continuing Education and Outreach, College of Arts and Sciences, offers through the Nonprofit Management and Leadership Program courses and seminars for professional staff, board members and other leaders of nonprofit and voluntary organizations as well as for students and others wishing to explore a future in the field.

A graduate concentration program and undergraduate certificate are also offered. Custom-designed programs for specific nonprofit associations and organizations are available, and the program also provides consulting services to nonprofit or voluntary organizations.

Through the Video Instructional Program, the UM–St. Louis offers courses on all local cable television stations on the Higher Education Channel. Graduate and undergraduate credit courses are offered with the UM–St. Louis faculty available to answer questions and discuss exams.

UM–St. Louis also operates a two-way video system with other university campuses. This system is used for both credit and non-credit instruction.

The Center for Entrepreneurship and Economic Education provides courses, workshops, conferences and consultations on economic concerns for teachers and administrators. Curriculum materials are also developed and distributed.

The Center is affiliated with the Missouri Council on Economic Education and the joint Council on Economic Education, a national network of economic educators.

The university also maintains the West County Computer Center, located near the intersection of I-270 and Manchester Road at 1715 Deer Tracks Tr. Computer classes are also taught on the UM–St. Louis campus.

There are approximately 10,500 enrollments in college credit courses conducted through Continuing Education and Outreach, and about 84,500 participate in noncredit programs. Non-credit courses and conferences are usually held at the request of individuals, organizations and institutions.

Job advancements, in-service training of professionals, women's counseling, gerontology, community planning, effective communication and cultural appreciation are some of the areas in which courses are conducted.

College credit courses are taught by UM–St. Louis faculty members and faculty from other campuses of the University of Missouri, as well as teachers from the general academic community in the St. Louis area.

Libraries

UM–St. Louis libraries support the educational objectives of the university and meet the informational needs of the campus community. The UM–St. Louis library system includes the Thomas Jefferson Library, Ward E. Barnes Education Library, Health Sciences Library and the St. Louis Mercantile Library. The region's oldest cultural institution, the St. Louis Mercantile Library moved to the north campus in October 1998. Founded in 1846, the St. Louis Mercantile Library is the oldest library west of the Mississippi.

The addition of the Mercantile Library collection brought the total of volumes in the UM–St. Louis libraries to more than 1 million. The Mercantile collection included 250,000 books; 10,000 linear feet of manuscripts; 300,000 photographs and hundreds of artifacts.

The Mercantile Library includes two highly renowned specialized transportation collections. The John W. Barriger III National Railroad Library, which focuses on American railroad history and is one of the largest of its kind in the U.S., contains 40,000 books plus primary manuscript documents and photographs. The Herman T. Pott National Inland Waterways Library focuses on U.S. river and inland waterways history. It contains 2,500 books and a large pictorial/photographic collection.

The other three—Thomas Jefferson Library, Ward E. Barnes Education Library and Health Sciences Library—consist of more than 600,000 volumes including more than 9,000 periodical subscriptions, more than one million government documents and more than one million items in microform. The libraries are open more than 70 hours per week during regular sessions.

Admission

Interested students may obtain information on admission and enrollment several ways: in person, by mail, or online. Prospective students and their parents are encouraged to visit the campus. The website is: www.ums.edu. People can e-mail admissions at: admissionsu@msx.ums.edu.

Organized in 1898 by the Missouri Press Association, the State Historical Society is directed by statute to collect, preserve, make available, and publish the history of Missouri and the Middle West.

For over one hundred years, the State Historical Society has been the center for serious research into every aspect of the society and government of Missouri and the lives of its residents. It is a heavily utilized service institution for the citizens and students of Missouri, supplying research facilities and information for every department of the state, its schools and colleges, and thousands of personal requests. Society staff answer more than 50,000 research requests each year.

Society headquarters

The society is located on the ground floor of the University of Missouri–Columbia Ellis Library, where the reference reading room; newspaper reading room; microfilm reading room; rare book collection; art gallery; manuscript reading room; oral history program; photograph and map collections; and various administrative, research, and editorial offices are located. The society is open to the public Monday–Friday, 8 a.m.–4:30 p.m., and Saturday, 9 a.m.–4:30 p.m., except on legal holidays. The hours for the art gallery, which permanently exhibits works by George Caleb Bingham and Thomas Hart Benton and changing exhibits of works by other Missouri and Missouri-related artists, are 8:30 a.m.–4 p.m., Monday–Friday.

The library and its use

Citizens, officials, and students interested in Missouri history, biography, and genealogy find in the society library unsurpassed reference collections. The library of books, pamphlets, and official state publications totals more than 455,000 items. There are also more than 500,000 manuscript items and 700 reels of microfilmed manuscripts, more than 150,000 state archival records, and more than 2,800 maps. For genealogical research, the society's microfilm file of United States census reports is one of the largest in the Midwest, with a total of 6,947 reels covering 48 states and the District of Columbia, with 1,496 reels of Missouri census for 1830 to 1880 and 1900 to 1920. A pictorial collection contains more than 100,000 photographs and sketches of historical subjects.

Society of Missouri

The society's Missouri newspaper collection is the most complete in existence. Extending from 1808 to the present, and containing more than 1,275 bound volumes and more than 38 million pages on 47,423 rolls of microfilm, it is one of the largest state newspaper collections in the nation. In addition, 299 current newspapers from every Missouri county arrive weekly. The history of any famous Missourian, Missouri community, or noted Missouri event can be traced and documented in the collection.

Specialized book collections

Over the years, the society has acquired a number of rare or specialized book collections that have given it added recognition as a research center. These collections include the Mahan Memorial Mark Twain Collection, the Eugene Field Collection, the J. Christian Bay Collection of Middle Western Americana, the Francis A. Sampson Collection, the Paul D. Higday Civil War Collection, and the Alice Irene Fitzgerald Collection of Missouri's Literary Heritage for Children. Collections of this type, beyond mere prestige, attract scholars and researchers and form the basis of any historical library.

Manuscript and map collections

The society has always placed emphasis on the acquisition of contemporary research materials, and its original manuscript collections contain diaries, journals, ledgers, minute books, census records, letters, and official state papers. Where original documents of this nature have not been available to the library, microfilm copies have been obtained. Research materials of this type furnish most of the intimate day-to-day accounts of Missouri history and lend vitality to historical writing.

The map collection consists of rare and old maps of the state as well as modern ones. In the collection are maps relating to the growth and development of Missouri and its roads, railroads, ivers, counties, and cities. In addition, the collection contains county atlases, general business gazetteers, statistical maps, official topographical maps, and early state guidebooks.

Publications

The Missouri Historical Review, an award-winning quarterly, has served as the cornerstone of the society's publication program since 1906. A benefit of membership, the journal features scholarly articles on diverse topics in Missouri history, bibliographical information on local and state history topics, and book reviews and notes. In addition to the journal, the society has published over 50 volumes of edited documents, narrative and pictorial history, catalogs, directories, and indexes.

A quarterly newsletter informs members about society activities and other historical programs in the state.

Local historical societies and History Day in Missouri

The State Historical Society of Missouri has helped in the organization and development of a majority of Missouri's local historical societies. Each issue of the Missouri Historical Review has presented an account of the activities of historical organizations throughout the state and has served as a clearinghouse for information. About 250 county, city, area, or other local historical societies are active in the state.

In conjunction with the Western Historical Manuscript Collection-Columbia, the society sponsors History Day in Missouri, the statewide component of National History Day, a competition for middle school and junior and senior high school students. More than 2,200 students participate annually in regional contests held throughout the state.

Officers of the society

Officers of the State Historical Society, 1998-2001: Lawrence O. Christensen, Rolla, president; James C. Olson, Kansas City, first vice president; Sheridan A. Logan, St. Joseph, second vice president; Virginia G. Young, Columbia, third vice president; Noble E. Cunningham Jr., Columbia, fourth vice president; R. Lincoln University was founded in 1866 through the cooperative efforts of the enlisted men and officers of the 62nd and 65th U.S. Colored infantries. Lincoln University was designed to meet the educational and social needs of freed African-Americans. In 1890, Lincoln became a land-grant college which brought industrial and agricultural courses to the curriculum.

While remaining committed to its original purpose, the university, in September 1954, expanded its historical mission to embrace the needs of a significantly broader population reflecting varied social, economic, educational and cultural backgrounds. This is the unique purpose that Lincoln University fulfills in higher education.

The core mission of Lincoln University is to provide excellent educational opportunities for a diverse student population in the context of an open enrollment institution. The university provides student-centered learning in a nurturing environment, integrating teaching, research and service.

Lincoln University offers relevant, high-quality undergraduate degrees in more than 40 majors, and select graduate programs. In addition, there are divisions of Continuing Education and Adult Evening and Weekend Instruction. All of these programs are grounded in the liberal arts and sciences and focused on public service professions that meet the academic and professional needs of its student clientele.

The campus is comprised of nearly 158 acres, not including the three university-owned farms for agricultural research: Busby Research Farm (273 acres), Carver Research Farm (172.7 acres), and Freeman Farm (199 acres). Greenberry Farm, the farm headquarters, is leased from the State of Missouri.

Located prominently in the heart of campus is Inman E. Page Library, which opened in January 1997. The 80,000 square foot, state-of-the-art facility features the latest in computer technology, distance learning and world-wide informational networking. This facility is four times larger than the library it replaced and is often referred to as the "information mall." It has become the aesthetic centerpiece of Lincoln University's historic campus.

Lincoln University is unique in that it strives to create an academic environment in which

www.linnstate.edu

Linn State Technical College, founded in 1961, is Missouri's only statewide, two-year public technical college. Originating as Linn Technical Junior College, the college became a part of the public higher education system in Missouri with the passing of legislation by the 88th General Assembly.

The original educational institution, Linn Technical Junior College, was established with funding from the National Defense Education Act as a public postsecondary residential technical institution. The philosophy of the original institution was "to provide two-year vocational/technical programs to all students who wish to prepare themselves for employment."

From the very first class of students in 1961, the reputation of the college has continued to grow and become synonymous with quality technical education because it has been responsive to workplace needs. The college has a long-standing reputation for producing graduates with the valued technical and interpersonal skills needed for advancement in the workplace. With a mission to "...offer to the diverse population of Missouri associate-level advanced technical education in both emerging and traditional technologies and support the economic development in the state," Linn State offers more than 21 technical programs as well as customized and contract training for Missouri business and industry.

Linn State Technical College offers two-year associate of applied science degrees as well as certificates. In each program, the curriculum includes an integration of theory with hands-on application and experience. Such integration ensures the development of functional troubleshooting skills with traditional and innovative techniques, approaches, and equipment. Also emphasized are teamwork, interpersonal skills, and work ethic. In addition, the general education core contributes to the high level of critical thinking and problem solving ability of graduates. As part of their education, many students participate in on-the-job experience in industrial internships.

Linn State Technical College monitors the economic, industrial, and technological needs of the state as new programs are proposed for development. Programs recently developed include Electrical Distribution Systems, Integrated Manufacturing Technology, Medium/Heavy Truck Technology, Heavy Equipment Technology, Networking Systems Technology, Telecommunications Engineering Technology and Civil and Construction Engineering Management Technology. Currently, a program in Photonics Technology is under development.

The college is a small, caring community dedicated to the development of the potential of each student. Class size is purposely kept small to encourage adequate individual attention and faculty-student interaction. The student body consists of traditional students who recently graduated from high school, as well as working adults making a career shift or enhancing technical skills. While the majority of the students are from Missouri, increasing numbers are from other states and countries.

The faculty has a combination of higher education credentials and real world experiences in their professional areas of expertise. In addition, they are continually updating their skills through college courses, industrial training, and workshops. The college is also undergoing an expansion and construction program that includes an Information Technology Center, state-of-the-art library facilities, a distance-learning center, a student life center, and dormitories.

Linn State Technical College is accredited by The Higher Learning Commission and a member of the North Central Association. Other professional accreditations or certifications include the Cisco; Commission on American Physical Therapy; National Automotive Technicians Education Foundation (NATEF); Federal Aviation Administration (FAA); Heating, Ventilation, and Air Conditioning (HVAC) Excellence-Education Standards Corporation; National Institute for Metalworking Skills, Incorporated. Many instructors hold individual certifications related to their respective teaching fields.

The primary campus is located on 249 acres one mile east of Linn and includes a public airport. The Physical Therapist Assistant Program is offered primarily from a hospital setting in Jefferson City. Advanced integrated manufacturing-based classes are offered in Mexico, Missouri, at the Advanced Technology Center, a cooperative higher education technology center. In addition, customized and contract training is offered to Missouri business and industry through the Mobile Training Unit and on-site training.

Truman State University, founded in 1867, is Missouri's statewide public liberal arts and sciences university and the only public university in the state with highly selective admission standards.

For the fourth consecutive year, U.S. News and World Report has recognized Truman as the number one public university in the Midwest. Truman State University has drawn attention from higher education experts as a premier value among public institutions in the Midwest.

Combining affordability and a top-quality education, Truman has been recognized by the Fiske Guide to Colleges as a "budget ivy league institution on a quest for academic excellence."

In addition to being highlighted in key college guides, Truman has been featured in The New York Times, USA Today, The Dallas Morning News, The Kansas City Star and The St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Truman State University has a long history of being recognized nationally for its innovative assessment program and its commitment to providing a high-quality liberal arts and sciences education at an affordable price. Truman's program of assessment allows the university to measure the results of the teaching-learning process and to gather critical information on student growth and development to ensure that graduates are prepared for future success.

Truman's curricula provide each student, regardless of intended specialization, with a foundation of knowledge appropriate to a traditional liberal arts and sciences education. It also requires major field specialization, providing each student with in-depth knowledge and mastery of a discipline. This exemplary undergraduate education provides graduates with the knowledge and skills necessary to be successful upon graduation.

About 40 percent of Truman's graduates enter graduate and professional schools each year.

Truman's students consistently rank among the highest in their high school graduating classes. For example, the middle 50 percent of the fall 2000 class scored between 24 and 30 on the ACT, while the high school grade point average was a 3.73 on a 4.00 scale. In addition to their academic abilities, more than 99 percent of the class had leadership roles in high school.

Truman's 6,000 students pursue degrees in 43 undergraduate and 8 graduate areas of study in 8 academic divisions.

Truman emphasizes high-quality teaching as its No. 1 priority. Truman students benefit from a 15:1 student/faculty ratio, which allows for greater one-on-one interaction. In addition to the classroom experience, about one-sixth of the university's undergraduate students engage in major research projects with faculty mentors outside the classroom during their Truman experience.

Truman has been accredited since 1914 by the Higher Learning Commission and is a member of the North Central Association. It also is fully accredited by AACSB-The International Association for Management Education, American Chemical Society, American Speech-Language-Hearing Association, the Commission on Accreditation of Allied Health Education Programs, Council for Accreditation of Counseling and Related Education Programs, Missouri State Board of Nursing, National Association of Schools of Music, National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education, National League of Nursing and the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education.

Truman State University is committed to the advancement of knowledge; freedom of thought and inquiry; and the personal, social, and intellectual growth of each of its students. Truman strives to maintain a recognized standard of excellence in all of its educational endeavors and a responsible stewardship of the resources provided by the people of Missouri.

Founded in 1871, Central Missouri State University has grown from a regional normal school dedicated to teacher preparation into a comprehensive university charged with meeting the higher education needs of all Missourians. The newest chapter in Central's development began October 10, 1996, when the Missouri Coordinating Board for Higher Education approved the university's statewide mission in professional applied sciences and technology.

The enhanced mission reflects an overall commitment to academic excellence and career preparation that has allowed Central to evolve into one of the outstanding public universities in the Midwest. It also means the latest technologies are being integrated throughout Central's comprehensive liberal arts curriculum. This is having a far-reaching impact on the more than 11,000 students from nearly all 50 states and over 60 foreign countries who attend Central and engage in 150 areas of study tailored to meet individual needs.

Beyond Missouri, Central offers onsite and online learning opportunities to students in other parts of the United States and the world. The university's international programs include exchange opportunities, internships, and student-teaching programs that are all among the most challenging and affordable anywhere.

Degrees conferred by the university include the Associate in Science, Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Fine Arts, Bachelor of Music, Bachelor of Music Education, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Science in Business Administration, Bachelor of Science in Education, and Bachelor of Science in Social Work. At the graduate level, Central offers excellent programs leading to Master of Arts, Master of Science, Master of Science in Education, Master of Business Administration, and Education Specialist degrees. In addition, a cooperative doctoral program in educational leadership exists in conjunction with the University of Missouri, and a cooperative Ph.D. program in technology management is available in conjunction with Indiana State University. UM and ISU serve as the degree-granting institutions.

Administratively, the university's academic affairs division is divided into four core academic colleges, The Honors College, and The Graduate School. The academic colleges are:

- The College of Applied Sciences and Technology, which prepares students for highly competitive careers in industry, government, health care and many more fields. Departments within the college include agriculture, graphics, power and transportation, manufacturing and construction, safety science and technology, military science, and nursing. The college has achieved national recognition in safety, graphics, aviation and military science.

- The Adrian and Margaret Harmon College of Business Administration, which ranks among the finest business schools in Missouri and offers programs in accounting, marketing and legal studies, computer and office information systems, and economics and finance.

- The College of Education and Human Services, which prepares teachers for all grade levels in addition to professionals in such fields as criminal justice, psychology and counselor education, sociology and social work, physical education, consumer services management, communication disorders, and educational leadership and human development.

- The College of Arts and Sciences, which provides a comprehensive liberal arts foundation in support of the entire university curriculum. Departments include art, music, modern languages, English and philosophy, theatre, communication, chemistry and physics, biology and earth science, mathematics and computer science, history and anthropology, and political sciences and geography.

Additional degree programs are offered through the Department of Library Science and Information Services.

All course work at Central Missouri State University is fully accredited by the North Central Association's Higher Learning Commission. Central also is a state leader in program-specific accreditations, which have been granted by national organizations in actuarial science, art, aviation, business administration, chemistry, consumer services management, drafting technology, industrial hygiene, manufacturing and construction, music, nursing, social work, speech pathology and audiology, and teacher education. All of the university's business administration degrees are accredited by the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB).

Central's main campus—with its instructional buildings, Ed Elliott University Union, 18 conveniently located residence halls, and modern family housing—is the center of university life. However, the complete physical plant comprises 1,300 acres, including the University Farm, the 300-acre Pertle Springs recreational and biological research area, and Max B. Swisher Skyhaven Airport. State-of-the-art athletic facilities include the 8,500-seat Multipurpose Building, Audrey J. Walton Stadium at Vernon Kennedy Field, James R. Crane Stadium at Robert N. Tompkins Field, and the newly developed South Recreation/Athletic Complex.

Completed in 1999, the $30 million James C. Kirkpatrick Library is a state-of-the-art electronic library, containing nine miles of data cable with more than 1,440 Ethernet connections to the Internet. Central's library is a leader in developing two-way interactive television, information technologies and Internet training facilities, and in providing access to electronic information resources to the state's citizens.

At Central, students are valued members of the university family, and their successes—both in the classroom and in life—are the highest priority. An educational philosophy combining intellectual rigor and practical career preparation allows Central graduates to reap the full benefits of their university experiences. Central currently has a 95.9 percent job placement rate of graduates within six months of receiving their degrees.

Northwest Missouri State University is a coeducational, primarily residential, regional university offering a broad range of undergraduate and selected graduate programs. Since its founding in 1905 as a normal school, the university has shared educational responsibility for 19 counties in northwest Missouri. The university's programs place special emphasis on agriculture, business and teacher education, particularly as these professions contribute to the primary service region. All of the university's programs build upon comprehensive general education requirements.

The university places importance on developing each student's self-understanding, encouraging creative self-expression and stimulating continuing intellectual curiosity. Opportunities are provided for students to develop an appreciation for the creative accomplishments of the human race as reflected in the arts, humanities and sciences. Throughout the university, students are taught to gather, organize, analyze and synthesize information; think coherently; use computers and current technology; and speak and write clearly. Integration of the above attitudes, experience and skills into all aspects of the vocational, technological, pre-professional, professional and graduate curricula is considered essential for developing a flexible, self-renewing learner who will function effectively in a global society.

Accepting the responsibility to be a creator as well as a curator and communicator of ideas, the university promotes applied research which relates directly to the needs of its region, improves the teaching and learning process and advances understanding in the subject matter areas of the institution. The university encourages the continuous professional development of its faculty and staff and ensures freedom to examine ideas and express conclusions without interference. Academic freedom is limited only by the equally important obligations of academic responsibility.

Recognizing its obligation to enhance the quality of life for its citizens of Missouri, the university is a center for regional development, lifelong learning, research, the arts and recreation. Northwest is also a center for improving and expanding opportunities for access to learning through cooperative efforts with other agencies and institutions.

Northwest will continue to expand on these offerings as the university is undergoing a mission enhancement proposal. The mission enhancement project is far-reaching and includes additional applications in the University's Electronic Campus, the development of an academy for Math, Science and Computing and the establishment of the Northwest Missouri Educational Consortium.

Since 1997, Northwest has placed a personal desktop computer in each residence hall room on campus. This program allows students to access the World Wide Web; utilize such software programs as Windows Office, Access, Excel, and PowerPoint; and use a built-in CD-ROM. This electronic campus program greatly enhances learning opportunities through connection with a wide variety of databases as well as providing each student with the opportunity for computer literacy.

Northwest is also a leader in the development of the Northwest Missouri Educational Consortium, which promotes cooperation and links resources among educational institutions servicing the citizens of northwest Missouri. It is Northwest's goal to meet the educational needs of all the citizens and organizations of the region. Joining Northwest to form the consortium are the University of Missouri (including Extension), Missouri Western State College, North Central Missouri College, Grand River Technical School, North Central Area Vocational Technical School, Northwest Technical School and the Brookfield Area Career Center. The three Small Business Development centers in the region (Maryville, St. Joseph and Chillicothe) also participate.

The Consortium seeks to promote cooperation and link resources among educational institutions servicing the citizens of northwest Missouri and facilitate responsiveness in addressing the educational needs of all the citizens and organizations of northwest Missouri.

The Consortium serves 22 counties in the northwest quadrant of the state. These counties include the 19 counties constituting Northwest's historic service region plus three counties served by North Central Missouri College that do not overlap with Northwest's region.

The academy for Math, Science and Computing accepts high school students for full-time, on-campus study. The students must have completed at least two years of high school and have achieved high ACT scores. These students are housed in a specially staffed and designed residence hall. Academy students take regular university classes with an emphasis on computers, science and math.

subsequent 128 years, the name of the school has changed three times—in 1919 to Southeast Missouri State Teachers College; in 1945 to Southeast Missouri State College, and on August 21, 1972, to Southeast Missouri State University, in recognition of its maturity as a comprehensive institution of higher learning. Since its establishment, Southeast has awarded degrees to about 58,000 students and enhanced the lives of at least 50,000 more. Current enrollment is approximately 9,000, including 1,200 graduate students.

Southeast graduates have served with distinction in a wide range of professional fields — education, science, health and human services, the arts and business. The institution itself has been recognized for its premier academic programs by state and national agencies and professional associations.

Southeast is an ideal size for students seeking a mid-sized, friendly place to learn, experience, and succeed at both academic pursuits and extracurricular opportunities. With almost 400 full-time faculty, 90 percent holding doctoral or terminal degrees in their disciplines, the university is large enough to provide over 120 academic areas of study. With a class average of 25 to 30, the university is small enough that students get to know each other and the faculty on a personal basis. It is in this environment that the university believes the best learning takes place.

Five colleges and three schools: As a comprehensive university—one which offers a variety of professional and educational programs—Southeast offers students a wide array of choices.

These academic programs have been organized within the structure of five colleges and three schools. These include the Donald L. Harrison College of Business; the Colleges of Education, Health and Human Services, Liberal Arts, and Science and Mathematics; the School of Polytechnic Studies; the School of University Studies, which governs the general education courses required of all students; and the School of Graduate Studies, which oversees postgraduate degrees at both the master and specialist levels. A fourth school—the School of Visual and Performing Arts—is under development.

Specifically, the university offers 12 undergraduate degrees: bachelor of arts, bachelor of fine arts, bachelor of science, bachelor of general studies, bachelor of science in business administration, bachelor of science in education, bachelor of family and consumer sciences education, bachelor of music, bachelor of music education, bachelor of science in nursing, associate of applied science in child care and guidance and the associate of applied science in computer technology.

The School of Graduate Studies offers the specialist degree in education and nine master's degree programs: master of arts, master of business administration, master of music education, master of natural science, master of science in administration, master of science in criminal justice, master of science in industrial management, master of science in nursing, and master of science in nutrition and exercise science. In cooperation with the University of Missouri, a doctoral degree in educational administration and a master of social work degree are also offered at Southeast.

Programs in demand: Some of the popular academic areas at Southeast are pre-med, business, teacher education, science (biological, physical and environmental), criminal justice, computer science, mass communication, nursing, the liberal arts, music, art, sports medicine, athletic training, psychology, social work and pre-engineering. Unique programs such as historic preservation, sports management, and corporate video round out an array of choices that bring students from around the country to study and live on the campus of Southeast Missouri State University.

Kent Library: Kent Library houses nearly 800,000 volumes or microfilm files and subscribes to 2,400 periodicals. The library's Rare Book Room is home to the Louis Daniel Brodsky Faulkner Collection, making Southeast one of only four institutions in the world owning significant collections of William Faulkner literary materials. Students search documents and research materials through a computerized catalog and have access to on-line databases and journals.

Outreach centers: In partnership with other institutions in the Southeast Missouri Educational Consortium, Southeast operates three higher education outreach centers and is a partner in the operation of a fourth such center. The Harry L. Crisp Bootheel Education Center, established in 1987, brings additional educational opportunities to the people in southeast Missouri at its site in Malden. The Sikeston Area Higher Education Center began its operations in a temporary home in 1998, and moved into a new, 30,000-square-foot facility in 2000. A new Kennett Area Higher Education Center also opened in 2000, and the University is planning to open a fourth area higher education center in Perryville. Courses at these centers are taught by faculty from the University and cooperating community colleges, both on site and via instructional television or the Internet. In addition, the University offers bachelor's degree completion opportunities for the holders of associate degrees in selected fields at Poplar Bluff, in St. Louis County, and other locations, in cooperation with community colleges.

The university has constructed and equipped a comprehensive, area-wide distance learning network called SEE-NET as part of an enhanced mission plan approved by the Coordinating Board for Higher Education. The new outreach centers are also a part of the Southeast enhanced mission, which emphasizes better access to postsecondary education throughout southeast Missouri.

Through partnership arrangements at the outreach centers and in other locations—involving at various locations community colleges, area vocational schools, the University of Missouri, and Lincoln University—place-bound students are enabled to pursue a college education in addition to receiving other educational services such as non-credit and adult education classes. The Crisp Bootheel Education Center has been recognized as one of 20 model rural post-secondary programs in the United States and has received the Distinguished Program Award from the National Association for Continuing Higher Education.

The community: Located in Cape Girardeau, on the west bank of the Mississippi River, the university is a vital partner to the city and to the region. A college town in every sense, Cape Girardeau is a beautiful, historic community recently selected as one of the most livable cities in the country. Approximately 40,000 residents call Cape Girardeau their home.

International education: The University not only serves the educational needs of Missouri students, but also of students from across the nation and around the world. Approximately 250 students come from 50 other nations, bringing a rich diversity of cultures to the university and to the region. In addition, Southeast students can participate in some 35 study-abroad programs.

Accreditation and affiliations: The university is fully accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools and the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education.

In addition, the university holds specific accreditations and/or approvals from: AACSB—The International Association for Management Education, American Chemical Society, American Dietetic Association, American Speech-Language-Hearing Association, Commission on Accreditation of Allied Health Education Programs (Athletic Training), Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education, Council for Accreditation of Counseling and Related Education Programs, Council on Social Work Education, National Association of Industrial Technology, National Association of Schools of Music, National League for Nursing and the National Recreation and Park Association/American Association for Leisure and Recreation.

Athletics

Southeast participates in NCAA Division I athletics as a member of the Ohio Valley Conference. Men's sports include baseball, basketball, cross country, football, golf and indoor and outdoor track. Women's sports include basketball, cross country, gymnastics, soccer, softball, tennis, indoor and outdoor track and volleyball.

University Foundation: Gifts from friends of the university enable the institution to supplement taxpayers' dollars for the benefit of students. In 1983, the Southeast Missouri University Foundation was established, and funds raised since then have been used strategically to provide a margin of excellence and to bring national attention to Southeast. Examples are the new Robert A. Dempster Hall, home of the Donald L. Harrison College of Business; the endowment of that college's academic programs; the achievement of accreditation by AACSB—The International Association for Management Education; and the acquisition of a new "River Campus" in Cape Girardeau to house the proposed School of Visual and Performing Arts. The University's endowment stood at over $26 million as of June 2000.

Admission: Southeast Missouri State University is a moderately selective university. As defined by the Missouri Coordinating Board for Higher Education, this means that students who have taken the required college preparatory curriculum in high school and who have met certain testing guidelines are eligible for admission to the university. Call the Admissions Office at (573) 651-2590 or send an e-mail to "admissions@semovm.semo.edu" to request application materials.

Southwest Missouri State University is a multi-campus metropolitan university system with a statewide mission in public affairs whose purpose is to develop educated persons while focusing on five themes: professional education, health, business and economic development, creative arts, and science and the environment.

SMSU campuses are structured to address the special needs of the urban and rural populations they serve. SMSU-Springfield is a selective admissions, master's level teaching and research institution. SMSU-West Plains is an open admissions campus serving seven counties in south central Missouri. SMSU-Mountain Grove serves Missouri's fruit industry through operation of the State Fruit Experiment Station. The SMSU-Extended Campus provides anytime, anyplace learning opportunities through telecourses, Internet-based instruction and through its interactive video network (BearNet) and subnetworks (GrizzNet and VineNet). In addition, the university operates several special campuses to meet the needs of Missourians and SMSU students. The university also operates the Bull Shoals Field Station near Forsyth, Baker's Acres and Observatory near Marshfield and the SMSU Graduate Center in Joplin.

SMSU is the second largest university in the state. It is located in the state's third largest city with a metropolitan service area of approximately 280,000. Its student body is geographically diverse, with students from all of the 114 counties in Missouri, and from 48 states and 80 foreign countries. Since 1986, more than 234 National Merit Finalists have enrolled at SMSU. The university currently has nearly 560 valedictorians and salutatorians in its student body.

Public Affairs: SMSU is distinguished by its statewide mission in public affairs, a campus-wide commitment to foster competence and responsibility in the common vocation of citizenship. Integrated throughout the student experience, the public affairs mission seeks to develop citizens of enhanced character, more sensitive to the needs of community, more competent and committed in their ability to contribute to society and more civil in their habits of thought, speech and action.

Public affairs is manifested across campus in a number of forms. A Citizenship and Service-Learning program allows students to engage in community service and apply academic knowledge to solve real-life problems while earning academic credit. A junior-level Capstone Course immerses students in current public affairs issues, encouraging them to view the public implications of their chosen discipline. A series of speakers have come to campus to address citizenship and other public affairs issues. The speakers have included three Nobel Peace Prize winners, F.W. de Klerk, Elie Wiesel and Jody Williams. Other speakers include former U.S. Senator Bill Bradley, 1997 Inaugural Poet Miller Williams, and senior editor of The Wall Street Journal Joseph N. Boyce. The Campus Volunteer Center matches students, faculty and staff with community volunteer opportunities.

These and other efforts resulted in the John Templeton Foundation naming Southwest Missouri State University to its Templeton Guide: Colleges that Encourage Character Development in 1999, a designation received by 100 universities in the country. This is the second time SMSU has been honored by the foundation. Additionally, SMSU was one of only four public institutions nationwide to be selected for both the Templeton Honor Roll and the Presidential Leadership sections. Four SMSU university programs also received recognition.

History: Southwest Missouri State University was founded as the Missouri State Normal School, Fourth District, by legislative action on March 17, 1905. SMSU first opened its doors in June 1906. More than 95 years and three name changes later, SMSU is a comprehensive state university system offering a wide variety of programs and services to its students and the citizens of the state.

During the 1995 session of the Missouri General Assembly, SMSU received a statewide mission in public affairs, making it the only Missouri university emphasizing the development of aware, committed, and active participants in tomorrow's society.

Facilities: Southwest Missouri State University's main campus is located on 225 acres in the heart of Springfield. The 125-acre William H. Darr Agricultural Center exists in the southwest area of the city. SMSU's main campus has 18 classroom buildings, an administrative building, a library, 11 residence halls, a multipurpose recreational facility, a sports complex, a health center and a campus-wide transit facility. The Juanita K. Hammons Hall for the Performing Arts hosts a variety of musical, dance and theatrical presentations. Among the more significant projects is the Meyer Library renovation and addition, with a projected cost of $29.5 million, scheduled for completion in the fall of 2002.

Enrollment: In the fall of 2000, SMSU's enrollment was 19,371 with 17,846 students (14,808 undergraduates and 3,038 graduate students) on the Springfield Campus and 1,525 on the West Plains Campus. The percentage of graduate students on the Springfield campus has more than doubled since 1992, rising from 8.3 percent to 17 percent.

Academic programs: SMSU's Springfield Campus offers more than 140 degree programs and options within 44 academic departments. The university is accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, as well as by 17 professional associations, including the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE), National Association of Schools of Music, National Association of Schools for Public Affairs and Administration, the National Collegiate Athletic Association, the American Chemical Society, the Council on Social Work Education, and the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business. The university's academic programs are organized within nine colleges: Arts and Letters, Business Administration, Education, Health and Human Services, Humanities and Public Affairs, Natural and Applied Sciences, Continuing Education and the Extended University, Graduate College and the University College.

The university has a wide variety of international education programs available to students, including programs in London, Costa Rica, India and China; and has established a branch campus at Liaoning Teachers University in Dalian, China. SMSU also is a member of the International Student Exchange Consortium, which provides for reciprocal exchanges to programs in more than 30 countries. In addition, SMSU's College of Continuing Education and the Extended University offers a wide variety of programs, both credit and non-credit, for adult students who are returning to college. Numerous courses tailored to meet the needs of area employers are offered, as well. SMSU has the largest cooperative program in the state, with more than 850 students participating in internships in the public and private sectors.

Academic excellence: The average ACT score of entering freshmen remains above both the state and national averages. The average ACT score for first-time freshmen was 23.7 in fall 2000 compared to 21.7 in fall 1995. With the planned full implementation of selective admission standards over the next several years, the academic profile of entering freshmen will continue to improve.

Further evidence of academic excellence at SMSU has been the recognition that student teams have received in regional and national student competitions in a number of areas, including debate and advertising. The Honors College at SMSU offers extraordinary opportunities for outstanding students. In 1999, an SMSU student was awarded the prestigious Truman Scholarship, a national award given on the basis of leadership potential, intellectual ability, communication skills, and the likelihood of "making a difference."

Faculty and staff: On the Springfield Campus, SMSU has a total of 825 full-time instructional faculty and 245 part-time faculty. The student to faculty ratio is approximately 17:1.

Research: The principle focus of the university is applied research geared to serving the needs of diverse constituencies in the public and private sectors. Faculty are encouraged to pursue their individual and scholarly activities. The university also engages in cooperative research projects coordinated through a variety of research centers. Among these are the Center for Social Sciences and Public Policy Research, which conducts surveys and polls on a variety of issues aimed at meeting community and state concerns; the Center for Resource Planning and Management, which conducts research throughout southwest Missouri focusing on local government planning and health needs; and the Center for Archaeological Research, which conducts studies to discover and identify the artifacts of early civilizations.

Library: The SMSU library system is comprised of the Duane G. Meyer Library, the Music Library, the Greenwood Laboratory School Library and the Evans Library of the Mountain Grove Campus. These four libraries have collections of more than 2.9 million items including more than 720,000 accessioned volumes; current subscriptions to more than 5,000 periodicals and newspapers; and extensive back files of journals and newspapers, many on microfilm and microfiche. Total microform holdings amount to 930,000 units. Collections of audiovisual materials total more than 31,100 titles. Documents and maps include more than 950,000 items. A large collection of CDs is fully cataloged and available in the Music Library.

Meyer Library's special collections and archives department includes the internationally recognized William J. Jones French Literature Collection, the Lena Wills Genealogical Collection, the University Archives, the Southwest Missouri Collection, the Katherine G. Lederer Collection of African American History of the Ozarks and the Ozarks Labor Union Archives, for which the library was awarded the John Session Memorial Award by the Reference and User Services Association.

Additionally, the United Nations approved Meyer Library as the 43rd United Nations depository in the U.S. It is the only U.N. depository in Missouri and surrounding states, including Arkansas, Oklahoma and Kentucky.

Students at SMSU have access to a wide variety of materials by using the latest technology. There are now more than 75 public computer workstations in the library. The CyBear Web page links to the online catalog, which contains information on most holdings, including more than 259,000 records for government documents. Electronic access also is provided to reference resources, course reserve materials, and licensed commercial citations and full-text databases. Currently, more than 45 electronic databases are available to the SMSU community. In addition to citations from thousands of journals, newspapers and books, these databases contain articles from more than 2,300 journals and newspapers in full text. Remote access to licensed databases is available to members of the university community. SMSU Libraries also maintain an extensive index of authoritative Web-based reference resources, organized by broad subject categories, which include full-text, analytical, indexing and other resources.

Identification of and requests for materials not held in the libraries are enabled electronically. OCLC is utilized for interlibrary loans and reference, with links to more than 30,000 libraries in 65 countries. As a member of the Center for Research Libraries, SMSU can borrow from a research collection of more than 3.5 million items. The statewide MOBIUS system is simplifying access to regional holdings. In addition, the Electronic Interlibrary Loan (E-ILL) provides online access to interlibrary loan articles. Meyer Library is connected with more than 4,000 libraries internationally and through them, almost any article can be obtained. Within Meyer Library, several hundred U.S. government files are provided in CD-ROM format. Meyer Library also maintains a computer lab for SMSU faculty, staff and students. A variety of software is provided and the capacity exists to scan and make laser prints.

Reciprocal borrowing agreements exist between the SMSU libraries and other academic/research libraries in the area and with all state-supported institutions of higher education. During the fall and spring semesters, Meyer Library is open 99 hours a week to assist and teach students. Research carrels are available and are assigned to graduate students working on theses.

Computer facilities: SMSU offers faculty members and students free use of its excellent computer facilities for class assignments and research. The hardware includes a recently upgraded IBM ES9000 mainframe, numerous file servers running highly secured NT operating systems, and a wide selection of networked microcomputers. The campus backbone network offers access to the Internet and to the campus host computers and servers from many campus locations. Major computer labs in Glass Hall, Cheek Hall, and the Public Affairs Classroom Building offer access to the campus computing resources from PC-compatible environments. Computers in the residence halls allow students to access the online resources of Meyer Library, the campus computing network and the Internet from their rooms. Dial-up access to campus computing resources is supported.

SMSU–West Plains

West Plains 65775

Telephone: (417) 255-7255

SMSU–West Plains is one of three campuses within the SMSU system. The West Plains Campus is a teaching institution of higher education offering two-year associate of science and associate of applied science degrees, certificates and other courses as needed by employers and citizens of the area served. The college provides a liberal arts transfer curriculum at the freshman and sophomore levels, selected occupational programs, and a variety of continuing education courses.

History and setting: SMSU–West Plains was founded in 1963 as the West Plains residence center. In 1977, the SMSU Board of Regents and, subsequently, the Missouri General Assembly, designated the name West Plains Campus of Southwest Missouri State University to replace Residence Center. In 1981, the legislature enacted a permanent status bill for the campus. In 1991, the legislature passed House Bill 51 which gave the West Plains Campus the authority to offer "one-year certificates, two-year associate degrees and credit and non-credit courses."

Facilities: The campus is comprised of 15 buildings and 30 acres. The newest addition is the Michael J. Lybber Enhanced Technology Center. The 40,500-square-foot Center houses several classrooms, technical laboratories, computer centers and the Center for Business and Industry Training.

Enrollment: The fall 2000 maximum headcount enrollment was 1,525 students. The majority of students come from a seven-county area of the south central Missouri Ozarks region and from adjacent areas in north Arkansas.

Academic programs: The college offers an Associate of Arts degree (A.A.) in general studies and Associate of Science degree (A.S.) in nursing. SMSU–West Plains also offers Associate of Applied Science degrees (A.A.S.) in Business, Child Development, Computer Technology, General Technology, Industrial Technology, Law Enforcement, Paralegal Studies and General Engineering Technology. Community-oriented continuing education courses also are offered at the West Plains Campus, as well as selected intercession and upper-level courses offered through the university departments and the continuing education office.

The college is accredited by the Higher Learning Commission and is a member of the North Central Association.

The nursing program has full accreditation from the National League for Nursing. SMSU–West Plains is a member of the American Association of Community Colleges and the Missouri Community College Association.

SMSU–Mountain Grove Campus

Mountain Grove 65711

Telephone: (417) 926-4105

Southwest Missouri State University–Mountain Grove has a legislative mandate to generate knowledge through research and to disseminate this knowledge for the economic development of the Missouri fruit industry.

History: The Mountain Grove Campus is home to the State Fruit Experiment Station, which was established by a legislative act in 1899 and is the oldest identifiable segment of SMSU. Until 1974, the station was operated as a state agency under a board of trustees appointed by the governor. As a result of the Omnibus State Reorganization Act of 1974, administrative responsibility for the State Fruit Experiment Station was given to the Board of Governors of SMSU. Following university reorganization in 1994, the station was assigned to the Department of Fruit Science in the College of Natural and Applied Sciences.

Staff: The staff includes the director and seven research faculty trained at the doctoral level, and three professional staff trained at the master's level. In addition to carrying out research and advisory programs, the faculty teach and guide graduate students in their thesis research for the Master of Science degree and provide courses for undergraduate students interested in fruit science.

Facilities: The State Fruit Experiment Station is located on the 190-acre Research Campus on the outskirts of Mountain Grove, 65 miles east of Springfield. Constructed on the campus are the following buildings: Shepard Hall, which houses laboratory facilities and offices and the Paul Evans Library of Fruit Science; Faurot Hall, which underwent a $1.1 million renovation in 1998 and now houses the Evans Library, classrooms, a plant science laboratory and offices; a fruit processing laboratory; a classroom building; two greenhouses; a United States Weather Bureau substation; equipment storage buildings; a shop; and several miscellaneous buildings. About 180 acres are designated for fruit research plantings.

Research: Research is conducted in pomology, enology, viticulture, plant pathology, entomology, molecular genetics and plant physiology. The fruit crops under investigation include apples, grapes, blueberries, peaches, strawberries, blackberries and raspberries, as well as species of lesser economic importance. Information derived from the station's research is disseminated through advisory programs to fruit growers and processors throughout Missouri through bulletins, newsletters, a newspaper column, conferences, workshops and personal consultation.

The station is the site of extensive testing of new fruit varieties and selections from throughout the world for their adaptability to Missouri soil and climate and their resistance to disease. Research on the culture of fruit crops is conducted on nutrient and water requirements, pruning and training systems, growth regulators and rootstocks. Plant pathogens and insect pests are studied for clues which may help in reducing their damage to fruit crops. Research on the reduction of pesticides used for control of diseases, insects and weeds is a major effort.

Located in a natural grape environment, the station has been the site of extensive grape experimentation since 1900, including some of the first experiments in the U.S. on grafting rootstocks on American grapes. Today, special emphasis is given to research on the hybrid grape varieties and their wines. One of only three USDA quarantine facilities for the introduction and virus testing of grapes from outside the U.S. is located at the station. The station's research and advisory programs have been instrumental in the revival of the state's grape and wine industry. In early 1999, the Midwest Viticulture and

Harris-Stowe State College traces its origin back to 1857 when its first predecessor institution was founded by the St. Louis Board of Education as a normal school for the preparation of white elementary school teachers. It thus became the first public teacher education institution west of the Mississippi River and the 12th such institution in the United States. Its second predecessor institution was also a normal school founded by the same public schools in 1890 to prepare African-American elementary school teachers. Both normal schools later became four-year teachers colleges—Harris Teachers College and Stowe Teachers College. The former was named after William Torrey Harris, U.S. Commissioner of Education and former Superintendent of the St. Louis Public Schools. The latter was named after Harriet Beecher Stowe, the famed slavery abolitionist and author of Uncle Tom's Cabin. These two colleges merged in 1954, forming Harris-Stowe College. Later, in 1979, the College became a State of Missouri public college, with the name, Harris-Stowe State College.

In the early 1990's the College elected to become a "moderately selective" institution in its admission requirements and soon afterward won state approval to expand its institutional mission. Currently, the College offers baccalaureate degree programs in 12 applied professional disciplines in the fields of accounting, business administration, criminal justice, early childhood education, elementary education, health care management, hospitality/tourism management,

Missouri Southern State College was established by the General Assembly in 1965 as a two-year, upper-division state college to be operated in conjunction with the Junior College District of Jasper County. The college operated under this arrangement through June 30, 1977, when the state assumed the responsibility of funding and operating the four-year program.

In June, 1990, the college's board of regents approved a change in the college mission to include an international emphasis in undergraduate education. This change is intended to help students prepare for the merging global environment. In 1995, the governor approved House Bill 442 directing the college to "develop such academic support programs and public service activities it deems necessary and appropriate to establish international or global education as a distinctive theme of its mission." An assessment of outcomes program is in effect to evaluate the effectiveness of that education.

Through the college's Institute of International Studies and other areas, international programs are being implemented to fulfill the new mission, such as student and faculty study abroad and exchange options, international lectures and symposia and internships abroad. Faculty are developing a global perspective throughout the curriculum. Foreign language offerings are being expanded, and students are encouraged to become proficient in a second language.

The following degrees are offered: bachelor of arts, bachelor of science, bachelor of science in business administration, bachelor of science in education, bachelor of general studies, associate of arts and associate of science. The college offers bachelor's degrees in 42 major areas in liberal arts, teacher education, business and technology. In addition to the four-year programs, the curriculum offers premedical, pre-engineering and other preprofessional programs and two-year associate degrees in dental hygiene, computer science, law enforcement, radiological technology, computer aided drafting and design, computer assisted manufacturing technology and respiratory therapy.

The college is organized into four schools: Arts and Sciences, Education, Business Administration and Technology. The college mission statement stresses a liberal arts-based core curriculum which is designed to provide every graduate with knowledge in the basic areas of learning. Under a revised and moderately selective admission policy, the college encourages high school students to be better prepared for college study by following the core curriculum requirements outlined by the Missouri Coordinating Board for Higher Education.

The administration of the college is vested in a six-member board of regents appointed by the governor with Senate consent.

The 365-acre college campus is located in Joplin, a southwest Missouri city with a population of 45,505. The college plant presently consists of 28 major buildings, including a performing arts center, an artificial turf stadium, a 3,200-seat athletic center with a 200-meter indoor track, and an expanded and remodeled library.

The college is accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools, the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education, the American Dental Association, the Missouri State Board of Nursing, American Medical Association, National League of Nursing, the Missouri State Department of Education, the National Association for Accreditation of Clinical Laboratory Sciences, the Committee on Allied Health Education and Accreditation and the National Environmental Health Association. The college also holds memberships in the American Association of State Colleges and Universities and the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business.

With roots springing from a contiguous five-county region of northwest Missouri, Missouri Western State College has proudly served the higher education needs of its constituencies since 1915. Originally founded as Saint Joseph Junior College to provide a two-year liberal arts transfer program, Missouri Western was transformed into a four-year college in 1969 and became a full member of the Missouri system in 1977. Today, the college serves a growing student population with a curriculum in professional educational opportunities and liberal arts and sciences. These programs lead to one-year certificates, two-year associate degrees and four-year baccalaureate degrees. Additionally the college serves as a center for lifelong learning through an active continuing education division.

Missouri Western honors its tradition of open access admission, and the curriculum is balanced, responsive and evolving. Learning is viewed as a team process requiring student dedication and teacher guidance in the pursuit of knowledge, skills and understanding.

Missouri Western is predominately a teaching institution. The well-qualified faculty devotes its energy to excellence in teaching and to developing a special teacher-student relationship. Enrollment in the fall of 2000 was 5,118.

Academically, the college has two divisions, liberal arts and sciences and professional studies. Baccalaureate degrees are offered in the arts, sciences, education, business administration, nursing, social work, technology, and interdisciplinary studies. There are also a number of associate degree and certificate programs offered. Missouri Western is accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools, the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education, Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology, National League for Nursing Accrediting Commission, Commission of College Nursing Education, American Health Information Management Association, Commission on Accreditation in Physical Therapy Education, American Bar Association, National Association for Schools of Music and Council on Social Work Education.

Missouri Western also continues to develop and enhance services to the non-traditional and commuter student through a curriculum designed and delivered to fit the needs of the working students. The college also serves re-entry adults by providing training and enrichment courses.

Students at Missouri Western not only have access to quality academic programs but also are provided with a variety of extracurricular activities. The college seeks to provide a well-rounded program of events including speakers, cultural activities, intramural sports, films, concerts, and athletic events. The college is a member of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, Division II, and offers programs in football, basketball, volleyball, baseball, softball, golf and tennis.

The college itself is located in St. Joseph on a campus comprising more than 700 acres. There are five residence halls and 12 major campus buildings, including eight academic buildings, a student center, a fitness center and a learning resources center. The campus also has a large nature study area.

In all of its pursuits, Missouri Western is dedicated to helping each student become a more valuable member of society.

The Department of Insurance regulates the insurance industry in Missouri and provides consumer protection to the insurance-buying public.

The agency was established in 1869, when 171 insurance companies operated in the state. The insurance industry, as of December 2000, had grown to 1,825 insurance companies licensed in Missouri with 281 domiciled in the state. In addition, the Missouri Department of Insurance has regulatory authority over 10,091 licensed insurance agencies, 83,341 agents and 7,404 brokers, among others.

The insurance industry in Missouri writes in excess of $18 billion in Missouri premiums and pays about $150 million in premium taxes and other fees to the state each year.

There are four divisions within the Department of Insurance: Financial Regulation, Market Regulation, Consumer Affairs and Resource Administration.

The Division of Financial Regulation conducts financial analysis and examinations of insurers domiciled in Missouri to verify their financial condition. The division also ensures that company operations comply with Missouri laws, regulations and accepted insurance accounting practices. Financial examinations of most Missouri-domiciled companies are conducted at least every three years.

The Division of Market Regulation regulates the performance of insurers in the marketplace.

Market conduct examiners review insurers' operations, including marketing, claims handling, policies and rates. For some violations the insurance companies also are required to pay fines to the state school fund and/or restitution to the consumer, either through readjudication of claims or re-evaluation of the premium charged for the policy.

The life and health and property and casualty sections review policy contracts, rules and rate filings. The managed care section oversees policy development, implementation of new legislation and the analysis of statistical data from health maintenance organizations and entities. The statistics section analyzes and publishes industry and market data as well as trends in the overall industry.

The Division of Consumer Affairs assists the general public in resolving complaints, providing information to consumers regarding insurance policies and investigating alleged acts of insurance fraud. In 2000, the division responded to more than 4,559 complaints and 59,194 inquiries, recovering more than $7.4 million for consumers in 2000. The division operates a toll-free consumer hotline at 800-726-7390; the department also offers a toll-free workers' compensation rate hotline at 888-200-1697.

The Division of Resource Administration oversees licensing, budget, management information systems and support services.

The department is funded through fees collected from insurance companies, agents and other licensees rather than state general revenue.

The department's main office is located in Jefferson City with branch offices in Kansas City and St. Louis. The branch offices respond to consumer concerns in those areas. The Kansas City phone number is (816) 889-2381. The St. Louis phone number is (314) 340-6831. Consumers can file a complaint or inquiry electronically through the Internet site, which has a broad array of consumer and industry information available.

The Labor and Industrial Relations Commission is composed of three commissioners. Each commissioner is appointed to a staggered six-year term by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. One member of the Commission, a licensed Missouri attorney, represents the public. Another member represents the employer, while the remaining member represents the employee. The governor designates one of these members as chair.

The Commission appoints a secretary to keep full and true records of all Commission proceedings and copies of all rules, regulations, decisions and orders made by the Commission.

The Commission hears all appeals from all decisions and awards in workers' compensation, unemployment compensation, prevailing wage and victims of crime compensation cases at the highest administrative level. In connection with these appellate duties, the Commission holds hearings and renders written opinions pursuant to the provisions of the Missouri Administrative Procedures Act. These opinions, in turn, are subject to review by the Missouri Supreme Court and by courts of lesser jurisdiction.

In addition, the Commission is charged with the statutory authority to approve or disapprove all rules or regulations promulgated by the divisions within the Department.

The Labor and Industrial Relations Commission nominates and the governor appoints, with the advice and consent of the Senate, a director to be chief executive officer of the Department.

The Omnibus State Reorganization Act of 1974 established the Missouri Department of Labor and Industrial Relations.

The department is responsible for administering programs that (1) provide an income contribution for workers to offset the loss of a job because of injury; (2) provide an income contribution for workers to offset the loss of a job because of layoff; (3) mediate and issue resolutions between certain management and labor groups; (4) regulate wages for public works and construction projects; (5) promote safe working environments; (6) enforce Missouri's anti-discriminatory statutes and protect Missouri citizens in the areas of housing, employment and public accommodation; (7) promote equal access and full participation for all individuals with disabilities; and (8) investigate allegations of workers' compensation fraud and noncompliance.

Agencies operating within the department are: Labor and Industrial Relations Commission, Division of Labor Standards, State Board of Mediation, Division of Workers' Compensation, Division of Employment Security, Governor's Council on Disability, the Missouri Commission on Human Rights, and Director and Staff Administration.

Individual economic stability and advancement of Missouri citizenry are the primary goals of the department. The department's guiding principle is to be responsive and fair to all employees and employers.

The director's office places emphasis on accountability and quality customer service. Performance measures play an important role in assessing the effectiveness of service to the public and in designing improved service delivery systems.

Director and Staff Administration

The Department of Labor and Industrial Relations provides administrative support services to each of its agencies. The major organizational entities within the Director and Staff Administration are Administrative Services, Facilities and Maintenance, Information Systems and Research and Analysis.

Office of General Counsel

The Office of General Counsel, along with the Office of Attorney General, represents the agencies of the department. The legal staff prepares legal opinions; advises the director and other management staff; litigates all employment security tax and benefit cases including appeals; assists in the collection of delinquent unemployment contributions; represents the department in matters before the Personnel Advisory Board, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and the Missouri Commission on Human Rights; represents the Missouri Commission on Human Rights in civil rights cases; and reviews contracts and leases.

Costs for operating the division and the major part of its programs are paid from federal grants. The grants are derived from federal payroll taxes paid by employers and are made available by congressional appropriations. State unemployment contributions paid by Missouri employers are state funds set aside for the sole purpose of providing for the payment of weekly unemployment benefits to qualified claimants.

Unemployment Insurance

Unemployment Insurance programs provide partial protection against loss of wages for workers who become unemployed through no fault of their own. The unemployment benefits paid to insured workers help to boost the economy of the state during periods of economic downturn by helping maintain the level of consumer purchasing power.

Payment of benefits under the regular program is made from a trust fund. The program is supported by contributions from employers. No part of the contribution is deducted from worker wages.

Eligible claimants can qualify for up to 26 weeks of unemployment compensation under the Regular Benefit Program. During periods of high unemployment, the Extended Benefit Program provides up to 13 additional weeks of entitlement for the long-term unemployed who have exhausted all regular program entitlements and who meet extended benefit eligibility requirements. The Extended Benefit Program is financed equally by the state unemployment compensation trust fund and the U.S. Department of Labor. Due in part to federal legislative changes to the program, extended benefits have not been paid in Missouri since 1982.

Contributions

The division's contributions sections ensure that employers are properly classifying their workers, reporting their workers' wages and paying the correct contributions on wages. Correct reporting helps to ensure the prompt payment of unemployment benefits to insured workers during periods of unemployment.

Employers file quarterly contribution and wage reports with the division to report their workers' earnings.

Unemployment Benefits

One of the main objectives of the division is the prompt payment of unemployment benefits to eligible claimants.

With claims centers located in Jefferson City, St. Louis, Kansas City and Springfield, the Division of Employment Security has completed a transition from in-person to toll-free telephone initial unemployment insurance claim filing. Through the four centers, unemployed Missouri workers, including those who live out of state, can file initial and weekly claims by phone. In addition, the Division offers filing of unemployment claims via the Internet as an additional option. The Internet address is www.ui.dolir.state.mo.us.

A person must have worked in employment covered under the Missouri Employment Security Law and earned qualifying wages in order to be entitled to any unemployment benefits. Detailed wage records are kept on every worker reported by employers on the quarterly contribution and wage reports. The wage records permit the prompt determination of benefit entitlement when an initial unemployment claim is filed.

COLLEEN BAKER
Director
Division of Labor Standards

Other unemployment insurance services include offering claim filing services to unemployed workers living in other U.S. states or territories; detecting and preventing improper payments; and paying a percentage of weekly unemployment benefits to employees of participating employers in exchange for reducing work hours and avoiding layoffs.

Appeals

The Missouri Employment Security Law provides for the appeal of determinations concerning receipt of unemployment insurance benefits and tax liability of employers. In addition to appeals concerning tax liability of employers and payment of unemployment insurance benefits, the section also receives appeals regarding the withholding of child support, appeals under the Trade Adjustment Assistance program and other federal programs.

The Reorganization Act of 1974 created the Division of Labor Standards by combining the Divisions of Industrial Inspection, Mine Inspection and Prevailing Wage.

The division currently consists of three sections: Wage and Hour, On-Site Safety and Health Consultation Service and Mine and Cave Safety and Health.

The division director performs the business and accounting for all receipts and expenditures of all funds; collection of fees; issuance of child labor work permits; assistance to the public relating to wages, hours and dismissal rights; assistance with voluntary compliance of child labor, prevailing wage, safety and health laws and enforcement of those laws where authorized and necessary; workplace safety and health training, on-site consultations and programs; and reports and statistics in support of the operating units.

Wage and Hour

The section provides assistance to the public by answering questions about wages, hours, dismissal rights and minimum wage issues (Chapter 290, RSMo). Working together with employers, school officials, parents and public interest groups, the division is able to educate individuals involved with employing youth. Also, the section assists employers in understanding and meeting their responsibilities under Missouri's Child Labor Law. They issue work permits for youth employed in the entertainment industry (Chapter 294, RSMo). When necessary, the section investigates and enforces compliance with Missouri's Child Labor Law. The division's increased outreach and education efforts with public bodies, contractors, workers and their representatives assist with encouraging increased participation in the prevailing wage survey process. The division helps public bodies and contractors with attaining voluntary compliance with Missouri's Prevailing Wage Law (Chapter 290, RSMo).

Wages, Hours, Dismissal Rights and Minimum Wage

The division answers questions for the public about issues such as breaks, lunches, vacations, hiring, wage levels, dismissals, discipline and others. Employers and employees are provided information on their workplace rights and responsibilities. Assistance is provided by giving proper procedures or referrals to other agencies with more authority. While the division has no wage collection authority, procedures are provided for those individuals seeking such assistance.

Child Labor

The division is responsible for the administration and enforcement of Missouri's Child Labor Law. The law ensures that no child younger than 16 years of age is employed in an occupation that is detrimental to the child's safety, health, morals, educational processes or general well being. No child under the age of 14 may work in any occupation, unless specifically allowed. The exception is entertainment industry employment. The law restricts work hours for youth under 16. A child 14 or 15 may not be employed during the regular school term unless the public school superintendent or designee of the district where the youth lives has issued a work certificate. Youth under 16 may work in the entertainment industry if the division issues the youth a work permit.

Prevailing Wage

The Wage and Hour Section is responsible for compiling wage surveys, wage inspections, issuing the General Wage Order for the Highway and Transportation Commission and the Annual Wage Order. The section also is responsible for providing information to the Labor and Industrial Relations Commission regarding objections to those orders.

Prevailing wage survey information for construction projects is collected on an ongoing basis. The survey information is used to determine the prevailing wage rates for workers employed on public works construction projects. Outreach with contractors, public bodies, employees and others occur daily to assist in achieving voluntary compliance. Site inspections are performed to assure compliance with prevailing wage rates and to investigate complaints.

On-site Safety and Health Consultation Service

The service provides a confidential, no charge service to employers with up to 250 workers (or up to 500 nationwide). The service assists employers in reducing injuries and illnesses without penalties, thereby providing safer and healthier workplaces. Also, employers gain a better understanding of how to comply with federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) regulations. At an employer's request, trained occupational safety and health consultants visit the workplace. The consultant informs the employer of problems found and recommends solutions to eliminate hazards.

Safety and Health Achievement Recognition Program (SHARP)

Employers who eliminate all identified safety and health problems and have, or are willing to start, comprehensive safety and health program management are eligible for an exemption from routine OSHA inspections. The Safety and Health Achievement Recognition Program (SHARP), recognizes the top level of employer participation in the program. It allows for the exemption from routine OSHA inspection for one year. There are currently 24 Missouri employers exempt from routine OSHA inspection.

Mine and Cave Safety and Health

The Mine and Cave Safety and Health Section consists of two programs to aid miners, mine owners/operators and cave owner/operators.

Mine and Cave Inspection Program

The inspection program is mandated by Chapter 293 RSMo to inspect mines to ensure safety in the workplace. Each fiscal year, the Mine and Cave Inspection Program conducts safety and health inspections of mines and caves regulated by Chapter 293 RSMo. Underground mines are inspected four times per year and surface mines are inspected twice per year. There is an inspection fee based on the tonnage reported by the mine owner. This program includes consultation services. Mine and cave safety inspectors assist miners with mine openings, closings, safety programs, dust and noise control and compliance with federal Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) standards. The program also assists with coordinating mine and cave rescue efforts.

Caves

All show caves, by law, must be inspected before opened to the public. The act also requires every cave owner, operator or agent to provide necessary safety guard rails, bridges, ladders, entrances, platforms, walkways, safety barriers, rails, paths, electrical and other safety measures. The safety measures must be in place before opening to the public. Cave maps must be on file before caves are ready for public use. Caves are inspected prior to opening and once after opening to the public. A fee of $35 is assessed to the cave owner. A listing of the caves inspected by the program is published on the Department's website.

Mine Safety and Training Program

The Mine Safety and Health Training Program provides training services to mines which include safety and health, first aid, cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) and mine rescue. Training is available at no charge. The program provides safety and health training to miners through a federal grant. This program is funded primarily by the Mine Safety and Health Administration. Recipients of these services have reduced accidents and injuries in their workplaces with reduced numbers of lost workdays.

Division of Workers' Compensation

On Nov. 2, 1926, the Missouri Workers' Compensation Law was adopted by a vote of the people. The Labor and Industrial Relations Commission, and more recently the Division of Workers' Compensation, have been entrusted with the administration of Missouri's Workers' Compensation Law.

The division's primary function is to provide prompt and equitable resolutions of all cases of work-related injuries and occupational diseases with a minimum of formal litigation.

Under the Missouri Workers' Compensation Law an individual who is injured on the job may be entitled to compensation in the form of medical benefits as well as potential temporary total disability and permanent partial disability benefits. An employee is entitled to these disability compensation benefits in an amount equal to two-thirds of the employee's average weekly pay, not to exceed certain statutory limitations. The average weekly pay is determined by examining various pay periods immediately preceding the date of injury.

The division's organizational structure is made up of the adjudication offices responsible for the adjudication of disputes, and the administrative components including the Injury Processing Section, Regulatory Section, and the Administration Section. The Administration Section includes the Legal Unit. The Regulatory Section includes the special programs listed below. The division also administers the Fraud and Non-compliance Unit and the Crime Victims' Compensation Program.

The division's administrative costs are paid from the Workers' Compensation Administrative Fund. Employers finance the fund by paying an annual tax of up to two percent on net workers' compensation insurance premiums.

Adjudication

The division has 46 administrative law judges and legal advisors. The adjudication staff holds dockets, including hearings, that are designed to resolve disputes between injured workers and employers/insurance companies. The division has eight local offices around the state. The adjudication staff also holds dockets at 38 other sites either in the county where the injury occurred or an adjacent county.

Injury Processing

The injury processing section receives and processes all information relating to the approximately 180,000 work-related injuries that occur each year in Missouri. The division receives reports on injury, claims for compensation, answers, temporary benefits paid, medical costs paid and other information regarding work-related injuries. This information is used by the sections and programs in carrying out all division functions.

native to traditional workers' compensation coverage. Larger employers may apply to self-insure individually. Mid-size to smaller employers may find group trusts a viable alternative. Individual employers and group trusts must satisfy the division's requirements for financial soundness, administrative ability and post surety bonds or escrow accounts.

The Missouri Private Sector Individual Insurers Guaranty Corporation was established in 1992. The Guaranty Corporation was established to administer workers' compensation cases for companies who become insolvent. The Corporation collects assessments from the individual self-insurers to ensure funds are available to administer the claims of insolvent self-insureds.

Second Injury Fund

In 1943, the Workers' Compensation Law was amended to benefit the physically handicapped and individuals with a previous workplace-related disability. An employer's liability is limited to the current injury. The Second Injury Fund is liable when an employee is injured, and the combined effect of the current injury and prior disability results in permanent total disability.

JENNIFER L. SCHWENDEMANN
Chief Administrative Law Judge
Division of Workers' Compensation

Liability for the Second Injury Fund was expanded in 1955 to include any permanent partial disability, compounded by a subsequent injury, without restriction as to type or extent. The fund also pays medical and death benefits for injuries incurred by employees of an employer who is uninsured. Under certain conditions lost wages from a second job may be paid from the fund.

Dispute Management

In January 1995, the division implemented its Dispute Management Program as an alternative dispute resolution process to mediate disputes that arise soon after a workplace injury occurs. The division has three mediators who assist parties in resolving medical treatment and lost wage disputes. This is a voluntary process and both parties must agree to mediate. When one of the parties does not agree to mediate, the case is referred to the local workers' compensation office for further proceedings. Parties successfully resolve the majority of issues with mediator assistance. This system of early intervention has been highly effective in facilitating communications between the injured employee, the employer and insurance company.

Medical Services

This unit manages several special programs. The programs include medical fee dispute claims resolution, physical rehabilitation and vocational rehabilitation. Consultation with division administration is provided on medical issues and for injured agency personnel.

Medical Fee Disputes

The unit's goal is to facilitate the resolution of medical fee dispute claims arising between health care providers and employers/insurers. Disputes arise when the healthcare provider is authorized by the employer to provide medical treatment but has not received payment or only partial payment. The division encourages informal resolution of these disputed claims. If this is unsuccessful, the division provides mediation or an evidentiary hearing, if necessary, to resolve the disputed claims.

Physical Rehabilitation

The division's physical rehabilitation unit determines if the employee's injury qualifies for a $40 per week physical rehabilitation benefit. The benefit is paid from the Second Injury Fund. The injured employee must obtain therapy in a division-certified facility. The physical rehabilitation benefit is paid for a maximum of 20 weeks. In unusual cases, the employee may qualify for a special order extending benefits if more treatment is needed.

Certification of physical rehabilitation facilities is another responsibility of the unit. Certified facilities must meet function, personnel, equipment, quality and adequacy standards as defined by the division.

Vocational Rehabilitation

The Vocational Rehabilitation Program is voluntary. Employers may use the service to provide job retraining to severely injured employees. To conserve state resources and reduce duplication of services, an interagency agreement has been entered into with the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education and the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation to provide this service.

Workers' Safety Program

The Missouri Workers' Safety Program is responsible for the administration of Section 287.123, RSMo. The program was established by statute in 1992 and its mission was revised in 1993. The law requires all insurance carriers writing workers' compensation insurance in Missouri to provide comprehensive safety engineering and management services to employers.

Program functions include certifying and maintaining a registry of safety consultants and engineers; certifying safety programs of self-insured employers, third-party administrators and workers' compensation insurance carriers; investigating complaints against insurance carriers; monitoring the impact of safety services being provided by insurance carriers; performing on-site safety audits; conducting occupational safety education and training; and analyzing injury and illness data provided by carriers.

Fraud and Noncompliance

The Fraud and Noncompliance Unit was established by legislation enacted in 1993. The unit is charged with conducting confidential investigations of all allegations of fraud and noncompliance. Noncompliance means employers who are not properly insuring their workers' compensation liability. Fraud in the workers' compensation system may occur at any level involving employees, employers, insurance carriers, attorneys, physicians and others who attempt to obtain or deny workers' compensation benefits in a fraudulent manner.

The unit staff participates in educational seminars and fraud detection training to inform the public, including employer and employee organizations, civic organizations, insurance companies, legal associations and other groups about proper compliance with the workers' compensation law.

The unit has a toll-free number (800) 592-6003 for more information.

Crime Victims' Compensation

The division is responsible for the administration of the Missouri Crime Victims' Compensation Program (Chapter 595, RSMo and 8 CSR 50-6.010). The legislation was enacted to assist victims of violent crimes who have suffered physical injury as a direct result of a crime, and to assist dependents in the case of the death of the victim.

Benefits are limited to a total of $15,000 payable for medical costs, counseling, lost wages, funeral expenses and other miscellaneous expenses incurred by or on behalf of the victim.

The law's fundamental purpose is to assist violent crime victims through a period of financial hardship. The Crime Victims' Compensation Fund is not a primary payer, but rather a public, quasi-charitable fund. The fund is financed by fees, fines and restitution paid by offenders. Funding and judgments are calculated on a graduated scale depending on the seriousness of the offense.

To be eligible for compensation, the claimant must report the crime and cooperate with law enforcement authorities, suffer a compensable loss, and meet other eligibility requirements. The division's administrative law judges resolve any disputes about eligibility.

The program has a toll-free number (800) 347-6881 for more information.

The Governor's Council on Disability serves as the voice and advocate for 949,000 Missourians with disabilities in state policy making. The council works to make persons with disabilities aware of their rights and opportunities; increase employment opportunities for job seekers with disabilities; expand access to equal and full participation for all individuals with disabilities in their communities at the local, state and federal levels; and change the delivery system for assistive technology devices and services.

In 1947, President Harry S Truman issued an executive order establishing the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped. This federal agency was created to assist disabled World War II veterans with re-entry into the civilian workforce. Following President Truman's lead, Missouri established the Governor's Committee in 1949 after it became obvious that a local network was needed to disseminate information about work-related problems facing people with disabilities.

In 1988, the names of both the President's Committee and the Governor's Committee were changed to Committees on Employment of People with Disabilities, placing the appropriate emphasis on the individual workers and not their impairments.

The mission of the Council has naturally evolved from strictly promoting employment to addressing all of the barriers to employment and full participation in community life. To more accurately reflect the mission, the 1994 General Assembly renamed this agency, Governor's Council on Disability. During fiscal year 1995, three programs—Governor's Council on Disability, Missouri Assistive Technology and the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) state government compliance program—were joined to better serve the needs of Missourians with disabilities.

Organization

The Governor's Council on Disability consists of 21 council members, including the chair and one member from each state congressional district, as well as the executive director. The majority of the council is comprised of people with disabilities representing various disability groups. Family members of people with disabilities, persons who represent other disability-related groups and other advocates fill the remaining positions.

The governor appoints the chair with the advice and consent of the Senate. The governor also appoints the 21 members-at-large. The council meets at least quarterly to act as an advisory body to its staff and to discuss and suggest ways to address current issues affecting persons with disabilities in Missouri.

The council's staff operates out of three offices: Jefferson City, Kansas City and St. Louis.

In the administration of its duties, the Governor's Council on Disability also offers assistance to help the various departments, divisions and branches of government to comply with all laws regarding persons with disabilities. To further that goal, the director of each state department designates at least one employee to act as a liaison with the council. The assistance offered includes educational programming and consultation on the rights of persons with disabilities.

nology. It was established by state statute in 1993 with a mission of increasing access to assistive technology for all Missourians with disabilities. Council members for the project include 12 consumers, two state legislators, two non-designated agency or organization representatives and seven designated agency representatives who are the primary funding sources for assistive technology (Vocational Rehabilitation, Rehabilitation Services for the Blind, Special Education, Medicaid, Mental Health, Health and Insurance).

The staff is based in Independence. It accomplishes its mission through systems change, capacity building, training, resource development, individual advocacy and support.

Missouri Assistive Technology works cooperatively with agencies on the national, state and local levels to improve public policies and expand program options for individuals with disabilities.

Commission on Human Rights

Human Rights is to develop, recommend and implement ways to prevent and eliminate discrimination and to provide equitable and timely resolutions of discrimination claims through enforcement of the Missouri Human Rights Act. In addition, the commission provides equitable and timely resolutions of discrimination claims through enforcement of the Missouri Human Rights Act; and works to devise, recommend and implement ways to prevent and eliminate discrimination.

The commission responds to complaints of alleged discrimination in employment, housing and public accommodations based on race, color, religion, national origin, ancestry, sex, physical/mental disability handicap, age (40-70 employment only) and familial status (housing only). Chapter 213, RSMo 1992 (Missouri Human Rights Act) requires the Missouri Commission on Human Rights to receive, investigate, settle or conciliate complaints of alleged discrimination and conduct public hearings. The statute also enables the commission to certify local commissions, establish relationships with federal and local civil and human rights agencies, implement educational or research programs and develop ways to prevent discrimination.

There are several federal civil rights agencies and approximately 11 local human rights agencies in Missouri. These agencies handle many complaints that otherwise would fall within the commission's responsibility. By establishing work-sharing relationships with federal and local agencies, the commission has eliminated duplication between many government civil rights agencies in Missouri. This has proven beneficial in the use of state resources.

Commission members are nominated by the director of the Department of Labor and Industrial Relations, appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate. The governor appoints at least one member from each of Missouri's nine congressional districts, one member-at-large and one member as chairperson. The commissioners serve for six years without compensation.

Complaint and Enforcement

Any person claiming to be aggrieved by an unlawful discriminatory practice may file a written complaint with the Missouri Commission on Human Rights within 180 days from the date of the last act of alleged discrimination. After the filing of any complaint, the executive director, with the assistance of the commission's staff, makes a prompt investigation. If the director determines that probable cause exists for crediting the allegations of the complaint, the director tries to eliminate the unlawful employment practice by conference, conciliation and persuasion.

In cases of failure to eliminate the discriminatory practice by conciliation, the chairperson of the commission may order a public hearing. The Office of the Attorney General presents the complaint at the hearing. (In housing cases only, the parties have the right to make a decision whether to have their case decided at a public hearing or in circuit court.) Employment discrimination cases continue to consume the largest portion of the commission's workload.

The objective of the hearing process is to make a finding of fact, determine conclusions of law and determine if the respondent has committed an unlawful discriminatory practice. If the commission finds that an unlawful discriminatory practice has occurred, it may order the respondent to stop the unlawful act and to take affirmative steps, as the commission deems appropriate, which includes civil penalties. If the commission finds in favor of the respondent, after hearing all the evidence, the complaint is dismissed.

Either party has the right to appeal the commission's order to the circuit court. If no proceeding for review is instituted, the commission may obtain a court order for enforcement of its decision. If an appeal to the court is made, the Attorney General becomes counsel for the Missouri Commission on Human Rights in the court proceeding. A case may be appealed through the Missouri courts up to the State Supreme Court.

State Board of Mediation

The State Board of Mediation is a quasi-judicial board created by an act of the General Assembly in 1947 through the enactment of Chapter 295, RSMo.

This five-member board is appointed by the governor. Two members are employers of labor or selected from an association representing employers of labor. The other two members hold membership in a bona fide trade or labor union. The fifth member is a neutral party who serves as full-time chairman and administrator of the agency.

The board is statutorily charged with the responsibility of determining an appropriate bargaining unit of public employees, based on their community of interests. It also conducts secret ballot elections to determine majority status.

The law provides that public bodies or their designated representatives shall meet, confer and discuss proposals relative to conditions of employment with the labor or employee organization, which is the exclusive bargaining representative.

In 1965, the Missouri Legislature enacted Chapter 105, RSMo, the Public Sector Labor Law. The law was amended in 1967 and 1969. Currently, the law covers all public employees in Missouri except police, deputy sheriffs, Missouri highway patrol officers, Missouri National Guard and all teachers at Missouri schools, colleges and universities. Under Missouri statute and case law, public employees have the right to join a union; however, they have no right to strike or to enforce any agreement that they may reach with the public employer.

The board has no authority to process unfair labor practices. An appeal from a decision of the board may be taken to the circuit court. The administrative rules for processing a petition were promulgated in 1976 and can be found at 8 CSR 40-1.010 to 40-2.180.

The board was originally established to mediate labor disputes occurring in public utilities. In addition, the board aided the utility employer and its union employees in their collective bargaining negotiations so that labor disputes in public utilities could be peacefully settled without strikes or lockouts. Provisions of Section 295.180, RSMo were to be held in conflict with federal law and, to that extent, invalid under the supremacy clause of the U.S. Constitution.

Though its functions date back to 1847, the Missouri Department of Mental Health was first established as a cabinet-level state agency by the Omnibus State Government Reorganization Act, effective July 1, 1974.

State law provides three principal missions for the department: (1) the prevention of mental disorders, developmental disabilities and substance abuse; (2) the treatment, habilitation and rehabilitation of Missourians with those conditions; and (3) the improvement of public understanding and attitudes about mental disorders, developmental disabilities and substance abuse.

The vision of the Department of Mental Health is one of "Lives Beyond Limitations." The vision is that Missourians shall be free to live their lives and pursue their dreams beyond the limitations of mental illness, developmental disabilities, alcohol and other drug abuse.

Missourians must know that mental illness is a treatable disease, persons with substance abuse problems can triumph over their addictions, and persons with developmental disabilities can be productive citizens and good neighbors in their communities.

Mental Health Commission

The commission, composed of seven members, appoints the director of the Department of Mental Health with confirmation of the Senate. Commissioners are appointed to four-year terms by the governor, again with the confirmation of the Senate. The commissioners serve as principal policy advisers to the department director.

The commission, by law, must include an advocate of community mental health services, a physician who is an expert in the treatment of mental illness, a physician concerned with developmental disabilities, a member with business expertise, an advocate of substance abuse treatment, a citizen who represents the interests of consumers of psychiatric services and a citizen who represents the interests of consumers of developmental disabilities services.

Office of the Director

With advice from the Mental Health Commission, the director is responsible for overall operations of the department, its three operating divisions, six support offices, 28 facilities and central office. The director's duties include planning, supervising and evaluating the provision of services for Missourians with mental disorders, developmental disabilities and substance abuse.

Each year the department provides direct services to more than 100,000 Missourians through the Division of Comprehensive Psychiatric Services, the Division of Mental Retardation and Developmental Disabilities and the Division of Alcohol and Drug Abuse.

The Office of Administration, headed by the department's deputy director for administration, provides a range of administrative and financial services to help the department achieve effective results. The office's services can be divided into the following areas: fiscal management accounts for all funds, manages expenditures and produces fiscal summaries, analyses, and reports; capital improvements/general services provides guidance on construction, maintenance and repair for 27 state-owned facilities, and coordinates leases; contracts management secures more than 4,500 private agencies or individuals to provide services in the community; reimbursements collects payments from private insurance, Medicaid and Medicare, and private pay for department services; budget services develops and monitors the annual operating and lease budgets and oversees spending plans; revenue management maximizes all available revenue streams to effectively manage financial resources; and dietetic services coordinates services to dietitians in the state facilities and provides department-wide consultation on food management and nutrition.

The Office of Consumer Affairs provides consumer and family views in policy making, aids in accessing services and ensures that client rights are protected.

The Office of Quality Management is currently responsible for a myriad of Department-wide and statewide functions in support of the Department Director's Office, the three direct client care divisions and the other support offices. Those functions serve to coordinate and implement quality improvement processes to enhance division services to clients through the following mechanisms:

- Survey, licensure and certification of facilities and treatment programs, including technical assistance;
- Technical assistance to, and staff support of, major federal and state initiatives;
- Internal and external audit services, related to compliance, financial, and performance reviews;
- Abuse and neglect investigations and associated technical assistance for local investigations;
- Direction and coordination of CQI and outcomes evaluation processes, including annual customer satisfaction survey, web based reporting of results and other DMH outcome/performance based data collection and reporting;
- Appeals and hearings for administrative due process;
- Coordination of the department's regulatory and records management processes;

- Statewide coordination of the department's emergency management response;

- Medical/clinical quality assurance and health care policy consultation to the department's management and facility operations.

The Office of Human Resources has department-wide responsibility for the development, implementation and coordination of human resources policies, procedures, and functions, including but not limited to, compensation, classification, labor relations, safety, discipline, and federal regulations compliance. The Office of Human Resources hopes to provide the employees of the Department of Mental Health with the same level of respect, consideration and service that the department provides its consumers of services.

The Office of Information Systems is responsible for identifying, implementing, and maintaining information and communication systems that improve the effectiveness of the Department of Mental Health.

The Office of Public Affairs is responsible for coordinating the department's public education efforts regarding mental health issues. Office staff develops and disseminates informational materials and helps to keep providers, consumers and the public informed of mental health programs, services and issues. The office also provides informational updates, support services, technical assistance and communications training to staff in the department's divisions, offices and facilities.

Division of Alcohol and Drug Abuse

The Division of Alcohol and Drug Abuse plans and funds prevention, treatment and rehabilitation programs for an illness that costs the state's economy more than $5.5 billion a year in lost productivity, social welfare costs and property damage. It is estimated that 378,000 Missouri adults need treatment and 114,000 adolescents need intervention or treatment services for alcohol and other drug abuse.

The division, established within the department in 1975, became a statutory entity with passage of the Omnibus Mental Health Act in 1980.

The division provides funding for prevention, outpatient, residential and detoxification services to community-based programs that work with the communities to develop and implement comprehensive coordinated plans.

The division provides technical assistance to these agencies and operates a certification program, which sets standards for treatment programs, qualified professional, alcohol and drug related educational programs.

Division of Comprehensive Psychiatric Services

The Division of Comprehensive Psychiatric Services provides inpatient and residential services for children and adults at ten (10) state-operated facilities. These include four long-term care facilities, three acute care hospitals, one facility with both acute and long-term services, one children's psychiatric hospital, and one children's residential treatment center.

In addition, the division contracts with not-for-profit community mental health centers to provide services for persons with mental illness in each of 25 geographic service areas. The agency responsible for service provision in each service area is designated as the division's administrative agent. The administrative agents are responsible for assessment and service delivery to eligible individuals in their geographic service area. This includes responsibility to provide follow-up services to persons who have been discharged from state-operated inpatient services. Children and their families are also served by administrative agents.

Supported community living programs are provided to individuals with mental illness who require financial subsidies to support their housing needs or need more structured services to live in the community. Living arrangements in this program range from nursing homes to apartments and other settings that are integrated into the community. Persons in these programs are provided support through case management and community psychiatric rehabilitation program services provided by administrative agents.

During fiscal year 2000, the division provided:

- inpatient services to 7,544 adults and 771 children;
- outpatient and community support to 52,113 adults and 9,784 children; and
- supported community living services to 5,698 adults and 280 children.

The State Advisory Council for Comprehensive Psychiatric Services

The State Advisory Council for Comprehensive Psychiatric Services was first established in 1977 by the governor's executive order. Members are appointed by the director of the Division of Comprehensive Psychiatric Services. The council is comprised of 25 members who advise and make recommendations on the development and coordination of a statewide inter-agency/inter-departmental system of care for children/youth with serious emotional disorders and persons with mental illness and their families. Through public education and advocacy efforts consumers of mental health services and their families have become an integral part of defining priorities for the division on issues surrounding accessible services, crisis intervention, children's services, recovery and budget. The council works with other mental health advocacy groups in planning and coordinating Mental Health Awareness Day, an event that brings together consumers, family members, mental health professionals and advocates throughout the state where they participate at the Capitol in educational seminars, media awards, and a rally to promote advocacy.

Fulton State Hospital, authorized in 1847 and opened in 1851, is the oldest public mental health facility west of the Mississippi River. The 505-bed hospital provides inpatient adult psychiatric services, including long-term care, for a 31-county area in the state's northeast quadrant.

The hospital has been accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations since 1984. It has 21 beds certified for federal Medicaid or Medicare reimbursement.

The 64-bed Adult Psychiatric Center offers psychosocial rehabilitation services for long-term care patients. The hospital also operates a 24-bed group home complex on its grounds.

Fulton has Missouri's only maximum-security and intermediate-security settings for persons committed by the circuit courts for psychiatric treatment. The 222-bed Biggs Forensic Center provides treatment for those committed as not guilty by reason of mental disease or defect (NGRI) as well as pre-trial evaluations for those who require a maximum security setting. Also in Biggs is a cooperative treatment program with the Department of Corrections (D.O.C.) providing acute mental health care for inmates from D.O.C. The 175-bed Guhleman Forensic Center offers an intermediate security environment that

Mid-Missouri Mental Health Center is a short-term, acute inpatient psychiatric facility located on the campus of the University of Missouri in Columbia. Completed in 1967, the center was the first comprehensive mental health center to be federally funded under the Center's Act of 1963. The center is accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Health Care Organizations and is certified for federal reimbursement under the Medicaid and Medicare programs.

Mid-Missouri Mental Health Center serves the residents of a 31-county area located in the central, south central, north central and north-east sections of the state. Among the basic psychiatric services provided by the center are short-term inpatient care for children, adolescents and adults and an array of outpatient services for children and adolescents. The center's 69 inpatient beds are divided among four multidisciplinary units; one 10-bed child and adolescent unit and three adult psychiatric units.

Through its affiliation with the University of Missouri-Columbia, Mid-Missouri Mental Health Center provides training for students in psychiatry, psychology, psychiatric social work, nursing, and activity and occupational therapies.

ty catchment area, and maintains a 76-bed minimum/campus-security, forensic unit for patients referred by the criminal courts for psychiatric evaluation and/or treatment.

By cooperative agreement with the Departments of Corrections and Mental Health, the Corrections Treatment Center (CTC) was established and operates on the grounds of Farmington Correctional Center. Within this unit, the mental health center staffs a small medium-security ward for inmates with psychiatric needs, and provides psychiatric coverage, case management and medication services for a 200-bed social rehabilitation unit.

In 1999 Southeast Missouri Mental Health Center opened the Sexually Violent Predator Treatment Program mandated by state statute. Through a process outlined by law, clients are court-ordered to the program after they have completed their sentence with the Department of Corrections. This is a 75-bed unit, housed on the mental health center grounds but within the Department of Corrections' fence.

Client placement and monitoring services are provided through the Supportive Community Living Program located on grounds, and outpatient services for an eight-county area of southeast Missouri are provided through the Administrative Agent contracted by the Department of Mental Health.

In December, 1997, Southwest Missouri Psychiatric Rehabilitation Center (SWMPRC) formerly Southwest Missouri Mental Health Center, moved into a new facility in El Dorado Springs from its previous location in Nevada. The 30-bed, adult psychiatric treatment facility provides both acute and long-term care for Service Area 8, and long-term backup care for Service Area 9 and 10. The three Service Areas are located in the CPS Southwest Region, consisting of 21 counties in Southwest Missouri.

The Administrative Agents are the entry and exit points for all DMH funded psychiatric services in the Southwest Region. Each Administrative Agent manages admissions to assigned beds at Southwest Missouri Psychiatric Rehabilitation Center based upon percentage of population. The facility accepts those persons in need of treatment for serious mental illness and mental disorders. The staff of the facility provides intensive psychosocial rehabilitation treatment, which facilitates a return to living in the community. Administrative Agent staff are involved with the treatment process and discharge planning by attending a monthly patient review meeting at the facility. Housing Support Services are also provided to clients residing in the Regional Supported Housing Program located in Nevada and El Dorado Springs.

Following discharge, community-based care and treatment is provided by staff of the Administrative Agents through the POS Program, the decentralized community placement program, and the Medicaid-funded targeted case management and CPRC programs. Treatment services are monitored by the staff of the Southwest Regional Supported Community Living Program, located in Nevada.

Division of Mental Retardation and Developmental Disabilities

The Division of Mental Retardation and Developmental Disabilities, established in 1974, serves a population that has developmental disabilities such as mental retardation, cerebral palsy, head injury, autism, epilepsy and certain learning disabilities. Such conditions must have occurred before age 22 and are likely to continue indefinitely. To be eligible for services from the division, persons with these disabilities must be substantially limited in their ability to function independently.

The division improves the lives of persons with developmental disabilities through supports and services to enable those persons to live independently and productively. In 1988, the division began participation in the Medicaid Home and Community Based Waiver program, designed to help expand needed services throughout the state.

The division operates 17 facilities that provide or purchase specialized services. The 11 regional centers form the framework for the system and are backed by six habilitation centers that provide residential care and habilitation services for more severely disabled persons.

The regional centers, the primary points of entry into the system, provide assessment and case management services that include coordination of each eligible person's individualized plan.

Referrals may be made by a regional center to a habilitation center. Habilitation centers primarily serve persons who are severely disabled, behaviorally disordered, court-committed or medically fragile. All habilitation centers are Medicaid certified.

State and Regional Planning and Advisory Councils

The division receives consumer advice and planning assistance from the Missouri Planning Council for Developmental Disabilities and 11 regional councils. The regional council's members are drawn from areas served by the regional centers.

The Missouri Planning Council for Developmental Disabilities was created in 1971 under federal legislation. The council also serves, under Missouri statute, as the State Advisory Council on Mental Retardation and Developmental Disabilities, providing advice to the division director and other state agencies that serve persons with developmental disabilities.

Missouri Planning Council members are appointed by the governor. The council develops and implements a state plan for services to Missourians with developmental disabilities.

The Department of Natural Resources preserves, protects and enhances Missouri's natural, cultural and energy resources and works to inspire their enjoyment and responsible use for present and future generations. More than 2,000 employees work to ensure that our state enjoys clean air to breathe, clean water for drinking and recreation and land that sustains a diversity of life.

We take seriously our responsibility of stewardship to protect and enhance the environment in which we work and live. We consider all aspects of the environment when making decisions. To do this, we value integrity above all, openness to all individuals and points of view, diversity in people and approach, excellence in all we do and service.

Five divisions enable the department to carry out its responsibilities: Division of Environmental Quality, Division of State Parks, Division of Geology and Land Survey, Energy Center and Division of Administrative Support. In addition, the State Environmental Improvement and Energy Resources Authority, the Petroleum Storage Tank Insurance Fund and the Missouri Lewis and Clark Bicentennial Commission, are administratively attached to the department through the Office of the Director.

Office of the Director

The Office of the Director provides departmental focus on key outcomes and works to ensure decisions are made that result in real environmental improvements.

The Office of the Director seeks to improve efficiency of departmental actions, drive customer-focused initiatives, ensure public participation in decision-making, and attain results affecting the quality of our water, air, land, energy, recreational and cultural resources. It seeks to continue the protection and enhancement of our natural and cultural resources through collaborative, participative approaches.

The Office of the Director coordinates inter-agency and intra-agency cooperative agreements, specific strategies and who represents the state in statutory roles. The office is also the focal point for providing information and assistance to state and national legislative bodies and the oversight of issues of state and national import.

The director of the Department of Natural Resources manages Missouri's natural, cultural and energy resources. The director serves as the state historic preservation officer, as chair of the State Inter-agency Council for Outdoor Recreation and as a member of the Soil and Water Districts Commission. The department director also represents Missouri on three interstate river organizations: Missouri River Basin Commission, Arkansas-White-Red Basins Inter-agency Committee and Upper Mississippi River Basin Commission.

task, the commission is developing and coordinating an effective means for the State of Missouri to observe bicentennial commemoration of the Lewis and Clark Corps of Discovery. The commission promotes the public awareness of the historical significance of the expedition related to the Missouri Territory. In addition, the bicentennial commission is a catalyst for accomplishing Missouri's Lewis and Clark Bicentennial capital improvement projects, programs and special events. The bicentennial projects and events are comprised of public, private and foundation projects.

The executive director of the commission also serves as liaison between the other 14 states participating in the Lewis and Clark Bicentennial. The commission serves as a statewide umbrella for bringing together Missouri's communities, the National Park Service and other federal agencies as well as private groups planning projects and events. The commission reports to the governor in October of each year.

The commission was authorized by Executive Order 98-06, which was signed by Governor Carnahan. The governor appointed 14 members to serve on the commission. The bipartisan members serve a single term that expires at conclusion of commemoration in fall 2006.

The Environmental Improvement and Energy Resources Authority (EI ERA) was established by the Missouri General Assembly to protect Missouri's environment, conduct research, develop energy alternatives and promote economic development.

Service is provided through financing projects with tax-exempt bonds and notes, conducting environmental studies and providing technical assistance. The EI ERA's mandate is broad. Assistance can be offered to individuals, businesses, institutions, municipalities and government agencies for energy and environmental projects.

Petroleum Storage Tank Insurance Fund Board of Trustees

The Petroleum Storage Tank Insurance Fund (PSTIF) Board of Trustees was established in 1996 (Section 319.129, RSMo). The board administers the Petroleum Storage Tank Insurance Fund, which insures tank owners against the risks associated with spills and leaks of petroleum products from their tanks or piping. It also provides funding to clean up certain properties where historic tank operations contaminated the environment, restoring those properties to economic viability.

The 11-member board includes the commissioner of administration, the directors of the departments of Agriculture and Natural Resources and eight citizens appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate for four-year terms. The citizens represent tank owners, financial institutions, industrial and commercial users of petroleum, the insurance industry and the public.

Energy Center

The nonregulatory division, the Energy Center encourages the use of energy-efficient practices and renewable energy resources and technologies to benefit Missouri's environment and economy.

Energy Center employees provide technical and financial assistance for energy-efficiency and renewable-energy improvements, support market research and demonstration projects promoting clean energy sources and technologies, and provide energy data, information and research on energy issues to all Missourians.

Energy employees work with residential, agricultural, educational, local government and industrial clients to develop energy-efficiency measures that pay back the initial investment within a reasonable time frame. Staff members consult with the office of Administration and other agencies to integrate energy efficiency into state buildings and purchases.

The Energy Center trains other state agencies to acquire more alternative fuel vehicles in compliance with state regulations, and it partners with the federal Clean Cities programs in Missouri's metropolitan areas to strive for cleaner air and water through alternative transportation fuels and technologies. Center employees also manage the Mid-Missouri rideshare program and connect Missouri commuters to the carpooling program nearest them.

The Energy Center provides financial assistance for energy-efficiency projects and administers the low-income weatherization assistance program, which serves Missouri communities through 18 local agencies. The program makes more than 2,000 low-income family homes more energy efficient and safe each year by installing measures such as wall and attic insulation, cleaning and tuning heating systems, and reducing air infiltration. The Energy Center's low-cost energy revolving loan fund helps schools and local governments finance energy-efficiency projects so that money saved can be used for other public needs such as textbooks or road repairs.

Financial and administrative personnel provide for the center's fiscal integrity, manage its computer and support services, and administer its financial assistance program.

Energy Center employees also answer questions from the public, produce or gather helpful energy-related documents and speak to citizens one-on-one at events such as the Missouri State Fair and the capital Earth Day celebration. In addition, the center maintains a library and website, which are valuable resources for those who want to conduct research.

Division of Environmental Quality

Protecting and enhancing the quality of Missouri's environment is the responsibility of the Division of Environmental Quality. The division administers technical environmental programs: air pollution control, environmental services, land reclamation, public drinking water, regional offices, soil and water conservation, solid and hazardous waste management, technical assistance and water pollution control.

The Air Conservation, Clean Water, Hazardous Waste Management, Land Reclamation, Safe Drinking Water and the Soil and Water Districts commissions are the six policymaking bodies assigned to the division. There are two Advisory boards, the Small Business Compliance Advisory Committee and the Solid Waste Advisory Board, that assist the department's Technical Assistance Program and the Solid Waste Management Program, in implementing their respective state laws.

Regional offices

The division's six regional offices and seven satellite offices deal with local environmental matters. Regional offices in St. Louis, Kansas City, Springfield, Poplar Bluff, Macon and Jefferson City provide the Division of Environmental Quality a closer contact with the public through field inspections, complaint investigation, tank monitoring, front-line troubleshooting and technical assistance on environmental emergencies. Regional offices support the air pollution control, water pollution control, public drinking water, solid waste management and hazardous waste programs. Each regional office provides surveillance, technical assistance, and compliance monitoring to assist the division in enforcement. The division's satellite offices are located in Branson, Festus, LaGrange, Neosho, Osage Beach, Sullivan and Troy.

Air pollution control program

Missouri's air pollution control program carries out the policies established by the Air Conservation Commission.

The commission, through a program involving four delegated local governments and citizen input, develops strategies for bringing pollutants down to safe levels in those areas with excessive pollutants.

To maintain clean air in the state, the air pollution control program surveys and inspects sources of air pollution. If a source consistently violates the state's air pollution control regulations, it is subject to enforcement action. The commission can grant variances, however, to individual operations when a strict application of the regulations would cause an unreasonable hardship without public benefit.

The air pollution control program also evaluates industries wanting to locate in Missouri, predicting their emissions and their impact on the state's air quality and requiring restrictions on emissions where necessary.

Environmental services program

The environmental services program provides monitoring, sample collection and analytical services to the division's environmental control programs. In addition, the program receives notifications of environmental emergencies, provides technical assistance for incidents involving hazardous chemicals and investigates contaminated sites.

The staff operates air monitoring instruments at 30 locations throughout the state, performs air quality studies, and uploads air quality data to the Internet for public access. Water samples are collected from landfill wells, wastewater treatment plants and industrial facilities that discharge into Missouri waterways. Various tests are performed to determine how the discharges affect Missouri streams. Samples are collected at both abandoned hazardous waste sites and at facilities that are actively engaged in treating, storing or disposing of hazardous wastes. More than 125,000 total analyses are performed each year in the analytical laboratory on air, water and soil samples. This includes 100,000 analyses on drinking water from public water supplies across the state.

Calls about environmental emergencies, including oil and chemical spills, are reported to staff on an environmental emergency telephone hotline 24 hours a day, seven days a week at (573) 634-2436. Callers can receive advice and assistance. Staff can be dispatched to oversee cleanup, sampling or other emergency activities. Staff also assists with management and disposal of hazardous chemicals from clandestine drug labs.

Hazardous Waste Management Program

The hazardous waste program carries out the policies of the Missouri Hazardous Waste Management Commission. The commission establishes regulations for the generation, transportation, treatment, storage, clean up and disposal of hazardous waste and hazardous substances. The commission also hears appeals of decisions made by the department director and rules on requests for variances from hazardous waste management and hazardous substance regulations.

The hazardous waste program protects public health and the environment by keeping Missouri's water, soil and air from being polluted with hazardous wastes and hazardous substances. In addition to enforcing the state laws passed to ensure proper management of hazardous wastes being generated today, the program also oversees the state's remedial fund for cleanup of problem sites resulting from poor waste management.

The hazardous waste program reviews applications for permits for facilities that treat, store and dispose of hazardous waste to ensure that these facilities conform to environmental laws and regulations. The program also licenses hazardous waste transporters that meet state requirements.

The program's enforcement staff helps the regional offices inspect generators and treatment, storage and disposal facilities and takes appropriate action to ensure a timely return to compliance for those generators or facilities that are out of compliance.

The program oversees cleanup activities at 45 federal facilities in Missouri. These facilities are either U.S. Department of Energy or U.S. Department of Defense sites that require remediation of hazardous or radioactive wastes that were disposed of prior to the current laws and regulations. The program also has several field offices, which allow Department of Natural Resources staff to have on site presence during federal facility cleanups.

The program evaluates and remediates federal National Priorities List (NPL) sites, non-NPL sites and sites on or proposed for the Registry of Abandoned or Uncontrolled Sites in Missouri. The program has primary responsibility for 100 of the 142 active hazardous waste substances sites in Missouri including six of 25 National Priority List sites.

The program promotes voluntary cleanups by allowing landowners to pay voluntarily for state oversight of hazardous substance cleanups. Upon satisfactory cleanup, the department will issue a letter of completed remediation, which will facilitate the transfer of real estate.

The hazardous waste program has oversight of underground storage tanks and leaking underground storage tanks. The program oversees regulations governing the construction, installation, operation and closure of underground storage tanks and is also responsible for the investigation and remediation of all leaking petroleum underground storage tank sites.

The hazardous waste program is responsible for cleaning up contaminated dry cleaner sites using a fund capitalized with fees paid by the dry cleaning industry.

Land Reclamation Program and Commission

The Missouri Land Reclamation Commission is the ruling body over Missouri's mining issues set forth in three separate state statutes. These mining statutes protect public health, safety and the environment from the adverse effect of mining and assure the beneficial restoration of mined lands. The seven-member commission includes three statutory and four public members. The statutory members are the state geologist, the director of the Missouri Department of Conservation and the staff director of the Clean Water Commission. With Senate approval, the governor appoints four public members. Only one member of the commission may have a direct link with the mining industry. The Department of Natural Resources' Land Reclamation Program carries out the policies of the Missouri Land Reclamation Commission and provides the staffing necessary to regulate the state's mining industry.

The Land Reclamation Commission and program are responsible for the issuance of strip mining permits related to the mining of coal, limestone, sand, gravel, clay, tar sands, barite, sandstone, granite and traprock. As part of the permitting process mining companies must provide financial assurances to the Land Reclamation Program that provide for reclamation should the company not be able to complete this activity. After the mining company completes all required reclamation, the commission releases these financial assurances and relieves the companies of any further reclamation liabilities. The commission decides when public hearings are necessary. Hearings may be granted with respect to a proposed mining permit or when enforcement of a mining permit becomes necessary.

The commission also oversees Missouri's Abandoned Mine Land program. This program provides for the reclamation of abandoned coal mine sites within Missouri that include safety hazards such as steep and unstable highwalls and embankments, open mine shafts, abandoned mining equipment and facilities, dangerous impoundments, unsanitary trash dumps and subsidence. Eligible environmental problems consist of acid mine drainage and sedimentation that pollute and clog streams. Finally, Missouri's abandoned mine land emergency program allows the Land Reclamation Program to abate or control emergency situations in which adverse effects of past coal mining pose an immediate danger to the public.

Safe Drinking Water Commission

The Safe Drinking Water Commission is a nine-member commission appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. It adopts rules and regulations to ensure that safe drinking water is dispensed by Missouri's public water systems.

Supervising the design, construction, operation and maintenance of public water supply systems is the responsibility of the public drinking water program. Technical assistance on water-supply problems related to cities, water districts, subdivisions, mobile home parks and other facilities is provided. The program also offers training for public water supply operators.

The public drinking water program requires monitoring of contaminants in public water systems and provides assistance in data interpretation and data management.

The Safe Drinking Water Commission, in cooperation with the Clean Water Commission and the Environmental Improvement and Energy Resources Improvement and Energy Resources Authority, administers the drinking water state revolving fund, which makes federal and state loan funds available to communities to upgrade and improve their drinking water systems.

Soil and Water Districts Program and Commission

The Missouri Soil and Water Districts Commission determines the policies and programs to conserve Missouri's soil and water resources. The soil and water conservation program handles the day-to-day administration of the commission's programs.

The commission is responsible for the soils portion of the parks-and-soils sales tax. The soil and water conservation districts promote good farming practices that reduce soil erosion and sedimentation of water in Missouri. The primary responsibility of the program is to assist districts as they promote soil and water conservation to their constituents. The districts provide financial incentives and technical assistance to agricultural landowners as well as educate their communities through field days, tours and programs in schools.

Other program activities include encouraging concentrated land treatment in special watershed areas, accelerating a statewide soil survey, administering statewide cost-share and loan-interest share programs and providing educational programs. The program also provides direct assistance to the 114 districts through grants and training.

Ten commission members, six of whom are farmers appointed by the governor, serve on the Soil and Water Districts Commission. The directors of the departments of Natural Resources, Agriculture and Conservation and the dean of the University of Missouri–Columbia's College of Agriculture are ex-officio members.

Solid waste management program

The solid waste management program works to help Missourians and Missouri businesses properly manage their solid waste to protect public health and the environment.

The solid waste management program issues permits and permit modifications for solid waste disposal and processing facilities. Staff reviews proposed permits for facility design, construction, operations and proper monitoring controls. Department staff inspects permitted facilities quarterly and oversees the operations of these facilities to ensure that they comply with these permit conditions and do not have a negative impact on human health and the environment. In addition, staff investigates reports of illegal dumping across the state. Enforcement activities are conducted when necessary to ensure proper solid waste management. Program staff teaches state regulations to landfill operators. Other focuses of the program include planning, financial and technical assistance and educational activities that inform the public of the relationship between individual consumption and solid waste management.

Passage of Missouri's Solid Waste Omnibus Law in 1990 created the Solid Waste Advisory Board. The membership of this board today consists of the chair of the executive board of each of Missouri's 20 recognized solid waste management districts, three citizen members and two representatives from the solid waste industry appointed by the director of the Missouri Department of Natural Resources.

The Solid Waste Advisory Board advises the department about the effectiveness of the department's technical assistance programs, problems experienced by the solid waste management districts in developing and implementing solid waste management plans, the effect proposed rules and regulations will have upon districts, criteria for awarding grants available from the solid waste management fund, solid waste management issues pertinent to the districts, the development of solid waste disposal alternatives, and other issues as they arise.

Water Pollution Control Program and Clean Water Commission

The Clean Water Commission, through its water pollution control program, regulates pollutants entering the state's waters by issuing operating permits for the construction and operation of wastewater discharges. In addition, the program monitors statewide water quality conditions through stream and lake sampling and other means.

The basic functions of the program are planning, permit issuance, compliance monitoring, financial and technical assistance and enforcement.

Planning activities establish water quality standards, identify water-pollution problems, develop solutions and help implement those solutions.

Permits set wastewater treatment levels necessary to protect water quality. These treatment levels are contained as conditions in permits issued to municipal, industrial and other dischargers.

The program evaluates discharge-monitoring data and permits, performs inspections and investigations to determine whether facilities are in compliance with applicable laws and regulations.

In addition to municipal, industrial and other point-source discharges, the water pollution control program provides financial and technical assistance for the control of nonpoint pollution caused by agriculture, mining, transportation and other activities.

Technical assistance program

The Technical Assistance Program provides information and assistance to business owners, farmers, local governments and the general public on how to control or reduce pollution. The program also provides environmental education services for teachers and coordinates training and certification of operators of drinking water, wastewater and concentrated animal feeding operation treatment facilities. The program operates an environmental information service. The toll-free number (800-361-4827) provides the public with information about Missouri's environmental quality. Environmental publications are available through the information service. The program supports the Small Business Compliance Advisory Committee, which evaluates the effects of environmental requirements on small business.

Division of Geology and Land Survey

Telephone: (573) 368-2100 / FAX: (573) 368-2111

The Division of Geology and Land Survey has responsibility for Missouri's land, water and mineral resources and their protection, potential use and development. The division restores land survey monuments, provides survey data, protects groundwater supplies, defines hazardous areas such as those subject to earthquake or catastrophic collapse and protects the public by assuring the construction of safe dams.

The results of studies conducted by the division are available to the public through published reports, maps and other documents. Professional staff members conduct seminars, workshops and field trips. They are also available to assist in solving a wide variety of geological, water resource, dam safety and land surveying problems.

The division administers a cooperative program with the U.S. Geological Survey to obtain certain types of water resource information and make it available to the public. It also coordinates with the U.S. Geological Survey on the National Cooperative Geologic Mapping Program, a national effort to complete geologic maps for all states at a 1 : 24,000 scale.

Other responsibilities of the division include work carried out under contract with funding through grants and fees. A number of activities relating to oil and gas, geological studies of waste sites, spill responses, land survey work and enforcement of well drilling are funded through agreements with other agencies or supported by fees. A geographic information system, operated within the division, provides information on water resources, geology, mineral resources and geologic hazards.

Administration and Support Program

The administration and support program ensures a consistent department approach to meeting the issues, goals, objectives and strategies that have been established for the Division of Geology and Land Survey. Overall policy decisions, fiscal direction, personnel and other support services are provided to the four functional programs of the division.

An important function of the division is to make available to both public and private sectors technical and educational information developed by the division. Information is distributed in the form of maps, brochures, open-file reports, publications, fact sheets, the internet, CD's and teaching aides. Topics include geology, water and mineral resources, land surveying standards, dam safety regulations and guidelines, well installation rules and regulation and the State Water Plan.

A Geographic Information System (GIS) unit is assigned to the Administration and Support Program with the responsibility of developing GIS capabilities to be integrated into division and department activities. The computer system is designed to help the division manage map and descriptive data. Current applications include water supply protection, geologic maps, wetlands inventory, engineering site evaluations, geologic hazards, abandoned mine land locations and mineral resources.

Division Director and State Geologist

The division director serves as the state geologist and is responsible for assuring that statutory obligations are met. The state geologist is the administrator of the Missouri State Oil and Gas Council and a member of the Land Reclamation Commission, the Well Installation Board, the Missouri Boundary Commission and the Geologist Registration Board. General direction of the division's geological survey program, land survey program, water resources program and dam and reservoir safety program are among the director's primary duties.

Geological Survey Program

The Geological Survey Program assists the citizens of Missouri by using geologic data to manage land and water resources in an environmentally responsible manner.

Geological survey work formally began in 1853. The mission of the early survey was structured to assist in the early development of Missouri. More recent years offer additional challenges. Modern geologists must address a wider range of complex issues. Environmental geology has been a crucial part of the program for the last 40 years. Regulatory aspects played only a minor role in society during the earlier years; today, regulations are an important consideration. To meet today's geologic challenges and responsibilities, the geological survey program is organized into sections that include geologic mapping, mineral resources, environmental geology, wellhead protection and geotechnical services.

The work of the geologic mapping and mineral resources sections fulfills the traditional role by collecting and providing basic geologic data. The demand for geologic maps in the assessment of public-oriented projects such as waste disposal, geologic hazards and groundwater resources is increasingly important in answering the concerns of the public. Accurate, reliable maps showing surficial material and bedrock distribution, composition and thickness are a vital part of resource management and environmental protection. Such work is essential in identifying geologic hazards. The state also has a diversified mineral industry. Its mineral value ranks eighth to tenth in the nation. It is important that citizens of Missouri have knowledge of their mineral resources to make responsible decisions.

The environmental geology section conducts geologic field investigations that provide technical assistance to the public and government agencies. These services include determining the environmental hazards such as those posed by waste disposal practices and spills of hazardous materials. The emphasis is on developing solutions to environmental problems with ongoing statewide investigations. This includes on-site investigations of liquid and solid waste disposal and providing technical support in controlling disposal and remediating releases or spills.

The wellhead protection section is regulatory in nature and works to protect Missouri's valuable supply of fresh groundwater from pollution so that all Missourians can utilize and enjoy the resources. This is done through the implementation of the Well Driller's and Oil and Gas Acts and the Underground Injection Control Regulations of the Safe Drinking Water Act. Working with industry and the public, construction standards are set. Wellhead section work includes protection against groundwater contamination by ensuring that wells are constructed properly and that abandoned wells are plugged. The section issues permits to pump installers and the drillers of water, monitoring, mineral exploration and heat pump wells. Field checks are made to resolve problems. Technical advice is also provided to well owners and drillers. The staff is supported by the Well Installation Board, which is the board created by the Well Drillers Act.

The oil and gas/underground injection control unit protects groundwater resources from improper injection of fluids into the subsurface. To accomplish this task, the unit issues permits for wells that meet construction standards, conducts periodic inspection of facilities, provides information on proper injection procedures and assists in the orderly development of oil and gas resources. The staff is supported by the Oil and Gas Council that acts as a regulatory authority.

ANNETTA ST. CLAIR
Member
Well Installation Board

The geochemical and technical support services perform a broad array of technical assistance including management of the McCracken Core Library. The library holds 2.6 million feet of core and the sample laboratory for the preparation, storage and evaluation of insoluble residue samples and drill cuttings.

Oil and Gas Council

The Oil and Gas Council participates in the regulation and use of Missouri's oil and gas resources by regulating drilling, spacing, production and the plugging of oil and gas wells. Members are Lenn Koederitz, chair, Rolla; Sheila Lumpe, Public Service Commission, Jefferson City; Phil Tate, Department of Economic Development, Jefferson City; George Fauvergue, Joplin; Scott Totten, interim staff director, Clean Water Commission, Jefferson City; William J. Luebbert, Jefferson City; and Mimi Garstang, administrator of the council, Division of Geology and Land Survey. The division provides technical, administrative and enforcement support.

Well Installation Board

This board, appointed by the governor, consists of four drillers; the director of the Division of Geology and Land Survey, representing the director of the Department of Natural Resources; and four public members. The board participates in the development of rules and regulations to protect groundwater resources and acts as an appeal board in enforcement matters.

Board members include Robert Lawrence, chair, Steele; Fred Schoen, vice chair, Monett; Stanley Cowan, Jefferson City; Patricia Nichols, St. Louis; Greg Evans, Crane; Martha Hildebrandt, Kansas City; Sharlene Morgan, Rolla; Annetta St. Clair, Joplin; and Mimi Garstang, director, Division of Geology and Land Survey.

Land Survey Program

The division's land survey program provides information and resources for the economical and accurate location of all private and public boundaries in the state. The program is responsible for the restoration and preservation of corner markers set by the original U.S. Public Land Survey, the maintenance of a records storage and retrieval system for all land survey records, the development of regulations for uniform professional surveying standards, the extension of horizontal and vertical control so that the State Coordinate System may be used and the restoration of state and county boundary markers. Additional statewide work also includes geodetic survey networks.

The land survey program maintains a current registry of all U.S. Public Land Survey corners. Staff surveyors reestablish and restore the U.S. Public Land Survey corners, conduct surveys to document and maintain state and county boundaries and provide standards for restoration and reestablishment of original U.S. Public Land Survey corners. The staff also oversees contract work by private land survey firms and county land surveyors in support of the land survey mission.

The program provides technical assistance to the public, professionals and certain state agencies. Staff investigates surveys and corners that conflict and provides property-boundary survey standards.

The land survey records program maintains current microfilm records and indexes of all county land survey documents and indexes of all land survey records received or created by the land survey program. The staff maintains the original notes and plats and the microfilm records and indexes of the original U.S. Public Land Survey documents. The program also distributes copies of land survey documents to the public.

The State Coordinate System provides horizontal and vertical control standards and designs and executes vertical and horizontal control surveys. The staff reviews all horizontal control networks for local government and provides first and second order horizontal and vertical control data to the public.

Land Survey Advisory Committee

The land survey advisory committee is appointed by the director of the Missouri Department of Natural Resources. It has five members and advises the department director on program planning and prioritization.

Members of the Land Survey Advisory Committee are Troy Hayes, chair, St. Joseph; Ralph Riggs, West Plains; Tim Ryan, Kansas City; Gaylon Smith, Springfield; and Karen Brown, Columbia.

Dam and Reservoir Safety Program

The dam and reservoir safety program, through the Dam and Reservoir Safety Council, is responsible for ensuring that all new and existing non-agricultural, non-federal dams 35 feet or more in height meet minimum safety standards. The program staff reviews engineering plans and specifications; conducts hydrologic, hydraulic and structural analysis of dams; monitors construction of new dams and modification of existing dams; performs safety inspections of existing dams; and responds to dam safety emergencies.

The basic functions of the program are inspections, permit issuance, compliance and review and data management.

The program's permit activity involves the issuance of construction, registration and safety permits. Safety standards set by the Dam and Reservoir Safety Council must be met before permits are issued. Registration and safety permits require implementation of operation and maintenance plans.

Data management includes maintaining data on more than 4,000 dams for use by emergency management officials, private owners, professional engineers, mining companies, educational institutions, other government agencies and the general public.

Water Resources Program

The water resources program responsibilities are defined in the water resource law, which addresses the development, conservation and utilization of the state's water resources. The program provides technical assistance in groundwater and surface water resource hydrology, planning and water use records to assist state agencies and communities in meeting their water-related needs. Functional units of the program include river basin planning and policy, groundwater, surface water, water use economics, wetland conservation, source water protection and the state water plan.

The river basin planning and policy staff coordinate issues relating to major river basins that affect Missouri. They participate in the activities of the Missouri Basin States Association, the Upper Mississippi River Basin Association, the Arkansas-White-Red Basins Inter-Agency Committee, the Mississippi River Commission and the Lower Mississippi River Conservation Committee.

The program is a major participant in providing technical support and data concerning major river basins. A division representative also acts as the department's spokesperson for much of the major river basin work.

ZORETTA SCHOONOVER
Member, Dam and Reservoir
Safety Council

Determining the availability of groundwater and protecting the quality of groundwater supplies are the primary responsibilities of the groundwater unit. Geologists and hydrologists respond to inquiries from the public concerning water quality and quantity, spring systems, groundwater recharge, caves and cave systems and aquifer characteristics. The unit cooperates with the U.S. Geological Survey in processing and publishing water level and flood data from the state's observation well and stream gauging network. Technical support is provided in surface water such as reviewing projects and reports for hydropower, water supply, flood protection, in-stream flow and drought planning and response.

The program provides technical leadership to the Climate and Weather Committee of the Statewide Drought Assessment Committee. The Drought Assessment Committee was activated during the 1999–2000 drought and can be reactivated at any time by the governor.

The Major Water User's work includes data gathering and working with all water users who have a daily capacity to pump 100,000 gallons or more from any source. The economic value of water as it relates to existing and potential uses is of long-term interest to the users of water.

The water resources staff developed the State Wetlands Conservation Plan. The unit also provides technical assistance to others involved with wetlands.

State Water Plan staff coordinate the development of the state water plan, a long-range, comprehensive statewide program concerning the use and availability of the state's surface and groundwater resources. This includes existing and future needs for drinking water, agriculture, industry, recreation, environmental protection and related needs. Program staff coordinate with state and federal agencies and private sector organizations and ensure public participation in the development and revision of the state water plan.

Division of Administrative Support

Telephone: (573) 751-3016 / FAX: (573) 751-7749

The Division of Administrative Support provides the Department of Natural Resources administrative and management support. Budget development, internal audit, accounting, human resources, electronic data processing, procurement, grants management, general services and public information are functions performed by the division.

The Budget Program is responsible for developing the department's annual operating and capital improvements budgets and the preparation of management and legislative reports.

The Internal Audit Program audits departmental activities to evaluate internal controls and compliance with laws, regulations and policies. Additionally, the efficiency and effectiveness of an entity in meeting the organization's goals and objectives is reviewed. The audits result in reports to management containing recommendations for improving the entity's compliance and efficiency of operations. Management is also apprised of suggestions for removing unnecessary risks.

GARY W. HEIMERICKS
Director, Division of Administrative Support

The Accounting Program has several major functions: purchasing and fixed assets, systems and procedure development, and maintenance; grant, project and fund accounting, reporting and monitoring; grant and fund fiscal management receipt processing and special projects and analyses.

The program reviews proposed policies, regulations and legislation to determine fiscal or procedural impacts on the department. Recommendations are made based on the impacts determined. Procedures are developed to implement the approved policies, regulations and legislation.

This program is also responsible for paying the department's expense and equipment and Program Specific Distribution obligations.

The Human Resources Program is responsible for administering the human resources function for the department. This program provides assistance to all divisions in the area of human resources administration, position classification, implements the provisions of the State Personnel Law, interprets employee benefits, conducts personnel research, coordinates training and provides career counseling, and maintains personnel records for all employees of the department.

The Management Information Services Program is responsible for coordinating and implementing data processing activities in the Department of Natural Resources. The coordination performed by the program provides a comprehensive capability to enter, store and process management information relevant to the development and conservation of natural resources in Missouri. The program is responsible for departmental database coordination, development and maintenance of all mainframe applications as well as oversight of microcomputer applications. The program is responsible for all hardware and software acquisitions and provides hardware maintenance to the department. The program also provides for development and management of a departmental data communication network. This includes e-mail, local and remote office data sharing and State Data Center communications.

The General Services Program is responsible for maintenance and operation of the agency's motor pool. Additional responsibilities include maintenance and operation of a centralized mailroom and supply center, surplus of departmental property and coordination of telecommunications. The program acts as liaison with the Office of Administration, Division of Design and Construction.

The Public Information Program provides graphics, editing, writing, photographic and video support for the department. The program develops, produces and disseminates brochures, posters and fliers, the department's annual report and strategic plan and printed materials for major outreach events such as the State Fair and Earth Day. In addition, the program also publishes the department's award winning quarterly magazine, Missouri Resources.

Division of State Parks

This division acquires, develops and manages state parks and historic sites. Outdoor recreation assistance to local communities and statewide outdoor recreation planning are also offered.

In addition to providing Missourians with recreational opportunities, this division preserves natural and historically significant resources. The division is funded primarily through the parks and soils sales tax, which was approved by voters in 1984, 1988 and 1996.

State parks and historic sites

Acquiring, protecting, developing and interpreting a well-balanced system of areas of outstanding scenic, recreational and historic importance is a function of the Division of State Parks. The diverse recreational opportunities, running from wilderness areas to trout parks, attract millions of visitors each year. The division administers 82 sites totaling more than 137,000 acres.

State parks offer outstanding natural features and valuable recreation opportunities. They are developed to provide activities such as camping, picnicking, swimming, boating, fishing and hiking. Through the naturalist program, 14 state parks interpret significant, natural phenomena.

State historic sites commemorate events or structures of statewide historical importance and honor persons of state and national importance. Development of these historic sites is oriented toward restoration. Interpretation by signs, tour guides, booklets or museum exhibits is offered.

DOUGLAS EIKEN, Ph.D.
Director
Division of State Parks

Missouri State Park Advisory Board

The board was created in 1986 to advise the department on matters relating to state parks and historic sites. The board, appointed by the governor, is composed of Emily R. Firebaugh, chair, Farmington; Ann Massey, vice chair, Holts Summit; Ed Stegner, Pilot Grove; Terry J. Satterlee, Kansas City; Andrew P. Wood, Neosho; John R. Weber Sr., St. Louis; H. William McIntosh, Kansas City; and Odell E. McGowan, Creve Coeur.

Grant Management

The Division of State Parks is responsible for administering several grant programs that provide financial assistance from both federal and state funds to individuals, groups and public entities for a variety of purposes.

The division administers funds from the Recreational Trails Program, which provides federal money for the development of trails. The Missouri Trails Advisory Board makes recommendations on grant awards and policy issues for the grant program. This advisory board is made up of representatives of trail user groups, including those for motorized trails, walking trails, bicycle trails and trails accessible by persons with disabilities.

The Landmark Local Parks Program is funded by the state's general revenue and provides assistance to local and county governments for acquisition, development and renovation projects related to outdoor recreation. The grants are awarded through the State Inter-Agency Council for Outdoor Recreation (SIACOR). SIACOR awards and oversees grants, provides a forum for consideration of outdoor recreation problems in the state and provides advice regarding problem solving and planning. Division staff provides administrative services to SIACOR; notifies the public regarding availability of grant funds; evaluates grant proposals; makes recommendations regarding funding to SIACOR; administers projects through acquisition, construction and reimbursement phases; and performs follow-up inspections to assure compliance.

SIACOR members include the commissioner of the Office of Administration; a representative from the University of Missouri; and directors of the Departments of Natural Resources, Agriculture, Conservation, Economic Development, Transportation and Social Services. The director of the Department of Natural Resources serves as council chair.

The division also administers and monitors projects funded through the federal Land and Water Conservation Fund program, which provided federal funds to local outdoor recreation projects. In addition to administering grants, the division develops the Statewide Comprehensive Outdoor Recreation Plan.

Historic preservation program

The state's official historic preservation program is administered by the Missouri State Historic Preservation Office (SHPO).

As the authorized SHPO, the program is eligible for an annual allocation of federal Historic Preservation Fund monies through the U.S. Department of the Interior's National Park Service. The program allocates these funds to help identify, evaluate and protect Missouri's cultural resources.

The program coordinates surveys statewide to identify historic, architectural and archaeological resources. The most significant properties identified in the surveys are nominated to the National Register of Historic Places, the federal list of properties deemed worthy of recognition and preservation. Missouri has more than 1,100 listings on the National Register, including more than 13,000 individual properties. Information gathered in the survey and nomination process is maintained in a comprehensive database, the Missouri Cultural Resource Inventory.

The program administers Missouri's Historic Preservation Revolving Fund, a state fund that allows the department to help preserve endangered historic buildings. The program also administers federal matching grants for preserving cultural resources. The program reviews all federally funded or assisted projects to ensure compliance with related federal legislation.

Since 1986, federal tax incentives and related legislation have promoted interest in rehabilitating historic buildings. In 1998, that interest was augmented and revitalized with the authorization of state tax credits. The federal tax credits are only available to private investors who rehabilitate historic buildings for income-producing uses, such as office buildings and apartments. The state tax credits may be used in combination with federal credits for rehabilitation on income-producing property, or the state credits may also be used for the rehabilitation of non-income producing residential properties. The state tax credits are administered by the Community Development Division of the Missouri Department of Economic Development. The Historic Preservation Program reviews both federal and state tax credit applications for conformity with preservation guidelines and standards.

The SHPO administers federal matching grants and trains municipalities in local preservation through Missouri's certified local government program. The office also works with the Missouri Department of Economic Development under the Missouri Main Street program to develop and carry out a statewide preservation program as a tool for economic development.

Advisory Council on Historic Preservation

The Advisory Council on Historic Preservation reviews all Missouri nominations to the National Register of Historic Places. The council advises the department director, the state's historic preservation officer, on historic preservation needs and issues.

Council members are William Foley, Ph.D., chair, Warrensburg; Robert Wieggers, Ph.D., vice chair, Fayette; Jeannine Cook, secretary, St. Louis; Timothy Baumann, St. Louis; Linda Becker, Kansas City; Doris Danna, St. Louis; Harold Edwards, Columbia; Gerri Friedman, Labadie; Bruce Hensley, Milan; Antonio Holland, Ph.D. Columbia; Irene Treppler, St. Louis; and Alcibiades Tsolakis, Springfield.

Unmarked Human Burial Consultation Committee

The Unmarked Human Burial Consultation Committee was established under provisions of Missouri's Unmarked Human Burial Act, which governs the disposition of unmarked human burial remains uncovered during ground-disturbing activities.

Appointed by the governor, the seven-member committee, which includes an archaeologist, an anthropologist and representatives of minority and Native American groups, makes final decisions as to the respectful treatment and appropriate reburial of all recovered human remains.

Thomas Hart Benton Homestead Memorial Commission

The Kansas City home of the late artist Thomas Hart Benton is a historic site administered by the Division of State Parks.

Commissioners were selected for their personal knowledge of and friendship with Thomas Hart Benton, so as to be able to advise the department on the accurate restoration of his home, and the development of an interpretive program for visitors. The commission accomplished its original mission.

Mission

Established in 1974, the Department of Public Safety is responsible for coordinating statewide law enforcement, criminal justice and public safety efforts for the purpose of ensuring a safe environment for Missouri citizens. The department's mission "will provide a safe and secure environment for all individuals, through efficient and effective law enforcement, national defense, disaster preparedness, service to veterans and education."

The department is organized into 11 separate functional agencies: Office of the Director, Missouri Capitol Police, Division of Fire Safety, Division of Highway Safety, Division of Liquor Control, Missouri State Highway Patrol, Missouri State Water Patrol, Missouri National Guard (Office of the Adjutant General), State Emergency Management Agency, Missouri Veterans Commission and the Missouri Gaming Commission.

Office of the Director

The Director of Public Safety is appointed to this cabinet-level position by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. The director is responsible for developing public safety programs, peace officer training and certification and providing legislative guidance on criminal justice issues. Additionally, the director is responsible for overseeing distribution of state and federal resources and funds in contracts for narcotics control, victims' assistance, crime prevention and juvenile justice. As the department's central management unit, the director's office coordinates departmental budget, personnel, legislative matters and related financial and administrative activities. The director's office is also responsible for the administration of specific programs conferred upon it by the Legislature or governor. These programs are:

- Administration of federal Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act (JJDP) funds, Delinquency and Youth Violence Prevention (Title V) funds and Juvenile Accountability Incentive Block Grant (JAIBG) funds from the U.S. Department of Justice for projects to improve juvenile justice in Missouri and provide staff support for the state Juvenile Justice Advisory Group (JJAG).

- Administration of federal Narcotics Control Assistance Program (NCAP) funds from the U.S. Department of Justice, Edward Byrne Memorial State & Local Law Enforcement Block Grant Program for state and local projects in the area of drug enforcement, crime control and community policing.

- Administration of federal Local Law Enforcement Block Grant (LLEBG) funds from the U.S. Department of Justice for projects to assist local law enforcement agencies in crime and violence control.

- Administration of federal Victims of Crime Act (VOCA); federal STOP Violence Against Women Act (VAWA); State Services to Victims Fund (SSVF); funds that provide funds to local service providers, law enforcement agencies, prosecutors and other public and private non-profit agencies to assist crime victims in Missouri.

- Administration of the Domestic Violence Shelter Tax Credit Program, which provides state income tax credits to businesses and individuals who contribute at least $100 to shelters for victims of domestic violence in Missouri.

- Administration of state Local Government/School District Partnership Program funds for projects which seek to reduce the incidence of crime and violence in Missouri schools.

- Administration of the Peace Officer Standards and Training (POST) Program, which deals with the certification of peace officers who have received training specified by Chapter 590, RSMo and provide staff support for the Peace Officer Standards and Training (POST) Commission.

- Investigation of inmate grievances within the state prison system and coordination of the Citizen's Advisory Committee on Corrections, as provided under Executive Order 86-27.

Since 1983, Missouri Capitol Police has been the primary law enforcement agency for the 72-acre state office building campus known as the Capitol Complex. Within that area are located the State Capitol Building, Jefferson Building, Transportation Building, Supreme Court, James C. Kirkpatrick State Information Center, Broadway Building, Truman Building, Social Services Electronic Data Processing Building, State Health Laboratory, Governor's Mansion, Jefferson Landing historic site, associated parking facilities and grounds. In recent years, Capitol Police has expanded their services to include state agencies and facilities that have moved from the Capitol Complex to other areas in Jefferson City. Capitol Police has statute authority on all state owned/leased property in Cole County. Capitol Police oversee a computerized, centrally-monitored, fire/life safety/after-hours entry control system in the Capitol Complex buildings. Closed circuit television monitoring in strategic locations and automatic ring-down emergency telephones have been among several security improvements added since 1983.

Field Operations

Missouri Capitol Police officers patrol the buildings and grounds in their jurisdiction, 24-hours a day, seven days a week. Patrols are made on foot, by vehicle, and on bicycle. Criminal investigations, medical emergencies, traffic accidents, security and fire alarms, and security escorts are only a few of the many incidents and calls for service that officers provide to over 15,000 state employees and over 200,000 annual visitors to the seat of government.

Executive Protection

A team of specially trained and certified police officers are assigned on a full-time basis to the Missouri Governor's Mansion. Officers on this team provide residential security for the state's first family 24-hours a day. A stand-alone fire and security system with redundant monitoring at the Capitol Police communications office is complemented by a closed circuit television monitoring system used for the security and safety at the house and the grounds. Training has been provided for these officers by the U.S. Secret Service, Pennsylvania State Police and other executive protection agencies.

Communications Operations

Capitol Police Communications and Command Center is a point of contact for those who need police services in the Capitol Complex 24-hours a day, seven days a week. Communications operators utilize computer terminals that interface with the Missouri Uniform Law Enforcement System (MULES), the National Crime Information Center (NCIC), the Missouri Department of Revenue Motor Vehicle and Operator files, and other information systems. In addition to radio and telephone communications with the public and other agencies, communications operators are responsible for management of a fire/life safety monitoring system which includes fire, intrusion and "panic" alarms; after-hours building access for most Complex facilities; and collection of weather-related information for implementation and dissemination of the State Employee's Hazardous Travel Policy.

Special Services

Capitol Police members provide specialized training and services on request. Special investigations involving suspected criminal conduct, site security surveys and programs covering personal safety and other safety-related issues have been provided at several sites in Jefferson City and other locations throughout the state.

Missouri Division of Fire Safety

The Missouri State Fire Marshal's office was established by the 76th Missouri General Assembly in 1973. Effective September 1985 through legislation reorganization, the office was renamed the Division of Fire Safety and was housed within the Missouri Department of Public Safety.

The mission of the Division of Fire Safety is to provide proper training and certification to fire fighters and emergency response personnel throughout the state. This in-depth training assures that Missouri citizens will receive services from highly qualified professionals. In addition, the division is charged with oversight and enforcement of other programs to maintain the safety and well-being of the general public. Responsibilities include providing fire safety standards for all day care centers licensed by the state; investigating all suspicious fires in the state for cause and origin as provided by law; regulating the use and sales of fireworks; training of hazardous materials to local fire departments and mutual aid services, especially in response to large-scale emergencies; inspecting and licensing of nonexempt boilers and pressure vessels in Missouri; and overseeing the Elevator Safety Act and Amusement Ride Safety Act.

Fire Service Training

The Division of Fire Safety's Training Unit is responsible for the training and certification of over 25,000 fire fighters in the State of Missouri. In addition, the Training Unit's customers include representatives from law enforcement, private industry, emergency response personnel, and other state agencies. Since the implementation of the certification program in 1986, and as a result of HB 230 in 1992, the division has trained and tested over 18,000 individuals, while offering fourteen different courses and fourteen levels of certification.

In addition, this unit of the division is responsible for recording state fire incident reports and compiling information on fire losses throughout Missouri.

Fire Inspection

Currently, the Division of Fire Safety's Inspection Unit consists of two Regional Chief Inspectors and twelve fire inspectors located in various areas of the state.

The unit is responsible for conducting fire safety inspections at childcare facilities licensed by state agencies including the Department of Health and Division of Family Services. Other licensed facilities that require similar fire safety inspections include alcohol/drug treatment programs, residential programs for the Department of Mental Health and senior centers for the Division of Aging.

In 2000, division inspectors conducted approximately 12,500 fire safety inspections, ensuring the safety of occupants.

The Inspection Unit also plays an active role in the inspection/enforcement of licensed fire-works operators throughout the state.

Fire Investigation

The Fire Investigation Unit consists of a Deputy Chief, two Regional Chiefs and 18 field investigators located throughout the state. This unit is contacted by law enforcement and fire departments to assist in the investigation of any fire, explosion or related offense. The unit presently has three K-9 accelerant detection dogs to assist with investigations, which have proved to be a vital tool in combating the crime of arson throughout the state. In 1997, the unit was provided with two explosive detection canines that assist with bomb investigations and bomb threats. In 2000, 1,822 fire investigations were conducted. The Investigation Unit has saved insurance companies over $25 million annually in claims, with a criminal arrest rate of approximately 33 percent.

Fireworks

The Division of Fire Safety's Fire Investigation Unit enforces the fireworks safety laws. Each year, several hundred pounds of illegal fireworks are confiscated and destroyed, resulting in both state and federal criminal charges. During the 2000 fireworks season alone, approximately 2,500 pounds of illegal or improperly marked fireworks were confiscated and disposed of. Complaints from citizens are received informing of possible violations, which result in on-site inspections of the fireworks business. Any violations found result in the closing of such business pending further investigation. During the regular selling seasons, fireworks stands are inspected by investigators and inspectors for safety violations as well as proper permits and products.

Public Education

The Division of Fire Safety participates in local and regional activities by providing fire prevention education and assists local agencies with fire safety instruction.

In 1997, the Division of Fire Safety was selected by NFPA to receive the "Learn Not To Burn Champion Award". Learn Not To Burn is a fire education curriculum geared toward K-3 grade students, teaching vital fire safety habits and facts. The Division of Fire Safety offers train-the-trainer workshops throughout the state.

Boiler and Pressure Vessel Rules

Effective November 12, 1986, the division began enforcement of periodic inspections of boilers, including many hot water heaters and pressure vessels located in Missouri. All new installations or reinstallation and repair of used boilers and pressure vessels are required to meet the ASME Code and be registered with the National Board or receive a variance from the Boiler and Pressure Vessel Unit prior to operation. Objects that were in operation prior to November 12, 1986, may be grandfathered but still require periodic inspections. A certificate inspection is required every one or two years, depending on the type of object. Accidents to objects are investigated by the boiler and pressure vessel unit with repairs to be made by a national board "R" stamp holder.

Amusement Ride Safety Act

In 1997, the 89th General Assembly enacted House Bill 276 relating to amusement ride safety.

This legislation places certain requirements upon amusement ride owners/operators when a death or serious physical injury occurs as a result of the operation of an amusement ride. If an injury or death occurs under the purview of the statute, the Division of Fire Safety initiates an investigation into the cause of the accident.

The legislation also places certain restrictions on the rider of an amusement ride. A violation of any restriction may result in criminal prosecution.

During the 2000 Legislative Session, the Amusement Ride Safety Act was revised to require annual safety inspectors on all amusement rides and for those rides to obtain state operating permits before being operated in the state. Also included in this legislation was the appointment of nine individuals representing the amusement ride industry, to an Amusement Ride Safety Board.

In 1994, the 86th General Assembly enacted House Bill 1035 creating the Elevator Safety Act.

This act established an Elevator Safety Board to develop and adopt a code of rules and regulations relating to the construction, maintenance, testing and inspection of all elevators and similar devices.

The legislation requires periodic safety inspections of every elevator and similar devices as specified in the statute. Upon an approved inspection, an operating certificate is issued.

Reducing deaths, injuries, and property damage caused by traffic crashes is the mission of the Missouri Division of Highway Safety, which was created as a result of the National Highway Safety Act of 1966. To achieve this mission, the division provides resources and technical information to law enforcement agencies and safety advocates throughout the state. Federal Section 402 funding (from the U.S. Department of Transportation, National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and Federal Highway Administration) has supported traffic safety efforts in Missouri since inception of the program.

Despite the increased number of licensed drivers in the state and the rise in the number of miles driven per year, the death rate from motor vehicle crashes continues to decline. The division concentrates its efforts in three areas that are proven effective in preventing deaths and injuries from motor vehicle crashes: education, enforcement and engineering. The lives saved and the injuries prevented save Missouri's taxpayers millions of dollars.

The division's education efforts are ongoing. Materials, such as brochures for adults and stickers and coloring books for children, are available to the public at no cost. The division also provides instruction guides parents can use to teach their teenagers to drive a vehicle safely and responsibly. Especially when new research is released, the division strives to disseminate the findings to the public quickly. In 2000, the division launched an innovative and highly successful billboard and radio campaign to promote seat belt usage. Most importantly, the division responds to public comments and suggestions, and attempts to provide materials that are both useful and informative.

The division can be reached via its convenient toll free phone number, traditional mail service, and its internet web site.

Public information and education efforts must be combined with enforcement of existing traffic laws in order to be effective. For this reason, Highway Safety provides funding and technical assistance via law enforcement grants awarded to agencies throughout the state. These grants target locations where traffic fatalities and injuries are disproportionately high. Everything from traffic enforcement equipment to overtime enforcement to local educational programs is provided through these grants. Many staples of traffic safety education at the local level, such as Project Graduation, began as grant programs through Highway Safety. Additionally, the grant process encourages cooperation and coalition building among law enforcement agencies. Several multi-jurisdictional projects aimed at reducing the incidences of unsafe driving behaviors began as projects supported by grants from the division.

Sometimes traffic problems cannot be addressed through education or enforcement. When this is the case, engineering services are utilized. Through grants with the Missouri Department of Transportation, traffic experts examine traffic flow, signage and construction to determine whether improvements are needed. Local governments are provided with a professional assessment to assist them in making these improvements. Without assistance from Highway Safety, many local governments would not be able to make needed improvements to their roadways.

Highway Safety also provides technical expertise to the General Assembly on traffic safety legislation. The division works to keep state government officials informed of the latest developments in the field of traffic safety.

The division is also responsible for administering the federal Motor Carrier Safety Assistance Program (MCSAP) which was originally authorized by the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982. The role of the division is to provide administrative oversight to the program as well as maintaining continuity, consistency and uniformity in application and enforcement of the regulations and safety standards.

MCSAP funding—from the U.S. Department of Transportation—is used for projects related to commercial motor carrier safety. Eligible activities can include roadside driver/vehicle inspections, carrier compliance reviews, drug interdiction activities and training, commercial vehicle traffic enforcement programs, data management, hazardous materials programs, motor coach inspection programs, public information and education materials and other special projects and initiatives.

Missouri Division of Liquor Control

Truman State Office Bldg., 8th Floor

PO Box 837, Jefferson City 65102

Telephone: (573) 751-2333 / FAX: (573) 526-4540

The Division of Liquor Control was established by the Liquor Control Act in 1934 and was restructured as a division within the Department of Public Safety in 1974. The Division of Liquor Control's responsibilities are to enforce the liquor control laws under Chapters 311 and 312, RSMo, and the rules and regulations of the Supervisor of Liquor Control. The responsibilities are primarily threefold: revenue collection agency, licensing agency and enforcement agency.

The liquor control laws and the state's system of alcoholic beverage regulations are designed to ensure the public health and safety as affected by intoxicating beverages. The division supervises the state's revenue derived from the collection of excise taxes on alcoholic beverages and license fees. Additionally, state statute mandates that the division protect the consumer from tainted alcoholic products and the liquor industry from infiltration and exploitation by the criminal element.

The Division of Liquor Control is headed by the supervisor of liquor control, who is authorized to appoint and employ all agents and assistants as are necessary for the proper enforcement and administration of the Liquor Control Law and Non-intoxicating Beer Law. The Supervisor of Liquor Control has the authority under Chapters 311 and 312, RSMo to promulgate regulations, issue liquor licenses and suspend or revoke liquor licenses for liquor control law violations.

Administration, audit and collection section

The main function of the administration, audit and collection section of the Division of Liquor Control is to assure general compliance with liquor control laws requiring the supervisor to collect excise taxes on all alcoholic beverages sold in this state. This section collects approximately $25 million annually from liquor, wine and beer taxes for deposit into the general revenue fund. This is achieved by auditors regularly conducting audits of licensed manufacturers, wineries, breweries and wholesalers. Auditors also perform retail audits to determine food sales qualifications of resorts and restaurants licensed to sell intoxicating liquor by the drink on Sundays. The auditing section is also responsible for overseeing the proper enforcement of Missouri price posting systems, primary American source of supply enforcement and product testing and registration.

In addition, this section annually collects and processes $3 million in license fees, processes

22,000 license applications and issues licenses after they are approved by the enforcement section and the supervisor. This section also acts as support to all aspects of the division with record retention, fiscal processing and data processing support.

Enforcement section

The Division of Liquor Control's enforcement section consists of six districts. The enforcement section is staffed with six district supervisors, 26 special agents and 23 agents. Special agents and agents are assigned territories within the district. All special agents and agents are required to attend the basic and advanced basic law enforcement classes conducted at the Missouri State Highway Patrol Law Enforcement Academy.

The enforcement section fulfills its responsibilities of enforcing the liquor control laws by conducting routine inspections and investigations; following up on citizen complaints; taking applications for over 20,000 new or renewal licenses annually; working in a cooperative and coordinating effort with local law enforcement; and providing information to licensees concerning liquor control laws and regulations.

Badges in Business

The Division of Liquor Control, in partnership with the Division of Highway Safety, has successfully introduced an innovative enforcement program called Badges in Business. Badges in Business allows State Liquor Control Agents to periodically be present on a licensed premise at the request of the retailer. Agents assist store employees in the detection of underage patrons and false identifications. As minors enter and attempt to purchase alcoholic beverages, they are detained and taken into custody. The division has found a vast majority of underage youth attempting to purchase alcohol using fake IDs. The success of this project is largely attributable to the assistance and cooperative efforts of the Division of Highway Safety, local prosecutors, licensed retailers and local law enforcement agencies.

Educational programs

In recent years the division has taken a more proactive stance by providing industry education and law enforcement education programs. Seminars for thousands of retail servers across the state have been conducted to reduce incidences of underage drinking and the over serving of intoxicating liquors to customers. Informational pamphlets are also provided to assist liquor licensees in compliance with liquor control laws and regulations. The division provides liquor control law training to local law enforcement personnel. Training includes providing booklets that present liquor control laws and elements of making cases on various liquor control law violations.

Summary

In recent years the division has streamlined the liquor application process, modernized revenue collections and enhanced the professionalism of personnel. Greater information is provided to the public, liquor industry and local law enforcement to achieve an unprecedented level of efficiency and cost-effectiveness for Missouri citizens.

Since its inception in 1931, the Missouri State Highway Patrol has evolved from a highway patrolling force to a full service law enforcement agency with its main emphasis remaining on traffic safety. The Patrol's original force, established by the enactment of Chapter 43, RSMo, was 55 officers and a handful of civilians. Today, there are 1,082 uniformed officers, 99 of whom are assigned to the Gaming Division, and 1,056 civilians in the Missouri State Highway Patrol. The Patrol is responsible not only for law enforcement on our state's highways, but also motor vehicle and commercial vehicle inspections, driver's license examinations, criminal investigations, criminal laboratory analysis and research, public education on safety issues, and more.

The Missouri State Highway Patrol is nationally known for the success of its drug interdiction program. Because of its central location in the United States and its major interstates, Missouri has become a crossroad for the distribution of drugs. Programs such as Operation Cash Crop, the BAD WEED hotline, the methamphetamine hotline, and the drug-trained canine unit make the Patrol's drug interdiction program a success. In 2000, the Patrol's drug interdiction program resulted in the seizure of over 21,800 pounds of marijuana, 198 pounds of cocaine, and 17 pounds of methamphetamine in addition to quantities of other illegal drugs such as heroin. In 2000, 2,887 methamphetamine investigations were conducted, leading to the seizure of 589 clandestine methamphetamine laboratories.

Missouri's Automated Fingerprint Identification System (AFIS) is maintained and operated at the Patrol's Criminal Records and Identification Division. The system houses over 1,000,000 ten prints. The system allows for the comparison of a set of fingerprints to the 1,000,000+ prints on file in a matter of minutes. The system can also compare a latent fingerprint from a crime scene to the 10,000,000+ fingerprints in the system (10 fingers per person) as well as to the other unsolved latents housed in the system. AFIS has proven to be an exceptional identification tool for law enforcement agencies throughout the state in identifying and tracking criminals, identifying persons assuming another's identity, identifying persons who were at a crime scene, and identifying deceased persons found without identification.

The Missouri State Highway Patrol became a partner in the Midwestern Drugfire System in 1996. Drugfire is a computerized database that compares expended firearms cartridges allowing law enforcement officers to compare evidence from shootings not only within the same jurisdiction, but also throughout the state of Missouri and in the states participating in the new system.

The Missouri State Highway Patrol's Training Division is the Midwest Regional Training Center (MWRTC) for Drug Abuse Resistance Education (D.A.R.E.). As the MWRTC, the Patrol provides D.A.R.E. training and curriculum oversight for 11 states and the Virgin Islands, and serves on a 10-member D.A.R.E. Regional Training Center Advisory Board on all D.A.R.E. curriculums nationwide. The Patrol also serves on the statewide coordinator for D.A.R.E. taught by law enforcement officers in Missouri.

In October 1997, the Patrol activated three major crash investigation teams including a total of six officers. In August 1998, three officers were added to the existing teams. In March 1999, a fourth team was created, bringing the total number of officers assigned to 12. The office locations of Higginsville, Jackson, Wentzville, and Springfield were chosen as the best sites in which to serve the main population of the state. The teams were formed in an effort to bring the Patrol to a higher level of expertise and reporting in the field of accident investigation. In 2000, approximately 250 major crashes have been investigated.

These are just a few of the programs that the Patrol has been tasked by the state to ensure the safety of the citizens of Missouri. During its first 43 years, the Patrol answered directly to the governor; however, during the government reorganization of 1974, it was placed under the Department of Public Safety.

The superintendent commands the Patrol, with the help of an assistant superintendent who is second-in-command. A captain commands each of the nine troops and answers to one of the five majors that make up the superintendent's staff. Twenty divisions, organized under five bureaus each directed by a major, lend administrative support to, and exercise technical control over, the troops.

Executive Offices

The Professional Standards Division ensures integrity and fairness in the Patrol's dealings with the citizens it serves and with its employees. It also establishes consistency and uniformity within the troops/divisions and assists the Patrol in accomplishing its goals and objectives.

The Public Information and Education Division prepares news releases, arranges press conferences, creates brochures, and disseminates information to the news media and the general public. The division coordinates the Patrol's statewide traffic safety education program and is responsible for the Safety Education Center (Patrol museum) open to the public Monday-Friday (except holidays) from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. In 1998, the division debuted the Mobile Safety Education Center. This 40-foot Fifth Wheel Trailer attends large fairs, educational seminars, trade shows, etc. taking the Patrol's safety message to the public.

In 1997, the position of Legal Counsel was created. The Patrol's legal counsel is an advisor to the superintendent and his staff.

Field Operations Bureau

The state of Missouri is divided into nine troops with headquarters in St. Joseph, Macon, Lee's Summit, Kirkwood, Jefferson City, Rolla, Springfield, Willow Springs, and Poplar Bluff. The Field Operations Bureau supervises all field activities.

The Aircraft Division assists in all phases of traffic law enforcement; in manhunts and searches for lost or missing persons; and during major disasters, such as floods, tornadoes, or major fires with an aerial observation platform, and rescue assistance. The division also plays a primary role in marijuana eradication activities.

Criminal Investigation Bureau

The Crime Laboratory Division analyzes evidence found at the scene of crimes throughout the state. Crime laboratories in Jefferson City, Macon, Park Hills, St. Joseph, Springfield, and Willow Springs provide services to local law enforcement agencies at no cost. The Crime Laboratory was initially accredited by the American Society of Crime Laboratory Directors Laboratory Accreditation Board in 1985. It has undergone re-accreditation inspections in 1990, 1995, and 2000.

The Division of Drug and Crime Control provides criminal investigators specializing in the investigation of narcotics, criminal intelligence, explosives disposal, field investigations, lottery enforcement, missing persons, and motor vehicle theft to assist various criminal justice agencies—federal, state, and local—throughout the state.

The Governor's Security Division provides protection for the Governor and First Family. The division also provides security to the lieutenant governor, at his request when acting as governor, as well as to visiting governors and other dignitaries.

Gaming Division members perform background investigations on gaming boat operators and upper-level management and enforce Gaming Commission rules/regulations and state laws on Missouri riverboats. Each operating riverboat must have at least one Gaming Division officer on board during all operating hours. The division also regulates bingo in Missouri performing background checks on suppliers for bingo operations and enforcing state laws regarding the game.

Technical Services Bureau

The Communications Division operates a statewide voice communications network from the nine troop headquarters on a 365-day/24-hour basis. More than 70 radio stations located throughout the state provide radio coverage in the 42 MHz band. In addition to operating the radio network, the division members receive calls and walk-in visits from the public, staffing the "desk officer" positions assigned to uniformed Patrol members until the mid-1990's. division communicates critical, time-sensitive information received and disseminated by radio to officers on patrol, and communicates and coordinates traffic-safety and criminal apprehension activities with other law enforcement jurisdictions on a statewide basis.

The division operates a computer assisted dispatch system and is provided near instantaneous access to nationwide criminal justice information via the Missouri Uniform Law Enforcement Systems (MULES), the National Criminal Information Center (NCIC), and other criminal justice databases. The division manages the Patrol's state highway emergency hotline (800 525-5555, and wireless *55 program), the Missouri recorded road report system (800 222-6400), and performs electronic maintenance on the Patrol's extensive communications network and telecommunications facilities. All Patrol telecommunications equipment is purchased, installed, and maintained by the Communications Division, with radio repair facilities located at General Headquarters and each troop headquarters. The division also conducts training and certification on operation of the MULES system for other law enforcement agency personnel.

The Patrol's Criminal Records and Identification Division (CRID) was officially designated by the Legislature in 1987, as the Central Repository of criminal history records for Missouri. Section 43.500 RSMo made reporting criminal history actions to the Central Repository mandatory for all police officers, prosecutors, clerks of courts, and corrections facilities in Missouri. The Criminal Records and Identification Division disseminates criminal history record information through the Missouri Uniform Law Enforcement System (MULES) for criminal justice agencies, and disseminates criminal record information to the public by mail or at the criminal records public window at General Headquarters. The Central Repository is the single point of contact for criminal history information exchanged between Missouri and the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI).

The Information Systems Division (ISD) manages information technology solutions and telecommunications services for the Patrol and the Department of Public Safety. The division manages data repositories for wanted/missing persons, stolen property, criminal records, traffic accident and arrest records, drug and alcohol offender records, and other related criminal justice information. ISD also supports the criminal justice network and application systems that deliver this information to local, state, and federal agencies connected to the network. This network includes connections to the National Crime Information Center, the National Law Enforcement Telecommunications System, the National Crime Information Bureau, the Department of Revenue, and other regional justice systems.

The Research and Development Division reviews, evaluates, and makes recommendations on Patrol programs, policies, and operating procedures. The division also conducts staff inspections, coordinates strategic planning, prepares written directives, monitors Patrol accreditation, coordinates the evidence control system, designs forms, develops reference materials, and conducts general research and responds to requests for information as needed.

Accident records, alcohol/drug offense records, and fatal accident reporting system comprise the Traffic Division. The accident records section maintains traffic records for the Patrol and the statewide traffic accident records system. The alcohol/drug offense records section maintains a computerized listing of all persons convicted in Missouri courts for driving while intoxicated. This section also contains the Uniform Complaint and Summons audit unit. The fatal accident reporting system performs in depth research on causes of fatality accidents and forwards this information to a computerized database in Washington, D.C.

Administrative Services Bureau

The Budget and Procurement Division prepares the budget, maintains records of all federal and state purchases and expenditures for the Patrol, maintains a perpetual inventory of all equipment and supplies, prepares the payroll, and administers the Patrol insurance program.

The Human Resources Division recruits, tests, selects, and maintains records of civilian and uniformed employees; monitors agency personnel policies and actions to ensure compliance with federal and state laws and regulations; and coordinates the Patrol's retirement, evaluation, and promotional systems.

The Training Division provides in-service and continuing education programs and courses for uniformed and civilian employees, certified basic and career-enhancement courses for full-time law enforcement officers, and coordinates and conducts statewide Drug Abuse Resistance Education (D.A.R.E.) training. The Academy is a P.O.S.T. certified peace officer training center and serves 10 states and the Virgin Islands as the Midwest Regional Training Center for D.A.R.E. America.

Support Services Bureau

The Commercial Vehicle Enforcement Division operates 33 weigh stations and 22 portable scale units in an effort to provide uniform enforcement of the laws and regulations that govern the operations of commercial motor vehicles.

The Construction and Maintenance Division plans and supervises construction of all capital improvements. It also oversees the repair, remodeling, and maintenance of Patrol properties throughout the state and conducts regular inspections to ensure efficient workmanship.

The Driver Examination Division develops standards, policies, and procedures for the driver examination program, including the commercial driver licensing program. It constructs the written tests for operators, chauffeurs, and motorcycle operators licenses and aids in the preparation of the Missouri Driver's Guide.

The Motor Equipment Division directs the maintenance, replacement, and general operation of the Patrol fleet. It also is responsible for policies controlling the expenses for fleet operation.

The Motor Vehicle Inspection Division collects fees and monitors the activities of mechanics and stations that have been licensed to inspect vehicles in the state. This division also administers an emission inspection program in the St. Louis area, the VIN/salvage title inspection program, and coordinates Patrol involvement in school bus inspection.

History

In 1959, legislation was enacted to create the Missouri Boat Commission. The purpose of the commission was to make the waters of the state safe for boating and other water-related activities through law enforcement, registration, inspection and educational programs. In 1974, the Omnibus State Reorganization Act transferred the Missouri Boat Commission to the Department of Public Safety, and the agency was named the Division of Water Safety. In 1989, the agency name was changed to the Missouri State Water Patrol. Since 1959, the authorized number of patrol officers has grown from eight to 87 highly trained professionals.

The Missouri State Water Patrol is a statewide law enforcement agency specializing in the regulation of waterways and boating safety. They operate in a quasi-military fashion with authority being delegated by rank. The commissioner is appointed by the governor and holds the rank of colonel. The commissioner determines policy for the water patrol. Second in command and assistant to the commissioner is the director of field services, who holds the rank of major. The director of field services is responsible for supervision of all field activities and operations of the water patrol. The state is divided into six districts with a captain in charge of each district. District captains are responsible for supervision of all field activities in their respective districts. Patrol officers in each district are responsible for carrying out the policies of the commissioner.

Programs and services

To address boating and water safety, the Missouri State Water Patrol administers a safe boating course. This water safety education program is directed toward Missouri children in the elementary and secondary school systems. Programs are taught by water patrol officers during the winter months, primarily November through March. The goal is to teach water safety to future boaters while in a stable classroom environment. It is believed that knowledge and awareness from educational programs, in conjunction with law enforcement, have reduced injury and fatality rates associated with water-related accidents.

In Missouri the number of boats and the acreage of recreational waters they use have increased significantly in past years. Recreational waters have increased to approximately 580,770 acres and 6,945 miles of shoreline. This figure includes the major lakes of Missouri and the Missouri and Mississippi rivers. As of December 2000, there were 334,473 boats registered in Missouri. The number of boats using Missouri waterways also includes 200,000 watercraft not requiring registration and an additional 30,000 out-of-state watercraft.

In 1990, 277 boating accidents were reported with 17 fatalities resulting from those accidents and an additional 45 drownings that were non-boating related. In 2000 there were 379 boating accidents reported, with 11 fatalities and an additional 32 drownings reported. Although the total number of accidents was higher statewide in 2000 than in 1990, the ratio of accidents compared to total outing traffic actually dropped, as did the actual fatalities and drownings.

In addition to patrolling the state's recreational waters and enforcing state law, the Water Patrol provides many other services to the public. Services include public safety exhibits; boat safety inspection stations; boat and motor verifications; authorization of regulatory markers and navigational aids; issuing permits for regattas, races and organized fishing events plus patrolling those events; investigation of citizen complaints, navigational obstructions, boating and water-related accidents and criminal activities; drug eradication and coordinated enforcement activities with other agencies; and recovery of accident victims.

Coordinated activities

Flood Duty—The Water Patrol provides rescue and recovery assistance during flooding conditions. The division works closely with the State Emergency Management Agency and various other state and local agencies requesting flood assistance. The Water Patrol is one of the few agencies with the proper equipment and experience to work in flooding conditions.

Dive Team—Every year, members of the Water Patrol dive team conduct an average of 45 dive operations to recover drowning or boating accident victims, or to recover criminal evi-

Assistance—As a police agency, the Water Patrol often assists other agencies in emergency situations. These situations include searches for fugitives and missing persons, felony criminal investigations, drug eradication and specialized enforcement activities. The water patrol offers specialized departmental resources including personnel for these coordinated activities.

The Missouri National Guard is the Hometown Guard working to serve Missourians and the United States. The Missouri Guard is an active participant in emergency management and response for the state and routinely deploys forces world wide to perform federal missions as a partner in the Army and Air Force, including combat missions and operations other than war.

People—Approximately 11,000 men and women serve in Army and Air National Guard units based in approximately 65 communities across the state. They are trained in hundreds of specific skills, most with direct application to civilian work and professions.

Roles and Missions—Unique among all the nation's armed forces, the National Guard has a dual state and federal role under the U.S. Constitution.

The Guard is Missouri's force in times of disaster and emergency. State missions include helping the community of Union recover from flash flooding in Spring of 2000, a hunt for a murder suspect in Benton County in 1997, the massive 1993 floods on the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers and repeat flooding in 1995, and service in several northern Missouri communities after tornadoes and ice storms in the late 1990s.

The Guard is a federal reserve force, fully accessible to the President for short notice duty in times of national emergency. Recent federal missions have seen Missouri Army and Air National Guard units called to active service for Operation Joint Guard/Joint Endeavor in the Balkans; Missouri Air National Guard C-130 transports and F-15 fighter jets deployed to the Middle East to fly cargo and combat air patrol missions to enforce sanctions against Iraq; and Air and Army Guard service in Somalia, Haiti, and Africa in response to contingency missions. In some cases, the federal missions are done as normal two or three week annual training deployments. In other cases, Army and Air guard members have been ordered to active duty as individuals or units for as much as 270 days.

State duty is performed under orders of the Governor, the Guard's peacetime commander in chief. The governor appoints the Adjutant General, who wears the two stars of a Major General and oversees the Army and Air National Guard units assigned to the state by the federal government. He is advised by a state military council of senior leaders of the Army and Air National Guard, including the commanders of each major unit in the state.

The National Guard Bureau, a joint agency of the U.S. Army and Air Force, provides peacetime federal oversight of National Guard units. While the governor commands the Guard on a day-to-day basis, most costs are paid for with federal funds. That includes the regular pay for soldiers and airmen of the Guard, except when they are on a state emergency mission. The federal funding and a force of full-time, federally paid employees ensure the readiness of the Guard for federal missions, or state duty if called on by the governor. The federal government pays approximately 95 percent of the annual cost of the Guard.

With its ability to perform federal duty or state duty as the need arises, the Guard is the most capable and cost effective of all the components of the nation's armed forces. While National Guard units and members can perform federal duty in the same manner as members of the Army, Air Force, Navy, and Marine Corps Reserves, only National Guard units have the Constitutional responsibility to serve at home during emergencies.

The Guard offers additional benefits. It provides Missouri communities with citizens whose military experiences pay off at home. Its men and women receive training in skills, work ethic, physical fitness and leadership that benefit their communities and their civilian employers. They earn GI Bill and other educational benefits, including state funded tuition assistance and matching scholarships provided by many Missouri colleges and universities unique to the National Guard.

The Missouri National Guard works with community groups in drug demand reduction programs while also supporting local, state and federal agencies in drug supply reduction efforts. Other innovative readiness training projects let Guard units train by working on projects which benefit their communities while improving their military skills.

The Missouri National Guard is also involved in several initiatives working to make Missouri a better place to live. The Missouri Air and Army National Guard work together with the Missouri Department of Health to operate Camp Wonderland. The camp provides mentally and or physically challenged citizens with an annual summer camp at the Lake of the Ozarks.

The ShowMe Challenge program gives "at risk" youth a second chance at a successful life.

The voluntary program is designed for youth between 16 and 18 years old, who dropped out of high school, are drug free and not involved with the legal system. The 22-week lock in course is located at Camp Clark in Nevada and prepares them academically to pass their GED while teaching them discipline and much needed life-coping skills. The live-in course is followed by one year of mentorship with an adult in the youth's community. There have been five cycles and nearly 500 cadets passed through the program since its inception in 1998. Anyone wishing more information may call toll-free 1-877-625-8685.

The Missouri National Guard Military Funeral Honors Program reached a milestone with its 10,000th service performed in May 2001. The program began in July, 1999 and coordinates funeral honors for every Missouri veteran. Anyone interested in funeral honors for their family member should inform their funeral home director.

The oldest Missouri National Guard units claim a military lineage to pre-territorial times, when militia units were organized in the St. Louis area under French and Spanish colonial rule. Since then Guard units have performed state emergency duty hundreds of times. In their federal role in the 20th Century, Missouri National Guard units or members saw active service in World Wars I and II, Korea, the Berlin Crisis, Vietnam, Just Cause in Panama, Desert Shield and Storm, Somalia, Haiti, Joint Endeavor/Joint Guard in the Balkans and routinely supported smaller contingencies or deployments on every continent except Antarctica.

To Learn More: The National Guard offers speakers to civic and community groups statewide through its Speaker's Bureau. Speakers can discuss local National Guard units, major Guard activities, the Guard's work in drug education and awareness, or the Guard's role in current national defense contingency missions.

Community and school groups visiting Jefferson City are also invited to tour the headquarters of the Missouri National Guard and State Emergency Management Agency at the Ike Skelton National Guard Training Site. Call (573) 638-9846 to arrange for a National Guard speaker or arrange a group tour of the Skelton Training Site.

Tours of other Missouri National Guard facilities statewide, including training sites and aviation bases and facilities are available by contacting the local base or unit.

Requests for speakers, Jefferson City group tours or general information requests can be sent by E-mail to paomo@mo.ngb.army.mil For the Missouri National Guard on the world wide web see www.moguard.com.

The State Emergency Management Agency (SEMA) oversees Missouri's disaster preparedness programs and coordinates the state's response operations for all types of large-scale emergencies anywhere in the state.

The Agency began in the 1950s when State Civil Defense programs operated as a high national priority to protect U.S. citizens from the potential threat of enemy attack. By the mid 1960s, the civil defense organizations focused on domestic emergencies such as floods, tornadoes and other state hazards. In 1967, the Missouri State Legislature moved Civil Defense and the Adjutant General's Office to the Department of Public Safety. The name of the office was then changed from the Division of Civil Defense to the Disaster Planning and Operations Office.

During the 1984 legislative session, the office name was changed to the State Emergency Management Agency (SEMA) to better reflect its current and expanding role. SEMA continues to operate in the Missouri Adjutant General's Office, within the Department of Public Safety. The SEMA director is appointed by the Missouri Adjutant General.

SEMA's mission is to protect the lives and property of all Missourians when major disasters threaten public safety in any city, county or region. These disasters include major snow and ice storms, floods, tornadoes, severe weather, earthquakes, hazardous material incidents, nuclear power plant accidents and other radiological or biological hazards.

SEMA updates the State Emergency Operations Plan, which directs the actions of Missouri state government departments and agencies in the event of any emergency requiring use of state resources and personnel.

State Emergency Operations Center

SEMA and the State Emergency Operations Center (SEOC) are located at the Missouri Army National Guard Ike Skelton Training Site, east of Jefferson City. SEMA has a state-of-the-art facility and technical equipment to direct Missouri's disaster emergency response and recovery operations. The SEOC enables all state agencies to come together during an emergency, gather information from local jurisdictions and quickly respond to the disaster.

Coordination of Preparedness Activities

Emergency preparedness is, by law, a joint responsibility of federal, state and local governments. SEMA coordinates emergency preparedness activities among these groups and both supervises and administers a number of key, federally funded programs to boost Missouri's level of preparedness for specific emergency preparedness categories. These programs are designed to help local governments across the state in such areas as natural disaster planning and assistance, earthquake preparedness planning, emergency management assistance, radiological protection, public warning, training and education. Through SEMA's training program, courses in emergency preparedness are made available to schools, the public, first responders and to participating emergency management agencies. The programs range from individual home study courses to full-scale emergency exercises for county and city governments.

State and Federal Disaster Assistance

When a disaster overwhelms the ability of local communities to respond and/or recover, the governor may declare a state of emergency for the impacted area. This action triggers the use of additional state government resources to augment the needs of local governments in combating disaster conditions.

In extreme circumstances, a request is made by the governor to the President for a federal disaster declaration in accordance with Public Law 93-288. If issued by the President, such a declaration makes a wide variety of state-federal assistance programs available to individuals, families and businesses adversely affected by the disaster. In these cases, SEMA issues emergency information to the affected public and administers key resources and financial assistance to benefit disaster victims. Disaster assistance includes the state-federal Individual Family Grant program to help disaster victims meet basic needs and expenses, as well as many other programs. Federal Public Assistance funds may also be available for local governments to help repair disaster damaged roads, bridges and other critical infrastructure. Cost-effective mitigation measures are also taken to help prevent similar damages in the future.

Disaster Declarations

April 1999, Missouri received a Presidential declaration for flooding in Madison, Andrew, Iron, Macon, Osage and Cole Counties. FEMA received 482 applications for assistance. Mitigation funds helped Fredericktown, Marquand and Madison County conduct successful buyout programs.

March 2000, Missouri received a Federal Fire Suppression Assistance Grant. Over 400 fire fighters from 60 departments fought a 15,000 acre fire threatening 200 homes in Camden County. The fire suppression efforts were under the direction and control of the Missouri Camden Fire Complex. The grant was used to reimburse eligible equipment costs.

May 2000, Missouri received a presidential declaration for flooding in Franklin, Jefferson, Gasconade, Crawford, St. Charles, Ste. Genevieve, St. Francois, St. Louis, Warren and Washington Counties. FEMA received 1,539 applications for assistance. Franklin, Jefferson and Gasconade Counties also qualified for assistance to rebuild public infrastructure and property damaged by the flooding. Mitigation funds helped Union, Washington and Franklin County conduct successful buyouts.

June 2000, the Department of Natural Resources enacted the State's Drought Plan when the potential for drinking water shortfalls became a threat to some northern Missouri counties.

July 2000, Greene County and contiguous counties received a Small Business Administration disaster declaration for flooding to help businesses and property owners recover from flash flooding. This provided low interest loans for eligible applicants.

May 2001, Governor Holden asked for a Federal Agricultural Disaster Declaration for Clark, Lewis, Scotland, Knox, Schuyler, Marion, Monroe, Shelby, Ralls, Pike, Lincoln and St. Charles Counties due to low land agricultural flooding caused by the Mississippi River.

Mitigation Program

The hazard mitigation efforts of the agency are designed to "make the next disaster event as uneventful as possible." The voluntary flood buyout program following the Great Flood of 1993 remains the agency's most successful hazard mitigation project. On a much smaller scale, the voluntary flood buyout program continues with the assistance of yearly grant programs offered through the agency to local communities. To date, buyouts have been conducted in 66 jurisdictions removing approximately 4,400 residential properties from the Floodplain.

Renewed emphasis on pre-disaster mitigation planning has recently been implemented through a Disaster Resistant Community program. Local communities take responsibility for projects to reduce the effects of natural hazards. Developing a local All-Hazard Mitigation Plan is a significant key to identifying exactly what a community can do to become more disaster resistant. The agency offers extensive training and technical assistance for mitigation planning and other pre-disaster mitigation activities.

NOAA Weather Transmitter Mitigation Project—The mitigation program is also coordinating and assisting efforts to ultimately provide NOAA weather radio alert coverage for the entire State. Partnerships between the National Weather Service, Federal Emergency Management Agency, SEMA and Missouri Electric Cooperatives have facilitated this process. In 1996, there were 12 NOAA transmitters providing coverage to Missouri. This partnership increased statewide coverage to almost 100% and increased the number of transmitters to 26 in a little over two years. The National Weather Service named both SEMA and Deputy Director Buck Katt as recipients of the 2001 Mark Trail NOAA Weather Radio Award.

Coordinating the National Flood Insurance Program is a key mitigation program. SEMA works with 560 NFIP participating communities. SEMA helps with floodplain compliance issues and offers extensive training for local floodplain managers, insurance agents, and elected officials. Unfortunately there are 74 communities that are eligible to participate but have not yet joined the program.

The threat of an earthquake along the New Madrid Seismic Fault requires creative and systematic earthquake mitigation activities. Public education and awareness continue to be the backbone of the earthquake mitigation efforts. The earthquake program is now looking at both structural and non-structural projects, increased insurance participation, and increased emphasis on mandatory seismic codes.

Volunteer Agency Coordinator

SEMA's volunteer agency coordinator has a federal counterpart in FEMA. During a disaster, SEMA's volunteer agency coordinator works with state, private and volunteer agencies to coordinate disaster services for Missouri citizens. The coordinator provides technical assistance to FEMA, state and local emergency management officials and local unmet needs committees on disaster survivor needs.

SAVE Coalition

The SAVE (Structural Assessment Visual Evaluation) Coalition was established by RSMo 44.023 and provides immunity from liability to volunteer architects, engineers, building inspectors and knowledgeable construction people who would inspect buildings after a catastrophic natural disaster. SAVE Coalition members are required to take and pass the ATC-20 course on building inspections. After a catastrophic disaster, such as an earthquake, these volunteers would be available for three days to inspect buildings in the impacted area.

Missouri Seismic Safety Commission

The Missouri Seismic Safety Commission presents a formal annual report to the Governor and the Legislature on Missouri earthquake preparedness, response, mitigation and recovery issues. The original report listed 38 recommendations for earthquake preparedness. Each annual report reviews progress made on the original recommendations. The reports may be viewed on SEMA's Homepage: www.sema.state.mo.us/semapage.htm.

The Missouri Veterans Commission is vested with the responsibility of representing all Missouri veterans, ensuring their needs are met and defending the entitlements of those who have served their country with honor and distinction. This is accomplished through programs and services funded by the state and federal governments as well as private and corporate contributions.

Our Vision

In recognition of the sacrifices made by veterans in service to our country, the Missouri Veterans Commission will lead in the provision of high quality, holistic health care to disabled veterans, and in facilitating timely, quality benefits administration. The Commission will improve access to services through construction of homes and cemeteries in new geographic areas, expansion of bed capacity in existing homes, and creation of specialized services, as dictated by veteran needs.

Our History

The State Federal Soldier's Home was established in 1896 by the Women's Relief Corps Soldiers' Home Association, and was deeded to the State of Missouri in 1897. Its original purpose was to provide care to aging Missourians who had fought for the Union in the Civil War. In 1931, the state legislature, at the request of organized veterans groups, created the Office of State Service Officer for the purpose of counseling and assisting veterans of WWI and earlier conflicts whose service connected disabilities were becoming manifest and for whom numerous benefits were being made available through the newly established Veterans Administration.

In 1974, the Omnibus Reorganization Act placed the Division of Veterans' Affairs within the Department of Social Services. The State Federal Soldier's Home and Office of State Service Officer remained separate entities until the Reorganization Act of 1974 combined the two, renaming the Home and establishing the Division of Veterans' Affairs within the Department of Social Services.

As defined in the Omnibus State Reorganization Act of 1974, the Division of Veterans' Affairs, as provided in Chapter 42, RSMo, 1978, was transferred from the Department of Social Services to the Department of Public Safety, Office of the Adjutant General, by a Type I Transfer.

Executive Order 81-18 (February 1981) passed at the First Regular Session of the eighty-first General Assembly, put this law into effect in September of 1981.

On August 28, 1989, the Division of Veterans' Affairs was replaced by the establishment of the Missouri Veterans' Commission as a Type III Transfer. Chapter 42, RSMo governs the Commission's operation as a state agency. The Commission is comprised of five veterans appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate.

The Commissioners then appoint an Executive Director, who implements Commission policies and is responsible for statewide management of veterans programs. The Executive Director reports regularly to the Commission concerning all aspects of program operations through quarterly Commission meetings.

Administrative offices are located in Jefferson City, at 1719 Southridge Drive. This location also houses the local veterans service office.

Services and benefits provided to veterans by the Missouri Veterans Commission are:

Service to Veterans Program

The mission of the program is to inform Missouri Veterans of their state and federal benefits and motivate them to submit required applications. Further, the program seeks to facilitate a proper and effective partnership with the federal Department of Veterans Affairs, other government agencies, veterans service and other organizations; and to provide services and benefits to veterans and their families in a responsive, timely, and compassionate manner.

Through the Service to Veterans Program, the Missouri Veterans' Commission provides counseling and assistance to veterans throughout the state in filing claims for benefits from the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs. Veterans Service Offices are located in almost every county of the state to make services available to veterans close to their homes.

Information concerning locations and phone numbers of Veterans Service Officers may be found in the local telephone directory under 'Missouri, State of, Veterans' Commission', by contacting Commission Headquarters at 573/751-3779, or through the 'Service Office Directory' at the Commission's web site at: www.mvc.state.mo.us

Automation of the entire Service to Veterans Program allows each Veterans Service Officer improved access to the DVA system, expediting the filing of claims and delivery of benefits to veterans. Veterans Service Officers are thoroughly trained and knowledgeable in all areas of veterans' benefits, including compensation, pension, education, burial, and widow's benefits. Information and counseling regarding medical eligibility, VA Home Loan Guaranty, and other benefits, including those offered by the state, may also be obtained from a Veterans Service Officer as well.

Veterans Service Officers are also available to groups interested in veterans' benefits. These qualified personnel may give presentations and instruction regarding the benefits for which veterans are eligible as a result of honorable military service in the U.S. Armed Forces.

Veterans Home Program

The Missouri Veterans' Commission currently operates and maintains seven long-term skilled nursing care facilities with 1,153 beds for veterans of the state. Currently the Commission is building a 200-bed replacement facility in Mt. Vernon and adding a 100-bed dementia unit to the facility in St. Louis. Once these additions are complete, the total number of available beds will be 1,350.

The mission of the Missouri Veterans Home Program is to:

- Provide quality, holistic health care to veterans by utilizing all available resources;
- Assist residents in achieving their maximum attainable level of independent functioning;
- Provide a safe, sanitary, comfortable environment, conducive to personal dignity and happiness in a community living setting.

Veterans in need of nursing home care may seek admission to a Missouri Veterans Home by filing an application with the home of their choice. Prospective residents may obtain application forms from any Missouri Veterans' Home, from a Missouri Veterans Service Officer (phone book listing under 'Missouri, State of, Veterans Commission'), or by contacting the Missouri Veterans' Commission Headquarters at 573/751-3779. Homes applications may also be downloaded from the state forms web site at: www.oa.state.mo.us/gs/form/indiv95.htm

Eligibility:

- Applicant must be an honorably-discharged veteran of the U.S. Armed Forces;
- Applicant must have resided in the State of Missouri for at least 180 days during his/her lifetime;
- Applicant must have been determined to require nursing home care.

Funding/Costs:

- State general revenue;
- Federal funding, through the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs Per Diem Grant Program;
- Charges to the veterans themselves, based on the individual's ability to pay.

The maximum amount that may be charged a veteran currently is $1,314 per month. Ability to pay is based upon the veteran's (and his or her spouse's) total income and assets. The veteran is always allowed to keep at least $50 for personal use, and no one is denied admission because of an inability to pay.

Missouri Veterans Homes are inspected at least annually by the Department of Veterans Affairs for the continuance of per diem payments. Policies for health care administration are centrally managed by the Commission's Superintendent of Homes, who routinely reviews management practice and clinical outcomes. Therapeutic modalities of physical, psychosocial and rehabilitative origin are provided in each facility.

The veterans home at Mt. Vernon was opened in May 1983, and provides skilled nursing care for veterans in the southwest area of the state. The home is currently located in a wing of the Missouri Rehabilitation Center. Construction is currently underway to replace the existing 103-bed facility with a new, 200-bed facility. Completion is anticipated in the fall of 2003.

As the state's third veterans home, the Mexico facility was opened in 1985, and serves the north-central area of the state. The 150-bed home features a large, open mall, containing dining rooms, lounges, a library, recreation and therapy areas, a general store, and medical and administrative offices. An outdoor walking trail among the trees and flowers on the grounds provides much enjoyment and physical exercise for veterans at the Mexico Home.

Serving veterans in southeastern Missouri, the 150-bed veterans home at Cape Girardeau was opened in 1990. It is designed to resemble a small village, with cluster design features consisting of three, 50-bed living units surrounding a central administration building. The home affords residents many amenities, including a lovely chapel adjacent to the lobby, made possible by a fund-raising drive led by the American Legion and its auxiliaries.

This 200-bed facility was dedicated July 14, 2000 as the Commission's seventh veterans home. The first resident was admitted September 26, 2000. The design for the Cameron and Warrensburg facilities are identical. They are divided into five sections. Sections A, B, & C are each 50-bed long-term skilled nursing care units. Section D is a 50-bed dementia which contains its own dining room, activity area and enclosed courtyard. Section E houses the administrative offices and ancillary services such as the recreation area, barber shop and rehabilitation area.

State Veterans Cemetery System

Signed into law in 1996, this program gives the Missouri Veterans Commission statutory responsibility to establish, operate and maintain cemeteries for veterans in Missouri.

The vision and goal of the State Veterans Cemetery System is to locate cemeteries strategically throughout the state, making it possible for veterans and their families to have access within a 75-mile radius of their homes.

The mission is to provide interment for veterans and their eligible dependents in a dignified, efficient and compassionate manner, as a tribute to deserving veterans who served their country in the U. S. Armed Forces.

The first two cemetery sites selected by the Missouri Veterans' Commission are located at Higginsville and Springfield and are operational.

Two additional sites have been selected at Bloomfield, and Jacksonville. Dedication for the Bloomfield site was held May 12, 2001 and dedication for the Jacksonville site is anticipated for fall of 2001. Construction should begin late 2001/early 2002 and completion for both is anticipated for Spring of 2003.

The cemetery is located on a 54-acre site and will contain approximately 21,000 burial sites. Groundbreaking occurred June 6, 1998. The cemetery was dedicated November 13, 1999 and the first burial was conducted January 22, 2000.

Eligibility Criteria:

Eligibility criteria for burial in state veterans' cemeteries will be the same as that for burial in national cemeteries, as stated in Missouri statute, signed into law in 1998: "... solely for the burial of veterans and eligible dependents as defined by the Department of Veterans Affairs..."

The veteran must have lived in the State of Missouri for at least 180 days during his or her lifetime.

Veterans interested in burial should contact the individual cemetery for a pre-determination of eligibility.

Benefits:

- Burial space
- Grave liner
- Opening and closing of the grave
- Perpetual care
- Placement of cremation remains in either columbarium niche or inground burial
- Upright granite headstone

Veterans Trust Fund

The Veterans Trust Fund was established in 1989 and is a means by which individuals and corporations may donate money to expand and improve services to veterans in Missouri. Appropriations from the Fund are being used to improve training of Service Officers, to expand capabilities in meeting the special needs of residents of State Veterans Homes, and to promote public awareness of the programs, benefits and services available to Missouri's veterans.

All contributions to the Veterans Trust Fund are tax deductible. Individuals and corporations can donate any amount over $2.00 of their tax refund on their Missouri tax return, or by sending their contribution directly to the Commission at any time. Monies from the fund are used to enhance, not replace existing programs.

Memorial Grants Program

A Memorial Grant Program was established by the General Assembly through House Bill 1519 in 1998, authorizing the appropriation of up to $2,000,000 for matching grants to renovate dedicated veterans memorials in Missouri. The Commission accepted applications for this program from July 1, 1999 through June 30, 2000. A total of twelve applications were received with eleven being approved for total matching funds in the amount of $1,365,000.

Legislation signed into law in 2000 revised the statute to include the construction of new veterans memorials as well as the continued grants for restoration of existing memorials. Applications will be accepted through June 30, 2004.

Information regarding grant application may be obtained from Missouri Veterans' Commission Headquarters, ATTN: Ronald Taylor, Superintendent of Services & Cemeteries, 1719 Southridge Drive, Jefferson City, MO 65102 - 573/751-3779.

The Missouri Gaming Commission was established in 1993 by the 87th General Assembly as specified by Chapter 313 RSMo. The commission assumed the responsibility for regulating charitable games on July 1, 1994.

The commission is composed of five members, no more than three of who may be members of the same political party. Commission members are appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, for a term of three years. Pursuant to statute, the overall membership of the commission reflects experience in law enforcement, civil and criminal investigation and financial principles.

The commission's role is to monitor gaming related activities to ensure that criminal elements do not infiltrate licensed gaming operations. In addition, the commission works to protect the public by ensuring that games are conducted fairly, according to their rules and with full disclosure.

As a state regulatory agency, the commission and its staff hold themselves to the highest ethical and professional standards and strive to conduct all business in a manner that is in the public interest and maintains the public trust. Pursuant to statute, a strict code of ethics has been adopted prohibiting conflicts of interest and certain ex parte communications.

The key regulatory responsibilities of the commission are:

- To conduct thorough background investigations on all key persons involved in gaming operations including substantial owners, management personnel, key operational employees and suppliers;
- To thoroughly investigate the finances of applicants and their key persons to determine if they have the financial resources and responsibility to meet their proposed obligations;
- To screen all occupational licensees including dealers, slot attendants, food and beverage servers, security and surveillance personnel and all other employees who have access to the gaming area and investigate the background of each to ensure that the personnel operating the casino are of sufficient character to maintain the integrity of Missouri gaming;
- To photograph and fingerprint each employee so as to maintain a complete and accurate database of gaming personnel;
- To assign appropriate staff to each gaming operation to be present at all times when gaming is conducted. Enforcement agents are charged with ensuring that gaming is conducted in accordance with the Missouri gaming statute, the rules and regulations of the commission and the licensee's own internal controls;
- To ensure that the safety of the passengers is guarded, to conduct investigations of suspected wrongdoing and to receive complaints from customers;
- To review and audit the finances and compliance of the gaming operation through the combined use of commission staff, independent public accounting firms and internal casino audit staff that are retained by the licensee and approved by the commission;

KEVIN P. MULLALLY
Executive Director
Missouri Gaming Commission

- To monitor the financial integrity of gaming operators to ensure that Missouri's financial interests are protected; and

- To assess qualifications of organizations applying for a charity gaming license, conduct required background investigations, conduct audits, collect taxes, conduct necessary investigations and maintain all records related to charity games.

Pursuant to statute, the commission has entered into a Memorandum of Understanding with the Missouri State Highway Patrol to perform background investigations and to provide enforcement personnel on the boats and for bingo enforcement.

Division of Gaming

Office of the Executive Director

The office of the executive director is responsible for the day-to-day operations of the commission. The director supervises all staff activities, reports to the commission and is responsible for organizing and distributing all public documents and reports. In addition, the director has direct supervision over the commission's problem gambling programs including its revolutionary voluntary exclusion program. The director oversees four principle sections.

Administration Section

The Administration section is responsible for accounts receivable and payable, purchasing, budget, leasing, records management, fee and enforcement reimbursement costs collections and human resources. This section works closely with the State Auditor's office during annual audits of the commission.

Corporate Securities and Finance Section

The Corporate Securities and Finance section is responsible for financial and transactional investigations, tax collection and enforcement, casino audit examinations, financial analysis and economic analysis of the casino industry. This section recommends appropriate regulatory action for certain corporate control transactions and also studies the economic markets for casinos in the state to assist the commission in determining the number and placement of riverboat casinos.

The Financial Analysis Unit of this section is responsible for examination of licensee's business transactions, including mergers and acquisitions and other major financial transactions.

The Financial Investigations Unit of the Corporate Securities and Finance Section is responsible for investigating financial matters and transactions related to applicants and licensees, such as examining income taxes and tracing sources of funds to make certain organized crime connections are not present. This unit also investigates legal actions involving financial matters, such as commercial litigation, white-collar criminal actions, and violations of anti-money laundering laws.

The Tax Collection Unit of the Corporate Securities and Finance Section is responsible for the collection of the gross receipts tax and admissions tax assessed upon casino licensees by statute. The section audit unit is responsible for casino audit examinations, which determine casino compliance with state statutes and regulations. These examinations concentrate on compliance with financial internal controls established to ensure that the tax owed to the state is secure.

Enforcement Section

To ensure uniform, centralized, professional and thorough investigations in regulatory enforcement, a division of the Missouri State Highway Patrol has been assigned to the commission. A Memorandum of Understanding between the commission and the patrol sets forth the unit's responsibilities. As of May 2001, there were 99 officers in the unit. The officers handle the major portions of the commission's investigative and enforcement duties. Officers serve as gaming agents on the riverboat gaming facilities and are on duty whenever gaming is conducted on the properties. Officers also serve on commission investigative teams and conduct licensing background investigations, regulatory compliance investigations, public compliant investigations, and commission staff background investigations.

Legal and Legislative Affairs Section

The commission's section on Legal and Legislative Affairs is responsible for handling various legal matters that must be dealt with by the commission on a daily basis. The section develops the commission's legislative packet and is responsible for drafting and working with the rules and regulations of the commission. In addition, the legal section manages an administrative hearing docket for appeals of license denials and disciplinary actions.

Division of Bingo

The commission assumed responsibility for the regulation of bingo on July 1, 1994.

Charitable, fraternal, religious, service, social, and veteran organizations are eligible to hold licenses to conduct charity games in the state. As of May 2001, there were 608 regular bingo licensees in the state, 386 special bingo licensees, 135 abbreviated pull tab licensees, 2 supplier licensees, 10 manufacturer licensees, and 170 bingo hall providers.

The Missouri Department of Revenue was created by the 1945 Missouri Constitution to serve as the central collection agency for all state revenues. The primary duties of the department are to collect taxes, title and register motor vehicles, and license drivers.

In recent years, the department has focused its efforts on running government more like a business, managing for results by becoming more customer-oriented, and simplifying processes for its customers. In 2000, the Department of Revenue became the first state department in Missouri to receive the Missouri Quality

Award (MQA). The MQA, modeled after the prestigious Malcolm Baldrige National Quality Award, recognizes organizations for outstanding practices and results in customer satisfaction, quality, employee involvement, and leadership. Listening to the customer and responding to their needs, involving employees in the transformation and reorganization of the department, and focusing on results have been the keys to the department's improvement efforts.

The Department of Revenue consists of three divisions and the director's office.

Division of Motor Vehicle and Drivers Licensing

The Division of Motor Vehicle and Drivers Licensing is responsible for the administration of Missouri's laws that relate to titling and registration of motor vehicles, trailers, all-terrain vehicles, manufactured homes, and marine craft, and licensing drivers. This division consists of three bureaus.

- The Driver and Vehicle Services Bureau is responsible for issuing titles and registering motor vehicles, trailers, all-terrain vehicles, manufactured homes, and marine craft. The bureau also issues registration certificates to motor vehicle and salvage dealers and leasing companies. In addition, the bureau is responsible for issuing, renewing, suspending, revoking, and reinstating driver and nondriver licenses and driving permits. The bureau processes and maintains records relating to license issuance, traffic violation point assessments, failure to appear in court for traffic violations, the administrative alcohol and abuse and lose laws for alcohol/drug offenders, and the safety responsibility laws for uninsured motorists.

- The Customer Assistance Bureau is responsible for managing the operations of the Department of Revenue's 11 branch offices and administers contracts with 169 fee offices that provide driver licensing and motor vehicle services to citizens throughout the state. The bureau also oversees various telephone centers to help customers with their driver and vehicle transactions.

- The Information Technology Bureau is responsible for the technical analysis, design, development, and implementation of the division's data processing systems.

Division of Taxation and Collection

The Division of Taxation and Collection is responsible for the administration of Missouri's tax laws. It processes and administers forms and reports for the collection of revenue due the state and local taxing jurisdictions. This division has six different sections.

- Accounting Services is responsible for cashiering and depositing tax and fee collections, divisional accounting and financial statement preparation, document security enforcement, centralized filing systems, word processing and microfilming functions, and division forms and publication orders.

- Business Tax is responsible for the administration of sales/use, financial institutions, insurance premiums, franchise, excise, cigarette and other tobacco products, motor fuel, corporate income, withholding, and county taxes and fees.

- Personal Tax is responsible for administering individual income, partnership, fiduciary, and estate taxes, as well as property and pharmaceutical tax credits.

- Customer Assistance provides tax assistance to individuals and businesses and performs appropriate procedures for unpaid tax liabilities.

- Field Audit is responsible for auditing businesses both in-state and out-of-state to ensure compliance with Missouri's tax laws.

- Information Technology is responsible for the technical analysis, design, development, and implementation of the division's data processing systems.

Division of Administration

The Division of Administration provides administrative support to all other areas of the department. This division includes six bureaus:

- Human Resource Services is responsible for personnel matters.

- The Financial and General Services Office is responsible for all accounting, procurement, banking, and general service matters.

- Facilities Management coordinates space and location needs, telecommunications, safety issues, maintenance, and improvement of the work environment within the department.

- The Budget Office is responsible for the department's annual budget.
- Criminal Investigation is responsible for investigating and developing information leading to local prosecution of individuals and businesses suspected of violating the laws that the department administers.
- Technology Services provides systems development and support, production control, technical training, database administration, and technical support services throughout the department.

Director's Office

The Director's Office includes the director, deputy director, and key administrative staff responsible for the overall guidance and direction of the department.

- The General Counsel's Office advises the director and divisions on legal matters relative to the department, and represents the department in court and administrative tribunals.
- The Center for Performance Excellence is responsible for implementing department-wide results-oriented processes in order to deliver ever-improving value to the department's customers and employees.
- The Public Information Office is responsible for developing and maintaining positive media and public relations for the department.
- The Office of Legislation and Regulations serves as the department's liaison to the General Assembly. The office provides technical assistance and develops fiscal and revenue estimates on proposed legislation and monitors progress of bills through the legislature.
- Internal Audit reviews and evaluates the department's administrative, operations, and internal accounting controls.
- The Office of Information Technology analyzes, develops, and monitors the use of information technology resources to improve business processes and accomplish the department's mission, goals, and program objectives.

On November 6, 1984, Missouri voters authorized the General Assembly, by Article III, Section 39(b) of the Missouri Constitution, to pass legislation establishing a Missouri state lottery.

The governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoints the five-member commission. No more than three members may be of the same political party. Commissioners receive no salary and serve three-year terms.

The commission supervises the lottery by issuing rules and appointing a director. The director runs the day-to-day business of the lot-

Established in 1974, the Missouri Department of Social Services includes four agencies that previously operated social programs under separate administrations. This "umbrella" structure combines the efforts of related agencies and promotes a cooperative approach toward delivering social programs to Missourians in need.

The department works to ensure the health and safety of children, to help parents and caregivers provide nurturing homes, and to aid people in need of financial assistance reach their highest level of social and economic self-sufficiency.

The director of the Department of Social Services assumes a mandate to efficiently administer federal, state and local funds. The director also cooperates with private organizations, businesses, and individuals to extend the outreach of human services available to Missouri citizens.

Office of the Director

The director of the Department of Social Services is responsible for the overall administration of programs within the department except as otherwise provided by law. The director determines priorities for program implementation and has final approval for uses of state and federal funds appropriated to the department.

There are currently four administrative support divisions within the department: Budget and Finance, Data Processing, General Services and Legal Services.

There are four program divisions within the department responsible for policy formulation, organizing programs and facilitating service delivery. The directors of these divisions report to the department director. These divisions are: Child Support Enforcement, Family Services, Medical Services and Youth Services.

The personnel and labor relations section (PLRS) guides the overall human resources management system for the more than 10,000 employees within the department. The section is responsible for ensuring compliance with merit system rules and coordinating activities in the areas of labor relations, recruitment, selection, classification, compensation and training. Administrative divisions

The Division of Budget and Finance provides budgeting and financial support services to all divisions within the department. The responsibilities of the Division of Budget and Finance can be divided into the following major support areas: accounts payable, payroll, purchasing, receipts, audits, grants management, budget and planning.

The Division of Data Processing provides information technology services to all agencies within the department. This involves planning and coordinating all department data processing activities as well as development, maintenance and operation of the department's computer systems and a statewide telecommunications network.

The Division of General Services provides a variety of support services to all agencies within the department. Offices are located in Jefferson City, Kansas City, St. Louis and St. Louis County. The services include operating service centers, building maintenance, mailing, warehousing, supply distribution, inventory control, composing and printing, leasing and telecommunications and capital improvements oversight.

The Division of Legal Services provides comprehensive legal support to all programs and support divisions in the Department of Social Services (DSS). The division represents the department, its divisions and the state, not individuals. The Division of Legal Services (DLS) is organized into five major sections: Litigation, Administrative Hearings, Office for Civil Rights, Investigations and State Technical Assistance Team.

The Litigation section represents the divisions of DSS before administrative tribunals and in the circuit and appellate courts. These cases relate to reimbursement of and sanctioning of Medicaid providers and collection of liens for medical services in personal injury cases and claims in probate estates on behalf of the Division of Medical Services; judicial review of administrative child support orders on behalf of the Division of Child Support Enforcement; placement of children under the care of the Division of Family Services (DFS), proceedings involving child abuse and neglect, licensure and revocation of foster homes, minor guardianships, permanency planning for children including, as appropriate, termination of parental rights and income maintenance issues all for DFS; legal services to the Division of Youth Services in restoring young people to leading lives as productive citizens; and, for all divisions, advice on contracts, personnel matters, and the reviewing and implementation of administrative regulations.

The Administrative Hearings is comprised of hearing officers who conduct hearings related to child support enforcement and public benefits under Chapters 208, 454, 536 and 660, RSMo. [Administrative hearings include enforcing, establishing and modifying child support orders, to ensure the obligation to provide child support is current and reflects the parents' ability to provide financial and medical support to their children in accordance with Supreme Court Rule 88.01.] The Administrative Hearings Section also provides hearings to thousands of public assistance applicants and recipients as mandated by federal law. These due process hearings provide the forum for determining whether the denial or termination of public benefits was justified.

Office for Civil Rights represents DSS in the role of prevention of discrimination in all employment practices, and in offering services to clients or potential clients. OCR's areas of responsibility include: investigations of complaints of discrimination brought by clients or potential clients, conducting mandatory civil rights training of all DSS employees, ensuring contract compliance of DSS vendors by audits, developing DSS affirmative action plan and recruitment of diverse employees.

The Investigation Section is divided into four units: Welfare Investigations Unit, Medicaid Investigations Unit, Claims and Restitution Unit and General Assignment Unit. The Welfare Investigations Unit investigates fraud and abuse committed by public assistance recipients. The Medicaid Investigations Unit investigates fraud and abuse committed by recipients against Medicaid providers. Also, the Medicaid Unit is responsible for Medicaid provider compliance investigations including overpayments, denial of enrollments and program sanctions. The Claims and Restitution Unit operates and manages the Claims Accounting Restitution System (CARS). The CARS system tracks the establishment and collection efforts in all claims in the public assistance programs administered by DSS. This unit processes in excess of 40,000 recoupments and 100,000 hot line and mail requests annually. The General Assignment Unit conducts criminal, personnel and internal investigations; investigates allegations of discrimination and civil rights violations; locates persons owing monies to DSS, as well as other state agencies, identifies their resources, initiates collection actions, monitors payments and takes appropriate action on delinquent accounts; conducts background investigations and associated research in support of DSS investigations, as well as background checks on prospective DSS employees.

Missouri's State Technical Assistance Team (STAT) has evolved from implementing Missouri's Child Fatality Review Program (CFRP) in 1992 to providing comprehensive integrated services to the entire child protection community. From data collection and interpretation, to prevention facilitation, training and complex criminal investigations, STAT provides support and expertise to professionals responsible for the protection of children at risk.

Missouri's Child Support Enforcement Program began in 1977 under an executive order, and on August 15, 1986, the Division of Child Support Enforcement (DCSE) was created by statute. DCSE has the responsibility for operating the Child Support Enforcement Program pursuant to Title IV-D of the federal Social Security Act (originally adopted as P.L. 93-647) and Chapter 454 of the Revised Statutes of Missouri (RSMo).

General responsibilities

DCSE's responsibilities include locating parents, establishing paternity, establishing child and medical support orders, monitoring and enforcing compliance with child and medical support orders, reviewing and modifying support orders and distributing support collections.

DCSE's customers come from several sources. When a custodial parent receives public assistance, Division of Family Services (DFS) staff make a referral to DCSE and provide appropriate forms and relevant information. DCSE collects child support on behalf of families receiving public assistance not only to eliminate their dependence on assistance programs, but also to reimburse the state for the benefits provided to these families.

In addition, individuals not receiving public assistance benefits may apply for DCSE's services. To request an application, they may contact any DCSE office or call DCSE's toll-free number.

Organization

The program is administered from DCSE's central office located in Jefferson City. Central office staff provide support functions with the bulk of the division's responsibilities carried out in twenty-two field offices across the state. One of the field offices pursues support for children who live in other states but whose noncustodial parents live in Missouri. This office is the central registry for all incoming interstate referrals.

The field offices are comprised of supervisory, investigative, clerical and legal staff. In addition, local prosecuting attorneys and circuit court clerks assist the division with its child support responsibilities. The majority of prosecutors in Missouri provide legal support (e.g., the filing of paternity actions, criminal nonsupport and enforcement actions) for cases DCSE staff refer to them. Circuit court clerks support DCSE staff by filing legal documents and providing copies of documents already on file.

Pursuant to Section 454.530, RSMo, DCSE operates the state disbursement unit known as the Family Support Payment Center. The Family Support Payment Center, located in Jefferson City, receives and disburses support on behalf of families. The Family Support Payment Center forwards to the state, collections received for families receiving public assistance. When a family is not receiving public assistance, the Family Support Payment Center sends payments directly to the family. DCSE collected $361 million in state fiscal year 2000.

Funding

Federal funds, available under the Social Security Act, assist state and local jurisdictions in financing the costs of program operations. Currently, the federal matching rate is 66 percent. In addition to federal funds, the state is entitled to retain approximately 34 percent of the collections it receives for families who receive public assistance.

All counties that have entered into a cooperative agreement with DCSE receive reimbursement for their child support activities, as provided by state and federal law. Generally, counties are reimbursed at the 66 percent rate for personnel and operating expenses. DCSE also assists the counties by passing through to the counties the federal incentives it earns.

Location

The first step in the case-processing sequence is locating the noncustodial parent. Often, the custodial parent provides sufficient information to allow DCSE staff to locate the noncustodial parent and his or her place of employment. If the noncustodial parent's location is unknown, DCSE may use a number of resources to find that parent.

Section 454.440, RSMo, requires other agencies, as well as private entities, to cooperate with DCSE for the purpose of locating and determining financial resources of a parent.

Section 285.300, RSMo, requires all Missouri employers to report newly hired employees to the Department of Revenue (DOR). DOR forwards the information to DCSE. This law helps ensure that DCSE has the most current employment information available on noncustodial parents who owe child support.

DCSE also commonly queries and conducts data matches with databases maintained by other state and federal agencies to obtain location, income and asset information. The Expanded Federal Parent Locator Services, a computerized national network, provides DCSE with Social Security numbers, addresses, employer and wage information for noncustodial parents.

Establishment

Before DCSE can establish a support order, a legal relationship must exist between the child and the noncustodial parent.

Pursuant to Section 210.822.1(1), RSMo, when a child is born during a marriage, the husband is presumed to be the child's natural father. If a child was born out of wedlock, paternity can be established if the parents complete a voluntary paternity acknowledgment pursuant to Section 210.823, RSMo. If either the mother or alleged father requests a genetic test to determine paternity, DCSE will arrange for the necessary test. If necessary, DCSE may enter an order requiring that the child, the mother or an alleged father submit to a genetic test for the purpose of determining paternity. A person who fails to comply with such an order is subject to civil contempt and/or license suspension actions. If the genetic test shows there is a 98 percent or greater probability that an alleged father is the child's biological father, a presumption of paternity is established pursuant to Section 210.822.1(4).

Once the father-child relationship is established, DCSE attempts to establish a support order under the authority of Chapter 454, RSMo. DCSE staff serve the parents with a notice of intent to establish an ongoing support order, which may include both child support and medical support. If a child receives public assistance, DCSE may, in addition to establishing an ongoing support order, attempt to recoup public assistance benefits paid on the child's behalf prior to the date of the notice. The amount of public assistance benefits to be recouped is based on the noncustodial parent's ability to pay child support. Upon receipt of the notice, the parents have the opportunity to discuss the terms of the proposed order with DCSE staff or request an administrative hearing to contest the terms.

Depending on the parents' response, the director will enter a consent order or a default order, or staff will refer the case to an administrative hearing officer for a hearing. The hearing officer will render a decision on the support issue. DCSE files its administrative orders with the circuit court, at which time they have the full force and effect of an order signed by a judge.

When administrative procedures are inappropriate, DCSE staff refer cases to the appropriate prosecuting attorney. The prosecuting attorney may use the judicial process to determine paternity and obtain a support order.

Enforcement

When a judicial or administrative order is established, DCSE staff monitor the noncustodial parent's compliance and take appropriate enforcement action if he or she does not comply. DCSE has a number of enforcement actions at its disposal, many of which can be initiated without a court's involvement. Such administrative actions include income withholding, real and personal property liens, state and federal income tax refund interceptions, unemployment compensation and workers' compensation benefits interceptions, license suspension and referrals to consumer reporting agencies. When administrative procedures are inappropriate, DCSE staff refer cases to prosecuting attorneys for the filing of civil or criminal actions.

Review and Modification

Family and financial circumstances change over time. To ensure child support awards are in line with changing circumstances, DCSE conducts periodic reviews of child support orders in accordance with Section 454.400, RSMo. On non-assistance cases, DCSE only conducts reviews if requested. On a public assistance or Medicaid-only case, DCSE either initiates a review on its own or at either parent's request.

When conducting a review of an order that is three years old or older, DCSE will modify the order if the amount in the current order differs by 20 percent or more from the amount that would be awarded in accordance with Supreme Court Rule 88.01. DCSE will conduct a review of an order that is less than three years old if the party requesting the review shows a substantial change in circumstances has occurred.

DCSE initiates a modification of an administrative order by serving a motion for modification upon the parents. The parents have the right to an administrative hearing if a consent agreement cannot be reached. When modifying child support orders established by a court (e.g., child support awards established as part of a dissolution of marriage), DCSE serves the parents with a motion to modify pursuant to Section 454.496,

DENISE CROSS
Director
Division of Family Services

RSMo. The parents may consent to the new child support amount, request an administrative hearing or default by not responding to the motion. An administrative order modifying a judicial order must be filed with and approved by the court that entered the original order before it becomes effective. The judge can approve the order or set the matter for trial de novo. DCSE, at its discretion, may also use the judicial process to modify a judicial order.

Parents' Fair Share

Parents' Fair Share is a noncustodial parent program that helps participants gain self-sufficiency. The program includes assessments and referrals for educational, employment needs and supportive services through a network of community resources.

The Division of Family Services (DFS) was established in 1974. The division is responsible for the administration of these programs and services: temporary assistance (TA), formerly AFDC; direct client support; child care subsidy; children's services (adoption, child abuse/neglect, foster care, licensing of child placing facilities, preventive services, residential treatment, family-centered services, intensive in-home services, domestic violence, interstate placement of children, independent living and others); commodities distribution; food stamps; Community Services Block Grant; general relief; low-income home energy assistance; refugee assistance; rehabilitation services to the blind and the visually impaired; medical assistance; supplemental nursing care, and MC+.

Administrative structure

The Division of Family Services is administered by a director appointed by the director of the Department of Social Services. The division maintains an office in each county and in St. Louis.

Public assistance programs

The determination of an individual's financial need is basic to the granting of TANF, child care subsidy, food stamps, blind pension, general relief, supplemental aid to the blind, medical assistance, nursing care benefits and MC+. The division has a legal requirement to consider all facts and circumstances in determining eligibility for public assistance, including the applicants' earning capacity, income and resources from whatever source received. The amount of benefits, when added to all other income, resources, support and maintenance, shall provide such person with reasonable subsistence. If the applicant is not found to be in need, assistance is denied.

In order to administer this provision equitably, the division has established a consolidated standard expense for each person included in the budget and for each item judged to be a necessary expense. Available income is deducted from this total and the difference represents the amount the individual is eligible to receive.

The federal Social Security Amendments of 1972 provided that the adult assistance programs of old age assistance, permanent and total disability and aid to the blind be taken over by the Social Security Administration on January 1, 1974. The primary intent was to make a nationwide, uniform minimum payment to eligible adults and the handicapped. The law further provided that any state may or, in some instances, must supplement federal payments. The division administers this state supplementation program in Missouri.

Temporary Assistance

Temporary Assistance makes cash grants on behalf of needy children who have been deprived of parental support and who are living in homes maintained by parents or close relatives. This program provides temporary financial assistance for a period of time, up to five years, while the adult transitions to self-sufficiency.

The program provides education, skill training, community work experience and employment assistance to prepare individuals for employment enabling children to be cared for in their own homes. Each participant is screened to obtain the individual's work and educational background, supportive service needs, and employment goals. The participant signs a self-sufficiency pact outlining activities necessary to meet their employment goals. The participant is referred to education, training or job search activities consistent with employment goals. Additional services to support the individual transitioning to work may include case management, childcare payments, transportation allowances and work-related expense payments.

During FY00, a total of $142 million was paid to Temporary Assistance families, $33 million in state funds and $109 million in federal funds. There was a monthly average of 48,354 families, involving 126,461 persons, received payments which average $244 per family.

Child care subsidy

The child care subsidy program provides families with financial assistance in meeting child care expenses, enabling adults to work, attend school or participate in job training programs. The program also has provisions for care due to a parent's medical incapacitation or a child's special needs. Eligibility is based on income and the need for care.

DFS served approximately 47,034 children per month in FY00.

MC+

The MC+ program provides healthcare coverage to children under 19, parents, and pregnant women. Family income is compared to the applicable percentage of the federal poverty guidelines. The applicable income limit is dependent on age of the children and the individual's insurance status. MC+ is funded by Medicaid and the Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP). In FY00, the program provided coverage to 409,881 children, 16,235 pregnant women and 122,047 parents.

The Division also oversees an expanded MC+ program which provides health insurance coverage for eligible uninsured low-income children and parents. Authority for this program is through a waiver of Section 1115 of the Social Security Act and SB 632, signed into law June 1998. This waiver initiative builds on the original MC+ program by focusing on uninsured children and parents leaving welfare for work. The MC+ for Kids program is funded in part by the new federal children's health initiative program from the Balanced Budget Act.

General relief

The division is also responsible for administering the state's general relief program which provides aid or public relief to unemployable persons. Eligibility for this assistance is dependent upon need and is determined basically in the same manner as are other programs. Most of the payments are made by check to recipients, although orders or vendors are used in emergency situations and for individuals who have demonstrated that they are unable to properly handle cash payments. The maximum monthly payment is $80 a person.

A total of $6.3 million was appropriated for FY00 from state funds for this program; approximately $5,550,000 from state funds and $740,000 from federal funds. The General Assembly appropriated $15.9 million from the blind pension fund for payments during FY00.

Supplemental aid to the blind and blind pension

The division administers two separate programs for the blind: the supplemental aid to the blind (SAB) program and the state-financed blind pension (BP) program. Under the SAB program, the amount of the monthly grant is $383 minus any supplemental security income (SSI) payment received; under the BP program, a flat monthly payment of $383 per person is made. The programs differ slightly in eligibility requirements. Funds are provided from a Missouri constitutionally established blind pension fund with no matching federal funds.

The General Assembly appropriated $15.9 million from the blind pension fund for payments during FY00

Supplemental nursing care

The supplemental nursing care program in Missouri provides medical services to persons who meet requirements in accordance with standards developed by the division. Certain adults, who are medically eligible and who reside in licensed skilled nursing facilities or intermediate care facilities, may receive monthly cash benefits of up to a maximum of $383. If they live in a licensed residential care facility, they may be eligible for monthly cash benefits of up to $288; or if in a licensed boarding home, they may receive monthly cash benefits of up to $154. In addition, certain other claimants living in or planning to enter licensed skilled nursing homes may be eligible for payments made for their care.

Persons eligible for these cash payments may also qualify to receive a personal needs allowance of $25 per month unless such needs are met by the Department of Mental Health.

The General Assembly appropriated $25.7 million for FY00 from state funds for the supplemental nursing care program.

Medical assistance

The medical assistance program provides medical services for aged, blind or disabled individuals whose income and resources fail to meet medical needs. An individual must have limited resources. Income is compared to the supplemental security income (SSI) maximum. Persons whose income is below this maximum would receive the medical services covered by Missouri. Persons with income above the maximum may gain eligibility for medical services by incurring medical expenses equal to the amount of income which exceeds the SSI maximum.

In FY00, an average of 134,632 persons per month were eligible to receive medical services under this program.

Food stamp and food distribution programs

The food stamp program is designed to help low-income families increase their purchasing power for buying food for their families. Depending upon the adjusted income and the number of persons in the household, a family receives a monthly benefit amount. The division is responsible for determining the eligibility of food stamp applicants according to guidelines established by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Applicants for food stamps are served by county family services offices. During federal FY00, $358 million in food stamp benefits were issued to 178,465 households.

The division also administers a number of food distribution programs and has continued involvement in supplying U.S. Department of Agriculture donated foods to summer camps, temporary emergency food assistance programs, charitable institutions and residential child care institutions.

Low income home energy assistance program (LIHEAP)

The low income home energy assistance program is a federally funded program established in April 1980 with enactment of the Crude Oil Windfall Profits Tax Act. Eligibility for assistance is based on household income and the number of persons residing in the household. Benefit amounts vary based on income, family size, type of fuel utilized as a primary source of home heating and the geographic area of the state in which the program recipient resides. Payments made either to the individual's home heating supplier or directly to the individual are intended to assist him or her in purchasing home heating fuels during the period of November through March of each year.

Community services block grant program

The community services block grant (CSBG) program is a federally funded program implemented in October 1981 pursuant to enactment of the Community Services Block Grant Act. The CSBG makes funds available to impact causes of six poverty conditions: unemployment, inadequate housing, inadequate education, malnutrition, poor use of income and unmet emergency needs. The program provides for a flexible local partnership of elected public officials, business and civic interests and low-income citizens. The partnership identifies and implements programs within the general areas of community coordination/resource development and family development. CSBG programs are usually operated locally by community action agencies and serve individuals whose family income falls within the official federal poverty guideline.

Children's services program

Children's services are provided under federal and state laws to help each eligible child and family attain and maintain a maximum level of personal and social functioning.

The division has a legal mandate to provide services in three areas: child abuse and neglect investigations and family assessments; treatment services to children and families; and licensing activities for child placing agencies.

Child abuse and neglect investigations

The division has responsibility for receiving reports of alleged child abuse or neglect. Upon receipt of a report of alleged abuse or neglect, the division requires that an investigation of the incident be initiated within 24 hours, the primary purpose being to protect the child. Protection of the child may include temporary removal of him or her from the home. The goals of the child abuse and neglect investigation are to assess risk, protect the child from harm, determine if child abuse or neglect occurred as alleged and provide services to the family. The division can replace the investigation process with a family assessment.

Family-centered services

Treatment services, referred to as family-centered services, are provided in a preventive and protective capacity. These case management services are provided in a protective capacity to families when a "probable cause" determination was made during a child abuse/neglect (CA/N) investigation. Family-centered services provided in a preventive capacity are contingent on the family's willingness to accept services. Services are also offered when an unsubstantiated CA/N investigation or a family assessment detects family problems and such services might prevent abuse or neglect. Families may also receive preventive treatment services due to self-referrals. Services may be provided directly by the DFS social worker and/or purchased on behalf of the family.

The overriding goal of family-centered services is to prevent child abuse or neglect and the possible removal of the children from the home by stabilizing the family and improving family functioning.

Intensive In-home services (family preservation services) is a short-term crisis intervention service aimed at stabilizing the crises which put children at imminent risk of being removed from their homes. Intensive In-home specialists serving small case loads are available to the family 24 hours a day for a period of up to six weeks. The goal of the service is to prevent children from being placed in alternative care, while ensuring that the children are safe in their own home.

Additionally, federal law mandates the provision of services to children and to families or children in alternative care. Such services are directed toward either returning the child to his or her natural parent(s) or placing the child in an alternative permanent setting. The goals of these services are to: prevent further child abuse or neglect; correct family factors which could lead to further child abuse or neglect; and reunite children separated from their families or, when that is not possible, to obtain permanent homes for children through adoption or guardianship.

To achieve its goals, the division employs children's service workers to provide services to eligible children and families. These services are provided through two major components: direct services and purchased services.

Direct services

The major components of the direct service program are detection, treatment and prevention of child abuse or neglect.

Under the provisions of the Child Abuse and Neglect Law (Sections 210.110, 210.167, RSMo), a "child" is any person under 18 years of age; "abuse" includes both actual and threatened physical injury, sexual or emotional abuse inflicted on a child other than by accidental means by those responsible for his care, custody and control, except that discipline including spanking, administered in a reasonable manner, shall not be construed to be abuse; "neglect" is failure to provide, by those responsible for the care, custody and control of the child, the proper or necessary support, education as required by law, or medical, surgical or any other care necessary for the child's well-being; and "persons responsible for the care, custody and control of the child" include but are not limited to the parents or guardian of a child, other members of the child's household or those persons exercising supervision over a child for any part of a 24-hour day.

Two categories of reporters of child abuse or neglect are established in the law: mandated and permissive. Mandated reporters include physicians, medical examiners, coroners, dentists, chiropractors, optometrists, podiatrists, residents, interns, nurses, hospital and clinic personnel and other health practitioners, psychologists, mental health professionals, social workers, day care center workers or other child care workers, juvenile officers, probation or parole officers, teachers, principals or other school officials, Christian Science practitioners, peace officers or law enforcement officials or other persons with responsibility for the care of children. Permissive reporters are others who may report when they have reasonable cause to suspect that a child has been or may be subjected to abuse or neglect or who observes a child being subjected to circumstances which would reasonably result in abuse or neglect.

All reporting is done to the central office of the division, which is required to provide toll-free statewide telephone service for reporting purposes (1-800-392-3738). The division is responsible for making investigations or family assessments of all reports and for offering protective services on a multidisciplinary basis in cooperation with the juvenile court and other public and private agencies.

DFS staff provide direct services when utilizing the family-centered services case management model with families in treatment and families whose children are in alternative care settings. The DFS social workers work with the families in assessing service needs and case planning. Actual service delivery may be provided by DFS staff, may be purchased or both.

Alternative care services (Family-centered Out-of-Home Services) are provided to children who are determined by the juvenile court to need care in a setting other than their biological family home. These children participate in a statewide services program which is designed to provide substitute family care or nonfamilial group care. Any one of three types of licensed settings provides alternative care: foster family homes, group facilities and residential treatment facilities. Transitional Living Services and Independent Living may also be utilized for older youth who may not return home and for whom adoption or guardianship is not deemed appropriate.

Child safety and permanency for children is the overriding goal of all services and integrates the principles of permanency planning; reuniting the child with the biological family; and, when this is not possible, finding other permanent family relationships for children.

Families who wish to adopt children who are unable to reunite with the biological family may, in some instances, receive an adoption subsidy payment. This is a statewide program developed to provide financial benefits in the form of a subsidy to encourage potential adoptive parents to adopt and to finance the cost of adopting "special needs" children. Adoption subsidy may be used for any child in adoptive placement who is determined to be a "special needs" child because of a handicapping condition, racial or ethnic minority status, age, social maladjustment or membership in a sibling group.

Purchased services

Purchased services are available to individuals and families who are receiving family-centered services or in efforts to recruit and maintain resources for permanency. These services are usually provided as a result of a "probable cause" child abuse/neglect report but may also be authorized for children in alternative care, children in adoptive placements and family members receiving preventive treatment services or foster and adoptive services. Purchased services are provided through contracts with both public and private community agencies and play a major role in extending services throughout the state.

Licensing program

The division is required by statute to inspect and license foster care facilities, residential care facilities and child placing agencies. In addition, the licensing staff supervises licensed facilities to assure that the facilities maintain requisite standards, conducts public education programs and consults with facility personnel in the development and implementation of services to the children being served, and residential program development.

Blind and visually impaired services program

The Rehabilitation Services for the Blind administers six service programs to blind and visually impaired persons: vocational rehabilitation, prevention of blindness, independent living rehabilitation to adults.

Older Blind Services, children services, and the Blind Enterprise Program (BEP). Older Blind Services (OBS) assist blind and visually impaired seniors over age 55 to function independently and remain in their homes and communities.

Vocational rehabilitation services are supported by both federal and state funds. Services include diagnosis and evaluation, counseling and guidance, physical and mental restoration, college and other types of vocational training, rehabilitation engineering, job development and job placement and services after employment when needed. All vocational rehabilitation services, some of which are conditional upon financial need of the individual, are to enable a person with visual disabilities to obtain or retain suitable employment.

Prevention of blindness services are funded with state funds. Services are for the purpose of early detection of eye disease that may lead to blindness and, when indicated, providing treatment to eligible persons in order to prevent visual loss. Services include diagnostic examinations, surgery, hospitalization, glasses, prostheses and certain medications that are not available through other sources. Outreach vision screening clinics are conducted in conjunction with schools of ophthalmology in Missouri. The prevention of blindness program conducts glaucoma screening clinics throughout the state. All services, except those available at outreach vision screening and glaucoma screening clinics, are conditional upon the financial need of the individual.

Independent living rehabilitation services for adults are supported by both federal and state funds. Services, many of which are provided to a blind or visually impaired person in his or her home, are for the purpose of enabling that person to function independently in the home and community. Services, some of which are conditional upon financial need of the individual, include diagnosis and evaluation, adjustment to blindness services, alternative techniques in the areas of daily living activities, physical restoration, home-making, communication and orientation to and travel within the home and community.

Independent living rehabilitation services for blind and visually impaired children are supported by both federal and state funds. Services include counseling to the parents of the child, Parents: Families Supportive Services, consultation in development and readiness skills that the child will need in order to enter and succeed in an appropriate educational setting and referral to community resources.

The federal/state Randolph-Sheppard Blind Enterprise Program provides employment opportunities for legally blind persons who have participated in special training and are licensed by the division to manage a vending facility. Located in federal, state and private industry and in rest areas along the interstate highway system, vending facilities range from full food service cafeterias to banks of vending machines.

Rehabilitation Services for the Blind offices are located in Jefferson City, Kansas City, St. Louis, Sikeston and Springfield.

The Division of Medical Services (DMS) was established as a division in 1985. DMS administers the Missouri Medicaid program as authorized through Title XIX of the federal Social Security Act and through state legislation enacted in 1967.

GREGORY A. VADNER
Director
Division of Medical Services

The Division of Medical Services is administered by a director appointed by the director of the Department of Social Services. The division receives professional and technical consultation from a medical care advisory committee and designated subcommittees representing the major disciplines participating in the program. The advisory committee consists of 20 members including the chairs of the Senate Committee on Public Health and Welfare and the House of Representatives Committee on Social Services and Medicaid, a minority member of each committee, no fewer than three physicians licensed to practice in the state, and the director of the Department of Health. Other members of the committee include persons who are active Medicaid providers, representatives of other health professions and representatives of consumer advocacy and recipient interests.

Missouri Medicaid program

The Missouri Medicaid program provides medical services to eligible beneficiaries within defined program benefits in somewhat the same way insurance companies provide coverage for their policyholders.

The services provided include those required by the federal government such as hospital and physician services. Also included are optional services such as pharmaceutical and personal care services authorized by the Missouri General Assembly and identified in Section 208.152 of the Missouri Statutes.

The Division of Medical Services administers a mandatory Medicaid managed care program called MC+ for eligible recipients in the eastern, central and western areas of the state. Children, pregnant women, TANF families and children in state custody receive their medical care through managed care organizations, allowing the state to ensure access to health care and control costs at the same time.

The division also oversees an expanded MC+ program which provides health insurance coverage for eligible uninsured low-income children and parents. Authority for this program is through a waiver of Section 1115 of the Social Security Act and SB 632, signed into law June 1998. This waiver initiative builds on the original MC+ program by focusing on uninsured children and parents leaving welfare for work. The MC+ for Kids program is funded in part by the new federal children's health initiative program from the Balanced Budget Act.

Medicaid has included specialized services for specific populations within the state by receiving waiver authority from the federal government. Home and community-based waivers for the elderly, certain mentally retarded, developmentally disabled beneficiaries as well as patients with AIDS were obtained and allow the state Medicaid program to pay for otherwise non-covered home care as an alternative to more expensive institutional care. These services are restricted to those beneficiaries who would otherwise require, and whose home care is no more expensive than, institutionalization.

In a dramatically changing health care environment, Medicaid is providing the means to extend access for services to additional beneficiaries in non-traditional settings. Personnel from the Medicaid agency are becoming increasingly more involved as facilitators for the development of community-based service systems that have a goal of promoting the general health of children. These new activities are being developed through cooperation with other state agencies such as the departments of Elementary and Secondary Education, Health and Mental Health.

The Medicaid program is jointly funded by state and federal funds. The division's fiscal year 2001 appropriation of over $3.5 billion includes $1.1 billion in state funds and $2.4 billion in federal monies.

The Omnibus Reorganization Act of 1974 created the Division of Youth Services and placed it within the Department of Social Services.

General responsibilities

Youth judged to be delinquent and in need of rehabilitation and education are committed to the division by the state's juvenile (circuit) courts until approved for return to the community under supervision or discharged.

MARK D. STEWARD
Director
Division of Youth Services

The division provides an array of services, including institutional care, community-based services, nonresidential services and aftercare supervision. Chapter 219, RSMo outlines the division's responsibility to include prevention of delinquency, incentive subsidy to juvenile courts, consultative and information services to non-DYS agencies upon request and technical assistance to local communities.

Organization

The division is administered by the director who is appointed by the director of the Department of Social Services. The division operates institutions throughout the state, as well as community facilities consisting of group homes, park camps, specialized residential programs and nonresidential community-based programs as well as a case management system. Five regional administrators are responsible for the programs in their geographical areas. Central office personnel, together with the regional administrators, aid the director in planning for the agency as well as setting goals and objectives.

Goals and objectives

The mission of the Division of Youth Services is to protect communities from juvenile offenders and to provide appropriate services to youth in the division's custody and their families. This balanced approach relies on community partnerships for the development and enhancement of services for the prevention of delinquency.

Methods of treatment

The Division of Youth Services (DYS) forms a unique treatment environment. The youth centers provide highest structure for students in need, while group homes and park camps provide residential settings for youth who can adequately function with supervision in a community environment. Nonresidential services are provided to low-risk youth as a diversion to residential care and as a supplement to aftercare.

Case management

A case management system has been developed to provide assessment, treatment planning, coordination of services, monitoring and evaluation of the services for youths and their family. A needs and risk assessment helps the case manager determine the most appropriate services for each youth. The assessment takes into account all pertinent factors involving the youth's delinquent history while identifying the general treatment needs.

Each division facility creates an environment which is designed to contribute to positive changes in the student's behavior and attitudes through the provision of group and individualized treatment services, recreation, academic and vocational training. The ultimate goal is to return each youth to his or her home community as a productive, responsible member of society.

Community-based services

Focusing on more individualized services and delivering programs at the community level, the division has expanded its program design to be more community-based. The program components are:

Intensive case monitoring

This service is provided by employees who track a youth's behavior and activities. Trackers also provide support and counseling to the youth when needed. Great effort is made to ensure the matching of similar personalities and interests of youth and the tracker.

Day treatment

This service provides a structured alternative educational program which includes traditional academic courses: GED classes; career planning; job placement; and community service supported by individual, group and family therapy.

Proctor care

This specialized alternative living program places a youth in residence with a young adult proctor who serves as a role model.

Family therapy

DYS family therapists provide counseling to adjudicated and non-adjudicated youth and their families. In addition, the family therapy unit accepts referrals from juvenile courts, child welfare agencies, mental health agencies, schools and other sources. DYS therapists also provide training to other state agency staff and court personnel.

Short-term programs

Several short term programs have been established statewide to prepare youth for re-entry into the community. These facilities provide residential-based programs to help youth move from traditional residential services into productive community living. Intensive family involvement is required and youth are expected to accomplish specific community goals before release.

Group home programs

Group homes provide the least restrictive residential environment. Staff provide 24-hour supervision in a home setting with a capacity for 10 youths. Youth follow a daily schedule with time allowed for interaction with the community (school, jobs and community projects) as well as treatment services within the facility (group, individual and family counseling). Youth in this program can participate in public schools and vocational programs or attend on-site educational programs.

Residential facilities

Twelve residential facilities provide a moderately structured environment for DYS youth. Three facilities are located at state parks and operated in conjunction with the Department of Natural Resources: Watkins Mill, Camp Avery and Babler Lodge. The remaining nine facilities are Delmina Woods, Fort Bellefontaine, Spanish Lake, Twin Rivers, Sears Youth Center, Sierra Osage, Waverly Youth Center, New Madrid Bend Youth Center, and Gentry Youth Center. The residential program targets youth who cannot function well in the community and require a more structured setting. Many of these youth have participated in repeat property offenses and require continuous structure to mature.

The program divides youth into groups of 10 with 24-hour staff supervision. A traditional school program is provided on-site by full time teachers offering basic education, GED programming and various remedial/special education activities.

Youth in the Watkins Mill, Camp Avery and Babler Lodge facilities spend a portion of their time working on projects to improve and maintain the park grounds.

Secure care

For those youth who have a history of offenses and require a more structured setting, the division offers programs in secured facilities. Six highly structured, secure care programs provide on-site educational classes, vocational training and recreational activities. These programs target youth with longer offense records that may include crimes against people. The offenders tend to be older and may include youth who have been unsuccessful in community-based programs. Scheduled outings into the community serve the purpose of involving the youth in community-support projects. Secure care programs use a group-treatment approach with individual and family centered services. The educational program contains the broadly classified areas of basic, remedial, special and vocational education. Emphasis is placed on the acquisition of knowledge and skills that will meet the practical needs of each student.

An individual education plan, including both youth goals and staff strategies, is developed for each youth. Parents are encouraged to attend these planning meetings.

Dual jurisdiction

The division also operates a secure care program in Montgomery City which serves youth sentenced under the dual jurisdiction provisions in Chapter 211.073, RSMo. This alternative sentencing provision allows certified youth to receive an adult and juvenile sentence with a suspended execution of the adult sentence. Treatment and educational services are provided to youth whose length of stay is significantly longer than that of other DYS students.

Aftercare

When youth are ready to return to their community, the division provides services to help them make the smooth transition. Virtually all youth under the DYS care enter the aftercare program upon their return to the community. An assigned case manager ensures support services are provided to help each youth enter and readjust to community living. Support may be of a referral, supervisory or counseling nature. The primary goal of aftercare is to provide supervision and resources to youth to assist them in making a satisfactory community adjustment. This is defined as a youth being able to function in the community without becoming involved in delinquent behavior that could lead the youth into court.

Division of Youth Services Advisory Board

Established in 1974, the Division of Youth Services Advisory Board is charged with the responsibility to advise the director, the legislature and the general public on all matters pertaining to the operation of the division. The 15-member board consists of citizens from across the state who are dedicated to the prevention of delinquency and the containment and rehabilitation of juvenile offenders.

The Missouri Department of Transportation (MoDOT) was created by legislation passed in 1996 that changed the name of the Highway and Transportation Department. That department was formed when voters approved Constitutional Amendment 2 in November 1979 merging the previously separate Highways and Transportation departments.

The department is guided by the Missouri Highways and Transportation Commission, which appoints a department director as chief administrative officer. MoDOT operates under a decentralized organization with General Headquarters in Jefferson City. The Headquarters office provides staff assistance and functional control for the various departmental tasks in 10 geographical districts. Each district contains about 10 percent of the total road mileage in the state highway system. Each district is under the direction of a district engineer, who is in turn responsible for administering all district activities.

The department's districts reorganized in late 1996 to provide better customer service. Customer service centers were established in each district and Headquarters to provide information, accurate call routing and quick response to customer inquiries. Area engineers coordinate construction and maintenance operations in various areas and provide a quick response to local questions and needs.

Two functional units within Headquarters are responsible for bridge design and highway planning for the state. Decisions about local highway construction, maintenance or operations are made at the district level.

Waterways, transit, aviation and railroads are established as units within Multimodal Operations, which reports to the director of planning in the General Headquarters. These units carry out the statewide planning for these modes; there are no counterparts in the districts. The Department of Transportation operates in a quality im-

State Highways and Transportation Commission

The bipartisan State Highways and Transportation Commission is composed of six members and is the governing body of the Missouri Department of Transportation.

The governor, with the consent of the Senate, appoints the members of the commission to staggered terms of six years each. No more than three commissioners may be of the same political party.

The commission appoints the director, chief counsel and secretary. The director, with commission approval, makes all other appointments.

Missouri's state transportation system

Missouri's Department of Transportation has responsibilities for five major transportation alternatives available to Missourians—highways, aviation, waterways, transit and railroads. Those responsibilities include the total operation of the 32,000-mile state highway system, including highway location, design, construction and maintenance.

In addition, the department cooperates and coordinates with owners and operators of the four other modal systems in the development and improvement of airports, rail facilities, ports and the operational cost of transit systems. Key also is administration of state/federal programs and funds available for these systems.

The Centennial Road Law of 1921 created a system of connected state highways. Under the terms of this law and subsequent legislation and constitutional amendments, more than 32,000 miles of state highways have been constructed and improved through the years. These highways connect large population centers, county seats and small communities within the state.

The main sources of state revenue for the Department of Transportation are motor vehicle fuel taxes, licenses and fees and part of one-half of the motor vehicle sales tax. A small amount of revenue comes from incidental sources such as fees from the sale of blueprints and maps.

Voter-approved bond issues of $60 million in 1920 and $75 million in 1928 helped fund early road-building programs. Bond principal and interest were paid from revenues provided by highway users. All road bonds in Missouri were retired on June 15, 1957.

An additional revenue source was created in a special November 6, 1979 state election. Voters approved Amendment 2—a measure providing revenue through reallocation of part of one-half of the motor vehicle sales tax revenue to the department. Of this revenue, 75 percent went to the Department of Transportation. Counties received a 10 percent share and cities received the remaining 15 percent. Amendment 2 also merged the previously separate departments of Highways and Transportation.

Missouri voters approved a road and bridge improvement program on April 7, 1987, that increased the motor fuel tax from 7 to 11 cents per gallon, increased heavy truck registration fees 10 percent and placed a cap on administrative expenses going to other state agencies.

In April 1992, in response to new federal transportation legislation and the need for further transportation improvements, the Missouri Legislature increased the motor fuel tax by 2 cents per gallon in 1992, 1994 and 1996, bringing the motor fuel tax to 17 cents per gallon.

Coupled with this tax increase was a road and bridge improvement program projected to complete hundreds of transportation projects across the state from 1992–2007. In November 1998, the Missouri Highways and Transportation Commission approved a MoDOT staff recommendation to adopt a more realistic 5-Year

Statewide Transportation Improvement Program. This short-term highway and bridge construction schedule is designed to meet the high-priority needs of Missouri because projecting project costs and funding over an extended period of years is not feasible. Projects from the 1992 plan are included in the STIP and continue to be a framework for transportation improvements.

In 1998, legislation changed the department's structure by creating the position of director to be the chief administrative officer. That legislation also mandated MoDOT to prepare a comprehensive annual report to the Legislature that includes finances and road and bridge construction schedules and accomplishments. A chief operating officer and a chief engineer assist the director.

In 2000, the commission was authorized to issue up to $2.25 billion in bonds to accelerate Missouri highway construction. Project lists for 2001–2003 totaling $1.1 billion have been developed.

Office of the Chief Counsel

The chief counsel is appointed by the Highways and Transportation Commission (MHTC) to handle legal responsibilities for it and the Missouri Department of Transportation. The chief counsel's office assists MHTC and MoDOT to achieve their strategic and business plans by providing three basic legal services. These include prosecuting and defending litigation; rendering legal advice and opinions; and reviewing and drafting documents. The chief counsel's office is also responsible for eminent domain cases; risk management cases, including general and fleet vehicle liability cases and workers' compensation claims; and administration cases, including construction contract and human resource cases.

Commission Secretary's Office

The Highways and Transportation Commission appoints a commission secretary to provide operational support, clerical assistance and record keeping.

Administrative Areas

The MoDOT director is assisted by a chief operating officer, who is responsible for the financial and administrative operations, and a chief engineer, who is in charge of MoDOT's road and bridge design, construction and maintenance activities statewide. The directors of Public Affairs, Governmental Affairs and the Inspector General also report to the department director.

MoDOT is divided into five major administrative areas, each headed by a director who reports to either the chief engineer or the chief operating officer. Reporting to the chief engineer are the directors of operations and project development. The directors of planning, administrative services and the chief financial officer (financial services) report to the chief operating officer.

Chief Operating Officer

The chief operating officer oversees Audit and Business Analysis, the chief financial officer, the director of administrative services and the director of planning.

Audit and Business Analysis

This unit provides internal control and audit assurance to the department and commission. It conducts internal reviews of division and district operations to ensure the integrity of financial management in all areas of cost generation and payments.

The unit also performs the final audit of all actual cost agreements between the department and entities such as utilities, railroads, cities, counties, universities, consultant engineering firms and others.

In addition, Audit and Business Analysis conducts analyses of department business practices including competitive bidding management.

Administrative Services

The director of Administrative Services oversees the Equal Opportunity, General Service and Human Resources units.

Equal Opportunity

The Equal Opportunity unit emphasizes affirmative action and the department's efforts to increase workforce diversity.

General Services

The unit provides procurement, fleet and facilities management, graphics, travel and mail/freight support as needed by department employees to do their jobs.

Human Resources

Human Resources develops and administers a statewide personnel program to meet department needs. The unit recruits nationally for college graduates for placement throughout the state and for all positions in the General Headquarters in accordance with the affirmative action endeavors. Employee development training programs in managerial leadership and various vocational technical areas are conducted or coordinated on an ongoing basis by the Employee Development unit. The unit's mission is to provide managers with the tools, methods and support to improve employee performance and business outcomes to better satisfy MoDOT customers.

Human Resources also develops personnel policy, updates the department's pay system and maintains personnel records for employees.

Financial Services

The chief financial officer oversees the activities of the Controller and the Employee Benefits, Information Systems, Resource Management and Risk Management units.

Controller

The controller provides administrative support to the Missouri Department of Transportation in accounting, expenditure control and benefits.

As part of accounting and expenditure control, the unit maintains all financial records and reports for MoDOT and for the Highway and Transportation Employees' and Highway Patrol Retirement System, and medical and life insurance plans. Functions include federal billing, recording funds received and expended, financial reporting, processing accounts payable and payroll, maintaining cost accounting codes and formulating procedures for document processing. The unit also provides quality assurance measures for these functions.

Employee Benefits

Employee Benefits oversees all aspects of MoDOT's medical and life insurance plan. The unit also provides support to the Highway and Transportation Employees' and Highway Patrol Retirement System. The unit also monitors claims to pinpoint areas of concern and works with actuaries to determine appropriate premium schedules. Benefits administration provides information allowing employees to make informed decisions regarding benefit options. This unit also assists employees with enrollments for the various benefits, such as retirement, health and life insurance, employee assistance program, cafeteria plan and deferred compensation.

Information Systems

Information Systems coordinates the department's information technology activities. It provides computing, data and voice communications services to the department through the operation and maintenance of local and statewide computing data networks and telephone services. The unit operates the department's central and distributed computer facilities and coordinates operations for all remote computing. Unit staff provides applications programming expertise to support the department's engineering, financial, operational and general information needs.

Information Systems provides additional services in the form of Help Desk support, computer training, computer library services, ad hoc reporting, media conversion, client relations activities, technology standards facilitation, computer equipment checkout, internet access, web publishing, and e-mail accounts. The unit installs computer hardware and software for workstations and trains employees in basic and intermediate-level computer applications. Information Systems uses computer-aided software engineering (CASE) for development of its larger application systems, and integrated development software for its other applications. Integrated desktop products are used to provide primary office automation and workgroup functions.

Resource Management

Resource Management coordinates financial resources and spending plans through forecasting, analysis and training. Resource Management performs financial planning and fiscal analysis, budget, federal aid, and innovative finance administration functions for the department.

Risk Management

This unit administers the Department of Transportation's insurance operations and is responsible for workers' compensation, fleet liability, general liability and property damage recovery. Also included under the risk management umbrella are safety and health programs.

Planning

The director of planning oversees operations of Multimodal Operations, Research, Development and Technology, Strategic Planning, and Transportation Planning.

Multimodal Operations

Aviation

The Highways and Transportation Commission is mandated by law to administer an aeronautics program. The law further requires the commission to "encourage, foster and participate with the political subdivisions of this state in the promotion and development of aeronautics." The commission has made this the responsibility of the aviation section, and the section fulfills its obligation in a variety of ways.

The aviation unit administers federal and state grant programs that assist local governments in planning, maintenance and development of existing airports and establishing new facilities. The objective of these grant programs is to provide modern, all-weather airports for safety and to enhance economic development throughout the state.

The aviation unit inspects most of the publicly and privately-owned airports within the state that are open to the public. These inspections assist airport operators in maintaining safe, efficient facilities. The unit maintains a statewide airport system plan that guides airport development project priorities.

Aviation also produces a free annual aeronautical chart and airport directory for the flying public.

Railroads

The railroads unit is responsible for improving rail freight, passenger service and the railroad/highway grade crossing program in Missouri. Because railroad regulation is primarily a federal government function, the unit monitors federal activity and guards the state's economic interests in relation to bankruptcy and abandonment of railroad facilities. The unit also works with Amtrak to increase and improve rail passenger service in the state. The Department of Transportation funds two daily round-trip Kansas City-St. Louis passenger trains.

The railroads unit also provides assistance in all railroad matters affecting the state and is responsible for activities cited in Chapter 680 of the Revised Statutes of Missouri. The railroads unit meets its goals and objectives through the preparation and implementation of a state rail plan.

The railroad-highway grade crossing program administers federal funds to improve safety at railroad crossings by implementing grade separations and improving at-grade crossings.

Transit

The transit unit assists in planning, development and operation of the state's public transit and specialized paratransit systems. This function is carried out through the administration of state and federal programs relating to general public transportation and specific programs for the elderly and disabled.

The Missouri Elderly and Handicapped Transportation Assistance Program provides state financial assistance for nonprofit organizations offering transportation services to the elderly and disabled at below-cost rates. The program has more than 190 grantees that provide approximately 4.3 million trips annually.

Thirty-one small urban and rural general public transit systems receive financial and technical support from the department. These systems have an aggregate operating budget of $13 million, provide 3 million trips, and travel 12 million vehicle miles per year. The entire state of Missouri is covered by these systems.

MoDOT also provides federal and state assistance to transit systems in "small urbanized" areas of more than 50,000 and less than 200,000 population. Participating cities in Missouri are Columbia, Springfield, St. Joseph and Joplin. The combined fleets number about 75 vehicles. They provide 2,988,000 annual trips with a combined operating budget in excess of $9.5 million annually.

The transit unit purchases approximately 65 vehicles for about 35 grantees annually, using funds allocated to the state through the Federal Transit Administration's Elderly and Persons with Disabilities Capital Assistance Program. The program is open to all areas of the state (rural, urban and urbanized) for nonprofit organizations and qualifying public entities. There are more than 500 active vehicles operated by almost 200 organizations. The active fleet provides more than 800,000 elderly trips and 1.6 million disability trips per year and travels more than 7.5 million miles.

The transit unit also administers the rural transportation assistance program, a training and technical assistance function funded by the Federal Transit Administration. Training courses offered include defensive driving, CPR and first aid, passenger assistance techniques and emergency procedures. Technical assistance is offered in vehicle procurement and maintenance.

The transit unit prepares a statewide application for national discretionary capital assistance. The capital discretionary program has funded about 1,000 vehicles since the state began to receive Section 5309 assistance in Fiscal Year 1993. These vehicles are operating throughout the entire state. Major facilities funded to date include park-n-ride facilities, bus facilities, transitways, personal computers, radio systems, maintenance equipment and miscellaneous equipment.

Waterways

Chapter 68 RSMo allows cities and counties located on or adjacent to navigable waterways to form port authorities and become political subdivisions of the state, upon Highways and Transportation Commission approval.

The waterways unit assists port authorities in developing commerce and to foster local economic development. The unit also promotes the use of Missouri's navigable rivers, assists in capital and administrative funding, acts as an information clearinghouse, and provides technical assistance and represents port interests within industry and government.

Research Development and Technology

This unit coordinates research and development activities within the department. It examines new products, construction methods and materials. The unit also plays an active role in national research activities. Missouri currently serves as one of 21 states leading the way in implementing innovative technology uncovered through the national Strategic Highway Research Program (SHRP). SHRP was established by Congress to improve the performance, durability and safety of the nation's roads.

The unit also coordinates contract research in partnership with the universities within the state and shares transportation information with Missouri's cities and counties through the technology transfer program.

Strategic Planning

The strategic planning unit directs the department's strategic planning and policy efforts.

Transportation Planning

Transportation Planning covers several areas including long-range planning, data administration, systems analysis and planning and programming.

Planning collects, manages and analyzes data to provide a single source of information to support the department's decision processes. Safety, bridge, congestion, traffic and pavement data are linked by using a common reference system to provide relational access as well as a map-based geographic information system (GIS) display of information.

State Project Operations
Engineer

The unit also develops and tracks the 5-Year Statewide Transportation Improvement Program, the department's highway and bridge construction program. The districts' regional planning activities play an important part in the development of this schedule and program.

Transportation Planning also coordinates the department's highway, enhancement, off-system bridge and small urban programming issues as well as provides metropolitan planning organization support. Additionally, the unit provides technical support for the department's project management software.

The long-range planning unit focuses on issues and challenges the department must face in the future. Large issues are addressed, not specific projects. The unit handles strategic planning, long-range transportation planning, regulation review and compliance and policy development.

Chief Engineer

The chief engineer oversees the directors of operations and project development and the activities of the department's 10 districts.

Operations

The director of operations oversees the Maintenance, Project Operations and Traffic units.

Maintenance

Maintenance of state highways and bridges is the function of this unit. It also establishes broad policy, disseminates best practices and supports field activities by providing quality assurance. Included in these are preservation, upkeep, operation and restoration of roadways, bridges and all appropriate facilities so they remain safe and usable.

Maintenance of bridges requires annual inspections (sometimes using an aerial bucket truck modified to look under bridges and underwater diving techniques), painting and major repairs by unit personnel.

Increased highway use continues to demand maintenance of interstate rest areas, rapid and complete removal of snow and ice and many additional services provided by the unit. Maintenance also coordinates a variety of roadside management programs including Adopt-A-Highway and Growing Together.

Project Operations

Combining the former Construction and Materials units into Project Operations improved their efficiency and quality, reduced internal construction and engineering costs and improved internal processes. Project Operations' mission is to efficiently administer highway construction and other contracts to ensure quality highways and materials so the traveling public has a safe, efficient transportation system.

The unit provides technical assistance, new technology implementation and materials quality assurance for the department. It also provides assistance in preparing many specifications for materials used in highway and bridge construction and maintenance as well as continual testing and inspection for all materials used in the highway system.

After a contract has been awarded through the competitive bid process, the work is assigned to project offices located geographically throughout the state. Engineers and technicians assigned to these project offices do field surveying and perform quality control tests on the work performed by contractors to ensure quality construction that improves Missouri's transportation system.

Unit engineers make periodic field inspections to assist field personnel and ensure uniform contract administration over the entire state. Quality assurance reviews of the project offices are performed regularly.

This unit also staffs an equal employment opportunity section, which is responsible for contract administration of the disadvantaged business enterprise (DBE) and minority/female training programs included in federal aid contracts.

Training programs are regularly held to ensure a highly qualified staff of engineers and technicians. Quality improvement teams continuously evaluate construction methods, equipment and techniques to keep abreast of the latest advancements, including a state-of-the-art automated Construction Management System.

The unit provides assistance in preparing many specifications for materials used in highway and bridge construction and maintenance as well as continual testing and inspection for all materials used in the highway system. Testing is done in a modern laboratory in Jefferson City.

State Maintenance Engineer

STEVE McDONALD
State Traffic Engineer

Unit personnel analyze pavement designs, roadway foundations, asphaltic concrete and portland cement mixtures, as well as carry out soil and subsurface condition surveys and furnish geotechnical information for the design, construction and maintenance of roads and structures.

Project Operations is highly involved in the national Strategic Highway Research Program (SHRP), an ongoing national research effort to improve highway materials such as concrete and asphalt pavements. By using new technology such as the Superpave bituminous pavement mixture, the department strives to improve the Missouri roadway system for the future.

Personnel also inspect and oversee disposal of hazardous and environmental materials related to highways, ranging from asbestos, underground tanks and lead-based paints to specifications for low volatile organic compound bridge paints and other environmentally-friendly materials.

Traffic

Traffic is responsible for safe and efficient movement of people and goods on the state highway system. This includes supporting signing, striping, traffic signals, lighting, intelligent transportation systems, roadway access and safety management programs throughout the state. The department's central sign manufacturing facility produces over 120,000 signs annually.

The unit supports the districts and other department units in planning, design, construction and traffic operations. Traffic also coordinates training activities that incorporate traffic engineering principles in all MoDOT activities. In addition to supporting maintenance, operation and training activities, the unit works with the Motorist Assist Program in the Kansas City and St. Louis areas and administers the logo services programs throughout the state.

Traffic currently maintains more than 110,000 miles of striping, 800,000 highway signs, 1,800 traffic signals and numerous other traffic control devices. The unit is implementing many new technologies, including snow-plowable raised pavement markers, highly reflective sign materials, video cameras for traffic monitoring and control and light emitting diodes for various applications. These new technologies help increase the efficiency and effectiveness of traffic devices and traffic personnel.

Statewide coordination of the ITS activities is also provided by Traffic. ITS uses advanced technologies and communications to improve the safety and efficiency of MoDOT's transportation facilities. ITS integrates federal, state and local freeway and corridor management systems with traveler information services into a single operating system.

Traffic analyzes and compiles accident data, which is used by district and Headquarters units for location studies and project prioritization. A high-accident location listing, a traffic accident statistics manual and a listing of locations with a higher than normal ratio of wet to dry pavement accidents is generated annually for district review. Traffic also administers funding to address low-cost safety improvements in locations identified through these listings. Federal funding is also used to provide traffic engineering services and training for smaller cities and counties that do not have traffic engineering expertise.

Traffic is responsible for preserving the safety and functional integrity of the state highway system through roadway access management. The unit has been designated as the commission's representative in determining the safety and operational implications involved in requests by outside parties for changes in access on roadways. These changes in access include driveway and street connections, levee attachments and grading on interstate right of way. The unit also assists MoDOT districts in complicated or controversial requests for roadways access. Traffic also regulates the movement of vehicles that exceed state statute limitations on length, width, height and weight by issuing permits.

Project Development

The project development director oversees the activities of the Bridge, Design and Right of Way units.

Bridge

This unit produces structural designs and detailed plans production for all state highway bridges, including cost estimates and site-specific job special provisions.

Design includes preliminary investigation that begins with a detailed and complex study to determine the most suitable type of structure for a given location considering hydraulics, economy, site requirements and aesthetics. The finished product is a set of detailed design plans from which contractors can construct the bridge.

Inspection services are provided by Bridge in fabrication shops around the nation to ensure steel and concrete girders and other materials meet specifications and that the bridges are safe for motorists.

Bridge maintains extensive microfilm files of all plans and design data for bridges, culverts and retaining walls on the state highway system. The unit also reviews plans for the rehabilitation or replacement of locally owned bridges using federal bridge funds and administers a program for the inspection of locally owned bridges and a program to provide engineering assistance to counties and cities.

Bridges are analyzed to determine their safe load-carrying capacities, and the unit initiates posting of bridges not able to safely carry the state's legal loads. The unit also assists in development of overall strategies for managing Missouri's bridges.

Design

Design prepares all roadway plans and advertises projects for bids. Included in plan preparation are determination of state and/or federal funding for projects; ground surveys and aerial photography; public involvement meetings; consideration of social, environmental and economic factors; detailed plan design; Bid Analysis Management Systems (BAMS), and the development of specifications and cost estimates for highway projects prior to advertising for bids.

In addition, Design is responsible for the department's computer aided drafting and design (CADD) program including support and training. The unit also operates a print shop that produces documents for MoDOT's monthly bid openings.

The unit's responsibilities include the planning processes that identify and evaluate the state's transportation needs and the location, environmental and cultural resource studies required for initial evaluation of proposed projects. Professional engineers, planners, environmental and cultural specialists and other support staff are involved in the comprehensive evaluation and study of transportation projects prior to detailed design.

The unit coordinates with district project teams and regional planning organizations as well as other federal, state and local agencies to facilitate completion of transportation projects. Design's involvement begins with the initial concept, proceeds through the project development process and provides services and support through and beyond construction of transportation facilities.

Environmental and cultural assessments provide clearances allowing the expenditure of federal funds and issuance of permits by regulatory agencies.

Right of Way

Right of Way acquires all realty rights for constructing and improving state highways and related facilities. It provides a relocation assistance and payments program for all persons displaced by the commission's land acquisition activities. It also is responsible for the disposition of right of way no longer needed for state highway purposes and assists the Office of the Chief Counsel in preparing condemnation cases for trial.

Right of Way administers the regulation of outdoor advertising, salvage yard control and scenic byways programs. It also assists the Chief Counsel's office in preparation of outdoor advertising and salvage yard cases.

District offices

To facilitate providing the state highway and transportation program, the department divides the state into 10 geographical districts. A district engineer administers the department's work within each district. District organization is patterned after that of the Headquarters.

District 1, (Northwest) headquarters, St. Joseph. The district consists of Andrew, Atchison, Buchanan, Caldwell, Clinton, Daviess, DeKalb, Gentry, Harrison, Holt, Nodaway and Worth counties. The counties cover a land area of about 6,049 square miles and have a total population of about 193,000. District 1 has a total of 3,121 miles of state highways.

District 2, (North Central) headquarters, Macon. The district consists of Adair, Carroll, Chariton, Grundy, Howard, Linn, Livingston, Macon, Mercer, Putnam, Randolph, Saline, Schuyler and Sullivan counties. The counties cover a land area of about 8,040 square miles and have a total population of about 176,000. District 2 has a total of 3,746 miles of state highways.

District 3, (Northeast) headquarters, Hannibal. The district consists of Audrain, Clark, Knox, Lewis, Lincoln, Marion, Monroe, Montgomery, Pike, Ralls, Scotland, Shelby and Warren counties. The counties cover a land area of about 7,017 square miles and have a total population of about 179,000. District 3 has a total of 3,636 miles of state highways.

District 5, (Central) headquarters, Jefferson City. The district consists of Benton, Boone, Callaway, Camden, Cole, Cooper, Gasconade, Maries, Miller, Moniteau, Morgan, Osage and Pettis counties. The counties cover a land area of about 7,802 square miles and have a total population of about 419,000. District 5 has a total of 3,619 miles of state highways.

District 6, (St. Louis Metro) headquarters, Chesterfield. The district consists of the city of St. Louis and Franklin, Jefferson, St. Charles and St. Louis counties. The counties cover a land area of 2,707 square miles and have a total population of about 1,855,000. District 6 has a total of 1,503 miles of state highways.

District 7, (Southwest) headquarters, Joplin. The district consists of Barry, Barton, Bates, Cedar, Dade, Jasper, Lawrence, McDonald, Newton, St. Clair and Vernon counties. The counties cover a land area of about 7,139 square miles and have a total population of about 283,000. District 7 has a total of 3,493 miles of state highways.

District 8, (Springfield area) headquarters, Springfield. The district consists of Christian, Dallas, Douglas, Greene, Hickory, Laclede, Ozark, Polk, Stone, Taney, Webster and Wright counties. The counties cover a land area of about 7,448 square miles and have a total population of about 485,000. District 8 has a total of 3,712 miles of state highways.

District 9, (South Central) headquarters, Willow Springs. The district consists of Carter, Crawford, Dent, Howell, Iron, Oregon, Pulaski, Phelps, Ripley, Reynolds, Shannon, Texas and Washington counties. The counties cover a land area of about 9,889 square miles and have a total population of about 235,000. District 9 has a total of 3,740 miles of state highways.

District 10, (Southeast) headquarters, Sikeston. The district consists of Bollinger, Butler, Cape Girardeau, Dunklin, Madison, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Perry, Scott, St. Francois, Ste. Genevieve, Stoddard and Wayne counties. The counties cover a land area of about 7,954 square miles and have a total population of about 374,000. District 10 has a total of 3,856 miles of state highways.

Inspector General

The inspector general is charged with improving efficiency, ensuring consistent application of equal employment opportunity programs and helping ensure organizational integrity. The goals of the inspector general are to put processes and procedures in place to support organizational integrity and to identify and eliminate problems early, when it's practical to do so.

The inspector general investigates a wide range of areas from grievances to criminal charges. The inspector general also manages the activities of employee relations and construction civil rights administration.

The inspector general oversees the external civil rights Disadvantaged Business Enterprise program and investigation of employee grievances and equal opportunity complaints.

Employee Relations

Employee Relations administers the department's internal equal employment opportunity, affirmative action programs, and employee grievance system and investigates civil rights complaints. The unit also provides employee counseling services and monitors the department's compliance with anti-discrimination and environmental justice laws.

External Civil Rights Administration

The External Civil Rights Administration unit works to ensure civil rights policies relative to department operations meet standards. The unit is also responsible for implementing the department's Disadvantaged Business Enterprise program to ensure non-discrimination in the award and administration of contracts and to create a level playing field on which DBE firms can compete fairly for federally funded transportation projects.

Public Affairs

The prime function of this unit is dissemination of information about the commission and department. The unit prepares and distributes news releases and also publishes inside MoDOT, the department's monthly publication for employees and their families. Public Affairs also publishes a quarterly magazine, Pathways, which provides information about transportation trends and department programs. It also features guest articles from both public and private agencies on issues having an effect on department operations.

The unit also supervises exhibits, creates multimedia presentations, prepares speeches, displays and brochures, distributes official highway maps, prepares communication and marketing plans and provides quality assurance and support to district public affairs efforts. Staffs also coordinate communication activities of operations, planning and project development. The unit also operates the Headquarters customer service center and provides support and guidance to district customer service centers.

Governmental Affairs

The governmental affairs unit directs the department's activities involving state and federal legislation, tracks legislation and provides information to elected officials.

The Highway and Transportation Employees' and Highway Patrol Retirement System was established under legislation, which became effective in 1955, to provide retirement benefits for employees of the Missouri Department of Transportation and the State Highway Patrol. The system has approximately 15,000 members. Financing of the system is generally from highway funds and investment income.

The system is governed by a 10-member board of trustees made up of three members of the Highways and Transportation Commission, the director of the Department of Transportation, the superintendent of the Highway Patrol, one member of the Senate, one member of the House of Representatives, one active member of the Department of Transportation, one active member of the State Highway Patrol and one retired member of the system.

Missouri Mississippi River Parkway Commission

The Missouri Mississippi River Parkway Commission works to preserve, promote, and enhance the scenic, historic, and recreational resources of the Mississippi River, to foster economic growth in the corridor, and to develop the national, scenic, and historic parkway known as the Great River Road. The GRR is a river parkway system utilizing existing Mississippi River valley roads while preserving the region's landscape quality. The commission promotes and supports tourism, coordinates domestic and international marketing, facilitates efforts to enhance economic development, and encourages resource awareness. It also works to leverage dollars for highway improvements, recreational trails, bikeways, scenic overlooks and historic preservation along the Mississippi River.

The Missouri commission is one of the earliest of other such bodies from the 10 states involved in the Great River Road program. Ten commissions were established as part of the National Mississippi River Parkway Commission to act in the planning and implementation of plans for the overall Great River Road development. The province of Ontario also is included in the national commission.

Young, Marla, Department of Agriculture.

Commission members serve without compensation, except for reimbursement for expenses. Administrative support is provided by the Department of Transportation.

The Great River Road

The development of the Great River Road was authorized by Congress in 1954 after a two-year feasibility study and resulting report, which recommended a plan for a Mississippi River scenic route development by the states through which the route would pass. The plan would be administered by the various state highway departments by improving existing highways to parkway-like standards. It was further recommended that existing highways could be incorporated into a continuous route by interconnecting them where necessary with limited sections of new construction.

The Great River Road provides three major benefits.

(1) It represents a concentrated effort to protect and conserve the natural and cultural environment of the Mississippi River corridor.

(2) The road provides a diverse experience for the vacation traveler and residents that is both enjoyable and educational through the river's major scenic and historic areas.

(3) It provides a positive economic impact on the region serving as an important part of the nation's transportation system. The program has provided important funds for road improvements in a predominately rural section of the nation.

The focus of the MRPC has shifted from solely the designation and construction of the GRR to one encompassing tourism, economic development, and natural/cultural resource awareness.

The Great River Road is along the Mississippi River, entering Missouri from Iowa on U.S. Route 61. It continues south through Canton and LaGrange to Palmyra, where it shifts to Missouri Route 168 proceeding south to Hannibal. After rejoining U.S. Route 61 north of Hannibal, it continues to downtown Hannibal on U.S. Route 36. It shifts to Missouri Route 79 and continues south along the river through Louisiana, Clarksville, and Elsberry. Where Route 79 ends in St. Peters, the GRR continues east on Interstate Route 70 into St. Charles and to downtown St. Louis. In sight of the Gateway Arch, the GRR shifts to Interstate Route 55 and continues south along the river. South of Crystal City, it rejoins U.S. Route 61 and continues through Ste. Genevieve, Perryville and Cape Girardeau. It continues further south on U.S. Route 61 through Sikeston, New Madrid, Portageville, near Caruthersville, Steele and into Arkansas. A 26-mile portion of the Great River Road, Route 79 between the Ralls County line to Clarksville within Pike County, is the first State Scenic Byway designated in Missouri.

Bridge commissions

There are four bridge commissions assigned to the department. These commissions were created by interstate compacts to plan, construct, maintain and operate bridges and approaches across the Mississippi River within their areas of responsibility. The location of these bridges is to be at points most suitable to the interest of the citizens of Missouri and the other states involved in accordance with the provisions of the federal General Bridge Act of 1946.

Although attached to the Missouri Department of Transportation by law for organizational purposes, the four bridge commissions operate independently of the department.

The commissions are the Missouri-Illinois-Jefferson-Monroe Bridge Commission; the Missouri-Illinois Bridge Commission (Canton); the Missouri-Illinois Bridge Commission (Ste. Genevieve); and the Tennessee-Missouri Bridge Commission.

Although attached to the Missouri Department of Transportation by law for organizational purposes, the St. Louis Area Bi-State Development Agency and the Kansas City Area Transportation Authority operate independently of the department.

Bi-State Development Agency

707 N. First St., St. Louis 63102

Telephone: (314) 982-1400

Origin

The Bi-State Development Agency of the Missouri-Illinois Metropolitan District was established September 20, 1949, by compact between the states of Missouri and Illinois to make plans for the overall development of the St. Louis metropolitan area and to carry out specific projects. In the following year, the compact was approved by the U.S. Congress and the president. The compact was authorized by legislative acts of the two states and was consented to by Congress as required by Article I, Section 10, Clause 3 of the Constitution of the United States. Under subsequent legislation the two states agreed to amend the original compact. These changes were approved by Congress and the president in 1959.

The compact was further amended by Illinois in 1979 and Missouri in 1980 to broaden the powers of the agency to include the authority to acquire and operate facilities handling refuse or waste derived resources, fuel or energy.

Scope and functions

The compact created the Missouri-Illinois Metropolitan District to include the City of St. Louis and the counties of St. Louis, St. Charles and Jefferson in Missouri and Madison, Monroe and St. Clair in Illinois. Within this district, the agency has two functions. First, it is empowered to construct, maintain, own and operate specific facilities including bridges, tunnels, airports, wharves, docks, warehouses, grain elevators, passenger transportation facilities and air, water, rail and motor vehicle terminal facilities. Second, it is authorized to make plans for coordination of streets, highways, parking areas, terminals, water supply, sewage and drainage facilities, recreational facilities, land-use patterns and other matters in which joint or coordinated action of the communities within the areas will be generally beneficial.

The Bi-State Development Agency may charge and collect fees for use of such facilities as it may own, issue bonds upon the security of revenues to be derived from such facilities and receive for its activities any contributions or money appropriated by municipalities, counties, states, the federal government or other agencies. It has no taxing powers.

Administration

A board of 10 commissioners administers the agency, five appointed by the governor of Missouri and five by the governor of Illinois. The commissioners serve overlapping terms of five years each, so that only one term expires each year. The commissioners serve without pay and elect their own officers. An executive director appointed by the board of commissioners administers the agency.

Activities and Operating Division

St. Louis Downtown Airport

On November 25, 1964, the agency purchased the closed Parks Metropolitan Airport facility located in Cahokia, IL, and reopened it as Bi-State Parks Airport. Funds for the purchase and development of this airfield were provided by grants from the Federal Aviation Administration and the state of Illinois, the sale of bonds and by an advance of $500,000 for debt service on the bonds payable over a seven-year period from the City of St. Louis. These bonds were retired by the agency in January 1993.

An initial $1 million improvement program was completed in 1970 with the opening of a lighted, 5,500-foot jet runway. In 1979, a period of immense expansion activity was begun with construction of a $1.2 million hangar and the completion of an FAA-operated instrument landing system with glideslope and middle marker. Other projects included construction of a new terminal building with administrative offices, construction of an access road, and the preparation for a 200-acre industrial park. These were completed in 1983–84 and construction of a new parallel runway was completed in 1985. In 1989, the primary runway was extended to 7,000 feet.

The airport was renamed St. Louis Downtown Parks Airport in 1984 to emphasize its proximity to St. Louis. The sewer and water infrastructure needed to fully develop the industrial park was installed in 1987 along with an extension to the terminal drive and improved night security lighting.

Several new facility projects were completed during the 1990s including new taxiways, aircraft parking aprons, new auto parking lots and road extensions. In 1999, the Airport's name was further changed to St. Louis Downtown Airport.

St. Louis Downtown Airport is the busiest airport in southern Illinois. It is a full-service airport offering a complete line of general aviation services. A 1997 report by the East-West Gateway Coordinating Council placed the airport's annual economic impact at $135 million. The airport is home to about 250 aircraft, handles nearly 200,000 operations annually, and employs over 900 people.

Gateway Arch Passenger Transportation System, Ticketing and Reservation Center

In the early 1960's, Bi-State offered, as a public service, to raise the necessary funds to permit construction of the passenger transportation facilities in the Gateway Arch at the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial.

The National Park Service contacted Bi-State with the opportunity to finance and operate the tram system. On May 14, 1962, the Agency entered into a cooperative agreement with the Park Service to provide funds through the sale of $3.3 million in revenue bonds to finance the construction of the tram system and the required heating, ventilation, and air conditioning systems in the Arch legs.

The tram system became operational in the north leg of the Arch in July 1967 and in the south leg in March 1968. The system consists of two trams, two maintenance elevators, stairways, related controls, and power and communication equipment.

By September 1, 1967 the system had transported its 100,000th passenger.

The bonds were paid off 10 years ahead of schedule in 1982. In this same year, the first of several amendments to the cooperative agreement were signed, allowing Bi-State to continue to operate the system, expand responsibilities, and establish a debt service reserve fund for a proposed 1,238-car parking facility. The Arch Parking Garage was completed in 1986 financed by $10.2 million in revenue bonds issued by Bi-State.

In 1989 the Agency expanded from selling only tram tickets to also ticketing and reservations for the theatre and collection of the National Park Service entrance fee. To better serve guests, a computerized ticketing system was purchased and software developed to expedite the sale of all event tickets and collection of fees.

During the late 1980s and early 1990s, Bi-State developed, funded, and constructed an underground four-story-high large screen format theatre, known as the Odyssey Theatre, which opened in 1993. The theatre features the first American-made 70mm, 15 pert wide screen projection system.

In 1994, Bi-State developed a comprehensive Arch facility expansion program. Expansion included doubling the size of the Arch Museum, additional women's restrooms, new staff break-room, lobby video wall and audio systems, and the creation of a six window, (previously four window) "guest friendly" ticket center. Architectural drawings, funding and construction were provided by the Agency. This project was completed during fiscal year 1995.

Revenues in excess of operating expenses and administrative costs are committed to further development of the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial.

Today, nearly one million people ride the tram to the top of the Arch each year. Over 120 staff members work to assist guests with ticketing and expedite tram operations.

Extensive modernization of the Tucker Theatre and Arch lobby area, coupled with the implementation of new services and an aggressive marketing strategy set the stage for enhanced revenue opportunities, increased efficiencies, and explosive growth.

During 1999, Bi-State and the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial launched a project to add to the tram experience. Calling the project "Journey to the Top," an exhibit has opened in each leg of the Arch that educates and entertains guests as they wait in the queue area to ride the trams.

The south leg, "When Riverboats Ruled" welcomes guests to a morning in the mid 1800s, where they can witness a day on the St. Louis riverfront—a bustling, vibrant area of steamboats and commerce. At the north leg, "Fitting the Final Piece" guests are transported to the memorable morning of October 28, 1965, as the last section of the Arch was lifted into place.

Transit Division

A 1959 study of mass transportation, jointly sponsored by the city and county of St. Louis, recommended a consolidation of all transit facilities in the Missouri portion of the metropolitan area. Subsequently, the agency sponsored a study to review the Illinois portion of the area. This report concluded that the re-establishment of a unified area-wide transit system would be in the interests of all communities in the St. Louis metropolitan area and that the Bi-State Development Agency was the proper agency to establish such a system.

After approximately 18 months of additional study and negotiation, Bi-State completed arrangements to purchase the 15 existing privately-owned transit systems. The agency also entered into a management contract with Transit Services Corporation for operation of the consolidated transit system. A revenue bond issue of $26,500,000 was successfully sold on March 12, 1963, and on April 1, 1963, the agency took title to the physical assets and operating rights of the unified transportation system.

In June 1973, the Missouri General Assembly enacted the transportation sales tax authorizing a one-half cent sales tax in the city of St. Louis and St. Louis County (Revised Statutes of the State of Missouri 1969, Sections 94.600 to 94.655). Later during the same month, the board of aldermen of St. Louis and the St. Louis County Council approved ordinances levying the local tax monies and appropriating those receipts to Bi-State.

In the early 1980s, Illinois authorized the counties served by Bi-State to levy up to one-fourth of one cent tax for public transportation purposes.

In the early to mid-80s, a new era in bus maintenance, cleaning and passenger service began as new station-garages were constructed. The new Brentwood, Illinois and DeBaliviere facilities opened, and a new main repair facility opened. The old Belleville, North and South Broadway, and East St. Louis garages were closed. Call-A-Ride and Call-A-Ride Plus van service were begun, and park-ride lots increased tenfold.

In November 1993, voters in St. Clair County, IL, approved a one-half cent transportation sales tax. In August 1994, voters in St. Louis city and county also overwhelmingly approved a one-quarter of 1 percent regional transportation sales tax. Revenue from the taxes will be used to support future expansions of MetroLink and improvements to the transit system.

MetroLink

In November 1987, Bi-State assumed responsibility for the MetroLink light rail system to be built between East St. Louis, IL and Lambert-St. Louis International Airport. This initial 17-mile MetroLink line, built on exclusive rights of way, included 19 stations and 31 electrically powered light rail vehicles. It used existing railroad right of way and other public and private property. The capital cost for this initial phase was $464 million, $348 million of which was supplied by the Federal Transit Administration. The remainder was supplied by local jurisdictions. Construction started in early 1990, and passenger service began July 31, 1993.

The next phase of MetroLink to be built was a 17.4-mile extension eastward into St. Clair County, IL. The extension stretches from the previously existing 5th and Missouri station in East St. Louis to the campus of Southwestern Illinois College in Belleville. It includes eight new stations and 24 new light rail vehicles, bringing the total number of stations to 27 and the number of light rail vehicles to 65. The length of the MetroLink system is now 34.4 miles.

The capital cost for the St. Clair County MetroLink Extension was $339.2 million, 72 percent of which was supplied by the Federal Transit Administration, and 28 percent of which was supplied from a local sales tax passed by St. Clair County voters in November 1993. Construction started in March 1998, and passenger service began in May 2001.

Construction began in Spring 2001 on an additional 3.5-mile extension from Southwestern Illinois College to Shiloh and Scott Air Force Base. This $75 million extension is being funded from $60 million from the Illinois FIRST program and $15 million from the local sales tax passed in 1993. Passenger service is scheduled to begin on this extension in mid-2003.

The next phase of MetroLink will be built in Missouri. The Cross County MetroLink Extension, currently in design, will extend from the existing Forest Park station west through Clayton and south to Shrewsbury. Construction is scheduled to begin on this 8.2-mile extension in Fall 2002 and Spring 2003, with passenger service beginning in 2005.

The Kansas City Area Transportation Authority (KCATA) was formed with the signing of a bi-state compact created by the Missouri and Kansas legislatures on December 28, 1965. The compact was authorized by legislation enacted by the 73rd General Assembly of the state of Missouri (Revised Statutes of the State of Missouri 1969, Sections 238.010 to 238.100) and by the 61st Regular session of the Kansas Legislature (Sections 12-2524 to 12-2535 Kansas Statutes Annotated). The compact was approved by the 89th Congress (Public Law 89-599) and the bill signed on Sept. 21, 1966, by President Lyndon B. Johnson. Actual transit operation began Feb. 1, 1966.

The compact gives the KCATA responsibility for planning, construction, owning and operating passenger transportation systems and facilities within the seven-county Kansas City metropolitan area. These include the counties of Cass, Clay, Jackson and Platte in Missouri, and Johnson, Leavenworth and Wyandotte in Kansas.

The ATA is governed by a 10-member board of commissioners, five from Kansas and five from Missouri. The five Missouri commissioners are appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, to serve four-year terms each. Appointments are made from a panel of three nominees submitted to the governor by each of the county commissioners in Cass, Clay and Platte counties, by the Jackson County Legislature, and by the mayor of Kansas City. In Kansas, local governments of Johnson, Leavenworth and Wyandotte counties appoint one commissioner each. The remaining Kansas representatives are appointed by the mayor of Kansas City, Kansas. The commissioners select their own officers on an annual basis.

Service Information

The Kansas City Area Transportation Authority offers customers three types of service in the Kansas City area: fixed-route service along 56 routes; Share-A-Fare Paratransit service for the elderly and persons with disabilities, and MetroFlex service, which offers a combination of fixed-route in rush hour and demand-response in mid-day. MetroFlex service is operated in North Kansas City, Lee's Summit, Raytown and three areas of south Kansas City.

The ATA currently uses 185 large buses, 86 small buses and 35 MetroFlex vehicles, all lift-equipped. Metro buses travel nearly 33,000 miles every weekday, providing transportation to approximately 51,000 passengers each weekday.

ATA Labor Force

The ATA has a staff of 829 employees; 506 are Metro bus operators (400 full-time and 106 part-time). The Maintenance Department is the second largest unit with 166 employees. The remaining employees are in Administration, Facilities, Finance, Marketing, Human Resources, Rail Planning, Special Services, Purchasing, Scheduling and Share-A-Fare.

Approximately 701 employees are members of the Amalgamated Transit Union, Local 1287. This includes all Metro bus operations, all Maintenance employees below the position of foreman, the office clerical personnel exclusive of secretaries and supervisors.

Funding

Service or management contracts are maintained with five municipal jurisdictions, the largest being Kansas City, MO., which contributes approximately 95 percent of the local government-operating subsidy. The city, empowered by the state Legislature, levies a special one-half cent transportation sales tax to support transit operations.

The funds derived from the transportation sales tax have also been used for local participation in a number of capital projects. In most instances, these capital improvements are 80 percent funding by a federal grant from the Federal Transit Administration. The remaining 20 percent comes from the transportation sales tax fund and payments from other local jurisdictions.

In recent years, this process has resulted in several new improvements for the ATA. A new maintenance facility and administration/customer service building was completed in 1991. A downtown transit plaza opened in October 1995.

Business and Community Support

The ATA's Transit Riders' Incentive Plan (TRIP) now boasts 135 member organizations in the Kansas City area that sell and share the cost of monthly bus passes for their employees. This number is more than double what the membership was three years ago. This success is due in part to the program's emergency ride home guarantee, employer interest in enhancing benefit packages and an increasing awareness of the importance of transit to a city the size of Kansas City.

Missouri voting and Elections

Who registers to vote in Missouri?

Citizens living in Missouri must register in order to vote. Any U.S. citizen 17 and one-half years of age or older, if a Missouri resident, may register and vote except:

- A person who is adjudged incapacitated
- A person who is confined under sentence of imprisonment
- A person who is on probation or parole after conviction of a felony until finally discharged
- A person after conviction of a felony or misdemeanor connected with the right of suffrage (RSMo 115.133)

How do Missourians register?

Qualified citizens may register in person at the office of their local election authority, by mail, at the driver's license fee office or at participating state agencies. Registration in person is accomplished by filling out a registration form with information on identity, residence and qualifications, which are signed, sworn to and then witnessed by the election authority or a designee. (RSMo 115.155)

Registration by mail, at the driver's license fee office or at the participating state agencies requires submission of an application stating qualifications. The election authority within seven working days sends a verification or rejection of registration. (RSMo 115.159)

When do Missourians register?

An unregistered citizen may register to vote whenever local election authorities' places of business are open, by requesting an application by mail from the election authority, when renewing a Missouri driver's license or when receiving services from a participating state agency. Special registration sites may be utilized prior to major elections.

The deadline for registration is the fourth Wednesday prior to an election. Individuals who have moved to Missouri after the registration deadline may register and vote a truncated ballot.

Missouri holds elections on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in: February, March, April, June, August and November. In even-numbered years, the primary election is held in August and the general election is held in November. Also, Missouri holds a presidential preference primary in March during a presidential election year. Other elections are held in Missouri pursuant to the charters of certain cities and counties and writs of election issued by the Governor.

Who conducts registration and elections?

Voter registration and the conduct of elections are the responsibilities of boards of election commissioners in the counties of Clay, Jackson, Platte and St. Louis and in the cities of Kansas City and St. Louis. The county clerk serves as the election authority in all other counties of the state.

Special voting provisions

Handicapped voters and persons prevented from voting because of absence or illness may vote absentee. Persons with permanent disabilities may apply for permanent absentee ballot status by making application with the local election authority. (115.284 RSMo) Voters requiring additional assistance may opt for curbside voting, or voters may be transferred to more accessible precincts. Local election officials should be contacted about absentee federal service balloting or "new resident" ballots for residents who arrive after the registration deadline.

Elections and political parties

Missourians do not register under party affiliation. Hence, at primary elections, voters may choose which "established party" ballot they wish to vote. Party nominees—and independent candidates—are then listed on the general election ballot.

There are presently three "established political parties" statewide—the Republican, Democratic and Libertarian parties. Persons may seek the nomination of these parties for any elective office from the county level and above. In order to become "established", a party must have received more than two percent of the votes cast statewide for at least one of its candidates. New parties are formed by petition and may exist on the county, district or state level. They must meet the same standard as any other party to remain "established."

In addition to the three statewide established parties, the Constitution, Reform, Green and Natural Law parties are also active in some regions of the state.

At the time of primary elections, voters select county committee members of established parties in Missouri. Those committee people, thus elected, have certain duties and responsibilities. They serve, as appropriate, as members of legislative, senatorial, judicial, and congressional district committees. County, district, or state committee members may be called on to fill candidate vacancies on party ballots or to select nominees for special elections from time to time. The state committees are selected, indirectly, by local committee persons. The state committees become especially important when delegates to presidential nominating (national) conventions are being selected.

Constitutional Amendment No. 1

Proposed by the 90th General Assembly, First Regular Session SJR 25

Shall a budget reserve fund be created in the state treasury to provide an operating reserve for use by the governor with 2/3 approval by the legislature when there is a budget emergency due to disaster or revenues falling below revenue estimates?

The estimated fiscal impact of this proposed measure on state and local governments is $0.

Constitutional Amendment No. 2

Proposed by the 90th General Assembly, First Regular Session SJR 50

Shall the Missouri Constitution be amended to reduce the time from two years to six months that individuals are required to have been bona fide members of a licensed religious, charitable, fraternal, service, or veteran organization in order to participate in the management, conduct or operation of a licensed bingo game?

The estimated fiscal impact of this proposed measure for state and local governments is unknown.

Constitutional Amendment No. 3

Proposed by the 90th General Assembly, First Regular Session SJR 35

Shall the Constitution be amended to provide that salaries recommended by the Citizens' Commission on Compensation for statewide elected officials, judges and legislators require an appropriation by the legislature in separate amounts not to exceed those proposed by the Commission and to remove the Commission's authority to recommend mileage and expenses?

The fiscal impact of this proposal is unknown, as it will depend on the amount of compensation proposed by the Citizens' Commission and the actions of the Governor and General Assembly on future budgets.

Proposition A

Proposed by Initiative Petition

Shall Missouri statutes be amended to prohibit the construction of most new outdoor advertising and to further restrict existing outdoor advertising along all National Highway System highways in Missouri; to increase the authority of any city, county or local zoning authority to regulate outdoor advertising; and to prohibit the removal of trees and vegetation located on public rights of way except for purposes of improving aesthetic or environmental value or of eliminating safety hazards?

The estimated fiscal impact of this proposed measure is unknown.

Proposition B

Proposed by Initiative Petition

Shall Missouri statutes be enacted establishing a campaign finance system where candidates for election to the Missouri legislature and statewide office who comply with various requirements regarding campaign contributions and finances, including limitations on campaign spending, contributions and use of personal funds, may apply and obtain certification from the Missouri Ethics Commission to receive public campaign financing, where the funds allocated to participating candidates are provided by increasing by one-hundredth of one percent the annual franchise tax levied on corporations whose outstanding shares and surplus exceed two million dollars, with such campaign finance system to include penalties for violations?

The costs of this proposal will be funded through an increase in the corporate franchise tax rate for corporations whose outstanding shares and surplus exceed $2,000,000. This tax increase will generate approximately $13,000,000 per year.
